No Appeal to Judge at Chambers.—No appeal lies to the judge at chambers under this section. R. R. v. Stewart, 132 N. C. 248, 43 S. E. 638.

Effect of Appeal.—The appeal, provided by this section, from a judgment by the clerk of the superior court in condemnation proceedings, under sec. 1716, takes the entire record up for review upon questions of fact to be tried by the court, and neither party is entitled to demand a trial by jury in term before the report of the jury of view has been made and confirmed. Johnson City, etc., R. Co. v. South, etc., R. Co., 148 N. C. 59, 61 S. E. 683.

Same—By Both Parties.—On appeal by both parties in proceedings to condemn land to the superior court in term, the trial is de novo; and where the defendant has substantially recovered damages for the taking of his land, the costs are taxable against the plaintiff, though the recovery is in a smaller sum than the amount theretofore awarded by the appraisers or viewers. Durham v. Davis, 171 N. C. 305, 88 S. E. 433.

Power of Judge.—The judge has authority unquestionably to set aside the report, and to direct a new appraisement by the same commissioners or others appointed in their stead, on the ground that the damage assessed was excessive, but he can no more modify the findings of the commissioners in that respect by substituting a smaller sum, than he could make the same change in the verdict of the jury. Hance v. North Carolina R. Co., 109 N. C. 490, 492, 13 S. E. 896.

Same—No Appeal from Remanding Order.—An order of the superior court in condemnation proceedings remanding the cause to the clerk, that he may hear the same, is interlocutory, and no appeal lies therefrom. Cape Fear, etc., R. Co. v. King, 125 N. C. 454, 34 S. E. 541. This is true though a plea in bar was filed by the defendant. Holly Shelter R. Co. v. Newton, 133 N. C. 132, 45 S. E. 549.

Payment before Entry.—Formerly the landowner had no right to a jury trial in fixing compensation upon condemnation of the right of way, nor was the compensation required to be paid before entry. This section changed this as to railroads by requiring the company to pay into court the sum assessed before entry. Holly Shelter R. Co. v. Newton, 133 N. C. 132, 134, 45 S. E. 549; State v. Jones, 139 N. C. 613, 620, 52 S. E. 240.

But Injunction Will Not Issue.—Where a railroad company, seeking to condemn land for its right of way, has given ample bond to cover any damages resulting from its wrongful entry upon the land, an injunction will not issue to restrain such company from entering upon the land before the appraisal of damages and the payment thereof into court. Wellington, etc., R. Co. v. Cashie, etc., R. Co., 116 N. C. 924, 20 S. E. 964; Hally Shelter R. Co. v. Newton, 133 N. C. 132, 45 S. E. 549.

Charter May Grant Power to Enter before Condemnation.—The Legislature may by charter empower a railroad company to enter land and construct their road before instituting condemnation proceedings. State v. Jones, 170 N. C. 753, 87 S. E. 235; Watauga, etc., R. Co. v. Ferguson, 169 N. C. 70, 85 S. E. 156; State v. Lyle, 100 N. C. 497, 5 S. E. 379. Compensation must be provided to warrant the taking, but it need not precede the taking and the owner is confined to the special remedy given him by the statute under which his property is seized. R. R. v. Ferguson, supra; State v. Lyle, supra.

Same—Power Must Be Express.—When the Legislature intended to confer the right to enter before the assessment is made or the damage paid, it has so declared in express terms in the charters. State v. Jones, 139 N. C. 613, 631, 52 S. E. 240.

When Counsel Fees Allowed.—The counsel fees authorized to be taxed in proceedings to condemn lands for railway uses under this section, can only be allowed and taxed in those cases where the court, under section 1728, is directed to appoint an attorney to represent a party in interest who is unknown or whose residence is unknown. North Carolina R. Co. v. Goodwin, 110 N. C. 175, 14 S. E. 687; Durham v. Davis, 171 N. C. 305, 88 S. E. 433.

Judgment Should Fix Boundaries.—In an action for damages for the location of a railroad the judgment should definitely fix the land over which the road is located and the width of the right of way. Beal v. Railroad Co., 136 N. C. 298, 48 S. E. 674.

Section 2309 Applies.—Damages given in proceedings under this section fall directly under section 2309 and the law gives interest only from the rendition of the judgment. Hence a judgment allowing interest from the date of condemnation would be erroneous. Durham v. Davis, 171 N. C. 305, 308, 88 S. E. 433.

Effect of Judgment.—A railroad company by condemnation proceedings acquires an easement upon the land condemned with the right to actual possession of so much only thereof as is necessary for the operation of its road and to protect it against contingent damages. Phillips v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 524, 41 S. E. 1022. And hence a house situated on the right of way at the time of the condemnation proceedings does not become the absolute property of the company. Shields v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 129 N. C. 1, 39 S. E. 582 and cases cited.

No Nonsuit after Order of Ejectment.—In proceedings by one railroad company to condemn a right of way upon which another has lawfully constructed its roadbed, the plaintiff may not, as a matter of right, submit to a judgment of nonsuit after having obtained an order, in the progress of the case, giving it exclusive possession and ejecting the defendant from the locus in quo. Johnson City, etc., Co. v. South, etc., R. Co., 148 N. C. 59, 61 S. E. 683.

Cited in Carolina Power & Light Co. v. Reeves, 198 N. C. 404, 408, 151 S. E. 871.

§ 1724. Provision for jury trial on exceptions to report.—In any action or proceeding by any railroad or other corporation to acquire rights of way or real estate for the use of such railroad or corporation, and in any action or proceeding by any city or town to acquire rights of way for streets, any person interested in the land, or the city, town, railroad or other corporation shall be entitled to have the amount of damages assessed by the commissioners or jurors heard and determined upon appeal before a jury of the superior court in term, if upon the hearing of such appeal a trial by a jury be demanded. (Rev., s. 2588; 1893, c. 148.)

Editor's Note.—Previous to 1893 if the parties did not demand trial by jury before the appointment of the commissioners they were deemed to have waived it and it would not be thereafter granted. This section however specifically grants the right of trial by jury upon an appeal from the report of the commissioners. Chowan, etc., R. Co. v. Parker, 105 N. C. 246, 11 S. E. 328; Durham v. Rigsbee, 141 N. C. 128, 133, 53 S. E. 531; Holly Shelter R. Co. v. Newton, 133 N. C. 132, 134, 45 S. E. 549.

Limits Right to Jury Trial.—This section is a limitation upon the right to demand trial by jury and clearly excludes the idea that any such right is given in respect to the questions of the fact to be decided preliminary to the question of damages. Madison County R. Co. v. Gahagan, 161 N. C. 190, 193, 76 S. E. 696.

Thus a landowner is not entitled at the hearing before the clerk to have issues tried by a jury. Holly Shelter R. Co. v. Newton, 133 N. C. 132, 45 S. E. 549.

Municipal Corporations.—Where the charter of a city or town provides for condemning lands of private owners for cemetery purposes in the manner prescribed for condemnation thereof for street or other purposes, without specific provision for appeal in conformity with the constitutional due-process clause, under the general statute (this section), applying to municipal corporations, this right of appeal is preserved, and the charter provisions of the city or town will not be declared for that reason unconstitutional by the courts. Long v. Rockingham, 187 N. C. 199, 121 S. E. 461.

In condemnation proceedings instituted by a town for the taking of lands for a public municipal purpose, the owner is entitled to a trial by jury in the Superior Court to determine his damages when he has duly preserved it by his exceptions and proper proceduce, and when the trial judge has exercised his discretion in setting aside the amount theretofore awarded by the viewers, the cause continues in the court for the jury trial given him by statute; and an order directing the appointment of other commissioners by the clerk to go upon the land and assess the damages is erroneous. Ayden v. Lancaster, 195 N. C. 297, 142 S. E. 18.

Cited in Carolina Power & Light Co. v. Reeves, 198 N. C. 404, 405, 151 S. E. 871.

§ 1725. When benefits exceed damage, corporation pays costs.—In any case where the benefits to the land caused by the erection of the railroad, street, railway, telephone, telegraph, water supply, bridge, or electric power or lighting plant or other structure, are ascertained to exceed the damages to the land, then the corporation acquiring the same by right of eminent domain shall pay the costs of the proceeding except as provided by law, and shall not have a judgment for the excess of benefits over the damage. (Rev., s. 2589; 1891, c. 160.)

As to costs in condemnation proceedings, see section 1245.

Costs upon Appeal.—When it is decided by the superior court that the defendant's benefit equals the damages, the plaintiff corporation pays the costs, but if the defendant appeals and the decision of the lower court is affirmed then the cost of the appeal falls upon the defendant. Madison County R. Co. v. Gahagan, 161 N. C. 190, 76 S. E. 696.

§ 1726. Title of infants, persons non compos, and trustees without power of sale, acquired.—In case any title or interest in real estate required by any corporation for its purposes shall be vested in any trustee not authorized to sell, release and convey the same, or in any infant, idiot, or person of unsound mind, the superior court shall have power, by a special proceeding, on petition, to authorize and empower such trustee or the general guardian or committee of such infant, idiot, or person of unsound mind, to sell and convey the same to such corporation, on such terms as may be just; and in case any such infant, idiot, or person of unsound mind has no general guardian or committee, the said court may appoint a special guardian or committee for the purpose of making such sale, release or conveyance, and may require such security from such general or special guardian or committee as said court may deem proper. But before any conveyance or release authorized by this section shall be executed, the terms on which the same is to be executed shall be reported to the court on oath; and if the court is satisfied that such terms are just to the party interested in such real estate, the court shall confirm the report and direct the proper conveyance or release to be executed, which shall have the same effect as if executed by an owner of said land having legal power to sell and convey the same. (Rev., s. 2590; Code, s. 1956; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 28.)

As to special proceedings to sell ward's estate, see sections 2180, 2182. As to proceedings to sell lands of joint tenants and tenants in common, see section 3238.

§ 1727. Rights of claimants of fund determined.—If there are adverse and conflicting claimants to the money, or any part of it, to be paid as compensation for the real estate taken, the court may direct the money to be paid into the said court by the corporation, and may determine who is entitled to the same and direct to whom the same shall be paid, and may in its discretion order a reference to ascertain the facts on which such determination and order are to be made. (Rev., s. 2591; Code, s. 1947; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 19.)

Editor's Note.—The purpose of this section is to prevent a corporation, having the right of eminent domain, from being indefinitely postponed in acquiring title and going on with its work or from being subjected to a succession of suits for compensation. Under the provisions of the section the company acquires the right of way and the court distributes the compensation. See Abernathy v. South, etc., R. Co., 150 N. C. 97, 104, 63 S. E. 180.

Rights to Fund Not Raised in Action for Land.—Where such proceedings are infra vires the condemnation and appropriation to the public use must stand, the question as to who is entitled to the damages awarded cannot be raised in an action for the land itself. Harkins v. Ashville, 123 N. C. 636, 31 S. E. 853.

§ 1728. Attorney for unknown parties appointed; pleadings amended; new commissioners appointed.—The court shall appoint some competent attorney to appear for and protect the rights of any party in interest who is unknown or whose residence is unknown, and who has not appeared in the proceedings by an attorney or agent, and shall make an allowance to said attorney for his services, which shall be taxed in the bill of costs. The court shall also have power at any time to amend any defect or informality in any of the special proceedings authorized by this chapter as may be necessary, or to cause new parties to be added, and to direct such further notices to be given to any party in interest as it deems proper; and also to appoint other commissioners in place of any who shall die, refuse or neglect to serve or be incapable of serving. (Rev., s. 5292; Code, s. 1948; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 20.)

Counsel fees for attorneys appointed under this section are provided for in section 1723. See Durham v. Davis, 171 N. C. 305, 88 S. E. 433; North Carolina R. Co. v. Goodwin, 110 N. C. 175, 14 S. E. 687.

§ 1729. Court may make rules of procedure in.—In all cases of appraisal under this chapter where the mode or manner of conducting all or any of the proceedings to the appraisal and the proceedings consequent thereon are not expressly provided for by the statute, the courts before whom such proceedings may be pending shall have the power to make all the necessary orders and give the proper directions to carry into effect the object and intent of this chapter, and the practice in such cases shall conform as near as may be to the ordinary practice in such courts. (Rev., s. 2593; Code, s. 1949; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 21.)

In General.—The provisions of the statute regarding the mode of procedure and rules of practice are indefinite and obscure, and the Legislature, recognizing the difficulty of doing more than outlining the practice so as to safeguard the rights of the parties, has conferred upon the court the power to make rules of procedure when they are not expressly provided by the statute. Abernathy v. South, etc., R. Co., 150 N. C. 97, 103, 63 S. E. 180.

§ 1730. Change of ownership pending proceeding.—When any proceedings of appraisal shall have been commenced, no change of ownership by voluntary conveyance or transfer of the real estate or other subject-matter of the appraisal, or any interest therein, shall in any manner affect such proceedings, but the same may be carried on and perfected as if no such conveyance or transfer had been made or attempted to be made. (Rev., s. 2594; Code, s. 1950; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 22.)

Subsequent Purchaser May Recover.—An owner of land who acquires title subsequent to the location by a railroad company is not barred of his remedy for compensation where the road was not finished more than two years before he begins his action. Hendrick v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 101 N. C. 617, 8 S. E. 236; Beattie v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 108 N. C. 425, 429, 12 S. E. 913.

The purchaser of land subsequent to the location thereon of a railroad may recover permanent damages for the easement taken. Beal v. Railroad Co., 136 N. C. 298, 48 S. E. 674; Phillips v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 41 S. E. 1022.

Until a purchase or condemnation, the corporation's occupation is without title, and the conveyance of the land will pass to the vendee the right to compensation for damages. Liverman v. Roanoke, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 52, 13 S. E. 734.

Action for Unlawful Entry Personal.—The damages incident to the act of an unlawful entry upon land by a railway corporation are personal to the owner of the land and do not pass by his subsequent conveyance of the premises. Liverman v. Roanoke, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 52, 13 S. E. 734.

The purchaser at the mortgage sale, while not entitled to the damages incident to the act of entry, might recover compensation for the land appropriated to the use of the company. Liverman v. Roanoke, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 52, 13 S. E. 734.

§ 1731. Defective title; how cured.—If at any time after an attempt to acquire title by appraisal of damages or otherwise it shall be found that the title thereby attempted to be acquired is defective, the corporation may proceed anew to acquire or perfect such title in the same manner as if no appraisal had been made, and at any stage of such new proceedings the court may authorize the corporation, if in possession, to continue in possession, and if not in possession, to take possession and use such real estate during the pendency and until the final conclusion of such new proceedings, and may stay all actions or proceedings against the corporation on account thereof, on such corporation paying into court a sufficient sum or giving security as the court may direct to pay the compensation therefor when finally ascertained, and in every such case the party interested in such real estate may conduct the proceedings to a conclusion if the corporation delays or omits to prosecute the same. (Rev., s. 2595; Code, s. 1951; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 23.)

§ 1732. Title to state lands acquired.—The secretary of state shall have power to grant to any railroad company any land belonging to the people of this state which may be required for the purposes of its road, on such terms as may be agreed on by them, or such company may acquire title thereto by appraisal, as if the case of lands owned by individuals; and if any land belonging to a county or town is required by any company for the purposes of the road, the county or town officers having the charge of such land may grant such land to such company for such compensation as may be agreed upon. (Rev., s. 2596; Code, s. 1955; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 27.)

§ 1733. Quantity which may be condemned for certain purposes:

1. Right of way of railroad.—The width of the land condemned for any railroad shall not be less than eighty feet nor more than one hundred, except where the road may run through a town, when it may be of less width; or where there may be deep cuts or high embankments, when it may be of greater width.

2. Plankroads, etc.—No greater width of land than sixty feet shall be condemned for the use of any plankroad, tramroad, canal, street railway or turnpike; or greater width than sixteen feet for the use of any flume.

3. Depot or station.—No greater quantity of land than two acres, contiguous to any railroad, plankroad, tramroad, turnpike, flume, or canal, shall be condemned at one place for a depot or station. (Rev., s. 2597; Code, ss. 1707, 1708, 1709; R. C., c. 61, ss. 27, 28, 29; 1852, c. 92; 1874-5, c. 83; 1907, c. 39.)

As to when more than two acres may be condemned for yard or terminal facilities, see section 1708.

In General.—"It is universally held in this jurisdiction that a railroad corporation acquires by condemnation an easement over that portion of its right of way not actually occupied by its roadbed, tracks, drains and side ditches. Ward v. R. R., 109 N. C. 358; Blue v. R. R., 117 N. C. 644; R. R. v. Sturgeon, 120 N. C. 225; Neal v. R. R., 128 N. C. 143; Shields v. R. R., 129 N. C. 1; McCullock v. R. R., 146 N. C. 316; R. R. v. McLean, 158 N. C. 498; Hendrix v. R. R., 162 N. C. 9; R. R. v. Bunting, 168 N. C. 579; Tighe v. R. R., 176 N. C. 239." Griffith v. Southerland Ry. Co., 191 N. C. 84, 87, 131 S. E. 413.

When Section Applies.—If the charter prescribes no maximum or minimum width of the right of way, then paragraph 1 of this section applies, and the law presumes the width therein specified subject to the right of the owner to recover compensation by compliance with section 440, paragraphs 1 and 2. Griffith v. R. R., 191 N. C. 84, 88, 131 S. E. 413.

Company May Use Entire Right of Way. — A railroad company may occupy its right of way to its full extent whenever the proper management and business necessities of the road, in its own judgment, may require it, though the owner of the land can use and occupy a part of the right of way not used by the railroad in a manner not inconsistent with its full enjoyment of the easement. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Bunting, 168 N. C. 579, 84 S. E. 1009; Tighe v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 176 N. C. 239, 244, 97 S. E. 164.

A right of way of specified width must be located and constructed in order to be exclusive. Goldsboro Lumber Co. v. Hines Bros. Lumber Co., 126 N. C. 254, 35 S. E. 458.

Owner's Right to Use.—To the extent that the land covered by the right of way is not presently required for the purposes of the road, the owner may continue to occupy and use it in a manner not inconsistent with the full and proper enjoyment of the easement. Virginia, etc., R. Co. v. McLean, 158 N. C. 498, 74 S. E. 461; Earnhardt v. Southern R. Co., 157 N. C. 358, 72 S. E. 1062; Railroad v. Olive, 142 N. C. 257, 273, 55 S. E. 263; Goldsboro Lumber Co. v. Hines Bros. Lumber Co., 126 N. C. 254, 35 S. E. 458; Railroad Co. v. Sturgeon, 120 N. C. 225, 26 S. E. 779; Coit v. Owenby-Wofford Co., 166 N. C. 136, 138, 81 S. E. 1067.

Same—Permitting Others to Use.—The grant of a right of way of a specified width does not preclude the grantor from such use of his land himself or permitting the same to others, which is not in conflict therewith. Goldsboro Lumber Co. v. Hines Bros. Lumber Co., 126 N. C. 254, 35 S. E. 458.

Crop Raised Must Not Endanger Company's Business.—While land included in the right of way of a railroad company, not necessary for the purposes of the company, may be cultivated by the servient owner, the crop must not be of such inflammable or combustible nature when matured or maturing, as to endanger the safety of the company's passengers or cause injury to adjoining lands in case of ignition of such crops by sparks from the company's engines, for, in such case, the company would have the right to enter and remove such crops. Raleigh, etc., R. Co. v. Sturgeon, 120 N. C. 225, 26 S. E. 779.

Duty of Company to Clear Right of Way. — A railroad company is not negligent in failing to cut down bushes or weeds on the right of way beyond the portion over which it is exercising actual control for corporate purposes; but is required to keep the right of way clear of such growth to the outside of the side ditches on either side of the track. Ward v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 358, 13 S. E. 926.

Same—Negligence. — Where a railroad company permits dry grass or leaves or other combustible rubbish to remain near its track, and the same take fire from ignited sparks emitted from one of its locomotives which had no spark-arrester, and the fire is thereby communicated to the plaintiff's adjoining land, destroying timber, etc.; Held, that the injury resulted from the negligence of the defendant company. Aycock v. Raleigh, etc., Railroad, 89 N. C. 321.

Art. 3. Public Works Eminent Domain Law.

§ 1733(2). Finding and declaration of necessity. —(a) It is hereby declared that widespread unemployment exists throughout the State, making it impossible for many people in the State to support themselves and their families; that these conditions create a public emergency and constitute a menace to the health, safety, morals and welfare of the people of the State; that it is essential that public works projects, financed in whole or in part by the United States of America or by the State be commenced as soon as possible in order to reduce and relieve this unemployment and prevent irreparable injury to the people of the State; that to this end, it is necessary to provide a method for the expeditious acquisition of any lands necessary for such public works projects; that such public works projects are hereby declared to be in furtherance of the public welfare and to be public uses and purposes for which public money may be spent and private property acquired; and the necessity in the public interest for the provision hereinafter enacted is hereby declared as a matter of legislative determination.

(b) Without limitation upon the generality of the foregoing paragraph hereof, it is hereby declared that unsanitary or unsafe dwelling accommodations exist in various areas of the State and that consequently many persons of low income are forced to reside therein; that these conditions cause an increase in and spread of disease and crime, constitute a menace to the health, safety, morals and welfare of the citizens of the State, impair economic values and are not being, and cannot within a reasonable time be, corrected by the investment of private capital available for profit-making enterprises; that the clearance, replanning and reconstruction of the areas in which unsanitary or unsafe conditions exist and the provision of safe and sanitary dwelling accommodations for persons of low income are public uses and purposes for which private property may be acquired. (1935, c. 470, s. 2.)

§ 1733(3). Definitions. — The following terms whenever used or referred to in this article shall have the following respective meanings unless a different meaning clearly appears from the context:

(a) "Public works project" shall mean any work or undertaking which is financed in whole or in part by a federal agency, as herein defined, or by a state public body, as herein defined.

(b) "Federal agency" shall mean the United States of America, the federal emergency administration of public works, or any other agency or instrumentality, corporate or otherwise, of the United States of America.

(c) "State public body" shall mean this State or any county, city, town, municipal corporation, authority, or any other subdivision, agency, or instrumentality, corporate or otherwise, thereof.

(d) "Authorized corporation" shall mean any corporation or association engaged or about to engage in any public works project, as herein defined, for a public use: Provided, that the construction of said public works project and its conduct thereafter by the corporation or association shall be subject to regulation or supervision by a federal agency, as heretofore defined, or a state public body, as herein defined, whether by virtue of an agreement, provision of law, or otherwise.

(e) "Real property" or "property" or "land" shall include all lands, including improvements and fixtures thereon, lands under water, all easements and hereditaments, corporeal or incorporeal, and every estate, interest and right, legal or equitable, in lands or water, and all rights, interests, privileges, easements, encumbrances, and franchises relating to the same, including terms for years and liens by way of judgment, mortgage or otherwise.

(f) "Court" shall mean the court in which jurisdiction over proceedings hereunder is vested by the provisions of section 1733(4).

(g) "Petitioner" shall mean the one by whom proceedings for the acquisition of real property, as herein defined, are instituted hereunder pursuant to the provisions of section 1733(4). (1935, c. 470, s. 3.)

§ 1733(4). Filing of petition; jurisdiction of court; entry upon land by petitioner.—Any federal agency, state public body or authorized corporation may institute proceedings hereunder for the acquisition of any real property necessary for any public works project.

Such proceedings may be instituted in the superior court in any county in which any part of the real property or of the proposed public works project is situate. The court, whether during a term or during a vacation, shall cause said proceedings to be heard and determined without delay. All condemnation proceedings shall be preferred cases, and shall be entitled to precedence over all other civil cases.

The petitioner may enter upon the land proposed to be acquired for the purpose of making a survey and of posting any notice thereon which is required by this article: Provided, that such survey and posting of notice shall be done in such manner as will cause the least possible inconvenience to the owners of the real property. (1935, c. 470, s. 4.)

§ 1733(5). Form of petition. — A proceeding may be instituted hereunder by the filing of a petition which shall be sufficient if it sets forth:

(a) The name of the petitioner.

(b) A description of the property, sufficient for the identification thereof, to which there may be attached a plat or map thereof.

(c) A statement that the acquisition of such property by the petitioner is necessary for a public works project and a brief general description of said public works project.

(d) A statement that the proceedings are being instituted under this article.

(e) A suitable prayer for relief. (1935, c. 470, s. 5.)

§ 1733(6). Inclusion of several parcels. — Any number of parcels of land, whether owned by the same or different persons and whether contiguous or not, may be included and condemned in one proceeding: Provided, such parcels are to be used for a single public works project. (1935, c. 470, s. 6.)

§ 1733(7). Notice of proceedings. — Notice of such proceedings shall be given by one publication in a newspaper having a general circulation in each county in which any part of the property sought to be condemned is located. Such publication shall be at least twenty days and not more than thirty days prior to the date set for the hearing of the validity of the proceedings. Such notice shall be in substantially the following form (the blanks being appropriately filled):

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Notice is hereby given that..... (here insert name of petitioner) has filed a petition in the above court under the Public Works Eminent Domain Law to acquire by condemnation for ..... (here give brief general description of the public works project for which the land is sought to be acquired) the following described land:

(Here describe the land sufficiently for the identification thereof. Such description may be by use of a plat or map.)

Notice is further given that on.....(here insert date of hearing, which must be at least twenty days and not more than thirty days after the date of publication) there will be a hearing in this court, at the opening thereof, for (1) determining the validity of said proceedings and the right of the petitioner, if it so elects, to take title to and possession of such property prior to final judgment, as authorized by section sixteen of said Public Works Eminent Domain Law, and any persons having any interest in or lien upon the above described property shall be deemed to have waived their rights thereafter to object to the court's decision with respect to such issues, unless prior to said date they shall have filed in writing with the clerk of said court their objections thereto; (2) the appointment of a special master to determine the compensation to be awarded for such property and the persons entitled thereto; (3) the fixing of the date and place at which said special master shall hear and determine the compensation to be paid for such property and the person entitled thereto.

Notice is further given that all claims or demands for compensation because of the taking and condemnation of such property must be filed with the above court before.....(here insert date fifteen days after the date above specified for the court hearing), or the same shall be deemed waived.

Clerk of said Court.

Notice of such proceedings shall also be given (a) by posting a copy of the above notice in conspicuous places on the real property sought to be condemned, (b) by filing a copy thereof in the office of the clerk of the court in which such proceedings are pending, and (c) by filing a copy thereof in the proper office or offices for the filing of lis pendens in each county in which any part of the real property is situated.

Such publication, posting and filing shall constitute a legal and sufficient notice to all persons having any interest in or lien upon the property described in said notice. The filing of such notice in the aforesaid county office shall also be a constructive notice of the proceeding to any person who subsequently acquires any interest in or lien upon said property, and the petitioner shall take all property condemned under this article free of the claims of any such person. (1935, c. 470, s. 7.)

§ 1733(8). Determination of issues raised by objections; waiver by failure to file; final judgment; guardian ad litem.—All persons who have not filed written objections with the court prior to the time of the hearing specified in the notice prescribed by section 1733(7) shall be deemed to have waived the right to file objections as to the sufficiency and validity of the petition, the proceedings and the relief sought thereby, and as to the right of the petitioner to take title and possession prior to final judgment, as authorized by section 1733(16).

The court, at the time specified in said notice, after hearing and determining all issues of fact and law raised by the objections which have been filed, if any there be, shall enter a final judgment with respect to such issues, and thereafter there shall remain for determination only the amount of the compensation to be paid and the persons entitled thereto.

If any infant or other person under a legal disability shall not have appeared in the proceedings by his duly authorized legal representative, the court shall appoint a guardian ad litem to represent such person's interest in the proceedings before the special master. (1935, c. 470, s. 8.)

§ 1733(9). Appointment of special master.—The court, at the time of said hearing, shall appoint a special master to fix the amount of damages and compensation for the taking and condemnation of the property described in the petition and the persons entitled thereto, and to report thereon to the court. The special master shall be a disinterested person not related to any one having an interest in or lien upon the property sought to be condemned. The compensation of said special master shall not exceed fifteen ($15.00) dollars per day plus travel and subsistence expenses. The special master immediately after his appointment shall subscribe to an oath that to the best of his ability he will truly find and return the compensation for the taking and condemnation of the property and the persons entitled thereto. (1935, c. 470, s. 9.)

§ 1733(10). Notice of hearing by special master.—Immediately after his appointment and taking of oath, the special master shall cause notice to be sent by registered mail to all persons who have appeared in the proceedings or to their attorneys of record and to all others having any interest in or lien upon the property sought to be condemned, as shown by the record of the proper county office or offices for the recording of documents pertaining to such real estate, and to all guardians ad litem appointed pursuant to the provisions of section 1733(8), such notice to be addressed to such persons at their respective last known addresses. Such notice shall be substantially in the following form (with the blanks appropriately filled):

IN THE.....COURT OF THE.....

Special master appointed by said Court.

The special master shall also cause a copy of said notice to be posted in conspicuous places on the property sought to be condemned.

After such notice by mailing and posting, the special master, on the date for hearing specified in the aforesaid notice, shall proceed immediately to hear and determine the question of just compensation for the taking and condemnation of the property and the persons entitled to such compensation. To this end, the special master may issue subpoenas, administer oaths to witnesses, and receive evidence and cause same to be recorded. (1935, c. 470, s. 10.)

§ 1733(11). Evidence admissible; increase in value; improvements.—For the purpose of determining the value of the land sought to be condemned and fixing just compensation therefor, the following evidence (in addition to other evidence which is relevant, material and competent) shall be relevant, material and competent and shall be admitted and considered by the special master:

(a) Evidence that a building or improvement is unsafe or unsanitary or a public nuisance, or is in a state of disrepair, and of the cost to correct any such condition, notwithstanding that no action has been taken by local authorities to remedy any such condition.

(b) Evidence that any state public body, charged with the duty of abating or requiring the correction of nuisances or like conditions or demolishing unsafe or unsanitary structures, issued an order directing the abatement or correction of any conditions existing with respect to said building or improvement or the demolition of said building or improvement, and of the cost which compliance with any such order would entail.

(c) Evidence of the last assessed valuation of the property for purposes of taxation and of any affidavits or tax returns made by the owner in connection with such assessment which state the value of such property and of any income tax returns of the owner showing sums deducted on account of obsolescence or depreciation of such property.

(d) Evidence that such buildings and improvements are being used for illegal purposes or are being so overcrowded as to be dangerous or injurious to the health, safety, morals or welfare of the occupants thereof and the extent to which the rentals therefrom are enhanced by reason of such use.

(e) Evidence of the price and other terms upon any sale or the rent reserved and other terms of any lease or tenancy relating to such property or to any similar property in the vicinity when the sale or leasing occurred or the tenancy existed within a reasonable time of the hearing.

The award of compensation shall not be increased by reason of any increase in the value of the property resulting from the public works project to be placed thereon.

No allowance shall be made for improvements begun on property after the publication of the notice specified in section 1733(7), except upon good cause being shown. (1935, c. 470, s. 11.)

§ 1733(12). Report of special master.—The report of the special master must be filed with the clerk of the court in which said proceeding is pending within thirty days after the date of the taking of the oath, unless further time is granted by the court. The court shall grant additional time for the filing of the report only on a showing that the report cannot, with all due diligence, be prepared within the time fixed. (1935, c. 470, s. 12.)

§ 1733(13). Notice of report.—Upon the filing of such report by the special master, the court, without delay, shall fix a date for the hearing of any objections filed thereto. Notice that said report has been filed, that all objections thereto must be filed with the court within ten days after the date of the mailing of such notice and that the court has fixed a certain date (which shall be stated therein) for the hearing of such objections, shall be given by sending a copy of such notice by registered mail to all persons who have appeared in the proceeding or their attorneys of record at their last known addresses. Upon the expiration of ten days after the mailing of such notice, all objections to the report shall be deemed waived by all persons who have not filed written objections with the court. (1935, c. 470, s. 13.)

§ 1733(14). Hearing of objections by the court.—If no objections are filed to the special master's report, the court (but only on motion of the petitioner unless title to the property has vested in the petitioner) shall enter a final judgment fixing the compensation to be paid for the property and the persons entitled to such compensation. If any objections are filed to the special master's report, the court on the date specified in the aforesaid order shall hear and determine such questions of law and fact as are raised by such exceptions and may approve, disapprove or modify the special master's findings or may reject the special master's report in toto. In the event the special master's report is rejected in toto, the court shall at once appoint another special master in the same manner that the first special master was appointed, and such special master shall have the same powers and duties as the special master first appointed, except that notice of the time for filing claims and of the hearing of the special master may be given by registered mail to all persons who have appeared in the proceedings or their attorneys of record at their last known addresses, and no other notice shall be necessary. If the court shall approve the special master's report, with or without modification, the court (but only on motion of the petitioner unless title to the property has previously vested in the petitioner) shall enter a final judgment, fixing the compensation to be paid for such property and the persons entitled to such compensation.

If title to said property has not previously been vested in the petitioner, the title and right to possession of said property shall vest in the petitioner immediately upon the entry of such final judgment and upon the deposit in court by the petitioner of the amount of the judgment fixed by the court as the compensation for such property. Upon the entry of such judgment and the vesting of title aforesaid, the court shall designate the day (not exceeding thirty days thereafter, except upon good cause shown) on which the parties in possession of said property shall be required to surrender possession to the petitioner. (1935, c. 470, s. 14.)

§ 1733(15). Certified copy of judgment.—Upon the rendition of the final judgment vesting title in the petitioner, the clerk of the court shall make and certify, under the seal of the court, a copy or copies of such judgment, which shall be filed or recorded in the proper county office or offices for the recording of documents pertaining to the real property described therein, and such filing or recording shall constitute notice to all persons of the contents thereof. A copy of the judgment certified by the clerk of the court as aforesaid shall be competent and admissible evidence in any proceedings at law or in equity. (1935, c. 470, s. 15.)

§ 1733(16). Declaration of taking; property deemed condemned; fixing day for surrender of property; security for compensation and payment of award.—At any time at or after the filing of the petition referred to in section 1733(5), and before the entry of final judgment, the petitioner may file with the clerk of the court a declaration of taking signed by the duly authorized officer or agent of the petitioner declaring that all or any part of the property described in said petition is to be taken for the use of the petitioner.

Said declaration of taking shall be sufficient if it sets forth: (1) a description of the property, sufficient for the identification thereof, to which there may be attached a plat or map thereof; (2) a statement of the estate or interest in said property being taken; and (3) a statement of the sum of money estimated by the petitioner to be just compensation for the property taken.

Upon the filing of said declaration of taking and the deposit in court, to the use of the persons entitled thereto, of the amount of the estimated compensation stated in said declaration, title to the property specified in said declaration shall vest in the petitioner and said property shall be deemed to be condemned and taken for the use of the petitioner, and the right to just compensation for the same shall vest in the persons entitled thereto.

Upon the filing of the declaration of taking, the court shall designate a day (not exceeding thirty days after such filing, except upon good cause shown) on which the parties in possession shall be required to surrender possession to the petitioner. In the event that the petitioner is an authorized corporation, the court, prior to directing surrender of possession to the petitioner, shall require such security to be given, in addition to the amount deposited in court, as will reasonably assure the payment of any amount ultimately determined as the compensation to be paid.

The ultimate amount of compensation shall be fixed in the manner heretofore specified. If the amount so fixed shall exceed the amount so deposited in court by the petitioner, the court shall enter judgment against the petitioner in the amount of such deficiency, together with interest at the rate of six per centum per annum on such deficiency from the date of the vesting of title to the date of the entry of the final judgment (subject, however, to abatement for use, income, rents or profits derived from such property by the owner thereof subsequent to the vesting of title in the petitioner) and the court shall order the petitioner to deposit the amount of such deficiency in court. (1935, c. 470, s. 16.)

§ 1733(17). Right to dismiss petition.—At any time prior to the vesting of title to the property in the petitioner, the petitioner may withdraw or dismiss its petition with respect to any or all of the property therein described. (1935, c. 470, s. 17.)

§ 1733(18). Divesting title of owner. — Upon vesting of title to any property in the petitioner, all the right, title and interest of all persons having any interest therein or lien thereupon shall be divested immediately, and such persons thereafter shall be entitled only to receive compensations for such property. (1935, c. 470, s. 18.)

§ 1733(19). Payment of award into court and disbursement thereof.—The payment into court by the petitioner of the amount of any award or the deposit into court by the petitioner of the amount of any award or the deposit in court of the amount estimated by the petitioner to be the just compensation for the property taken or condemned shall be deemed to be a payment or deposit of money for the use of the persons entitled thereto. Such payment or deposit shall constitute a payment to the persons entitled thereto to the extent of the moneys so paid or deposited into court.

Any such payment shall be as valid and effectual in all respects as if it were made by the petitioner directly to the person entitled thereto or, in the case of a person under legal disability, to his guardian, whether or not (a) such person or his whereabouts is known or unknown, (b) such person is under a legal disability, or (c) there are adverse or conflicting claims to such awards.

The money paid into court shall be secured in such manner as may be directed by the court and shall be paid out by the special master to the persons found to be entitled thereto by the final judgment of the court. (1935, c. 470, s. 19.)

§ 1733(20). Recovery of award. — If an award shall be paid to a person not entitled thereto, the sole recourse of the person to whom it should have been paid shall be against the person to whom it shall have been paid. In such event the person entitled to the award may sue for and recover the same, with lawful interest and costs of suit, as such money had and received to his use by the person to whom the same shall have been paid. (1935, c. 470, s. 20.)

§ 1733(21). Appeal. — Any time within thirty days from the filing of any interlocutory or final order or judgment by the court, any person or persons of record in the proceedings, who shall have filed exceptions at any stage of the proceedings within the time and in the manner specified, may appeal therefrom, but only with respect to those questions or issues which were raised by such exceptions.

The taking of an appeal shall not operate to stay the proceedings under this article except when the person or persons appealing shall have obtained a stay of the execution of the judgment or order appealed from, in which event the proceedings shall be stayed only with respect to the person or persons appealing and their respective interests in the proceedings. Upon the taking of an appeal the proceedings shall be deemed severed as to the person or persons appealing and their respective interests in the proceedings.

Any interlocutory or final order or judgment shall be final and conclusive upon all persons affected thereby who have not appealed within the time herein prescribed.

Any petitioner, other than an authorized corporation, may appeal without giving bond; but any other person or persons appealing shall give bond, with good and sufficient surety, to be approved by the court, conditioned to pay all costs taxed against appellant on such appeal. (1935, c. 470, s. 21.)

§ 1733(22). Costs.—If the petitioner, prior to the making of the award, shall have tendered to an interested person for his property or deposited in court for such property an amount which such interested person refused to accept or agree to as just compensation, all costs shall be assessed against such person in the event that the aforesaid amount tendered or deposited is equal to or in excess of the award fixed or confirmed by the court with respect to such parcel. (1935, c. 470, s. 22.)

§ 1733(23). Powers conferred are supplemental.—The powers conferred by this article shall be in addition and supplemental to and not in substitution for the power conferred by any other law. The power of eminent domain may be exercised hereunder, notwithstanding that any other law may provide for the exercise of said power for like purposes and without regard to the requirements, restrictions or procedural provisions contained in any other law.

Procedure hereunder, which is not prescribed herein, shall be that which is otherwise prescribed by the law of the State. (1935, c. 470, s. 23.)

§ 1733(24). Necessity for certificate of public convenience and necessity from utilities commission.—Notwithstanding any finding of public convenience and necessity, either in general or specific, by the terms of this article, the right of eminent domain shall not be exercised unless and until a certificate of public convenience and necessity for such project has been issued by the utilities commission of North Carolina, and the proceedings leading up to the issuing of such certificate of public convenience and necessity, and the right to appeal therefrom shall be as now provided by law and said rights are hereby expressly reserved to all interested parties in said proceedings. In addition to the powers now granted by law to the utilities commission of North Carolina, the said utilities commission is hereby vested with full power and authority to investigate and examine all projects set up or attempted to be set up under the provisions of this article and determine the question of the public convenience and necessity for said project. (1935, c. 470, s. 25.)

ESTATES

§ 1734. Fee tail converted into fee simple.—Every person seized of an estate in tail shall be deemed to be seized of the same in fee simple; and all sales and conveyances, made bona fide and for valuable consideration, since the first day of January, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-seven, by any tenant in tail in actual possession of any real estate where such estate has been conveyed in fee simple, shall be good and effectual in law to bar any tenant in tail and in remainder of and from all claim, action, and right of entry whatsoever, of, in, and to such entailed estate, against any purchaser, his heirs, or assigns, now in actual possession of such estate, in the same manner as if such tenant in tail had possessed the same in fee simple. I. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS.

Editor's Note.—Estates are now held in the British Isles granted by William, the Conqueror (1085), and by Bruce, after the battle of Bannockburn, (1314), estates tail general or special, estates tail male and estates tail female. This system, one of the last relics of the feudal system, is so pregnant with involved technical problems, and so potent with possibilities of fraud, as to have no place in our present economic and social order. The heavy tax brought about by the World War has forced many of the estates to be divided and sold. Thus the land is gradually coming into the possession of the masses.

The system gained a foot-hold in America during Colonial days, but, with the advent of Independence, this hierarchy, under our conception of freedom, could not exist. So it was that primogeniture, which existed under the Mosaic as well as the English Law, never took root in the states of the American Union. Estates tail were soon abolished. Of these estates it is only necessary to say that they existed in this State in Colonial days; that by section 43 of the Constitution of 1776 it was provided that, "The future Legislature of this State shall regulate entails in such a manner as to prevent perpetuities;" that in 1784 the Legislature passed the act by which all estates tail then in existence were converted into fee-simple estates, and it was enacted that all such estates as should be thereafter created should be deemed to be in fee simple. Mordecai's Law Lectures, vol. 1, p. 498. Walter v. Trollinger, 192 N. C. 744, 747, 135 S. E. 871.

Under our form of government the law favors the early vesting of estates to the end that property may be kept in the channels of trade and commerce. This policy of the law is clearly indicated by Article 1. Secs. 30 and 31, of our constitution, which bars hereditary emoluments and perpetuities, and section 4162 of this Code, providing that a devise shall be presumed to be in fee simple.

The word "estate" in its true legal significance embraces an interest in anything that is the subject of property, especially in lands. Preston defines it to be "the interest which any one has in lands or in any other subject of property." 1 Prest. Est., 20; 2 Blk. Com., 10; 2 Crabb Real Prop., p. 2, § 942. To the same effect are Coke and all other English authorities. Coke Litt., 345. In the American courts the word "estate" is a word of the greatest extension and broadest significance. It comprehends every species of property, real and personal. Glascock v. Gray, 148 N. C. 346, 349, 62 S. E. 433.

"'Estate' is derived from status, and in its most general sense means position or standing in respect to the things and concerns of this world. In this sense it includes choses in action. Webb v. Bowler, 50 N. C. 362; Pippin v. Ellison, 34 N. C. 61; Hurdle v. Outlaw, 55 N. C. 75, 76. But it is also used in a much more restricted sense, and is then put in opposition to a chose in action, or mere right, to signify something which one has in possession, or a vested remainder, or reversion without dispute or adverse possession. Thus, we say, the estate is divested and put to a mere right by a disseisin or discontinuance; and so, in equity, where the trust is by agreement of the parties, we say the cestui qui trust has the estate, but where a decree is necessary, in order to convert one into a trustee against his consent, the party has a mere right." Taylor v. Dawson, 56 N. C. 87, 91.

The word "estate" was used in this later sense by the Rev. Stat., ch. 43, § 2, which enacted: "In all estates, real or personal, the part or share of any tenant dying shall not descend or go to the surviving tenant or tenants, but shall descend or be vested in the heirs, executors or administrators of the tenant so dying, in the same manner as estates held by tenancy in common," etc. Bond v. Hilton, 51 N. C. 180, 181.

Remainder Dependent upon Estate Tail.—The section will bar a remainder dependant upon an estate tail, in possession of tenant in tail, at the time of passing the section. Lane v. Davis, 2 N. C. 277.

Estates Tail Converted.—The section converted by one stroke of the legislative pen estates tail into fee simple. Hodges v. Lipscomb, 128 N. C. 57, 63, 38 S. E. 281.

"Heirs of their bodies" are equivalent to the words "heirs general." Revis v. Murphy, 172 N. C. 579, 90 S. E. 573; Cohoon v. Upton, 174 N. C. 88, 91, 93 S. E. 446.

Form of Acquisition Not Changed.—The Act of 1784, which subsequently converted the estate tail into a fee simple, did not change the original form of the acquisition, which still continued to be by purchase. Ballard v. Griffin, 4 N. C. 237.

Confirmation of Alienation in Fee.—The section converted no estates tail into estates in fee, but such whereof there was a person "seized and possessed," and confirmed only such alienations in fee as had been made by tenants in tail in possession since the year 1777. Wells v. Newbolt, 1 N. C. 537, 538.

II. RULE IN SHELLEY'S CASE.

Editor's Note.—The question has been raised as to the effect of this section upon the application of the Rule in Shelley's Case. It would be well to quote here from the excellent discussion of the subject in 1 N. C. Law Rev., 110, 111. "A disposition of property of frequent occurrence especially in wills, is (a) a life estate to A, who is usually a near relative, say son or daughter of the testator, settler or grantor, followed by (b) an estate tail to the heirs of A's body, with (c) on failure of such heirs of the body or issue or the like, a limitation over in fee simple to the heirs general of A.

"The statute of 1784, C. S. sec. 1734, changed an estate tail to a fee simple in the first taker under the entail. The Rule in Shelley's Case by its very terms unites the life estate, (a) above, with the remainder in tail, (b) above, into a fee tail in the ancestor, which the statute of 1784 thereupon converts to a fee simple. The limitation over, (c) above, can no longer be a remainder after a fee tail, as at common law, upon which the Rule could operate, but becomes instantly a limitation over after a fee simple, that is, an executory limitation, which is not within the operation of the Rule.

"There were two freeholds which the ancestor might take under the limitation within the Rule, an estate for life and an estate tail. But in North Carolina since the statute of 1784, sec. 1734, there is left only a life estate which the ancestor may take under the limitation and which satisfies the conditions for the Rule. We might with a gain in simplicity and exactness embody this statutory result in our statement of the Rule, so as to make it, if Coke's language is adopted, read: 'When by any gift or conveyance the ancestor takes a life estate,' etc., or if Preston and Kent's statement is preferred, it could read: 'When a person takes a life estate legally or equitably....., etc.' " See the statements of the Rule in the words of Coke and Kent, who follows Preston, in Smith v. Proctor, 139 N. C. 314, 51 S. E. 889, 2 L. R. A. (n. s.) 172 (1905). See also, Walter v. Trollinger, 192 N. C. 744, 135 S. E. 871.

For further consideration including a resume of the rule, see the Editor's Note to § 1739.

Force of Rule in North Carolina.—The common-law doctrine known as the rule in Shelley's case is in force in this state. Nichols v. Gladden, 117 N. C. 497, 23 S. E. 459. It has never been abolished in North Carolina. Dawson v. Quinnerly, 118 N. C. 188, 24 S. E. 483. And this section does not affect that principle of law. Dawson v. Quinnerly, 118, N. C. 188, 24 S. E. 483.

Statement of Rule.—"A good definition of the rule (in Shelley's case), and the most general, is as follows: 'That when the ancestors by any gift or conveyance taketh an estate of freehold, and in the same gift or conveyance an estate is limited either mediately or immediately to his heirs, in fee or in tail, the word "heirs" is a word of limitation of the estate and not a word of purchase.' " Nichols v. Gladden, 117 N. C. 497, 500, 23 S. E. 459.

Nature and Operation of Rule.—The rule in Shelley's case is a rule of law and not of construction, and, no matter what the intention of the grantor or testator may have been, if an estate is granted or given to one for life and after his death to his heirs or "heirs of his body," and no other words are superadded which to a certainty show that other persons than the heirs general of the first taker are meant, the rule applies and the whole estate vests in the first taker. Nichols v. Gladden, 117 N. C. 497, 23 S. E. 459.

"Heirs" or "Heirs of Body."—In order to an application of the rule in Shelley's case appreciation of the words "heirs" or "heirs of the body" must be taken in their technical sense, or carry the estate to the entire line of heirs to hold as inheritors under our canons of descent; but should these words be used as only designating certain persons, or confining the inheritance to a restricted class of heirs, the rule does not apply, and the ancestor or the first taker acquires only a life estate according to the meaning of the express words of the instrument. Wallace v. Wallace, 181 N. C. 158, 106 S. E. 501.

Fee Simple.—A limitation coming within the rule in Shelley's case, recognized as existent in this State, operates as a rule of property, passing when applicable a fee simple, both in deeds and wills, regardless of a contrary intent on the part of the testator or grantor appearing in the instrument. Wallace v. Wallace, 181 N. C. 158, 106 S. E. 501.

A devise of lands to the testator's named children "for life only and then to their body heirs," falls within the rule in Shelley's case, notwithstanding the use of the words "for life only," and carries to the remainderman a fee tail under the old law, converted by our statute into a fee-simple title. Harrington v. Grimes, 163 N. C. 76, 79 S. E. 301, cited and applied. Merchants Nat. Bank v. Dortch, 186 N. C. 510, 120 S. E. 60.

Where a husband conveys his lands to his wife for life and to her bodily heirs begotten by him, the estate conveyed is an estate tail special under the rule in Shelley's case, converted into a fee simple absolute by this section. Morehead v. Montague, 200 N. C. 497, 157 S. E. 793.

III. APPLICATION AND ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.

Deed Sufficient Formerly to Convey Fee Tail.—A deed, which was sufficient under the old law to confer a fee tail, is sufficient under this section, where a contrary intent may not be gathered from the instrument construed as a whole to convey an estate in a fee simple, but must be distinguished from cases in which the words "bodily heirs" are used in a conveyance as descriptio personarum, which merely conveys to them an estate in remainder and as purchasers from the grantor. Harrington v. Grimes, 163 N. C. 76, 79 S. E. 301. Decisions in support of this construction of deeds will be found in Perrett v. Bird, 152 N. C. 220, 67 S. E. 507; Sessoms v. Sessoms, 144 N. C. 121, 56 S. E. 687; Jones v. Ragsdale, 141 N. C. 200, 53 S. E. 842; Whitfield v. Garris, 134 N. C. 24, 45 S. E. 904, and many others. The well considered cases of Acker v. Pridgon, 158 N. C. 337, 74 S. E. 335, and Puckett v. Morgan, 158 N. C. 344, 74 S. E. 15, in no way militate against this position.

Same—Life Estate with Limitation over to Bodily Heirs.—A devise of lands for life, followed by a separate paragraph, to the "bodily heirs" of the devisees named after their death, creates an estate in fee tail, which is enlarged into a fee simple under this section. Keziah v. Medlin, 173 N. C. 237, 91 S. E. 836.

Where land is devised to a person for life at her death to vest in the children of the testator during their natural lives and at their death to vest in their lawful heirs, such children take a fee on the death of the life tenant. Wool v. Fleetwood, 136 N. C. 460, 48 S. E. 785.

Same—Conveyance to One and Heirs of the Body.—A conveyance of land to A. and "her heirs by the body of R. (her husband) and assigns forever" was a fee at common law, but under our statute, Revisal, sec. 1578, now this section, it is converted into a fee-simple absolute, unaffected by the fact that there were children of the marriage living at the time of the execution of the conveyance; and in this case, construing the instrument as a whole, it evidences the intent of the grantor that it should be so interpreted. Revis v. Murphy, 172 N. C. 579, 90 S. E. 573.

A conveyance to a granddaughter and the heirs of her own body passed an estate in fee tail, which by this section was converted into a fee simple, defeasible if no child was born to her, but which became absolute upon the birth of a child. Sharpe v. Brown, 177 N. C. 294, 298, 98 S. E. 825.

Where a deed is executed to "M. and the heirs of her body by her husband S. begotten, or upon failure thereafter her death to the nearest heirs of S.," and at the date of the execution of the deed M. has children living, the deed conveys a fee tail special to M. which is converted to a fee simple by this section, defeasible upon her dying without surviving children by S., and her children do not take as tenants in common with her, § 1739, providing that a limitation to the heirs of a living person shall be construed to be the children of such person, being applicable only when there is no precedent estate conveyed to the living person, and the condition as to the failure of heirs referring to the death of M. without surviving children and not to the birth of issue, there being issue born at the date of the execution of the deed, and the ulterior limitation is not barred by the birth of such issue. Sharpe v. Brown, 177 N. C. 294, 98 S. E. 825, cited and distinguished. Paul v. Paul, 199 N. C. 522, 154 S. E. 825.

Same—Heiresses.—A devise to P, "during her natural life, and after her death to the begotten heirs or heiresses of her body," vested in P an absolute estate in fee simple. Leathers v. Gray, 101 N. C. 162, 7 S. E. 657.

Same—Devise to One and Lawful Heirs of the Body.—A devise to S. and the lawful heirs of his body forever confers an estate fee tail, converted into a fee simple under the section. Sessoms v. Sessoms, 144 N. C. 121, 56 S. E. 687.

Same—Conveyance a Defeasible Fee.—The interpretation that a deed for life and then to "the surviving heirs of her body" conveys the fee-simple title, under the section does not apply when the grantor uses the additional words, "but should she die without leaving such heir or heirs, then the same is to revert back to her nearest of kin according to law," for then the intent is manifest that the conveyance is of a defeasible fee depending upon whether the first taker died without leaving children surviving her. Smith v. Parke, 176 N. C. 406, 97 S. E. 209.

Where a testator devises realty to a grandson, and in the event of the death of the grandson without children, then the realty to descend to other grandchildren, such devise vests a fee simple estate in the first devisee, defeasible only on condition that he dies without leaving heirs of his body. Whitefield v. Garris, 134 N. C. 24, 45 S. E. 904.

An estate in remainder to the testator's son "and to his children or issue," there being no child or children of the son until long after the testator's death, it was held, that to create an estate tail at common law, which is converted into a fee-simple by this section and where there is an ultimate limitation over to persons coming within its terms, the testator's son and his child or issue cannot convey a fee-simple title. Ziegler v. Love, 185 N. C. 40, 115 S. E. 887.

An estate to H. during his life, with remainder to the testator's son "and his bodily heirs," vests a life estate in the land in H., with an estate tail in remainder to the son, which, under our statute, is converted into a fee simple. And upon the falling in of the life estate, the son can not convey a good fee-simple title. Chamblee v. Broughton, 120 N. C. 170, 27 S. E. 111; Leathers v. Gray, 101 N. C. 162, 7 S. E. 657, cited and distinguished. Howard v. Edwards, 185 N. C. 604, 116 S. E. 1.

Illustrative Case.—A devise of lands to the wife of the testator for life, and at her death or remarriage to their two children, by name, for their natural lives for the heirs of their bodies, constitutes an estate tail, converted by this section into a fee simple. Washburn v. Biggerstaff, 195 N. C. 624, 143 S. E. 210.

§ 1735. Survivorship in joint tenancy abolished; proviso as to partnership.— In all estates, real or personal, held in joint tenancy, the part or share of any tenant dying shall not descend or go to the surviving tenant, but shall descend or be vested in the heirs, executors, or administrators, or assigns, respectively, of the tenant so dying, in the same manner as estates held by tenancy in common: Provided, that estates held in joint tenancy for the purpose of carrying on and promoting trade and commerce, or any useful work or manufacture, established and pursued with a view of profit to the parties therein concerned, are vested in the surviving partner, in order to enable him to settle and adjust the partnership business, or pay off the debts which may have been contracted in pursuit of the joint business; but as soon as the same is effected, the survivor shall account with, and pay, and deliver to the heirs, executors, administrators and assigns respectively of such deceased partner all such part, share, and sums of money as he may be entitled to by virtue of the original agreement, if any, or according to his share or part in the joint concern, in the same manner as partnership stock is usually settled between joint merchants and the representatives of their deceased partners. (Rev., s. 1579; Code, s. 1326; R. C., c. 43, s. 2; 1784, c. 204, s. 6.)

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS.

Editor's Note.—Joint tenancy is a child of the common law, wholly without a statutory basis. It has long been looked upon by the Courts, especially in America, with marked disfavor. As a result of being singled out by the questioning eye of the judiciary, it has fallen easy prey to the Legislative knife. In most of the American States it has been abolished, either wholly or in part, by statutory enactment. The right of survivorship, its chief distinguishing feature, has been the one most disliked by Court and Legislature. This right has been very generally abolished by the statutes, being spared only when the instrument conveying the estate expressly, or by necessary implication, shows that the intention is to create such an estate.

A joint tenancy and a tenancy in common are similar in that in both cases the cotenants hold by unity of possession; but in the case of tenancy in common, the parties hold by separate rights and titles, or by separate rights under a single title, while in joint tenancy the cotenants hold by a single joint right and a single joint title. The difference is the basis of the right of survivorship in a joint tenancy, which, in the absence of a statute abolishing it, is an additional difference.

At common law the right of survivorship differentiated the joint tenancy from the partnership. In the case of the partnership the survivors held in the nature of trustees, until the deceased's interests were placed in the hands of those entitled thereto by law. This section, abolishing survivorship, accomplishes practically the same result in the case of joint tenancy in this state.

In the ancient language of the law joint tenants were said to hold "per my et per tout." The true interpretation of this being that these tenants were seized of the entire realty for the purpose of tenure and survivorship, while for the purpose of immediate alienation, each had only a particular part of the interest.

Scope of Section.—The section abolishes survivorship, where the joint tenancy would otherwise have been created by the law, but does not operate to prohibit persons from entering into written contracts as to land, or verbal agreements as to personalty, such as to make the future rights of the parties depend upon the fact of survivorship. Taylor v. Smith, 116 N. C. 531, 535, 21 S. E. 202.

Joint tenancies are not abolished by the section, it abolishes the right of survivorship, only in joint tenancies in fee, but does not affect joint estates for life or estates by entirety. Vass v. Freeman, 56 N. C. 221; Powell v. Allen, 75 N. C. 450; Blair v. Osborne, 84 N. C. 417; Powell v. Morisey, 84 N. C. 421; Burton v. Cahill, 192 N. C. 505, 508, 135 S. E. 332.

Same—Joint Tenants for Life.—In Powell v. Allen, 75 N. C. 450, 452, in construing the act of 1784, now this section, Chief Justice Pearson says: "It is obvious that these words cannot be made to apply to joint tenants for life." Burton v. Cahill, 192 N. C. 505, 508, 135 S. E. 332.

Same—Estates of Inheritance.—Acts 1784, converting joint tenancies into estates in common, applies only to estates of inheritance. Blair v. Osborne, 84 N. C. 417; Powell v. Morisey, 84 N. C. 421.

Creation and Existence—Four Unities.—"When two or more acquire land by purchase, as distinguished from descent, and the four unities exist, to-wit: 'time, title, estate and possession,' they take as joint tenants unless there be an express provision that they shall take as tenants in common, and not as joint tenants. In devises, the rule has been further released by allowing such words, 'to take, share and share alike,' or 'to be equally divided between them,' to have the effect of making the devisees take as tenants in common and not as joint tenants, because of an inference from the use of these words that the devisor so intended. 2 Black Com." Powell v. Allen, 75 N. C. 450, 452.

Same—Verbal Agreement.—A verbal agreement between two parties owning a note, payable to them jointly, that upon the death of either without issue it shall belong to the survivor is valid. Taylor v. Smith, 116 N. C. 531, 21 S. E. 202.

Same—Act of Parties.—"The estate of joint tenancy is purely conventional, i. e., created by act of the parties—and never arises by operation of law." 2 Black 180; Modecai's Law Lectures, vol. 1, 60; Burton v. Cahill, 192 N. C. 505, 507, 135 S. E. 332.

Same—Gift without Explanatory Words.—A deed to five grandchildren, without the use of any restrictive, exclusive, or explanatory words, conveys an estate for life in joint tenancy. Powell v. Morisey, 84 N. C. 421.

Same—Premises Enlarged by Habendum.—Where in the premises of a deed a life estate is given to a mother alone, and in the habendum the estate is given to her and her children, such deed operates to convey an estate for life to the mother and an estate for life in joint tenancy in remainder to her children. Blair v. Osborne, 84 N. C. 417.

Severance—By Marriage and Act of 1784.—A widow and her two children were joint tenants of a slave. By the marriage of the widow her joint tenancy was severed, as was that between the children, by the act of 1784. (See Rev. Code, ch. 43, § 2 now this section.) And in a suit in trover by one of the children he was allowed to recover only one-third part of the value. Witherington v. Williams, 1 N. C. 89.

Equal Rights to Possession.—Joint tenants of a chattel have equal rights to its possession. Cole v. Terry, 19 N. C. 252; Lucas v. Wasson, 14 N. C. 398.

Same—Division and Sale.—If one joint-owner of a crop sells to the other his share of it to pay a debt, and it is divided in the presence of both, for the purpose of ascertaining the amount to be credited on the debt, there is no trespass in the purchasing partner removing the property, though forbidden by the other. Warbritton v. Savage, 49 N. C. 382.

Same—Same—Title of Purchaser.—If one joint owner of a crop sells to the other his share of it, to pay a debt he owed him, and it is divided in the presence of both, for the purpose of ascertaining the amount to be credited on the debt, the title passes to the purchaser, whether the agreement for the sale was made before or after the division of the crop. Warbritton v. Savage, 49 N. C. 382.

Legatees May Hold as Joint Tenant.—The legatees may still hold by a joint tenancy in North Carolina, though the incident of survivorship was abolished by the Act of 1784, now this section. Vass v. Freeman, 56 N. C. 221, 227.

When Remaindermen Take as Tenants in Common.—A deed of gift, executed by W B to his son J B, "during his natural life only, and then to return to the male children of the said J B, lawfully begotten of his body, for the want of such to return to the male children of my other sons W and B, their proper use, benefit and behoof of him, them and every of them, and to their heirs and assigns forever," vested a life estate in J B, with remainder in fee to his sons as tenants in common under the section. Brown v. Ward, 103 N. C. 173, 9 S. E. 300.

II. ESTATES OF HUSBAND AND WIFE.

Conveyance to Husband and Wife.—The section abolishing survivorship, in joint tenancies, does not apply to conveyances, to husband and wife. Phillips v. Hodges, 109 N. C. 248, 13 S. E. 769, cited in notes in 30 L. R. A. 328, 329, 1 L. R. A., N. S., 312.

The act of 1784, now this section, abolishing survivorship in joint tenancies does not apply to conveyanecs to husband and wife, for the reason assigned by Gaston, J., in Motley v. Whitemore, 19 N. C. 537, that "being in law but one person they have each the whole estate as one person; and on the death of either of them the whole estate continues in the survivor." Long v. Barnes, 87 N. C. 329; Phillips v. Hodges, 109 N. C. 248, 250, 13 S. E. 769.

In construing this statute, the Supreme Court held that it had no application to an estate granted to husband and wife, on the ground that it is not an estate in joint tenancy, but an entirety estate. Motley v. Whitemore, 19 N. C. 537; Gray v. Bailey, 117 N. C. 439, 443, 23 S. E. 318.

The right of survivorship applies to estates in land conveyed jointly to husband and wife, and vests in the heirs of the one surviving the other. Murchison v. Fogleman, 165 N. C. 397, 81 S. E. 627.

Joint Tenancy or Entirety.—Where the husband and wife purchase property, each furnishing a portion of the purchase money, an estate in entirety and not a joint estate is created which they hold per tout et non per my. Ray v. Long, 132 N. C. 891, 44 S. E. 652, cited in note in 9 L. R. A., N. S., 1029.

Same—Creation.—Where, in a conveyance to a husband and wife, it appears that no such estate was intended, but the parties were to take and hold their interests as tenants in common, the intent as expressed in the deed must be allowed to prevail. (Isley v. Sellars, 153 N. C. 374, 69 S. E. 279; Stalcup v. Stalcup, 137 N. C. 305, 49 S. E. 210), * * * and that this intent must be arrived at from a perusal of the entire instrument. Hendricks v. Mocksville Furniture Co., 156 N. C. 569, 72 S. E. 592; Triplett v. Williams, 149 N. C. 394, 63 S. E. 79; Highsmith v. Page, 158 N. C. 226, 229, 73 S. E. 998.

In construing a deed to a husband and wife as a whole, to arrive at its intent, it is held that in a conveyance of land to them, "each a one-half interest," creates a tenancy in common, and the right of survivorship does not apply; and when the wife is dead, the husband remarries and then dies, leaving a widow, the widow is only entitled to dower in the undivided one-half interest in the lands. Eason v. Eason, 159 N. C. 439, 75 S. E. 797.

Same—Not Abolished.—It has been held in several well considered decisions of the Supreme Court that our constitution and the later statutes relative to the property and rights of married women have not thus far destroyed or altered the nature of this estate by entireties, a conveyance to a husband and wife. Jones v. Smith & Co., 149 N. C. 318, 62 S. E. 1092; West v. Railroad, 140 N. C. 620, 53 S. E. 477; Bynum v. Wicker, 141 N. C. 95, 53 S. E. 478; Bruce v. Nicholson, 109 N. C. 202, 13 S. E. 790; Ray v. Long, 132 N. C. 891, 44 S. E. 652; McKinnon, etc., Co. v. Caulk, 167 N. C. 411, 412, 83 S. E. 559.

This estate by entirety is an anomaly, and it is perhaps an oversight that the legislature has not changed it into a cotenancy, as has been done in so many states. This not having been done, it still possesses here the same properties and incidents as at common law. Long v. Barnes, 87 N. C. 329; West v. Railroad, 140 N. C. 620, 53 S. E. 477; Bynum v. Wicker, 141 N. C. 95, 96, 53 S. E. 478.

The estate by entireties was not created, either in England or in this State, by any statute, and it has been contended that it was abolished by our statute in 1784, now this section, convening all joint estates into tenancy in common, and still more so by the constitutional change (Article X, sec. 6), conferring upon a married woman the same rights in her property "as if she had remained single." By reason of similar statutes, or statutes especially repealing the estate by entireties, that anomalous estate has disappeared in all but a very few states in this country, and in them, as above said, there is no case to be found which does not hold that upon a joint judgment against husband and wife the estate by entirety can be sold. Martin v. Lewis, 187 N. C. 473, 476, 122 S. E. 180.

Incidents of Estate by Entireties.—"Where land is conveyed to 'husband and wife jointly, they will take and hold an estate by entireties, and that, on the death of one, the whole belongs to the survivor.'" Morton v. Blades Lumber Co., 154 N. C. 278, 70 S. E. 467; Hood v. Mercer, 150 N. C. 699, 64 S. E. 897; Jones v. Smith & Co., 149 N. C. 318, 62 S. E. 1092; West v. Railroad, 140 N. C. 620, 53 S. E. 477. Highsmith v. Page, 158 N. C. 226, 228, 73 S. E. 998.

Where a conveyance of land is made to husband and wife, they do not take interests, either as joint tenants or tenants in common, but they take estates in fee by entireties, and not by moieties. The husband can not, by his own conveyance, divest the wife's estate, and, on her surviving him, she is entitled to the whole estate. Needham v. Branson, 27 N. C. 426.

A conveyance to a husband and wife, as such, creates an estate of entirety, and does not make them joint tenants or tenants in common. Neither can alien without the consent of the other, and the survivor takes the whole. Needham v. Branson, 27 N. C. 426; Todd v. Zachary, 45 N. C. 286, cited in note to 30 L. R. A. 324; Woodford v. Highly, 60 N. C. 234; Long v. Barnes, 87 N. C. 329.

III. JOINT TENANCY IN PARTNERSHIP PROPERTY.

Joint Tenancy of Partnership in Land.—This section provides that land jointly purchased for partnership purposes shall, upon the death of one partner, survive the others for the purpose of paying the partnership debts. And when the partnership debts are satisfied, if there is any remainder, such share as would have fallen to the deceased partner, shall be delivered over to the heirs, executors, administrators or assigns; and real estate held and sued for partnership purposes is subject to partnership debts, to the exclusion of the heir or widow of the deceased. Stroud v. Stroud, 61 N. C. 525, 526.

Upon Settlement Descends as Real Estate.—Where land is purchased in fee by partnership funds and for partnership purposes, and one partner dies, upon the settlement of the partnership debts his share of the land descends to his heir as real estate. Summey v. Patton, 60 N. C. 601.

When lands are purchased by a partnership with partnership funds, upon the death of one of the partners, in the absence of any agreement in the articles of partnership to the contrary, his share therein descends to his heir at law as real estate, if the personal property of the partnership is sufficient to pay all the partnership debts and demands. Sherrod v. Mayo, 156 N. C. 144, 72 S. E. 216.

Same—Immaterial Whether Claim Is by Deed or Inheritance.—When the rule applies that lands purchased by partnership funds descend to the heir at law, it is immaterial whether the heir of the deceased partner claims his interest by deed from him or by inheritance. Sherrod v. Mayo, 156 N. C. 144, 72 S. E. 216.

Same—Heir Claiming by Deed.—The heir at law to whom a deceased partner had conveyed by deed his share of lands purchased with partnership funds is entitled to the lands against the rights of the surviving partner, in an action by the latter for possession for the purpose of winding up the partnership affairs, when it appears that the partnership personalty is sufficient for the purpose of paying the partnership debts and satisfying any claim the surviving partner may have, and there is no provision in the articles of the partnership agreement of a contrary purpose. Sherrod v. Mayo, 156 N. C. 144, 72 S. E. 216.

IV. ACTIONS BY, AGAINST, AND BETWEEN JOINT TENANTS.

Actions by and against Joint Tenants.—It seems to be well settled that joint tenants must sue jointly, differing in that respect from tenants in common. Mr. Freeman says: "Whenever the title of the cotenants, as in the case of joint tenancy and coparcenary, is joint, the action must also be joint, and whenever, as in tenancy in common, such tenant is deemed to possess a separate and distinct estate, the remedy of each must be separately and distinctly pursued. Joint tenants being seized per my et per tout and deriving but one and the same title, must jointly interplead and be interpleaded. If twenty joint tenants be, and they be disseized, they shall have, in all their names, but one assize, because they have but one joint title." Cotenancy, 329. To the same effect is Sedgwick and Wait Trials, etc., sec. 302. Cameron v. Hicks, 141 N. C. 21, 34, 53 S. E. 728.

"It was at one time held in this State that two tenants in common could not join in one demise, because there was no unity of title—one might recover and the other fail. It was afterwards held, for the reason set out by Ruffin, J., in Hoyle v. Stowe, 13 N. C. 318, that they could join in one demise. He says: 'It is the universal rule that the title must be truly stated in the declaration. A joint demise, therefore, can only be supported by showing a title in each to demise the whole. If one of the lessors has no title, the plaintiff must fail.' He says that this is 'common learning.' An examination of the opinion shows the ground upon which tenants in common are permitted to make a joint demise and recover in respect to their interests. Allred v. Smith, 135 N. C. 443, 47 S. E. 597. The difference is in this: Joint tenants must join in one demise because of the essential unities; tenants in common may join, or, if they prefer, may sue separately, because there is no unity of title. It would seem to follow that joint tenants must recover in respect to their title, and if they fail in that, they cannot recover at all." Cameron v. Hicks, 141 N. C. 21, 35, 53 S. E. 728.

Actions between Joint Tenants—Trover.—The exclusive possession of a chattel by one joint tenant will not entitle the other to maintain trover against him for it. Cole v. Terry, 19 N. C. 252.

A person claiming under a joint tenancy, which was severed, can recover only his proper proportion. Witherington v. Williams, 1 N. C. 89.

§ 1736. Survivorship among trustees.—In all cases where only a naked trust not coupled with a beneficial interest has been created or exists, or shall be created, and the conveyance is to two or more trustees, the right to perform the trust and make estates under the same shall be exercised by any one of such trustees, in the event of the death of his cotrustee or cotrustees or the refusal or inability of the cotrustee or cotrustees to perform the trust; and in cases of trusts herein named the trustees shall hold as joint tenants, and in all respects as joint tenants held before the year one thousand seven hundred and eighty-four. (Rev., s. 1580; 1885, c. 327, s. 1.)

Cross References.—As to limitation on action by cotenants, see sec. 419. As to survivorship among donees, in a mortgage, or power of sale, see sec. 2582. As to Executors and Administrators holding as joint tenants, see sec. 172.

The trustees of a trust estate hold as joint tenants, and not as tenants in common. Cameron v. Hicks, 141 N. C. 21, 53 S. E. 728; Webb v. Borden, 145 N. C. 188, 58 S. E. 1083.

Loss of Right to Trustee Is Loss to Cestui Que Trust.—When the right of entry is barred and the right of action lost by the trustee, through an adverse occupation, the cestui que trust is also concluded from asserting claim to the land. Cameron v. Hicks, 141 N. C. 21, 53 S. E. 728.

Cotrustee Barred.—When a trustee is barred the cotrustees are likewise barred. Cameron v. Hicks, 141 N. C. 21, 53 S. E. 728.

§ 1737. Limitations on failure of issue.—Every contingent limitation in any deed or will, made to depend upon the dying of any person without heir or heirs of the body, or without issue or issues of the body, or without children, or offspring, or descendant, or other relative, shall be held and interpreted a limitation to take effect when such person dies not having such heir, or issue, or child, or offspring, or descendant, or other relative (as the case may be) living at the time of his death, or born to him within ten lunar months thereafter, unless the intention of such limitation be otherwise, and expressly and plainly declared in the face of the deed or will creating it: Provided, that the rule of construction contained in this section shall not extend to any deed or will made and executed before the fifteenth of January, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-eight. (Rev., s. 1581; Code, s. 1327; R. C., c. 43, s. 3; 1827, c. 7.)

Purpose.—This section was enacted for the primary purpose of making contingent limitations good by fixing a definite time when the estate of the first taker shall become absolute, and also to establish a rule of interpretation by which the estate of the first taker shall be affected with the contingency till the time of his death unless a contrary intent appears on the face of the instrument. Kirkman v. Smith, 174 N. C. 603, 94 S. E. 423; Harrell v. Hagan, 147 N. C. 111, 60 S. E. 909; Sain v. Baker, 128 N. C. 256, 138 S. E. 858; Bell v. Kessler, 175 N. C. 525, 528, 95 S. E. 881.

Provision Is Obligatory.—The rule laid down by the statute is obligatory on the courts and must be observed in all cases except, as provided by the statute, when a contrary intent is "expressly and plainly declared in the face of the deed or will." Patterson v. McCormick, 177 N. C. 448, 452, 99 S. E. 401.

Does Not Interfere with Rule in Shelley's Case.—The section does not interfere with the application of the principle laid down in Shelley's Case in determining the nature and extent of the precedent estate. This is declared in Sanderlin v. Deford, 47 N. C. 75, in construing a will executed in 1838. King v. Utley, 85 N. C. 59, 61. See under analysis line II, "Rule in Shelley's Case" section 1734.

Provisions of Section Prevail over Rule of Stare Decisis.—A vested interest in lands cannot be established under the doctrine of stare decisis in direct conflict with the expressions of a statutory change of the rule to the contrary, nor where the decisions relied upon are upon a construction of a written instrument made or executed before the statutory enactment and excepted by it from its provisions, and the subsequent decisions of affirmance of the old rule of construction are either conflicting among themselves, are upon prior executed instruments excepted by the statute, or without express reference thereto; and this section, changing the rule of construction as to the vesting of an interest contingent upon a death with issue, cannot be affected by the rule laid down in Hilliard v. Kearney, 45 N. C. 221, and subsequent decisions on the subject. Patterson v. McCormick, 177 N. C. 448, 99 S. E. 401.

Common Law Rule Superseded.—Where there was a devise of lands for life, then to J. and C. equally, and in case "they or either of them die without issue," then to the heirs of certain others and the survivor of J. and C. equally, it was held, the common-law doctrine that a limitation contingent upon death and an indefinite failure of issue is void for remoteness, gives place to the new rule of construction enacted by our statute, Rev., sec. 1581, now this section, made applicable since 15 January, 1928, without restriction as to immediate estates, and a contrary intent, not expressly and plainly declared in the face of the instrument, presently construed, the death without issue refers to the death of J. and C.; and it appearing that J. died without issue after the death of the first taker, and C. survives, with issue, the absolute fee-simple title to the lands is in C. and the other ulterior remaindermen, and their deed, otherwise sufficient, is valid. Patterson v. McCormick, 177 N. C. 448, 99 S. E. 401.

Rule in Hilliard v. Kearney.—Under the rule at common law a limitation contingent upon death without issue was void for remoteness because it referred to an indefinite failure of issue; and in order to give effect to the testator's intention the courts began to look for some intermediate time, such as the termination of the life estate, or some other designated period, and held that the phrase "dying without issue" was to be referred to this intermediate period. Hilliard v. Kearney, 45 N. C. 221; American Yarn, etc., Co. v. Dewstoe, 192 N. C. 121, 124, 133 S. E. 407.

Same—Changed.—This principle was entirely changed by the act of 1827, which is now this section. American Yarn, etc., Co. v. Dewstoe, 192 N. C. 121, 124, 133 S. E. 407.

In the following cases the court had under consideration the construction of a limitation in a will executed since 15 January, 1828, and which therefore came under the act of 1827, now this section. In each of these cases the court expressly referred to the Act of 1827 and construed the limitation in accordance with the plain words of that act and not according to the rule stated in Hilliard v. Kearney, 45 N. C. 221; Clapp v. Fogleman, 21 N. C. 467; Tillman v. Sinclair, 23 N. C. 183; Moore v. Barrow, 24 N. C. 436; Garland v. Watt, 26 N. C. 287; Jones v. Oliver, 38 N. C. 369, 370; Weeks v. Weeks, 40 N. C. 111, 115; Spruill v. Moore, 40 N. C. 284; Holton v. McAllister, 51 N. C. 12, cited in Patterson v. McCormick, 177 N. C. 448, 453, 99 S. E. 401.

To those cases cited in Patterson v. McCormick may be added Love v. Love, 179 N. C. 115, 101 S. E. 562; Willis v. Mutual Loan, etc., Co., 183 N. C. 267, 111 S. E. 163; Vinson v. Gardner, 185 N. C. 193, 116 S. E. 412; Alexander v. Fleming, 190 N. C. 815, 130 S. E. 867; American Yarn, etc., Co. v. Dewstoe, 192 N. C. 121, 125, 133 S. E. 407.

Dying without Heirs Or Issue Construed.—The section has been construed by the Supreme Court at least twenty-six times, and in every case in which it has come before the court for construction it has uniformly been held that "Dying without heirs or issue," upon which a limitation overtakes effect, is referable to the death of the first taker of the fee without issue living at the time of his death, and not to the death of any other person or to any intermediate period. See Patterson v. McCormick, 177 N. C. 448, 455, 99 S. E. 401, which lists the twenty-six decisions supporting the same holding.

As was said by Mr. Justice Hoke in Harrell v. Hogan, 147 N. C. 113, "the event by which the interest of each is to be determined must be referred, not to the death of the devisor, but to that of the several takers of the estate in remainder, respectively, without leaving a lawful heir." Williams v. Lewis, 100 N. C. 142, 5 S. E. 435.

Same—Dependent upon Death of Donee without Issue.—A contingent remainder dependent upon the death of a certain donee without issue means, under the terms of this section, a dying without having issue living at the time of death. Lee v. Oates, 171 N. C. 717, 88 S. E. 889.

Devise to One for Life with Limitation over.—As a general rule where a devise is made to one for life and after his death to the testator's next of kin, the next of kin who are to take are the persons who answer that description at the death of the testator and not those who answer the description at the death of the first taker. Jenkins v. Lambeth, 172 N. C. 466, 90 S. E. 513; Goode v. Hearne, 180 N. C. 475, 105 S. E. 5; Witty v. Witty, 184 N. C. 375, 114 S. E. 482; Dupree v. Daughtridge, 188 N. C. 193, 124 S. E. 148. It is otherwise, however, where it appears from the terms of the will that some intervening time is indicated. Citizens Bank v. Murray, 175 N. C. 62, 94 S. E. 665; American Yarn, etc., Co. v. Dewstoe, 192 N. C. 121, 124, 133 S. E. 407.

"Ordinarily a devise to the survivors of a class will take effect at the testator's death, but not if a particular estate is created and the remainder is given to those who survive the life tenant. Mercer v. Downs, 191 N. C. 203, 131 S. E. 575." American Yarn, etc., Co. v. Dewstoe, 192 N. C. 121, 124, 133 S. E. 407.

Intervening Life Estate.—The more recent cases where there were intervening life estates, in which the Supreme Court has held that the statute applies, are as follows: Cowand v. Meyers, 99 N. C. 198, 199, 6 S. E. 82; Dunning v. Burden, 114 N. C. 33, 34, 18 S. E. 969; Kornegay v. Morris, 122 N. C. 199, 29 S. E. 875; Harrell v. Hagan, 147 N. C. 111, 60 S. E. 909; Dawson v. Ennett, 151 N. C. 543, 544, 66 S. E. 566; Perrett v. Bird, 152 N. C. 220, 67 S. E. 507; Elkins v. Seigler, 154 N. C. 374, 70 S. E. 636; Hobgood v. Hobgood, 169 N. C. 485, 486, 86 S. E. 189; Vinson v. Wise, 159 N. C. 653, 75 S. E. 732; Whichard v. Craft, 175 N. C. 128, 95 S. E. 94; Kirkman v. Smith, 175 N. C. 579, 96 S. E. 51. The case of Vinson v. Wise construed the will of the late Chief Justice Smith, in which there were two intervening life estates, notwithstanding which the court held that:

"Under numerous decisions of the Court in a devise of this character, and unless a contrary intent appears from the will, the event by which the estate must be determined will be referred not to the death of the devisor, but the holder of the particular estate itself, and the determinable quality of such an estate, or interest, will continue to affect it till 'the event occurs by which same is to be determined, or the estate becomes absolute.' " Patterson v. McCormick, 177 N. C. 448, 456, 99 S. E. 401.

Rule When Ambiguity in Will.—Where there is ambiguity in a will as to the vesting of an estate devised for life with contingent limitation over, shall be at the death of the testatrix or that of the first taker, under the principle that the law favors the early vesting of estates, the former will be taken; and where it clearly appears from the terms of the will and surrounding circumstances that was the intent of the testatrix, it will not be affected by the section, by which a contingent limitation depending upon the dying of a person without heir, etc., is to vest at the death of such person. Westfeldt v. Reynolds, 191 N. C. 802, 133 S. E. 168.

Doctrine of Shifting Uses and Executory Devises.—The section is a rule of construction upholding the second and contingent estate upon the death of the first taker without heirs, etc., and does not change the application of the doctrine of shifting uses and executory devises in determining the nature and extent of the precedent estate. Sessoms v. Sessoms, 144 N. C. 121, 56 S. E. 687.

Same—Estate Created Direct to Second Taker.—When by the operation of the statute a fee tail is converted into a fee simple, with a limitation of a fee upon the death of the first taker without heirs, a separate estate is created direct from the testator to the second taker upon the happening of the contingency, under the doctrine of shifting uses and by way of executory devise, and is not a qualification of the estate of the first taker, or too remote since the enactment of the section. Sessoms v. Sessoms, 144 N. C. 121, 56 S. E. 687.

"Children" Does Not Extend to Grandchildren.—A devise to the "wife and children" of the testator will not include therein his grandchildren, unless the contrary intent is shown by necessary implication from the terms or expressions used in the will. Thompson v. Batts, 168 N. C. 530, 84 S. E. 858.

A Base and Unqualified Fee.—O. devised his lands to certain of his children S., D., and J. By item 3 of the will a certain tract was devised to D. and "the lawful heirs of his body lawfully begotten"; by item 9 it was provided that in case of death of either of the children, his portion should revert to the surviving one, with further contingent limitations. It was held, that these items should be construed together, and that the estate devised to D. was not in fee simple, but a base and qualified fee, defeasible on the death of D. without leaving living lineal descendants. Perrett v. Bird, 152 N. C. 220, 67 S. E. 507.

Illustrative Cases.—An estate to M. and her bodily heirs is converted into a fee simple under our statute, C. S., 1734, without further limitation, but followed by the words "if no heirs, said lands shall go back to my estate," the estate will go over to the heirs of the grantor at the death of M., upon the nonhappening of the event as a shifting use under the statute of uses, 27 Henry VIII, ch. 10; 1740, whereunder a fee may be limited after a fee, by deed, and under the provisions of this section that every contingent limitation in a deed or will made to depend upon the dying of any person without heir or heirs of the body, or issue, shall be held to be a limitation to take effect when such person dies not having such heir, or issue, or child living at the time of his death. Willis v. Mutual Loan, etc., Co., 183 N. C. 267, 111 S. E. 163.

When a testator devises land to his son with a limitation over to his daughters, provided the son dies without heirs, the son dying without children, can not by will give his wife a life estate with the remainder to a third party. Sain v. Baker, 128 N. C. 256, 38 S. E. 858.

A devise of lands to B. in fee, "provided he has a child or children; but if he has no child, then to him for life," with limitation over to the testator's heirs at law, carries to the devise a fee-simple estate, defeasible upon his death without having had a child, the contingent event by which the estate is determined referring to the death of the devisee and holder of the prior estate unless a contrary intent clearly appears from the will itself; and upon his death and nonhappening of the contingency named, the inheritance passes directly from the testator to the ultimate devisees. Burden v. Lipsitz, 166 N. C. 523, 82 S. E. 863.

A devise of land to L. with limitation that if she "shall die leaving issue surviving her, then to such issue and their heirs forever," but if she "die without issue surviving her, then the property to return to my eldest daughter," the vesting of the estate in remainder depends upon the contingency of the death of L. without leaving "issue" surviving her, and not upon the death of the testatrix. Rees v. Williams, 164 N. C. 128, 80 S. E. 247.

On devise of an estate to M. for life, then to G. and K., and if they should die without bodily heirs, then over, the creation and existence of the life estate, without more, does not, of itself, affect the statutory rule of construction as to estates in remainder, and the contingency affecting such estates will continue to affect the same till the death of the first takers in remainder. Kirkman v. Smith, 175 N. C. 579, 96 S. E. 51.

Same.—Where an estate is granted to M., and the heirs of her body in the premises, with warranty to her and the heirs of her body, it was held, that the intent of the grantor by proper construction was to limit over the estate to M. in case she should die without issue or bodily heirs. Willis v. Mutual Loan, etc., Co., 183 N. C. 267, 111 S. E. 163.

Same.—An estate to testator's daughter N. for life, and to the lawful heirs of her body, creates an estate tail converted by our statute into a fee simple; and a further limitation "and if she should die leaving no heirs, then the lands to return to the G. family," gives N. a fee defeasible upon her death without issue, children, etc., under this section and on her death, leaving children surviving, they take an unconditional fee, and can make an absolute conveyance thereof. Vinson v. Gardner, 185 N. C. 193, 116 S. E. 412.

Cases Where Wills Executed before 1828.—In the following cases the wills were executed before 15 January, 1828, but the Court, in delivering the opinions, adverts to the Act of 1827, and states that the law since the will was executed had been materially changed and that the construction of the limitation would be different under the act. Rice v. Satterwhite, 21 N. C. 69, opinion by Gaston, J.; Brown v. Brown, 25 N. C. 131, opinion by Ruffin, C. J.; Gibson v. Gibson, 49 N. C. 425, opinion by Battle, J. This last case was decided in 1857. Patterson v. McCormick, 177 N. C. 448, 453, 99 S. E. 401.

Cited in West v. Murphy, 197 N. C. 488, 149 S. E. 731.

§ 1738. Unborn infant may take by deed or writing.—An infant unborn, but in esse, shall be deemed a person capable of taking by deed or other writing any estate whatever in the same manner as if he were born. (Rev., s. 1582; Code, s. 1328; R. C., c. 43, s. 4.)

When Applicable.—In 13 Cyc., page 663, it is declared: "Where property is conveyed to a certain person and his children it has been determined that no title will pass to after-born children. But where a deed creates an estate for life with remainder over to the children, the remainder will vest in children already born, subject to be opened at the birth of each succeeding child." See, also, Adams v. Ross, 30 N. J. L. 505; Coursey v. Davis, 46 Pa. St. 25, to the same effect. Quoted with approval in Powell v. Powell, 168 N. C. 561, 563, 84 S. E. 860.

Under a deed to a woman "and her children" a child en ventre sa mere at the date of the conveyance will take, but children born more than a year thereafter will not. Heath v. Heath, 114 N. C. 547, 19 S. E. 155.

Remainder after Freehold Conveyed — Children Not in Esse. — Where there is a deed to lands to an unmarried grantee for life, with remainder to his children, not then in esse, the first taker holds the legal title until the birth of children after his marriage, at which time such estate becomes vested, such remainder being contingent until the birth of a child during the existence of the freehold estate, and then vests in such child or children who would then take and hold the interest. Johnson Bros. v. Lee, 187 N. C. 753, 122 S. E. 839.

Takes as Tenant in Common.—By virtue of this section a child if en ventre sa mere at the time the deed is executed takes as tenant in common with the living children. Campbell v. Everhart, 139 N. C. 503, 52 S. E. 201, 202.

Grant Directly to Children of Living Person.—A grant of land directly to the children of a living person conveys the title only to those who are alive at the time of the execution of the deed, including a child then en ventre sa mere. Powell v. Powell, 168 N. C. 561, 84 S. E. 860.

Life Estate to Parent with Limitation Over.—Where there is a reservation of a life estate in the parent or another, with limitation over to the children and all the children who are alive at the termination of the first estate, whether born before or after the execution of the deed, take thereunder. Powell v. Powell, 168 N. C. 561, 84 S. E. 860.

§ 1739. "Heirs" construed "children" in certain limitations.—A limitation by deed, will, or other writing, to the heirs of a living person, shall be construed to be the children of such person, unless a contrary intention appear by the deed or will. (Rev., s. 1583; Code, s. 1329; R. C., c. 43, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—In many of the cases dealing with estates the rule in Shelley's Case is referred to and the question is raised as to whether or not the rule is abrogated by this section, and answered in the negative in the splendid opinion of Shepherd, C. J., in Starnes v. Hill, 112 N. C. 1, 16 S. E. 1011. For the purpose of showing the relation of the rule to this section, it will be fitting to give a brief resume of the rule.

The rule takes its name from an early case decided in the reign of Queen Elizabeth (Shelley's Case, 1 Rep. 94), though even at that time the principle it enunciated was looked upon as an ancient dogma of the common law. Indeed Justice Blackstone traced it to a case decided in the reign of Edward II. However, be that as it may, what is probably the earliest intelligible decision on the subject is the case of the Provost of Beverly, in the time of Edward III., and reported in the Year Books. Numerous theories have been suggested as furnishing a reason for the rule in the first instance, some respectable authorities with a show of much plausability tracing it to the same principle which applied originally to "heirs" when used in a conveyance. "It was at first understood that, in case of such a limitation, the estate was in fact to go to the heirs of the grantee named; that though he had a right to enjoy it during life, he had no right to cut off the descent by alienation, and that when, therefore, the word heirs in the progress of estates came to be regarded as a mere term of limitation, giving the grantee a complete ownership with an unrestricted right of alienation, it was not easy to distinguish between a case where the limitation was to one and his heirs, and that where it was to him for life, and after his death to his heirs, the effect at common law being the same in both forms of limitation." 2 Wash. Real Prop., 647; Williams Real Prop., 254.

Nor does it seem that this result worked any particular hardship to the heir, as in those days ready money was extremely scarce and the alienation of lands assumed the form of perpetual lease, granted in consideration of certain services or rents reserved to the grantor and his heirs, and, as such services or rents descended to the heir, it was not so great a disadvantage to him as at first might be supposed. Williams Real Prop., 39.

It is not to be doubted that this construction was aided and greatly strengthened by other considerations such as the prevention of frauds upon feudal lords and specially creditors (2 Fearne, ch. 12, sec. 3), the prevention of the inheritance from being, as was supposed, in abeyance (Justice Blackstone's argument in Perrin v. Blake, 1 Ex. Chamber, 4 Burr., 2,579), and to preserve the marked distinction between title by descent and purchase. Hargrave Law Tracts. "But whatever may have been the grounds of the rule in its origin, another reason subsequently existed as an inducement to the preservation of the rule from legislative abolition and judicial discouragements, after the feudal reason had ceased with the feudal system itself, and that subsequent reason is the desire to faciliate alienation by vesting the inheritance in the ancestor, instead of allowing it to remain in abeyance until his decease." 2 Fearne, sec. 421.

In Perrin v. Blake, 1 Ex. Chamber, 4 Burr., 2,579, Justice Blackstone said: "Another foundation of the rule probably was laid in a principle diametrically opposite to the genius of feudal institutions, namely, a desire to facilitate the alienation of land, and to show it into the track of commerce one generation sooner by vesting the inheritance in the ancestor." See, also, Rawle's Note, Williams Real Prop., 253.

In Polk v. Farris, 30 Am. Dec., 400, Reese, J., in a very able opinion in vindication of the rule, uses this language: "It is a rule or canon of property, which, so far from being at war with the genius of our institutions or with the liberal and commercial spirit of the age, which alike abhor the locking up and rendering inalienable real estate and other property, seems to be in perfect harmony with both. It is owing, perhaps, to this circumstance that the rule, a gothic column, found among the remains of feudality, has been preserved in all its strength to aid in sustaining the fabric of the modern social system." In Hillman v. Bauslaugh, 53 Am. Dec., 474, the distinguished Chief Gibson says: "Though of feudal origin, it is not a relic of barbarism, or a part of the rubbish of the dark ages. * * * It has other than feudal objects, to wit, the unfettering of estates, by vesting the inheritance in the ancestor and making it alienable a generation sooner than it otherwise would be."

That this result accords most thoroughly with the general tendency of judicial evolution is apparent from the progress of the law and the gradual falling away of entails and other restraints on alienation from the times of Henry I to the present. It seems clear that in a highly complex state of society, with greatly diversified industries and immense commercial activities, it would be desirable to remove every clog on the free and easy alienability of all kinds of property, and that such has been the spirit of the legislation in this State is manifest from a perusal of the various statutes enacted upon the subject. Starnes v. Hill, 112 N. C. 1, 2, 15, 16 S. E. 1011.

The existence of this ancient rule has for many years been unquestionably recognized in the courts of this State as one of the "ligaments of property," the only doubt upon the subject having been suggested by dicta in a few cases. This section seems clearly not to abolish the rule. It would seem to be the opinion of many of the ablest law writers that the said rule is not abolished. Thus Mr. Washburn, in the fourth edition of his work on Real Property (Vol. 2, 607), undertakes to give a list of the states with reference to the acts which have abolished the rule, and he does not include North Carolina, although he was familiar with our act, as is shown by a reference to section 3, chapter 43, of the Revised Code. The same observation applies to Mr. Rawle, the learned editor of Williams on Real Property. He also gives a list of the states which have abolished the rule, without including North Carolina. The same may be said of Mr. Freeman, the very able and discriminating editor of the American Decisions, in a note to 30 Am. Dec., 415, and also of the editors of Jarman on Wills and Lawson R. & R.

It seems that the main object of the section is to convert a contingent into a vested remainder under certain circumstances. It seems also to have been the purpose of the act to sustain a direct conveyance to the heirs of a living person. As there can be no heirs during the life of the ancestor, such a conveyance at common law would have been void unless there was something in the deed which indicated "that by 'the heirs' was meant the children of the person named." 3 Washburn Real Prop., 282. The act in question provides that in such a case the word "heirs" shall be construed to mean "children" and the limitation therefore would be good. By this construction of the section it does not affect the rule in Shelley's case. Starnes v. Hill, 112 N. C. 1, 2, 23, 16 S. E. 1011; Hartman v. Flynn, 189 N. C. 452, 127 S. E. 517.

For further discussion of the rule, see the Editor's note to sec. 1734.

Common-Law Rule Changed.—While as a general common-law rule, subject to some exceptions, a conveyance of an estate for life in lands to another, with remainder to the heirs of the grantor, could not divest the grantor of the fee, under the rule that nemo est haeres viventis, this does not prevail under the provisions of this section. Thompson v. Batts, 168 N. C. 333, 84 S. E. 347.

Same—Construed to Be Limitation.—A deed to "the heirs" of John A. Barrett, he being still alive, although void at common law, is good under the section, and is construed to be a limitation to the children of John A. Barrett, and includes after-born children. Graves v. Barrett, 126 N. C. 267, 35 S. E. 539.

Limitation Explained.—The word limitation has two-fold meaning. To quote the language of Mr. Fearne: "Great confusion has frequently arisen from not observing that the word limitation is used in two different senses; the one of which may, for the sake of convenience of distinction, be termed the original sense; namely, that of a member of a sentence, expressing the limits or bounds to the quantity of an estate; and the other, the derivative sense; namely, that of an entire sentence, creating and actually or constructively marking out the quantity of an estate." 2 Fearne on Remainders (4 Am. Ed.), sec. 24, marg. page 10. In our statute, the word is manifestly used in its derivative or secondary sense, which is made very clear to us by the learned, able and elaborate opinion of Chief Justice Shepherd in the leading case of Starnes v. Hill, 112 N. C. 1, 16 S. E. 1011; Campbell v. Everhart, 139 N. C. 503, 510, 52 S. E. 201.

Same—Applies Only When No Precedent Estate.—The Code of 1883, sec. 1329, now this section, providing that a limitation to the heirs of a living person shall be construed to be the children of such person, applies only when there is no precedent estate conveyed to said living person. Jones v. Ragsdale, 141 N. C. 200, 53 S. E. 842.

If it were not true that the section applies only when there is no precedent estate conveyed to said living person, it would not only repeal the rule in Shelley's case, but would pervert every conveyance to "A and his heirs" into something entirely different from what those words have always been understood to mean. Marsh v. Griffin, 136 N. C. 333, 334, 48 S. E. 735.

When Not Applicable—Intent.—Where a devise of lands is limited over should the first taker die without heirs, evidencing that the intent of the testator made the contingency to depend upon his dying without issue, this section has no application. Massengill v. Abell, 192 N. C. 240, 134 S. E. 641.

Conveyance Directly to Heirs of Living Person.—By virtue of the section a deed conveying land directly to the "heirs" of a living person, passes whatever title the grantor had to the children of such person. Campbell v. Everhart, 139 N. C. 503, 52 S. E. 201.

Limitation to Heirs of Living Person.—A limitation to the heirs of a living person, if no contrary intention appear in the deed or will, will be construed to be to the children of such person. Massengill v. Abell, 192 N. C. 240, 242, 134 S. E. 641.

An estate granted to D. for life and then to the heirs of S., who was then alive, is operative as to the conveyance of the remainder under Revisal, sec. 1583, now this section, which construes the word "heirs" to mean children, in such instances. Condor v. Secrest, 149 N. C. 201, 62 S. E. 921.

Lawfully Begotten Heirs of the Body.—In Lockman v. Hobbs, 98 N. C. 541, 544, 4 S. E. 627, it was held "that the lawfully begotten heirs of her body" in a will referred most obviously to the children of the devisee for life, of whom there were only two, and was construed to mean "the children of such person" since contrary intention did not appear from the will.

Bodily Heirs.—"The words 'bodily heirs' have the same meaning as 'heirs of the body,' and are words of limitation and not words of purchase." Marsh v. Griffin, 136 N. C. 333, 335, 48 S. E. 735.

Child Born during Life of Life Tenant.—A devise of lands to the widow of the testator for life, then to the heirs of his son J., and it appears that the son was living at the time and had living children at the death of the testator and one born thereafter, during the continuance of the life estate; it was held that the devise, being to the heirs of a living person, conveyed such interest to the children of the person designated, and being, in terms, to a class, it will include all who are members of the class and fill the description at the time the particular estate terminated, and therefore the child born after the death of the testator, but during the lifetime of the tenant for life, takes his share with the other children of J. Revisal, sec. 1583; Cooley v. Lee, 170 N. C. 18, 86 S. E. 720.

Devise to One with Conditional Limitation over.—Where a testator devises land to his son with a limitation over to his daughters, provided the son dies without heirs, the word "heirs" is construed to mean "children." Sain v Baker, 128 N. C. 256, 38 S. E. 858.

A conveyance of land in contemplation of marriage, to M., "to descend to the heirs of the body of the said M. in fee simple, the issue of such marriage, and on failure of issue to revert to the heirs of" the grantor, the "reverter" to his heirs, under the section meant to his children after the death of his wife and the nonhappening of the stated contingency. Thompson v. Batts, 168 N. C. 333, 84 S. E. 347.

Limitation to Heirs of One with Conditional Limitation over.—Where an estate was devised to A "and the heirs of his body, but if he die without heirs living at the time of his death, then to the heirs of B," "heirs" was construed to mean children. Smith v. Brisson, 90 N. C. 284.

Devise to "Heirs of His Children."—By his will, the testator devised the vacant lot to the trustees for twenty years from the date of his death, and at the expiration of such term to the "heirs of his children, to be equally divided between them, per stirpes." The testator left surviving two children, a son and a daughter, both of whom had children living at the date of testator's death. The son and daughter are now living. Under this section the word "heirs," used in item 11 of the will, must be construed to mean "children." Lide v. Wells, 190 N. C. 37, 128 S. E. 477, 480.

Application.—Where a testator, by separate devises, gives to each of his three daughters, who are his only heirs at law, a certain tract of his land, with provision in each item, "to her and the lawful heirs of her body in fee simple forever, and if she should die without a lawful heir of her body, then the property to go to the other surviving heirs," by the expression, "lawful heirs of her body," in the connection used, the testator intended "child" of his daughters. Kornegay v. Cunningham, 174 N. C. 209, 93 S. E. 754.

Where a testator devises land to his son with a limitation over to his daughters, provided the son dies without heirs, the word "heirs" is construed to mean "children." Sain v. Baker, 128 N. C. 256, 38 S. E. 858.

Same—When Children Illegitimates.—Where a bequest is immediate—not dependent upon a preceding limited estate—to the heirs of a living person, and the children of such person are illegitimate, they have the right to take under the section which declares that a limitation to the "heirs" shall be construed to be the "children" of such person, unless a contrary intention appears. Howell v. Tyler, 91 N. C. 207, 208.

§ 1740. Possession transferred to use in certain conveyances.—By deed of bargain and sale, or by deeds of lease and release, or by covenant to stand seized to use, or deed operating by way of covenant to stand seized to use, or otherwise, by any manner or means whatsoever it be, the possession of the bargainor, releasor, or covenantor shall be deemed to be transferred to the bargainee, releasee, or person entitled to the use, for the estate or interest which such person shall have in the use, as perfectly as if the bargainee, releasee or person entitled to the use had been enfeoffed at common law with livery of seizin of the land intended to be conveyed by such deed or covenant. (Rev., s. 1584; Code, s. 1330; R. C., c. 43, s. 6; 27 Hen. VIII, c. 10.)

Editor's Note.—After the Statute of Wills, 32 Hen. 8, a question was made, whether 27 Hen. 8, applied where one was seized to the use of another by force of a devise. The question, however, has long been at rest. Mr. Blackstone, in his learned commentaries, classifies the exceptions to the operation of the statute under three heads, and does not allude to the fact, that the question referred to, had ever been started, but passes it over as one of "the refinements and niceties suggested by the ingenuity of the times." 2 Black, 336. See also Broughton v. Langley, Salk 679, where Lord Holt treats the question as settled. The curious reader will find the subject treated of in Powell on Devises, 211, 13-14.

It is conceded, on all hands, that the Statute of Uses, 27 Hen. 8, chap. 10, was in force and in use, in this State, up to the passage of the Revised Statutes (1836). Indeed, all of the conveyances of land, adopted and used in this State, are based on, and take effect by, the operation of that statute. In the Rev. Stat., chap. 43, sec. 4, and the Rev. Code, ch. 43, sec. 6, the words used in 27 Hen. 8, chap. 10—i. e., "When one person or persons stand, or be seized, or at any time thereafter shall happen to be seized of land, etc., to the use of any other person, persons, or body politic, by reason of any bargain, sale, feoffment, etc., or otherwise, by any manner or means whatsoever it be, the persons, etc., having the use, shall have the legal estate, etc.," are omitted and the provision is simply "By deed of bargain and sale, lease and release and covenant to stand seized, the possession shall be transferred to the bargainee, releasee, covenantee, etc." Substantially in this form the section is carried through all the various codes up to this one. The tendency, while no material change, has been to make the section all inclusive by extending its application to every possible case involving the principle. Wilder v. Irelland, 53 N. C. 85, 90.

Necessity of Consideration.—A deed of bargain and sale is governed in this State by the same principles which were applied to it in England. It must have a pecuniary, or other valuable consideration. Blount v. Blount, 4 N. C. 389; Brocket v. Foscue, 8 N. C. 64; Bruce v. Faucett, 49 N. C. 391, 393.

If no consideration, either good or valuable, appear on the face of the instrument, or can be proved aliunde, it will be void. Springs v. Hanks, 27 N. C. 30; Jackson v. Hampton, 30 N. C. 457; Bruce v. Faucett, 49 N. C. 391, 393.

Same—Love and Affection.—Though in form, a deed of bargain and sale, yet if the only consideration is that of love and affection, it will operate as a covenant to stand seized. Slade v. Smith, 2 N. C. 248; Hatch v. Thompson, 14 N. C. 411; Cobb v. Hines, 44 N. C. 343; Bruce v. Faucett, 49 N. C. 391, 393.

Same Footing with Feoffments at Common Law.—Deeds of bargain and sale and covenants to stand seized to uses, are put on the same footing with feoffments at common law, with respect to seizin, the declaration of uses thereon, and the consideration. Love v. Harbin, 87 N. C. 249, and Ivey v. Granberry, 66 N. C. 224. A use may be limited on a use. Rowland v. Rowland, 93 N. C. 214, 221.

Common Law Rule.—At common law, where there was no consideration, the use would result to the feoffor, unless the declaration of the use or trust was contemporaneous with the transmutation of the legal title. Pittman v. Pittman, 107 N. C. 159, 12 S. E. 61.

When Legal and Equitable Title United.—In Lee v. Oates, 171 N. C. 717, 726, 88 S. E. 889, it was said: "As to Mrs. Lee's life estate, so long as her husband lived, it was necessary that the trust for her separate use and maintenance should continue, as it was then active; but when her husband died, and the disability of coverture was removed, and there was no longer any necessity for a trustee to protect her interest, and as the trust then became passive, the statute executed the use and united the legal and equitable estates in her." Cameron v. Hicks, 141 N. C. 21, 53 S. E. 728; Perkins v. Brinkley, 133 N. C. 154, 45 S. E. 541; Springs v. Hopkins, 171 N. C. 486, 88 S. E. 774. See also Security Nat. Bank v. Sternberger, 207 N. C. 817, 819, 178 S. E. 595.

Same—Merger. — In Peacock v. Scott, 101 N. C. 149, Smith, C. J., said: "Where one who has an equitable title acquires the legal title so that the same becomes united in the same person, the former is merged in the latter, and numerous decisions elsewhere are to the same effect." Wills v. Cooper, 25 N. J. L., 137; Swisher v. Swisher, 157 Iowa, 55; Greene v. Greene, 125 N. Y. 506; Clark v. Listers, etc., 82 Neb. 85; Weeks v. Weeks, 197 N. Y. 304; Langley v. Conlan, 212 Mass. 135; Perry on Trusts (6 Ed.), sec. 347; 39 Cyc., 248; 2 Pomeroy's Equity, sec. 788. Quoted with approval in Odom v. Morgan, 17 N. C. 367, 369, 99 S. E. 195.

When Legal Title Passes to Trustee.—"Where the use is executed by the statute, the trustee takes no estate or interest, both the legal and equitable estates vesting in the cestui que trust; but where the use is not executed, the legal title passes to the trustee." 39 Cyc., 207, quoted with approval in Lee v. Oates, 171 N. C. 717, 88 S. E. 889.

Proceeds of Sale of Equitable Life Estate. — A deed in trust for the purpose of allowing the grantor's daughter to enjoy the "proceeds, rents, and income" during her natural life, with limitation over, creates an equitable estate for life, but upon a sale, the daughter would not be entitled to have the value of her life estate turned over to her. Braddy v. Dail, 156 N. C. 30, 72 S. E. 88.

Shifting Use to Take Effect.—"Whenever the event happens when a shifting or springing use is to take effect, the statute of uses vests the legal seizin and ownership in the person entitled by virtue of the use." Perry on Trusts, (5 Ed.), sec. 378; Lee v. Oates, 171 N. C. 717, 727, 88 S. E. 889.

Future Contingent Use.—In the case of Smith v. Smith, 46 N. C. 135, other incidents, which attached to deeds of bargain and sale in England were held to apply to them in this State. Thus, the Court said "it is settled that, a future contingent use to one unknown, or not in esse, cannot be raised by a deed of bargain and sale. It is also settled that a use cannot be raised by a general power of appointment given to the taker of the first estate in the use; and the case is much stronger where the power of appointment is given to a stranger." Bruce v. Faucett, 49 N. C. 391, 393.

Estates of Freehold to Commence in Futuro.—As estate of freehold to commence in futuro can be conveyed by a deed of bargain and sale operating under the section or by executory devise; therefore, an estate to H. for life and at her death to her children in fee, reserving a life estate to the grantor, is good. Savage v. Lee, 90 N. C. 320.

Life Estate to Woman with Limitation Over to Children.—Where one devised, in 1828, to a trustee, to the use and benefit of a woman, for her life, remainder to the use of all her children, it was held that the legal estate in the remainder, by force of the same statute, passed to the children she had at the time of the devise, subject to the participation of such as she might thereafter have. Wilder v. Ireland, 53 N. C. 85.

Fee Simple Limited after a Fee Simple.—A fee-simple may be limited after a fee-simple either by a deed or will by operation of the statute of uses; if by deed, it is a conditional limitation; if by will, it is an executory devise. Smith v. Brisson, 90 N. C. 284.

Possession Transferred. — The statute of uses, substituted for 27 Hen. VIII. (The Code, sec. 1330), now this section, provides that the possession of the bargainee shall be transferred to the bargainee as perfectly as if the bargainee "had been enfeoffed at common law with the livery of seizin of the land intended to be conveyed, etc." Kirby v. Boyette, 118 N. C. 244, 263, 24 S. E. 18.

When One Seized to the Use of Another.—It was said in Wilder v. Ireland, 53 N. C. 85: "Where one person is seized to the use of another, the statute carries the legal estate to the person having the use. But three classes of cases are made exceptions to its operations, i. e., (1) where a use is limited on a use, (2) where a trustee is not seized but only possessed of a chattel interest, and (3) where the purposes of the trust make it necessary for the legal estate and the use to remain separate, as in the case of land conveyed for the separate use and maintenance of a married woman. Kirby v. Boyette, 118 N. C. 244, 263, 24 S. E. 18. See Black Com.

"Sole and Separate Use" Construed.—The words "for the sole and separate use," or equivalent language, qualifying the estate of a trustee for a married woman, must be construed as manifesting the intent on the part of the grantor to limit her right of alienation to the mode and manner expressly provided in the instrument by which the estate is created. Kirby v. Boyette, 118 N. C. 244, 24 S. E. 18.

Covenant to Stand Seized to Use of Another.—"In Davenport v. Wynne, 28 N. C. 128, where there was a conveyance of real property upon the consideration of love and affection, reserving a life estate to the donor, it was held by this court that the conveyance was good; that it was a conveyance to stand seized to the use of the vendee on his death. To the same effect is Hodges v. Spicer, 79 N. C. 223. And in Sasser v. Blyth, 2 N. C. 259, overruling Ward v. Ward, 1 N. C. 59, a similar construction was given to an instrument of life import. In the note to that case Judge Battle says: 'There cannot be the least doubt but that a covenant to stand seized to the use of another, after his own life, is good to pass the estate intended; for the law raises in the grantor an estate for life in the meantime to support the future estate. This has been decided in a vast number of instances. There is no point better established by the authorities.' And he cites in support of the position, besides Coke, a number of English authorities." Savage v. Lee, 90 N. C. 320, 323.

§ 1741. Collateral warranties abolished; warranties by life tenants deemed covenants.—All collateral warranties are abolished; and all warranties made by any tenant for life of lands, tenements or hereditaments, the same descending or coming to any person in reversion or remainder, shall be void; and all such warranties, as aforesaid, shall be deemed covenants only, and bind the covenanter in like manner as other obligations. (Rev., s. 1587; Code, s. 1334; R. C., c. 43, s. 10; 4 Anne, c. 16, s. 21; 1852, c. 16.)

Editor's Note. — The section is a re-enactment of the Statute of 4 Ann, c. 16, s. 21 made first because estates tail were converted into estates in fee simple. The last clause in the section was inserted to qualify the words "abolished" and "void," used in the two preceding clauses. By it such warranties, that is, collateral warranties, and all warranties descending upon an heir, entitled to a remainder or reversion, is allowed the effect of a personal covenant of quiet enjoyment, by which the heir if he receives real assets, is bound to pay a purchaser damages to the amount of the consideration paid for the land, in case of eviction by title paramount, in lieu of "other land of equal value," so as to put such warranties upon the same footing as lineal warranties which the Court had been forced after the action of ejectment was substituted for real actions, for the sake of giving a remedy, to treat as personal covenants for quiet enjoyment. This was by reason of the fact that there could not be "a vouchee" upon a covenant real or the old warranty, except in real actions. Rickets v. Dickens, 5 N. C. 342, 343; Williams v. Beeman, 13 N. C. 483; Southerland v. Stout, 68 N. C. 446, 449; Smith v. Ingram, 130 N. C. 100, 40 S. E. 984.

Estoppel and Rebutter by Warranty. — Mr. Mordecai in his instructive and valuable law lectures, volume 2, p. 858, says: "I shall take 'Estoppel by Warranty' to mean the effect which such covenants have in passing, so to speak, any title to the land which the bargainor in a deed may acquire after the execution of the deed; and 'Rebutter by Warranty, to mean the effect which such modern covenants have in barring, estopping, or rebutting the heirs of the covenantor, should they assert title to the land conveyed by the covenanting ancestor." Olds v. Richmond Cedar Works, 173 N. C. 161, 164, 91 S. E. 846.

Where land is devised to a person for life, and at her death to her children, the children are not estopped by a deed with covenant of warranty executed by the life tenant. Hauser v. Craft, 134 N. C. 319, 46 S. E. 756.

Same—Warranty by Tenant by Curtesy.—Where a tenant by the curtesy, sells land belonging to his wife, by deed or bargain and sale, in fee, with general warranty the right of the heir of the wife to the land is not rebutted by the warranty. Johnson v. Bradley, 31 N. C. 362.

Same—Remainder Not Defeated by Warranty. — A warranty in a deed of a life tenant cannot defeat the remainder of the heirs by way of rebutter. Moore v. Parker, 34 N. C. 123; Starnes v. Hill, 112 N. C. 1, 13, 16 S. E. 1011.

Warranty to Grantee but Not to Assigns.—Where a deed contains a warranty to the grantee, but not to his assigns, such assignees can neither maintain an action on such covenant nor defend under it against the grantor. Smith v. Ingram, 130 N. C. 100, 40 S. E. 984.

Burden of Proof.—Where in an action to recover lands the plaintiff claims by paper title to his ancestor, without claim of possession, and it appears that his ancestor has conveyed the land to a stranger with full covenants and warranty of title prior to his having acquired it, it was held, that the burden of proof is on the plaintiff to establish his title, and he cannot recover, for his ancestor's deed to the stranger, with covenant and warranty, destroys his right of action by rebutter, and passes the title to the grantee by estoppel. Olds v. Richmond Cedar Works, 173 N. C. 161, 91 S. E. 846.

§ 1742. Spendthrift trusts.—It is lawful for any person by deed or will to convey any property, which does not yield at the time of the conveyance a clear annual income exceeding five hundred dollars, to any other person in trust to receive and pay the profits annually or oftener for the support and maintenance of any child, grandchild or other relation of the grantor, for the life of such child, grandchild or other relation, with remainder as the grantor shall provide; and the property so conveyed shall not be liable for or subject to be seized or taken in any manner for the debts of such child, grandchild or other relation, whether the same be contracted or incurred before or after the grant. (Rev., s. 1588; Code, s. 1335; 1871-2, c. 204, s. 1.)

Substantial Compliance Necessary. — The provisions of the section should be at least substantially met and complied with to create the trust with its incidents contemplated by the statute. Gray v. Hawkins, 133 N. C. 1, 6, 45 S. E. 363.

Same—Mere Declaration.—A mere declaration that it is the object of this deed, in part, to do so, and failing to appoint a trustee, does not create such a trust as the court would enforce by the appointment of a trustee. Gray v. Hawkins, 133 N. C. 1, 6, 45 S. E. 363.

Restricted as to Amount and Duration. — In Bank v. Heath, 187 N. C. 54, 64, 121 S. E. 24, the court said: "A perusal of the law will disclose that such trusts are only permissible for a restricted amount, 'an annual income not to exceed $500 net', and by correct interpretation to be applied to the support of the beneficiary for his life only."

Not a Passive Trust Subject to Debts.—A devise creating a spendthrift trust, under the section for the trustee to receive and pay the profits, annually, or oftener for the support and maintenance of the testator's named son, is not a passive trust either as to the principal or income, or one executed under the statute of uses, and is not subject, as to either, to the payment of the debts created by the cestui que trust, though he be a nonresident of the State. Fowler v. Webster, 173 N. C. 442, 92 S. E. 157.

"The courts cannot, without violating the right of property possessed by the trustor, and the proper discharge of the trust by the trustee, condemn any part of the income for the foreign purpose of paying the debts of the cestui que trust, since the whole idea and purpose of this trust is that the beneficiary is unfit to handle the income of the fund." Fowler v. Webster, 173 N. C. 442, 445, 92 S. E. 157.

Not Personal Property Exemption. — The effect of the spendthrift trust, Revisal, sec. 1588, now this section, is not to create a personal property exemption in favor of a nonresident cestui que trust in the income from the trust estate. Fowler v. Webster, 173 N. C. 442, 92 S. E. 157.

Not Subject to Alienation.—"In a spendthrift trust the beneficiary cannot 'exercise the highest right of property, namely, alienation' as to the income, nor will it 'upon his death undoubtedly be assets.' In spendthrift trusts authorized by the statute the beneficiary acquires no interest or property in the income any more than he does in the principal of the fund. He cannot alienate the income, he cannot direct its application in the purchase of any article whatever, or its disposal for any purpose." Fowler v. Webster, 173 N. C. 442, 444, 92 S. E. 157.

Trustee Makes All Disbursements.—The trustee holds the income just as he holds the principal, to be applied for the designated purposes. It is his duty to make the disbursement, whether for board or clothing or in any other method in his judgment required for the support of the beneficiary. Fowler v. Webster, 173 N. C. 442, 445, 92 S. E. 157.

Same—Not to Pay over Income to Cestui Que Trust.—The trustee is not authorized to pay over any part of the income to the beneficiary that he may spend it or use it or disburse it. The cardinal idea is that the cestui que trust is "incompetent and cannot be trusted with the handling of the income," (Beach on Trusts. § 554), which duty is to be discharged by the trustee. Fowler v. Webster, 173 N. C. 442, 445, 92 S. E. 157.

Trust Limitations Defeated by Fee Simple Devise.—In a fee simple devise with a subsequent provision that during the life of the devisee the property is to be "'managed" by the trustees, paying to him the income and exempting the property from liability for his debts, the provision is repugnant to the fee, and the limitations imposed are void; and at the suit of a purchaser for value under a deed from the devisee and the trustee, judgment against the latter and in favor of the plaintiff for possession should be granted. Vaughan v. Wise, 152 N. C. 31, 67 S. E. 33.

§ 1743. Titles quieted.—An action may be brought by any person against another who claims an estate or interest in real property adverse to him for the purpose of determining such adverse claims; and by any man or woman against his or her wife or husband or alleged wife or husband who have not lived together as man and wife within the two years preceding, and who at the death of such plaintiff might have or claim to have an interest in his or her estate, and a decree for the plaintiff shall debar all claims of the defendant in the property of the plaintiff then owned or afterwards acquired: Provided, that no such relief shall be granted against such husband or wife or alleged wife or husband, except in case the summons in said action is personally served on such defendant.

If the defendant in such action disclaim in his answer any interest or estate in the property, or suffer judgment to be taken against him without answer, the plaintiff cannot recover costs. In any case in which judgment has been or shall be docketed, whether such judgment is in favor of or against the person bringing such action, or is claimed by him, or affects real estate claimed by him, or whether such judgment is in favor of or against the person against whom such action may be brought, or is claimed by him, or affects real estate claimed by him, the lien of said judgment shall be such claim of an estate or interest in real estate as is contemplated by this section. (Rev., s. 1589; 1893, c. 6; 1903, c. 763; 1907, c. 888.)

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS.

Editor's Note.—The modern trend of Legislative enactments has been to remove, before sale, and as quickly and efficiently as possible, all defects of title to property sold under judicial process. The courts have been liberal in the construction of all such remedial legislation. In Campbell v. Cronly, 150 N. C. 457, 64 S. E. 213. Mr. Justice Conner, in an able and elaborate opinion, reviews the policy and effect of this legislation and the decisions of many courts, and says: "The wisdom of enlarging the power of the court to deal with the subject is manifest. It is highly important to private right and public interest that titles shall be rendered secure and certain.....The unanimity with which judges have recognized the wisdom of the legislation, giving it a liberal construction, has made it effective." The first legislative act of this state looking to this end was the act of 1893 (chapter 6). Under this act, the court held, in Daniels v. Baxter, 120 N. C. 14, 26 S. E. 635, "as to the fifth ground of demurrer, there is an allegation that the defendants claim that S. H. Fowler, made a deed of trust, that what purports to be such is on record, and that defendants are holding under it. This is sufficient, under Laws 1893, ch. 6, to proceed to have the cloud removed, though the plaintiffs are not in possession." And in McLean v. Shaw, 125 N. C. 491, 34 S. E. 634, it was said: "Under a line of decisions of this Court, culminating with McNamee v. Alexander, 109 N. C. 242, 13 S. E. 777, it was held that a plaintiff could not maintain an action to remove a cloud upon his title unless it appeared affirmatively that he was rightfully in possession of the land. The act of 1893 (chapter 6) extended such relief to those who were not in possession. Daniels v. Baxter, 120 N. C. 14, 26 S. E. 635. It is not in contemplation of the act that a judgment lien should be included in the terms 'estate' and 'interest,' as they are used in the act." This case was decided at September Term, 1899. The Legislature, at its session in 1903, by chapter 763, amended the Public Laws 1893, ch. 6, sec. 1, by adding thereto the last sentence of the present section. Crockett v. Bray, 151 N. C. 615, 617, 66 S. E. 666.

This Section Is Highly Remedial.—Plotkin v. Merchants Bank, etc., Co., 188 N. C. 711, 715, 125 S. E. 541. This is a remedial statute which has been liberally construed quieting land titles, more comprehensive than the old suit in equity to remove a cloud from title. Jacobi Hdw. Co. v. Jones Cotton Co., 188 N. C. 442, 445, 124 S. E. 756.

This section and the amendatory acts thereto being remedial in nature, should have a liberal construction in order to execute fully the legislative intention and will. Stocks v. Stocks, 179 N. C. 285, 289, 102 S. E. 306. And to advance the remedy and permit the courts to bring the parties to an issue. Asheville Land Co. v. Lange, 150 N. C. 26, 30, 63 S. E. 164.

Does Not Deprive Defendant of Right.—The section deprives the defendant of no right, but affords him every opportunity of defending the validity of his title; but in the interest of peace and the settlement of controversies, it allows his adversary to put to the test of early judicial investigation, and does not compel plaintiff to wait on his pleasure as to the time when the inquiry shall be made, and thus give defendant an unfair advantage over him. Jersey City v. Lembeck, 31 N. J. Eq., 265; Carolina-Tennessee Power Co. v. Hiawassee River Power Co., 175 N. C. 668, 684, 96 S. E. 99.

Restraining Sale under Execution.—Under this section the sheriff's sale of land by execution under a judgment may now be restrained by suit in equity when it will cast an additional cloud upon the title of the owner of the lands. Mizell v. Bazemore, 194 N. C. 324, 139 S. E. 453.

An usurious charge of interest on notes does not affect the validity of the mortgage or deed of trust securing them, under § 2306, and a suit brought to remove a cloud upon title to the lands under this section to the extent of the usurious charge of interest on the notes cannot be maintained. Briggs v. Industrial Bank, 197 N. C. 120, 147 S. E. 815.

Cited in Johnson v. Fry, 195 N. C. 832, 834, 143 S. E. 857; Sears v. Braswell, 197 N. C. 515, 526, 149 S. E. 846; Bechtel v. Bohannan, 198 N. C. 730, 731, 153 S. E. 316.

II. NATURE AND SCOPE.

A. Purpose.

General Observations. — In a recent case the Supreme Court gave the section a broad interpretation in order to carry out the evident purpose of its enactment, and said: "Having reference to the broad and inclusive language of the statute, the mischief complained of and the purpose sought to be accomplished, we are of opinion that the law, as its terms clearly import, was designed and intended to afford a remedy wherever one owns or has an estate or interest in real property, whether he is in or out of possession, and another wrongfully sets up a claim to an estate or interest therein which purports to affect adversely the estate or interest of the true owner and which is reasonably calculated to burden and embarrass such owner in the full and proper enjoyment of his proprietary rights, including the right to dispose of the same at its fair market value. And it should and does extend to such adverse and wrongful claims, whether in writing or parol, whenever a claim by parol, if established, could create an interest or estate in the property, as in case of a parol trust or a lease not required to be in writing. And it should be allowed, too, when existent records or written instruments reasonably present such a claim, the statute preventing all hardship in such cases by its provision that if the holder does not insist on the same in his answer or does not answer at all, the plaintiff shall pay the costs." Satterwhite v. Gallagher, 173 N. C. 525, 528, 92 S. E. 369, citing Rumbo v. Gay Mfg. Co., 129 N. C. 9, 39 S. E. 581; Carolina-Tennessee Power Co. v. Hiawassee River Power Co., 175 N. C. 668, 684, 96 S. E. 99.

Referring to a similar statute of Nebraska, Mr. Justice Field said, in Holland v. Challen, 110 U. S. 15, 28 L. Ed. 52, 3 S. Ct. 495, (cited in Christman v. Hilliard, 167 N. C. 4, 82 S. E. 949): "Any person claiming title to real estate, whether in or out of possession, may maintain the suit against one who claims an adverse estate in it for the purpose of determining such estate and quieting his title. It is certainly for the interest of the State that this jurisdiction of the court should be maintained, and that causes of apprehended litigation respecting real property necessarily affecting its use and enjoyment should be removed, for so long as they remain they will prevent improvement and consequent benefit to the public. It is a matter of everyday observation that many lots of land in our cities remain unimproved because of conflicting claims to them. It is manifestly to the interest of the community that conflicting claims to property thus situated should be settled so that it may be subject to use and improvement. To meet cases of this character, statutes like the one in Nebraska have been passed by several states, and they accomplish a most useful purpose." Carolina-Tennessee Power Co. v. Hiawassee River Power Co., 175 N. C. 668, 684, 96 S. E. 99.

Includes Any Adverse Interest. — The language of this section is broad and liberal, showing the purpose of General Assembly to permit any person to bring an action against another who claims an interest or estate in real property adverse to him. Plotkin v. Merchants Bank, etc., Co., 188 N. C. 711, 715, 125 S. E. 541.

To Leave Lands Unfettered.—In Plotkin v. Merchants Bank, etc., Co., 188 N. C. 711, 715, 125 S. E. 541, the court said: "Walker, J., in Christman v. Hilliard, 167 N. C. 4, 82 S. E. 949, speaking of the statute, says: 'The beneficial purpose of this statute is to free the land of the cloud resting upon it and make its title clear and indisputable so that it may enter the channels of commerce and trade unfettered and without the handicap of suspicion.'"

"The beneficial purpose of the statute is to free the land of the cloud resting upon it and make its title clear and indisputable, so that it may enter the channels of commerce and trade unfettered and without the handicap of suspicion, instead of remaining idle and unremunerative." Carolina-Tennessee Power Co. v. Hiawassee River Power Co., 175 N. C. 668, 684, 96 S. E. 99.

Effect of Busbee Cases.—In Plotkin v. Merchants Bank, etc., Co., 188 N. C. 711, 715, 125 S. E. 541, the Court further said: "In Rumbo v. Gay Mfg. Co., 129 N. C. 9, 10, 39 S. E.

591, Clark, C. J., says: It was because the General Assembly thought the equitable doctrines (as laid down in Busbee v. Macy, 85 N. C. 329, and Busbee v. Lewis, 85 N. C. 332, and like cases) inconvenient or unjust that the act of 1893 (this section) was passed."

To Broaden the Equitable Remedy.—This section giving the owner of lands the right to remove a cloud upon his title, is much broader in its scope and purpose than the equitable remedy theretofore allowed and administered in this State, and includes not only the right to remove an apparent lien under a docketed judgment, but also the potential claim of a wife to her inchoate right of dower in her husband's lands. Southern State Bank v. Sumner, 187 N. C. 762, 122 S. E. 848.

It was said of this statute in Christman v. Hilliard, 167 N. C. 4, 82 S. E. 949.

"The statute has been said to be an extension of the remedy in equity theretofore existing for the removal of clouds on title, and is intended to afford an easy and expeditious mode of determining all conflicting claims to land, whether derived from a common source or from different and independent sources. It is highly remedial and beneficial in its nature, and should therefore be construed liberally. It is also a statute of repose, and also for that reason is entitled to favorable consideration. Adler v. Sullivan, 115 Ala., 582; Walton v. Perkins, 33 Minn., 357; Holmes v. Chester, 26 N. J. Eq., 81." Quoted with approval in Carolina-Tennessee Power Co. v. Hiawassee River Power Co., 175 N. C. 668, 683, 96 S. E. 99.

B. Interest Necessary to Bring Action.

Editor's Note.—In Burnett v. Lyman, 141 N. C. 500, 54 S. E. 412, Clark, C. J., quotes with approval the language of Burwell, J., in Arrington v. Arrington, 114 N. C. 116, 120, 19 S. E. 278, as follows: "In an action to recover land the rule is that the plaintiff must have the right to the possession not only at the institution of the suit, but at the time of the trial also." And in the late case of Rutherford v. Ray, 147 N. C. 253, 61 S. E. 57, it was held that suit may be instituted by any person against any other person claiming an interest adverse to his title.

In Plotkin v. Merchants Bank, etc., Co., 188 N. C. 711, 715, 125 S. E. 541, it was held that "the contention that a plaintiff in an action brought under this section must allege and prove that at the commencement of the action and at its trial he had an estate in or title to the land, cannot be sustained. It is only required that he have such an interest in the land as that the claim of the defendant is adverse to him." It would seem that, in this case, the court lays down a much more liberal rule than had been formulated by any of the previous cases on the subject. It is interesting to note here the holding of a Federal Case, arising in North Carolina, Johnston v. Kramer Bros. & Co., 203 Fed. 733, 741, involving an interpretation of this statute, and decided prior to Platkin v. Bank, supra, in which it was held that the plaintiff could maintain his action provided he had the legal title to either the whole or an undivided interest in the land. This holding was in perfect concord with the decided cases up to Plotkin v. Bank, supra, but is out of harmony with that case.

In Dick v. Faraker, 155 U. S. 404, 415, 39 L. Ed. 201, 15 S. Ct. 124, it was said: "A statute of Nebraska authorizes an action to be brought by any person of persons, whether in actual possession or not, claiming title to real estate, against any person or persons who claim adverse estate or interest therein, for the purpose of determining such estate or interest, and quieting the title to said real estate. Nebraska Statute February 24, 1873; Rev. Statute 1873, p. 882. The requisite of the plaintiff's possession is thus dispensed with, but not the other rules which govern the jurisdiction of courts of equity over such bills. Under that statute, as under the general jurisdiction in equity, it is the title, that is to say, the legal title, to real estate, that is to be quieted against claims of adverse estates or interests. In State v. Sioux City & Pacific Railroad, the Supreme Court of Nebraska said: 'Whatever the rule may be as to a party in actual possession, it is clear that a party not in possession must possess the legal title, in order to maintain the action.' 7 Nebraska 357, 376, and in Holland v. Challen, 110 U. S. 15, 28 L. Ed. 52, 3 S. Ct. 495, this Court said: "Undoubtedly, as a foundation for the relief sought, the plaintiff must show that he has a legal title to the premises. The necessary conclusion is, that Spitley, not having the legal title of the lots in question, cannot maintain his bill for the purpose of removing a cloud on the title." Note the similarity of the Nebraska statute and our own, and compare the rule laid down by the Federal Courts with that laid down by the North Carolina Supreme Court.

Apparent Invalidity of Defendant's Title.—The plaintiff is not required to have possession as a condition precedent to his right of action, nor will the apparent invalidity of defendant's title deprive him of the statutory remedy. Daniels v. Baxter, 120 N. C. 14, 26 S. E. 635; Rumbo v. Gay Mfg. Co., 129 N. C. 9, 39 S. E. 581; Beck v. Meroney, 135 N. C. 532, 47 S. E. 613; Campbell v. Cronly, 150 N. C. 457, 64 S. E. 213; Carolina-Tennessee Power Co. v. Hiawassee River Power Co., 175 N. C. 668, 684, 96 S. E. 99.

Remedy Given Whether in or out of Possession.—This section affords the remedy wherever one owns or has an estate or interest in real property, whether he is in or out of possession, and another sets up a claim to an estate or interest therein which purports to affect adversely the estate or interest of the true owner, whether by way of claim of an enforceable parol trust, leases not required to be in writing, existent records or written instruments, that are reasonably calculated to burden and embarrass such owner in the full enjoyment or disposition of his property at a fair market value; the statute affording a remedy by disclaimer when the party does not in fact claim the "adverse interest" which is alleged to be a cloud on the title of the true owner. Satterwhite v. Gallagher, 173 N. C. 525, 92 S. E. 369.

Same—Former Law. — The authorities to the effect that only one in possession may maintain an action to remove a cloud from title, were decisions rendered prior to the act of 1893. Chapter 6; Revisal, sec. 1589. Since that statute, it is held that the action is maintainable, though plaintiff is not in the present possession or control of the property. Campbell v. Cronly, 150 N. C. 457, 64 S. E. 213; Daniels v. Baxter, 120 N. C. 14, 26 S. E. 635; Speas v. Woodhouse, 162 N. C. 66, 69, 77 S. E. 1000.

Adverse Claimant to Execution Debtor.—If, real estate levied upon should be claimed by one other than the execution debtor, then nothing can more quickly bring up for trial the plaintiff's prayer to have the cloud removed from his title than to allow the execution sale to take place. If the purchaser should delay to commence suit for recovery of possession, then the claimant can commence proceedings under the section. McLean v. Shaw, 125 N. C. 491, 492, 34 S. E. 634.

Correction of Life Estate into Fee Simple. — Defendants have a right, in order to avoid multiplicity of suits, to ask for the correction of a life estate deed, under which they claim, into a fee simple deed, by way of counterclaim, not merely as a matter of defense, but to remove a cloud upon the title, under the section. McLamb v. McPhail, 126 N. C. 218, 35 S. E. 426.

Obscure Contingent Limitations.—The section enlarges the power of the courts to entertain suits to quiet titles, where the conditions were formerly such that a possessory action could not be brought; and this statute is liberally construed, so that the court can acquire jurisdiction to clear up obscure contingent limitations which are imposed upon titles. Campbell v. Cronly, 150 N. C. 457, 64 S. E. 213.

When Land Conveyed Pendente Lite.—Where the owner of lands in possession thereof or entitled thereto brings his action claiming as such owner to remove as a cloud upon his title the lien of one claiming under his mortgage, and pendente lite has conveyed the land to another with full warranty deed, he may continue to prosecute his suit against the mortgagee as to the title, being a real party in interest, § 446, without claim of the right to the possession, under the provisions of this section; and where issue has been joined, he may, if successful, recover his costs. Plotkin v. Merchants Bank, etc., Co., 188 N. C. 711, 125 S. E. 541.

Judgment Lien.—It is not in contemplation of the act that a judgment lien should be included in the terms "estate" and "interest" as they are used in the section. McLean v. Shaw, 125 N. C. 491, 492, 34 S. E. 634. This was changed by the Laws of 1903, C. 763. "Estate" and "Interest" now expressly embrace a judgment lien. See Editor's Note under Analysis line I, "General Considerations," of this section.

Action Lies to Prevent Creation of Cloud.—An action will lie, not only to remove an existing cloud on title, but also to prevent one from being created (Thomas v. Simmons, 103 Ind. 538), and where the object is merely preventive an injunction is the proper remedy to restrain the doing of the wrongful act. Carolina-Tennessee Power Co. v. Hiawassee River Power Co., 175 N. C. 668, 686, 96 S. E. 99.

C. What Constitutes Cloud.

Deed without Feme Court's Privy Examination.—A contract to convey the lands of the wife, signed by her and her husband, but without having taken her privy examination, when recorded is a cloud upon her title to the lands and subject to her suit to remove the same, as such, within the intent and meaning of the section; though she be and remain in possession of the land. Satterwhite v. Gallagher, 173 N. C. 525, 92 S. E. 369.

Invalid Judgment as Cloud.—A judgment, if invalid, would be such a cloud on the title, or such a direct menace to it, as to fall within the provisions of this section. Stocks v. Stocks, 179 N. C. 285, 289, 102 S. E. 306.

Same—Judgment Obtained by Fraud.—The complaint in this suit alleged, in effect, that the plaintiff had her dower laid off in the lands of her deceased husband, in which the defendant, her son, was properly represented, and thereafter the son, without the service of summons upon her, instituted an independent proceeding to annul the judgment, and falsely represented to her that the action had been withdrawn, and that she should not further consider it, and in consequence, and through his false representation, obtained a judgment in his favor, destroying her dower right, it is held, sufficient for her to maintain an independent action to set aside the former judgment upon the issue of fraud, and also our statute to remove the former judgment as a cloud upon her title. Stocks v. Stocks, 179 N. C. 285, 102 S. E. 306.

Where a judgment entered in favor of the county in an action against the owner for taxes has been set aside upon motion after notice to the parties the owner, in an action to remove cloud upon title, is entitled to judgment canceling the tax deed. Galer v. Auburn-Asheville Co., 204 N. C. 683, 169 S. E. 642.

Tax Deed as Cloud upon Title.—Where a judgment entered in favor of the county in an action against the owner for taxes has been set aside upon motion after notice to the parties the owner, in an action to remove cloud upon title, is entitled to judgment canceling the tax deed. Galer v. Auburn-Asheville Co., 204 N. C. 683, 169 S. E. 642.

Proof Required of Plaintiff.—In a suit to remove a cloud upon the plaintiff's title, this section, the defendant claimed under a sale by foreclosure of a mortgage which the plaintiff attacked for fraud. It was held, that the burden of proof was on the plaintiff to show the fraud by the preponderance of the evidence, and not by clear, strong and cogent proof as required in the information or correction of a conveyance of land. Ricks v. Brooks, 179 N. C. 204, 102 S. E. 207. See notes of this case under section 687.

III. ACTIONS.

A. In General.

Treated as Suit in Ejectment.—A suit instituted to determine conflicting claims to real property, under Act of 1893, chap. 6, may be properly treated as an action of ejectment, when the complaint alleges ownership in the plaintiff and possession in the defendant. Hines v. Moye, 125 N. C. 8, 34 S. E. 103.

When Adverse Claim Invalid.—Under Laws 1893, ch. 6, where, in an action to determine conflicting claims to real property, plaintiff being in possession, the court finds the claim of defendant to be invalid, the action should not be dismissed. Rumbo v. Gay Mfg. Co., 129 N. C. 9, 39 S. E. 581.

But the court should enter its decree removing the cloud upon the title. Rumbo v. Gay Mfg. Co., 129 N. C. 9, 10, 39 S. E. 581.

A judgment binds parties and privies only. Hines v. Moye, 125 N. C. 8, 34 S. E. 103.

When Court Will Hear and Determine without Action.—The courts will hear and determine a controversy submitted without action in suits brought by and against the parties in interest, wherein the vendee has refused to accept the title on the ground of its being doubtful, either in its equitable jurisdiction as treating the controversy as a bill for specific performance or under the provisions of the section, for the purpose of removing clouds upon obscure titles. Campbell v. Cronly, 150 N. C. 457, 64 S. E. 213.

Costs.—Where the defendant disclaims title to lands in a suit to remove a cloud thereon, the plaintiff is chargeable, with the costs under the express provisions of this section. Clemmons v. Jackson, 183 N. C. 382, 111 S. E. 609.

In an action for trespass and for damages the plaintiff, after trial of issues as to trespass, etc., may not abandon these contentions upon the trial, and have the court consider the action as an equitable one to remove a cloud upon the title, and so avoid the payment of the full amount of the costs incident to the litigated issues. Clemmons v. Jackson, 183 N. C. 382, 111 S. E. 609.

B. Pleadings.

Sufficiency of Bill of Complaint.—Where a bill asserts that the complainant is the owner of certain designated lands, sets forth the chain of title, and alleges that the defendant claims an adverse interest in the said lands, which said claim renders sale impossible and otherwise casts a cloud over complainant's title, it sufficiently states a cause of action to quiet title under this section. North Carolina Min. Co. v. Westfieldt, 151 Fed. 290.

Defendant Need Only Be Claimant.—It is true that under the act of the Legislature, 1893, ch. 6, now this section, a plaintiff may maintain an action to remove a cloud from his title without showing that the defendant is an occupant or any more than a claimant of the land in controversy. Duncan v. Hall, 117 N. C. 443, 446, 23 S. E. 362.

Same—Unnecessary to Allege Possession. — This section removed the necessity for alleging the defendant was in possession. The plaintiff may now set out his claim of title, and if defendant disclaims any adverse claim the plaintiff pays the cost, and the title as between them is settled. Asheville Land Co. v. Lange, 150 N. C. 26, 30, 63 S. E. 164.

When Occupation Is Alleged.—But where he alleges an occupation as the cause of action, not only must the allegation and proof correspond, but the testimony offered to show possession is open to objection and exception on the ground of competency. Duncan v. Hall, 117 N. C. 443, 447, 23 S. E. 362.

Allegation of Nonpayment of Taxes. — In a suit to remove a cloud on the title to lands, the suggestion that plaintiff's ancestors have not, for many years, paid the tax on the land, is immaterial because to do so does not, under any statute in force in this state, work a forfeiture of title, otherwise than by a sale conducted in conformity with the law. Johnston v. Kramer Bros. & Co., 203 Fed. 733, 741.

Sufficient to Raise Issue.—Where the complaint in a suit to remove a cloud upon plaintiff's title to land, alleges that the plaintiff is the owner of the locus in quo, and asks for a reformation of his deed to the lands to show that by mutual mistake the name of the grantee therein was that of a private business enterprise he was conducting, and that accordingly the defendants claimed an interest therein, an allegation in the answer in reply that the defendant had no knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to whether the plaintiff was conducting a business in the name of the grantee in the deed, is sufficient to raise the issue, and a judgment in plaintiff's favor upon the pleadings is reversible error. Brinson v. Morris, 192 N. C. 214, 134 S. E. 453.

Issue as to Delivery of Deed.—Delivery of a deed is essential to its validity, and where the pleadings and evidence raise the question of delivery under this section the court's refusal to submit an issue thereon entitles appellant to a new trial. Ferguson v. Ferguson, 206 N. C. 483, 174 S. E. 304.

C. Jurisdiction of Courts.

Advisory Jurisdiction of Courts.—The advisory jurisdiction of courts of equity does not extend to the mere construction of a will to ascertain the rights thereunder of devisees or legatees. Such is not sustained under this section, when not brought by the plaintiff against some person claiming an adverse estate or interest. Heptinstall v. Newsome, 146 N. C. 503, 60 S. E. 416.

Concurrent Jurisdiction.—Where there is an action pending in the State Courts to try the title to lands under this section, the State Courts have thereby acquired jurisdiction over the property, and the Federal Courts will not entertain a suit in equity on the same facts and for the same relief. Westfeldt v. North Carolina Min. Co., 166 Fed. 706.

Diverse Citizenship.—The Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Arkansas has jurisdiction of a suit in equity, brought by a citizen of Ohio against a citizen of Illinois, to remove a cloud from the title to real estate situated in that district. Dick v. Foraker, 155 U. S. 404, 39 L. Ed. 201, 15 S. Ct. 124.

The remedy given by statutes of this character may be enforced in the federal court when the parties are inhabitants of different states. Holland v. Challen, 110 U. S. 15, 28 L. Ed. 52, 3 Sup. Ct. 495. Johnston v. Kramer Bros. & Co., 203 Fed. 733, 741.

Equity Jurisdiction of Federal Courts.—In an action under this section, while it is true that a federal court of equity lacks jurisdiction of a suit brought against a number of defendants claiming severally different portions of the land in dispute, on the ground of avoiding a multiplicity of suits, that ground may oust the court's jurisdiction in respect to those defendants who raise the objection, and, where title and possession in the complainant is sufficiently alleged, it is error to dismiss it as to those defendants who have made no defense, but submitted themselves and their interests to the jurisdiction of the court. New Jersey, etc., Co. v. Gardner-Lacy Lumber Co., 178 Fed. 772.

This section does not enlarge the jurisdiction of federal courts of equity, as it merely regulates procedure and does not create any substantive right. And, even if it could be considered as creating an equitable right, it would not authorize the trial by a federal court of equity of what is in essence an action of ejectment, for the reason that in such action the defendant is entitled under the federal constitution to a trial by jury. Wood v. Phillips, 50 F. (2d) 714, 716.

§ 1744. Remainders to uncertain persons; procedure for sale; proceeds secured.—In all cases where there is a vested interest in real estate, and a contingent remainder over to persons who are not in being, or when the contingency has not yet happened which will determine who the remaindermen are, there may be a sale or mortgage of the property by a proceeding in the superior court, which proceeding shall be conducted in the manner pointed out in this section. Said proceeding may be commenced by summons by any person having a vested interest in the land, and all persons in esse who are interested in said land shall be made parties defendant and served with summons in the way and manner now provided by law for the service of summons in other civil actions, as provided by section 479, and service of summons upon nonresidents, or persons whose names and residences are unknown, by publication as now required by law or such service in lieu of publication as now provided by law. In cases where the remainder will or may go to minors, or persons under other disabilities, or to persons not in being whose names and residence are not known, or who may in any contingency become interested in said land, but because of such contingency cannot be ascertained, the clerk of the superior court shall, after due inquiry of persons who are in no way interested in or connected with such proceeding, designate and appoint some discreet person as guardian ad litem, to represent such remainderman, upon whom summons shall be served as provided by law for other guardians ad litem, and it shall be the duty of such guardian ad litem to defend such actions, and when counsel is needed to represent him, to make this known to the clerk, who shall by an order give instructions as to the employment of counsel and the payment of fees.

The court shall, if the interest of all parties require or would be materially enhanced by it, order a sale of such property or any part thereof for reinvestment, either in purchasing or in improving real estate, less expense allowed by the court for the proceeding and sale, and such newly acquired or improved real estate shall be held upon the same contingencies and in like manner as was the property ordered to be sold. The court may authorize the loaning of such money subject to its approval until such time when it can be reinvested in real estate. And after the sale of such property in all proceedings hereunder, where there is a life estate, in lieu of said interest or investment of proceeds to which the life tenant would be entitled to, or to the use of, the court may in its discretion order the value of said life tenants' share during the probable life of such life tenant, to be ascertained as now provided by law, and paid out of the proceeds of such sale absolutely, and the remainder of such proceeds be reinvested as herein provided. Any person or persons owning a life estate in lands which are unproductive and from which the income is insufficient to pay the taxes on and reasonable upkeep of said lands shall be entitled to maintain an action, without the joinder of any of the remaindermen or reversioners as parties plaintiff, for the sale of said property for the purpose of obtaining funds for improving other non-productive and unimproved real estate so as to make the same profit bearing, all to be done under order of the court, or reinvestment of the funds under the provisions of this section, but in every such action when the rights of minors or other persons not sui juris are involved, a competent and disinterested attorney shall be appointed by the court to file answer and represent their interests. This provision (as to sale of unproductive lands) being remedial shall apply to cases where any title in such lands shall have been acquired before, as well as after, its passage—1927: Provided that the provision shall not affect pending litigation.

The clerk of the superior court is authorized to make all orders for the sale or mortgage of property under this section, and for the reinvestment or securing and handling of the proceeds of such sales, but no sale under this section shall be held or mortgage given until the same has been approved by the resident judge of the district, or the judge holding the courts of the district at the time said order of sale is made.

The court may authorize the temporary reinvestment, pending final investment in real estate, of funds derived from such sale in coupon or registered bonds of the United States of America (commonly called liberty bonds) issued incident to the late war between the United States and the imperial German government or bonds of the state of North Carolina issued since the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two; but in the event of such reinvestment, the commissioners, trustees or other officers appointed by the court to hold such funds shall hold the bonds in their possession and shall pay to the life tenant and owner of the vested interest in the lands sold only the interest accruing on the bonds, and the principal of the bonds shall be held subject to final reinvestments, and to such expense only as is provided in this section. Temporary reinvestments, as aforesaid, in liberty bonds or state bonds heretofore made with the approval of the court of all or a part of the funds derived from such sales are ratified and declared valid.

The court shall, if the interest of the parties require it and would be materially enhanced by it, order such property mortgaged for such terms and on such conditions as to the court seems proper and to the best interest of the interested parties. The proceeds derived from the mortgage to be used for the purpose of adding improvements to the property or to remove existing liens on the property as the court may direct, but for no other purpose. In all cases of mortgages under this section the court shall authorize and direct the guardian representing the interests of minors and the guardian ad litem representing the interest of those persons unknown or not in being to join in the mortgage for the purpose of conveying the interest of such person or persons. In all cases of mortgages under this section the owner of the vested interest or his or her legal representative shall within six months from the date of the mortgage file with the court an itemized statement showing how the money derived from the said mortgage has been expended, and shall exhibit to the court receipts for said money. Said reports to be audited in the same manner as provided for the auditing of guardian's accounts. The owner of vested interest or his or her legal representative shall collect the rents and income from the property mortgaged and apply the proceeds first to taxes and discharge of interest on the mortgage and the annual curtailment as provided thereby, or if said persons uses or occupies said premises he or she shall pay the said taxes, interest and curtailments and said party shall enter into a bond to be approved by the court for the faithful performance of the duties hereby imposed, and such person shall annually file with the court a report and receipts showing that taxes, interest and the curtailment as provided by the mortgage have been paid.

The mortgagee shall not be held responsible for the application of the funds secured or derived from the mortgage. The word mortgage whenever used herein shall be construed to include deeds in trust. I. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS.

Editor's Note.—This section was amended by the Laws of 1925, ch. 281 by inserting, in the third line of the fourth paragraph after the word "coupon" and before the word "bonds" the words "or registered;" by striking out in the fourth paragraph "and evidenced by the coupons attached to;" by inserting in line seven after the words "Imperial German Government" and before the word "but", the words "or bonds of the state of North Carolina issued since the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two;" and by inserting in line twenty, of the said fourth paragraph, after the words "liberty bonds," and before the word "heretofore", the words "or State bonds."

The section was further amended by the Laws 1927, ch. 124, so as to permit a life tenant to bring an action for sale and reinvestment without joinder of remaindermen or reversioners. The rights of persons not sui juris are to be protected by a disinterested attorney appointed by the court. The amendment, being remedial in its nature, is made applicable to all cases where any title or interest in such lands was acquired before, as well as after, its enactment, with a proviso exempting pending litigation from its effect.

The only change effected by the 1933 amendment occurs in the second paragraph of the section. In the next to the last sentence of that paragraph, Public Laws of 1933, c. 123 inserted, following the word "property" and preceding the word "reinvestment", the words "for the purpose of obtaining funds for improving other non-productive," etc.

The amendment of 1935 inserted the provision at the end of the second sentence of the fifth paragraph relating to existing liens.

Constitutionality and Validity.—Revisal, sec. 1590, now this section, providing for the sale of contingent remainders, is constitutional and valid. Smith v. Miller, 151 N. C. 620, 66 S. E. 671.

This section does not interfere with the essential rights of ownership but operating in addition to those already possessed, is constitutional and valid. Pendlen v. Williams, 175 N. C. 248, 95 S. E. 500.

Retroactive Effect.—In Springs v. Scott, 132 N. C. 548, 44 S. E. 116, Mr. Justice Connor, speaking for the Court as to the validity of chapter 99, Laws 1903 (Rev., sec. 1509), now this section, in respect to its retrospective operation upon the will considered in that case and the estates that were created thereby, demonstrates by reason and authority that the act is valid, even when allowed to reach back and affect estates already created by will, so far though only as it is permitted to apply to interests not yet vested. Anderson v. Wilkins, 142 N. C. 154, 159, 55 S. E. 272.

The decision in Springs v. Scott was approved in Hodges v. Lipscomb, 133 N. C. 199, 45 S. E. 556, a case in which it appeared that the will was made prior to the passage of the Act of 1903. It was there held that the Act of 1903 operated retrospectively, so as to apply to contingent interest created by a will which had already taken effect by the death of the testator. Anderson v. Wilkins, 142 N. C. 154, 160, 55 S. E. 272.

Purpose of Section.—It was not the purpose of this section to destroy the interest of the remote contingent remaindermen, but to enable the present owners to sell the property and make a good title to the same, and to require that the proceeds be held as a fund, subject to the claims of persons who may ultimately be entitled thereto, and safeguard their rights in all respects. Poole v. Thompson, 183 N. C. 588, 112 S. E. 323.

It will be noted that the statute does not, either in its terms or purpose, profess or undertake to destroy the interest of the contingent remaindermen in the property, but only contemplates and provides for a change of investment and subject to the right to use a reasonable portion of the amount for the improvement of remainder, a case presented in Smith v. Miller, 151 N. C. 620, 66 S. E. 671, and approved, when properly safeguarded, it impresses upon the fund the same contingencies and limitations as were imposed upon the original property. Dawson v. Wood, 177 N. C. 158, 163, 98 S. E. 459.

To prevent any possible doubt of the existence of the power of the Court, upon the application of all the parties in interest, the trustee representing contingent remaindermen, to provide for its exercise and protect the interest of all parties in remainder, whether in esse or not, the Act of 1903, being section 1590, Rev., now this section was passed. McAfee v. Green, 143 N. C. 411, 417, 55 S. E. 828.

When Applicable.—This section and § 1745 apply only to a sale of property in which there are or have been contingent interests. Waddell v. United Cigar Stores, 195 N. C. 434, 142 S. E. 585.

A lease authorized by the decree of a court of chancery may be binding upon beneficiaries not in esse, when their interests are same as those of persons in being who are subjected by due process to the jurisdiction of the court. Waddell v. United Cigar Stores, 195 N. C. 434, 142 S. E. 585, containing illustration of lease of trust property held valid over the objection that it may extend beyond the term of the trust.

Status of Remainders.—"Contingent remainders are no longer considered mere possibilities which cannot be transferred, but a remainder-man whose estate is contingent may convey it." 2 N. C. Law Rev. 126; Beacon v. Amos, 161 N. C. 357, 77 S. E. 407.

II. ACTIONS IN SUPERIOR COURT FOR SALE.

General Requirements for Sale. — Lands devised for life with contingent limitations over may be sold for reinvestment under the provisions of Revisal, 1590, now this section, under the court's order, subject to its future approval of the sale, when it is made to appear that the best interest of all parties so require, those living and in present interest are represented in persons, and unborn children by guardian ad litem. McLean v. Caldwell, 178 N. C. 424, 100 S. E. 888.

Power of Court to Order Sale.—It is within the power of the court, having jurisdiction, to order the private sale of lands for the purpose of dividing the proceeds among tenants in common. Ryder v. Oates, 173 N. C. 569, 92 S. E. 508.

While the courts of this State do not have inherent power to decree a sale and pass title to the purchaser of lands, with remainder limited upon a contingency that would prevent the ascertainment of the ultimate takers, or any of them, till the death of the life tenant, this power is now conferred by the express terms of our statute in all cases where there was "a vested interest in real estate, with a contingent interest over to persons not in being, or when the contingency has not happened which shall determine whom the remaindermen are," under the procedure therein laid down. Dawson v. Wood, 177 N. C. 158, 98 S. E. 459.

The court has the power to order the sale of real estate limited to a tenant for life, with remainder to children or issue, upon failure thereof, over to persons all or some of whom are not in esse, when one of the class being first in remainder after the expiration of the life estate is in esse, and a party to the proceeding, to represent the class, and that upon decree passed, and sale and title made pursuant thereto, the purchaser acquires a perfect title as against all persons in esse or in posse. Springs v. Scott, 132 N. C. 548, 44 S. E. 116.

The court has the power to order the private sale of lands affected with contingent interests under the provisions of this section under a proper finding that it would be to the best interests of all concerned, without submitting this issue to the jury, and where the proceedings are properly had and all parties are before the court, the objection is untenable that the sale was made under the decision of the court, and the parties had not agreed thereto. DeLaney v. Clark, 196 N. C. 282, 145 S. E. 398.

Failure to Serve Summons on Infant—Setting Aside Sale. —Where in proceedings to sell lands affected with contingent interests the provisions of § 1744, have been observed, and the clerk has appointed a guardian ad litem for contingent interests and for infant parties, the failure to serve summons on a minor is to be regarded as an irregularity within § 451 that will not render the sale void and a nullity. However, on a proper showing the sale may be set aside as to all the parties except an innocent purchaser without notice of the irregularity; and on appeal to the Supreme Court, when this fact is not apparent, the case will be remanded for its ascertainment. Welch v. Welch, 194 N. C. 633, 140 S. E. 436.

Appeal from Proceedings Improperly Brought before Clerk. — Lands subject to contingent limitations may be sold by order of the judge of the superior court in term, on appeal in proceedings in partition improperly brought before the clerk, by retaining jurisdiction for the purpose of settling the controversy. Ryder v. Oates, 173 N. C. 569, 92 S. E. 508.

Where an action is wrongfully brought before the clerk of the superior court and is taken to the superior court by appeal, the superior court having original jurisdiction, it will be retained for hearing. Springs v. Scott, 132 N. C. 548, 44 S. E. 116.

When No Appeal Taken Parties Estopped. — Where an executor under a will with power to sell the lands of his testate and reinvest the proceeds, etc., has died, and all persons in present and contingent interest have been made parties to an action wherein the court has substituted another as trustee, upon like trusts in every respect, and the decree was not appealed from, all the privies and parties are estopped as to all issuable matters therein, and may not deny the power of the substituted trustee to make sale of the lands as fully as the executor under the will was therein authorized to make. Hayden v. Hayden, 178 N. C. 259, 100 S. E. 515.

Same—Payment of Betterments. — Where a preliminary judgment in proceedings to sell lands with contingent interests provides for the payment of betterments to the life tenant, and in this respect the judgment is not excepted to or appealed from, it is conclusive upon the parties as an estoppel. Pendleton v. Williams, 175 N. C. 248, 95 S. E. 500.

Who May Institute Suit. — Proceedings to have lands sold that are subject to a life estate, with limitation over, upon contingencies which will prevent the ascertainment of the remaindermen during the life of the first taker, etc., may be instituted by any person having a present vested interest in the lands. Dawson v. Wood, 177 N. C. 158, 98 S. E. 459.

Necessary Parties.—Where a devisee and her living children and grandchildren have brought proceedings to have the timber on the lands affected with contingent interest sold for reinvestment, pursuant to this section, valid objection that no one having a vested interest in the lands had been made a party cannot be sustained. Thompson v. Humphrey, 179 N. C. 44, 101 S. E. 738; Midyette v. Lycoming Timber, etc., Co., 185 N. C. 423, 117 S. E. 386.

In proceedings under the section certain contingent interest in land held in trust were sold and reinvested in other lands in accordance with the terms of the trust in the original deed conveying them. The title acquired, under the original deed in trust, by the trustee had become passive in him, and it is held that as, under the statute of uses, the legal and equitable title had merged in the same person neither the trustee nor his heirs were necessary parties to the owner's action against a purchaser to enforce his contract of purchase, and especially so when all vested and contingent interests were represented by some of the parties to the suit. Lee v. Oates, 171 N. C. 717, 718, 88 S. E. 889.

Same—Defendants.—Construing the statute as amended in the carefully considered case of Hodges v. Lipscomb, 133 N. C. 199, 45 S. E. 556, the court held that it was only necessary to make parties defendant those of the contingent remaindermen who, on the happening of the contingency, would presently have an estate in the property at the time of action commenced, and as to others more remotely interested they could have their interest represented and protected by a guardian ad litem as the statute provides. Dawson v. Wood, 177 N. C. 158, 163, 98 S. E. 459; Hodges v. Lipscomb, 133 N. C. 199, 45 S. E. 556.

Judgment under Former Law Does Not Work an Estoppel.—A former action determined before the enactment on the subject by the Legislature, holding that contingent remainders in lands, etc., cannot be sold unless all persons who may by any possibility be interested, united in such decree, cannot estop the parties to proceedings thereafter brought under the provisions of the section authorizing the judicial sale of property, or portions thereof, when there is a vested interest with remainder over to persons not in being, or when the contingency has not yet happened, etc. Pendleton v. Williams, 175 N. C. 248, 95 S. E. 500.

III. SALE AND REINVESTMENT.

A. General Rules and Incidents Governing.

Effect of Invalid Decree for Sale and Reinvestment.—In an action brought under the provisions of the section, to sell certain lands devised to E. for life and a contingent remainder to her children, it appeared that to further a scheme to erect a hotel on one of the city lots, the court had decreed the sale of certain other of the lands and had appointed a commissioner to act in furtherance of its object. The lands were sold and the proceeds applied to the building of the hotel, but only having funds sufficient to erect the skeleton work of the hotel, other of the lands were decreed by the court to be sold, and their proceeds to be likewise applied; these would not be sufficient for the purpose, and when erected the hotel would not be a desirable investment, especially in the unfurnished condition in which it then would be left. It was held, (1) the decree for the further sale and reinvestment was void, not meeting the statutory requirement that the interest involved should be properly safeguarded; (2) that the court was without authority to order an investment or reinvestment of funds not then available, but depending upon the outcome of future sales of the land, and of this, notice was implied to third persons; (3) that the purchasers at the sale of the land derived to a clear title thereto; (4) that the commissioner came under no personal liability to the contractor or material men of the hotel building; (5) that endorsers of a note made to procure money for building the hotel had no claim on the hotel lot; (6) that the commissioner sell the hotel lot and report to the court, and that the proceeds be held for the benefit of the devisees to the extent of the value of the lots and the costs of improvements thereon free from the claims of material men, etc. Smith v. Miller, 151 N. C. 620, 66 S. E. 671.

Effect of Omitting Bond.—In all cases where property affected with unascertainable contingent remainders is ordered sold under the provisions of this section, it is now required by the amendatory act of 1919, chapter 17 and 259, that a bond be given to assure the safety of the funds arising from the sale; but where this is omitted from a judgment otherwise regular, it will not affect the title conveyed, though the decree should be modified in that respect by proper steps taken in the superior court. Poole v. Thompson, 183 N. C. 588, 112 S. E. 323.

Public or Private Sale Permissible.—The sale of estates affected, with contingent interests, made under the provision of this section, may, in the sound discretion of the trial judge, and subject to the approval, be sold either at public auction or by private negotiation, as the best interests of the parties may require. Middleton v. Rigsbee, 179 N. C. 437, 102 S. E. 780; McAfee v. Green, 143 N. C. 411, 55 S. E. 828.

Where the sale of land affected with remote contingent interests not ascertainable at the time, comes within the provisions of this section, the court having jurisdiction may order the property disposed of either at a public or private sale, when it is shown that, as to the one or the other, the best interests of the parties will be promoted, subject always to the approval of the court. Poole v. Thompson, 183 N. C. 588, 112 S. E. 323.

Where the provisions of this section, have been observed in the sale of lands affected with contingent interests, the commissioner appointed to make the sale may effect the same by private negotiations, subject to the approval of the court, when it is properly made to appear that the best interests of the parties so require. Midyette v. Lycoming Timber, etc., Co., 185 N. C. 423, 117 S. E. 386.

Decree Must Provide for Reinvestment. — Where real estate is sold under order of the court, the decree must provide for investment of the fund in such way as the court may deem best for the protection of all persons who have or may have remote or contingent interests. Springs v. Scott, 132 N. C. 548, 44 S. E. 116.

Discretion of Court and Clerk in Reinvestment. — The preservation of the proceeds of the sale of lands, affected with contingent interests, under this section is referred to the sound discretion of the trial judge and in this case no error is found to the order requiring the funds to be paid into the office of the clerk of the superior court, to be loaned out by him or otherwise invested as required by law until the happening of the contingency, except that it should be so modified as to require that interest on these loans be allowed the owners of the particular estate, whether the estate, under correct interpretation of the deed, be one for life to be enlarged into a fee, or a fee simple, determinable on their death without issue, it appearing that they were given the usufruct of the land. Pendleton v. Williams, 175 N. C. 248, 249, 95 S. E. 500. It would seem that by amendment of 1923, the question of reinstatement rests within the discretion of the clerk.

Same—Time of Reinvestment. — In Laws of 1905, ch. 548, this reinvestment in realty was required to be within two years, but such requirement was removed by the later Acts of 1907, chs. 956 and 980, leaving the matter of reinvestment somewhat in the discretion of the court, but with clear intimation that the fund should be reinvested in realty when an advantageous opportunity should be offered. Dawson v. Wood, 177 N. C. 158, 163, 98 S. E. 459.

Applied to Charitable and Other Trusts.—Courts, in the exercise of general equitable jurisdiction, may, in proper instances, decree a sale of estate in remainder and affected by contingent interests, for reinvestment, or a portion thereof, when it is shown that it is necessary for the preservation of the estate and the protection of its owners; and this principle is not infrequently applied in the proper administration of charitable and other trusts, notwithstanding limitations in instruments creating them that apparently impose restrictions on the powers of the trustee in this respect, when it is properly established that the sale is required by the necessities of the case and the successful carrying out of the dominant purposes of the trust. Middleton v. Rigsbee, 179 N. C. 437, 441, 102 S. E. 780.

The sale of an estate in remainder affected under the terms of a will with certain ultimate and contingent interests in trust will not be affected by a clause in the will requiring that the principal of the trust fund shall not be used or diminished during the period of thirty years, with a certain exception, the limitation applying only to the administration of the trust estate, and not preventing the court from ordering a sale when required by the necessities of the estate for its preservation. Middleton v. Rigsbee, 179 N. C. 437, 441, 102 S. E. 780.

Applied to Sale of Growing Timber.—The timber growing upon lands devised to the testator's named daughter for her sole and separate use during her life only, and at her death to such of her children and grandchildren then living as she may have appointed in her will, and upon her failure to have done so, to her children and grandchildren then living, during the life of the daughter, is affected by the contingencies contemplated by this section. Midyette v. Lycoming Timber, etc., Co., 185 N. C. 423, 117 S. E. 386.

Same—Supplementary Decree. — Where an order has been made for the sale of timber growing upon lands affected with contingent interests, the court should also require its commissioner appointed for the sale to give bond for the preservation and proper application of the proceeds of sale, etc. (Laws 1919, ch. 259); but this provision does not affect the title of the purchaser, who is not required to see to the application of the funds, and the proper order in this respect may be supplied by amendment or supplementary decree. Midyette v. Lycoming Timber, etc., Co., 185 N. C. 423, 117 S. E. 386.

Purchaser's Liability Ends When Money Paid into Court.—A purchaser of devised lands affected with a life estate and contingent limitation over, sold for reinvestment under the provisions of Revisal, 1590, now this section, is not ordinarily charged with the duty of looking after the proper disposition of the purchase money, and upon paying it into court, under its order, he is quit of further obligation concerning it. McLean v. Caldwell, 178 N. C. 424, 100 S. E. 888.

Where the purchaser at a sale of lands for reinvestment pays his money into the court or to the person authorized by order of court to receive it, ordinarily he is not required to see to the proper application of the funds, its safety being taken care of by the court in its final decree. DeLaney v. Clark, 196 N. C. 282, 145 S. E. 398.

Same—Takes Fee Simple Title.—A purchaser at a sale of land with contingent interests allowed under the provisions of the section acquires a fee simple title, upon payment of purchase price to the court or person authorized to receive it, without being required to see to the application of the funds, and on such payment made is quit of all obligations concerning it. Pendleton v. Williams, 175 N. C. 248, 95 S. E. 550.

Sale for Reinvestment.—A tenant for life in lands may not by adversary proceedings against the remaindermen compel the sale of lands for partition of the proceeds under § 3235, but upon a proper showing the sale for reinvestment may be ordered in equitable proceedings under the provisions of this section. Smith v. Suitt, 199 N. C. 5, 153 S. E. 602.

Interests of Persons Non Sui Juris Protected by Attorney.—Where a suit brought to sell this property complies in every particular with the requirements of the Torrens System, and the title deed by the commissioner would cut off the rights of any other person in being or hereafter to come into being, as an attorney was appointed by the court to represent such possible or contingent interests. Ryder v. Oates, 173 N. C. 569, 572, 92 S. E. 508; Hayden v. Hayden, 178 N. C. 259, 264, 100 S. E. 515.

B. Powers of Clerk of Superior Court.

Authority of Clerk.—It was not contemplated by this section that the rights of parties should be entrusted to the clerks of the superior court in ordinary special proceedings without approval or confirmation by a judge of the superior court. The section prescribes the method in which there shall be a sale decreed when there is a contingent remainder and requires a decree for proper investment of the funds of remaindermen. Ray v. Poole, 187 N. C. 749, 751, 123 S. E. 5.

Sales of Contingent Interests of Persons Non Sui Juris.—The clerks of courts do not have jurisdiction to order the sale of contingent interests of persons not sui juris in lands, and suits to sell such interest, when the circumstances of the ward require it, should be determined in the Superior Court, in its equitable jurisdiction, which is required to order an investment of the funds in proper instances in accordance with the terms and conditions imposed by the conveyance, in order that the lawful intent of the donor may not be defeated. Smith v. Witter, 174 N. C. 616, 94 S. E. 402.

The order of sale by the clerk of the court of the contingent interest of a lunatic in lands approved by the judge, in proceedings brought for the purpose, is void for the lack of jurisdiction, and deed thereto of the guardian conveys nothing to his grantee. Smith v. Witter, 174 N. C. 616, 94 S. E. 402. It would seem that the amendment of 1923 extended the jurisdiction of the clerk to cover this situation. It will be noted that this case was decided in the Fall Term, 1917.

Proceedings Brought Under Section 3215.—A tenant for life may not, directly or indirectly, affect the title of those in remainder, whether having a vested or contingent interest in the lands, by joining them in their proceedings for a division or sale for that purpose, brought before the clerk of the court under the provisions of C. S., 3215, and these proceedings so brought cannot be validated by derivative jurisdiction in the superior court, on appeal, under the provisions of this section, it being required that the proceedings be originally brought in the later jurisdiction, with certain requirements for the protection of contingent remaindermen, which must be strictly followed; and, though under C. S., 3234, 3235, a sale is provided when the land is affected with contingent interest in remainder, not presently determinable, the proceedings are therein required to be brought upon petition of such remaindermen, and not upon that of the life tenants. Ray v. Poole, 187 N. C. 749, 123 S. E. 5.

C. Application.

General Illustrations.—Where lands are affected with a contingent interest in remainder, not determinable during the life of the tenant for life, the holder of the vested interest and those in immediate remainder may proceed to have the lands sold under the provisions of this section, and have those remotely interested represented by guardian ad litem for the protection of their interests; and where it is made to appear that the interest of all parties require, or will be materially enhanced by it, the court may order a sale of the property, or any part thereof, for reinvestment, either in purchasing or improving real estate, etc., or invested temporarily to be held under the same contingencies in like manner as the property ordered to be sold. Poole v. Thompson, 183 N. C. 588, 112 S. E. 323.

A testator devised his improved and unimproved lands, in the corporate limits of a town, to his daughter for life with remainder to her children living at her death, with ulterior limitations over to trustees on certain contingencies, and the life tenant brought proceedings for sale and reinvestment of the proceeds under the provisions of this section, having made parties of the persons interested in accordance with the statute, and alleged that by the sale the income would be largely increased, that the sale of the contemplated part to a purchaser she had secured for a certain price would meet the demands of the town for conformity with its certain health regulations as to the removal of surface privies, should enable her to make improvements on the land then without income, to make houses on other parts of the land more profitable for rental purpose, etc.; that the property as it stood was rapidly depreciating, and there were no available funds, otherwise, to meet the necessary and insistent demands. Held, a demurrer was bad, and properly overruled. Middleton v. Rigsbee, 179 N. C. 437, 102 S. E. 780.

Where the grantors in a deed have erroneously assumed that they had title to the lands they conveyed in fee, but which was affected by future contingent interest not at present ascertainable, and thereafter bring action to make title under the provisions of this section, which authorizes the sale of land affected by such contingencies, and in these proceedings have protected the interest of the remote remainderman by the appointment for them of a guardian ad litem, and have fully set forth the facts and circumstances of the former sale, and bring in the proceeds and submit them to the jurisdiction and orders of the court, the final judgment properly authorizing and confirming the sale, and being had in conformity with the provisions of the statute, perfects the title and same will inure to the benefit of the covenantee in the former deed, and for a breach of this covenant only nominal damages are recoverable. Myer v. Thompson, 183 N. C. 543, 112 S. E. 328.

This proceeding in which the order for the sale of the said lot has been made was not instituted and has not been conducted in accordance with this section. The power of sale has not been exercised by virtue of the statute. The proceeding was brought before the clerk, and not in term. The minors are not represented by guardian ad litem appointed by the judge, but by a next friend appointed by the clerk. The order of sale was signed, not during the term of the superior court in Haywood county, but by the judge holding the courts of the twentieth district (which includes Haywood county) at Sylva, in Jackson county, in said district. The order of sale cannot therefore be held valid, because made under the power conferred upon the superior court. Lide v. Wells, 190 N. C. 37, 128 S. E. 477, 480.

Where the complaint of a life tenant alleges that the land is unproductive and income therefrom is insufficient to pay the taxes and reasonable upkeep, and prays that the land be sold in accordance with this section, the demurrer of the vested remaindermen is improperly sustained, the complaint alleging at least one good cause of action. Stepp v. Stepp, 200 N. C. 237, 156 S. E. 804.

In a suit regarding the management of the trust estate where the trustee and the testator's wife and children are parties and the one living grandchild is made a party defendant and is represented by a guardian ad litem, who also represents as a class the other grandchildren not in esse, all parties having an interest in the estate are properly represented, and the judgment of the court is binding as to all interests. Spencer v. McCleneghan, 202 N. C. 662, 163 S. E. 753.

When Trustee May Not Sell.—Where the testator gives the discretionary power of sale to his trustees of certain of his lands, reserving therefrom a designated vacant lot, the lot so excepted cannot be sold by virtue of the provisions of the section, but the Court, in the exercise of its equitable jurisdiction, may order a sale, and the purchaser, upon complying with his bid, will get a good title. Lide v. Wells, 190 N. C. 37, 38, 128 S. E. 477.

§ 1745. Sales or mortgages of contingent remainders validated.—In all cases where property has been conveyed by deed, or devised by will, upon contingent remainder, executory devise, or other limitations, where a judgment of a superior court has been rendered authorizing the sale or mortgaging, including execution of deeds of trust, of such property discharged of such contingent remainder, executory devise, or other limitations in actions or special proceedings where all persons in being who would have taken such property if the contingency had then happened were parties, such judgment shall be valid and binding upon the parties thereto and upon other persons not then in being or whose estates had not then vested: Provided, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to impair or destroy any vested right or estate. (Rev., s. 1591; 1905, c. 93; 1923, c. 64; 1935, c. 36.

As to revocation of deeds of future interests made to persons not in esse, see sec. 996.

Editor's Note.—By the amendment of 1935 this section was made to apply to mortgages and deeds of trust. The amendment also added the clause just preceding the proviso reading "or whose estates had not then vested."

Constitutionality and Validity.—The section is a valid exercise of legislative power. Anderson v. Wilkins, 142 N. C. 154, 55 S. E. 272.

The section, rendering valid judgments authorizing the sale of lands wherein there are contingent remainders, is constitutional and valid. Bullock v. Planters Cotton-Seed Oil, 165 N. C. 63, 80 S. E. 972.

"So long as the interest remains contingent only, the Legislature may act, for a bare expectancy or any estate depending for its existence on the happening of an uncertain event is within its control, not being a vested right which is protected by constitutional guaranties." Anderson v. Wilkins, 142 N. C. 154, 158, 55 S. E. 272.

Partition Sale Not Authorized.—The section does not authorize or validate a partition sale at the instance of a life tenant against vested remaindermen, who are not infrequently children. Ray v. Poole, 187 N. C. 749, 751, 123 S. E. 5.

Application. — A testator devised certain lands to his wife during her widowhood or life, which, at her death, were to be equally divided between the children or "their heirs." The lands were sold in partition in 1904, during the lifetime of the widow, and the children were made parties. One of these children died in 1906, before the death of her mother (1909) and her children, the grandchildren of the testator, brought suit to recover their interests in the land devised, claiming they had a vested interest therein in 1904, and not being parties to the proceedings, were not estopped by the judgment in partition: It was held, that the plaintiffs had a contingent interest in the lands at the time of the sale, and were concluded from claiming the lands under the validating act of 1905 (Revisal, sec. 1591 now this section.) Bullock v. Planters Cotton-Seed Oil Co., 165 N. C. 63, 80 S. E. 972.

Same—Extended to 1923.—"C. 64 Laws 1923 re-enacts section 1745, validating sales of property under a judgment of the superior court, where the property has been conveyed by deed or devised by will, upon contingent remainder, executory devise, or other limitation, and the judgment has authorized a sale of the property discharged of the contingent remainder or other limitation. This section was enacted in 1905, validating such sales made before that date, and the present statute extends to such sales made since 1905 and up to March 6, 1923." 1 N. C. Law Rev. 285.

Cited in Hines v. Williams, 198 N. C. 420, 152 S. E. 39.

§ 1746. Freeholders in petition for special taxes defined.—In all cases where a petition by a specific number of freeholders is required as a condition precedent to ordering an election to provide for the assessment or levy of taxes upon realty, all residents of legal age owning realty for life or longer term, irrespective of sex, shall be deemed freeholders within the meaning of such requirement. (1915, c. 22.)

Former Law.—The word "freeholders," used in chapter 135, sec. 1, Public Laws of 1911, amending revisal, sec. 4115, section 5526 of this code as to who are required to sign the petition for the laying off special school districts and levying a tax therein, did not include females. Gill v. Board, 160 N. C. 176, 76 S. E. 203.

Women Now Included. — In ascertaining the necessary number of resident freeholders for a petition in a proposed new school district, women freeholders must be counted, under the provisions of this section. Chitty v. Parker, 172 N. C. 126, 90 S. E. 17.

EVIDENCE

Art. 1. Statutes

§ 1747. Printed statutes and certified copies evidence.—All statutes, or joint resolutions, passed by the general assembly may be read in evidence from the printed statute book; or a copy of any act of the general assembly certified by the secretary of state shall be received in evidence in every court. (Rev., ss. 1592, 1593; Code, ss. 1339, 1340; R. C., c. 44, ss. 4, 5; 1826, c. 7.)

Public Statute Admissible.—Where the public printer has published a certain act with other public acts of the general assembly, it is made, presumptively at least, a part of the public laws of the State and every person having occasion to do so has the right to read it in evidence in any court of the State as the law. Wrught Iron, etc., Co. v. Carver, 118 N. C. 328, 337, 24 S. E. 352.

Private Statute Not Admissible.—The statute incorporating the North Carolina Railroad Company is a private act; and it is error to permit it to be read and commented on to the court or jury until it has been properly introduced as evidence. Durham v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 108 N. C. 399, 400, 402, 12 S. E. 1040, 13 S. E. 1.

Same—Question of Law.—Whether the statute, or some enactment in it, is public or private, is a question of law, which the court must determine, in the absence of statutory enactment declaring and settling its nature. Durham v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 108 N. C. 399, 400, 12 S. E. 1040; 13 S. E. 1.

Journal of Legislature.—A copy of the journal of the Legislature deposited with the Secretary of State is not evidence for any purpose. Wilson v. Markley, 133 N. C. 616, 623, 45 S. E. 1023. The court said: "It is the journal, which we understand to be the original, which is to be filed in the office of the Secretary of State, and it is this original or an exemplification made therefrom by him which, when competent, is to be used in evidence." Id.

§ 1748. Martin's collection of private acts.—Any private act published by Francis X. Martin, in his collection of private acts, shall be received in evidence in every court. (Rev., s. 1593; Code, s. 1340; R. C., c. 44, s. 5; 1826, c. 7, s. 2.)

§ 1749. Laws of other states or foreign countries.—A printed copy of a statute, or other written law, of another state, or of a territory, or of a foreign country, or a printed copy of a proclamation, edict, decree or ordinance, by the executive thereof, contained in a book or publication purporting or proved to have been published by the authority thereof, or proved to be commonly admitted as evidence of the existing law, in the judicial tribunals thereof, shall be evidence of the statute, law, proclamation, edict, decree, or ordinance. The unwritten or common law of another state, or of a territory, or of a foreign country, may be proved as a fact by oral evidence. The books of the reports of cases, adjudged in the courts thereof, shall also be admitted as evidence of the unwritten or common law thereof. And either party may also exhibit a copy of the law of such state, territory, or foreign country, duly certified by the secretary of state of this state as having been copied from a printed volume of the laws of such state, territory or country, on file in the state or supreme court library, or in the offices of the governor or secretary of state. (Rev., s. 1594; Code, s. 1338; R. C., c. 44, s. 3; 1823, c. 1193, ss. 1, 3; C. C. P., s. 360.)

Cross References.—For full treatment of this subject, see 5 N. C. Enc. Dig. 419, et seq.; 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 78 et seq. See also the general treatment of the subject of judicial notice in Greenleaf on Evidence, at page 8. As to when court may determine whether partition statutes exist in another state, see sec. 3552.

Foreign Laws Must Be Proved.—The courts will not take judicial notice of the statutes and laws in the different states which may have changed the common law. Miller v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 154 N. C. 441, 70 S. E. 838.

Same—Question of Fact.—What is the statute law of another state is a question of fact to be proved like any other fact. Gooch v. Faucett, 122 N. C. 270, 29 S. E. 362. See also Miller v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 154 N. C. 441, 70 S. E. 838.

Same—Burden of Proof.—The proof of the laws of another state must be shown in evidence by the party relying on them, in the manner prescribed by the provisions of this section. Miller v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 154 N. C. 441, 70 S. E. 838.

Where a party to an action contends that the law of the forum in another state controls the disposition of the issues involved, he is required, under this section, to show statute or written law or controlling decisions thereon, or such facts as would make the laws of that state applicable. Kelly v. Springfield Tire Co. v. Lester, 192 N. C. 642, 135 S. E. 778.

Instructions to Jury.—Where the foreign law has been proved it is the duty of the court to instruct the jury as to the meaning of the law, its applicability to the case at hand, and its effect on the case, and it is error to refer the whole case to the jury without instructions. Hooper v. Moore, 50 N. C. 130.

Publication of Foreign Laws Admissible.—A book purporting to be the publication of the statute laws of another state, and to be published by the authority of such state, is admissible as evidence of such laws. Balk v. Harris, 122 N. C. 64, 30 S. E. 318; Copeland v. Collins, 122 N. C. 619, 621, 30 S. E. 315.

Same—Printed Copy Admissible.—By the terms of this section, a printed copy of the acts of the legislature of another state, is admissible in our courts to prove the statute law of such other state. State v. Behrman, 114 N. C. 797, 804, 19 S. E. 220. Under the law as it stood prior to the enactment of this section, a printed copy of the acts of the legislature of a foreign state was not admissible in evidence. Id.

United States Agricultural Regulations Judicially Noticed.—The regulations of the United States Agricultural Department, concerning the transportation of cattle, are not foreign laws within the meaning of this section, and the courts are required to take judicial notice of them. State v. Railroad, 141 N. C. 846, 54 S. E. 294.

Presumption as Regards Common Law.—In the absence of proof to the contrary, the common law will generally be presumed to be in force in a sister state, except in those states whose jurisprudence is not founded on the common law. Miller v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 154 N. C. 441, 70 S. E. 838. See also the luminous treatment of the subject generally in Chamberlayne on Evidence, vol. I, sec. 584 et seq.

Same—Question for Jury.—Where the common law of another state is proved, the court must leave the evidence of what that law is to the jury and cannot inform them what the law is. Moore v. Gwynn, 27 N. C. 187.

Witnesses.—Any person who claims to know the provisions of the common or unwritten laws of a foreign country may, under this section, testify to and explain them before courts and juries. State v. Behrman, 114 N. C. 797, 802, 19 S. E. 220.

An examination of the cases will show that an attempt to prevent the admission of the testimony of a party who professes to know the state of the unwritten law of a foreign state, has quite frequently been made by the litigating parties. The basis of this attempt, and the reasons given in support thereof, has been different in a large number of the decided cases. One of the grounds, frequently resorted to as a means for the exclusion of this evidence, is the fact that the particular witness has not been shown to be and perhaps could not be an expert. This point, however, has been of little avail to the party contesting the admissibility of the evidence, since the construction placed on this section has been that it is not the legislative intent that expert evidence be required in such a case. In reaching this conclusion much weight has been attached to the wording that the common law of another state may be proved as "a fact."—Ed. Note.

The law of another State may be proven in transitory actions brought in the courts of this State by witnesses learned in the law of such other State, and by its authorized statutes and reports of decisions of its courts of last resort, and when properly offered in evidence they must be interpreted by our courts as matters of law. Howard v. Howard, 200 N. C. 574, 158 S. E. 101.

A transcript of a statute, once duly certified by the Secretary of State in the manner prescribed by our law, is evidence at all times of its being in force according to its terms unless a repeal is shown. State v. Cheek, 35 N. C. 114, 116.

Same—Applicable to Criminal and Civil Cases.—The certificate of the Secretary of State, in relation to the statutes of another state, given in pursuance of this section is evidence in criminal and civil cases. State v. Patterson, 24 N. C. 346.

§ 1749(a). Judicial notice of laws of United States, other States and foreign countries. — When any question shall arise as to the law of the United States, or of any other state or territory of the United States, or of the District of Columbia, or of any foreign country, the court shall take notice of such law in the same manner as if the question arose under the law of this State. (1931, c. 30.)

As to judicial notice of private statutes, see § 541.

Editor's Note.—The act from which this section was codified provided that it should not apply in the trial of any cause of action which accrued prior to its ratification on February 16, 1931.

§ 1750. Town ordinances certified.—In the trial of appeals from mayors' courts, when the offense charged is the violation of a town ordinance, a copy of the ordinance alleged to have been violated, certified by the mayor, shall be prima facie evidence of the existence of such ordinance. (Rev., s. 1595; 1899, c. 277, s. 2.)

When Certification Unnecessary.—The certification of a town ordinance as required by this section, is only prima facie evidence of its existence, and this is unnecessary when the ordinance has been proven by the production of the official records of the town by the proper officer, which shows its passage. State v. Razook, 179 N. C. 708, 103 S. E. 67.

Evidence Insufficient to Rebut Prima Facie Case.—When the defendant, convicted of the violation of a city ordinance, on appeal introduces in evidence the minutes of the meeting of the governing authorities of the town held on the date when the purported ordinance was alleged to have been adopted, which does not show its passage on that date, it is not conclusive that the ordinance had not been passed at some other time, against the statutory certificate of the mayor that it was in existence at the time of the defendant's conviction. State v. Gill, 195 N. C. 425, 142 S. E. 328.

Art. 2. Grants, Deeds and Wills

§ 1751. Copies certified by secretary of state.—Copies of the plats and certificates of survey, or their accompanying warrants, and all abstracts of grants, which may be filed in the office of the secretary of state, certified by him as true copies, shall be as good evidence, in any court, as the original. (Rev., s. 1596; Code, s. 1341; R. C., c. 44, s. 6; 1822, c. 1154.)

In General.—This section does not make the copies better evidence than the registration of the original; and where there is a material discrepancy, it is for the jury to find as a fact which one is correct. Richards v. Ritter Lumber Co., 158 N. C. 54, 73 S. E. 485.

Certification by Clerk of Secretary of State.—See sec. 1754.

Abstract Competent to Show Title.—Abstracts of grants in the usual form, duly certified as correct copies by the Secretary of State and recorded in the office of the register of deeds, are competent to show title out of the State. Marshall v. Corbett, 137 N. C. 555, 50 S. E. 210.

§ 1752. Certified copies of grants and abstracts.—For the purpose of showing title from the state of North Carolina to the grantee or grantees therein named and for the lands therein described, duly certified copies of all grants and of all memoranda and abstracts of grants on record in the office of the secretary of state, given in abstract or in full, and with or without the signature of the governor and the great seal of the state appearing upon such record, shall be competent evidence in the courts of this state or of the United States or of any territory of the United States, and in the absence of the production of the original grant shall be conclusive evidence of a grant from the state to the grantee or grantees named and for the lands described therein. (1915, c. 249, s. 1.)

Section Constitutional.—This section is constitutional and valid. Howell v. Hurley, 170 N. C. 401, 87 S. E. 107.

Copy Conclusive as to Regularity of Original.—An abstract of a grant of the State's land by the Secretary of State imports the regularity of its issuance, and that the constitutional mandate of affixing the seal of the original had been legally complied with, though the abstract gives no indication thereof, the regularity of the official conduct in granting the original being presumed; and the abstract may be introduced as competent evidence on the trial of an action involving the title to the lands described in the grant, by one claiming under it. Howell v. Hurley, 110 N. C. 401, 87 S. E. 107.

§ 1753. Certified copies of grants and abstracts recorded.—Duly certified copies of such grants and of such memoranda and abstracts of grants may be recorded in the county where the lands therein described are situated, and the records thereof in such counties, or certified copies thereof, shall likewise be competent evidence for the purpose of showing title from the state of North Carolina to the grantee or grantees named and for the lands described therein. (1915, c. 249, s. 2.)

§ 1754. Copies of grants certified by clerk of secretary of state validated. — All copies of grants heretofore issued from the office of the secretary of state, duly certified under the great seal of the state, and to which the name of the secretary has been written or affixed by the clerk of the said secretary of state, are hereby ratified and approved and declared to be good and valid copies of the original grants and admissible in evidence in all courts of this state when duly registered in the counties in which the land lies; all such copies heretofore registered in said counties are hereby declared to be lawful and regular in all respects as if the same had been signed by the secretary of state in person and duly registered. (Rev., s. 1597; 1901, c. 613.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the enactment of this section it was consistently held that the clerk of the Secretary of State had no power to certify and affix the great seal of the state to copies of grants and other papers from the Secretary of State's office. Beam v. Jennings, 96 N. C. 82, 2 S. E. 245, but such acts on the part of the clerk are now validated by the provisions of this section.

§ 1755. Copies of grants in Burke.—Copies of grants issued by the state within the county of Burke prior to the destruction of the records of said county by General Stoneman in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, shall be admitted in evidence in all actions when the same are duly registered; and when the original grants are lost, destroyed or cannot be found after due search, it shall be presumed that the same were duly registered within the time prescribed by law, as provided upon the face of original grant. (Rev., s. 1610; 1901, c. 513.)

§ 1756. Copies of grants in Moore.—Copies of grants for land situated in Moore county and the counties of which Moore was a part, entered in a book, and the book being certified under the seal of the secretary of state, shall have the force and effect of the originals and be evidence in all courts. (Rev., s. 1613; 1903, c. 214.)

§ 1757. Copies of grants in Onslow.—The copies of grants made by the register of deeds of Onslow county under laws of 1907, chapter 434, of grants, abstracts of grants, and other documents pertaining to titles of land in Onslow county issued prior to the year one thousand eight hundred, and contained in a book called Book of Transcribed Grants Issued Prior to One Thousand Eight Hundred, duly authenticated as prescribed in said chapter 434 of the laws of one thousand nine hundred and seven, shall be received as evidence in all courts of the state, and certified copies therefrom shall be received as evidence. (1907, c. 434.)

§ 1758. Certain deeds dated before 1835 evidence of due execution.—In all actions hereafter instituted in which the title or ownership of any lands situated in North Carolina is at issue or in dispute, any deed or release, or a duly certified copy thereof, in which the people of the state of North Carolina are grantees and bearing date prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and thirty-five and purporting to have been filed and recorded in the office of the secretary of state of North Carolina prior to said year and now on file and of record in said office, and executed or purporting to have been executed by any person or persons as the representatives or agents or for on behalf of any society, tribe, nation or aggregation of persons, whether signed or executed individually or in their representative capacity, and any such deed or release having been authorized to be executed by an act of the general assembly of North Carolina by the properly authorized agents of such society, tribe, nation or aggregation of persons, shall be prima facie evidence that the person or persons signing or executing any such deed or release were the properly authorized agent or agents of such society, tribe, nation or aggregation of persons. Any recitals or statements of fact in any such deed or release shall be prima facie evidence of the truth thereof in any such actions. But this shall not apply to actions pending on March 3, 1915. (1915, c. 75.)

§ 1759. Certified copies of maps of Cherokee lands.—Certified copies by the secretary of state of the copies, or parts thereof, of the maps of the Cherokee lands and of the Cherokee Country, as provided for and described in chapter one hundred and seventy-five of the laws of one thousand nine hundred and eleven, shall have the same force and effect and be entitled to the same force and effect as evidence as certified copies of the whole or parts of the original maps. (1911, c. 175.)

§ 1760. Certified copies of certain surveys and maps obtained from the state of Tennessee.—A certified copy of the report of the survey made by the North Carolina commissioners, McDowell, Vance and Matthews, of that portion of the state of Tennessee extending from a point on the Virginia line to a point on the Smoky Mountain west of the Pigeon River, as obtained and filed by the secretary of state under the provisions of chapter one hundred and sixty-two of the laws of one thousand nine hundred and thirteen, shall, when certified under the hand and seal of the secretary of state, be competent evidence in the trial of any action in the courts of the state. (1913, s. 162.)

§ 1761. Evidence of title under H. E. McCulloch grants.—In all actions or suits, wherein it may be necessary for either party to prove title, by virtue of a grant or grants made by the king of Great Britain or Earl Granville to Henry McCulloch, or Henry Eustace McCulloch, it shall be sufficient for such party, in the usual manner, to give evidence of the grant or conveyance from the king of Great Britain or Earl Granville to the said Henry McCulloch, or Henry Eustace McCulloch, and the mesne conveyances thereafter, without giving any evidence of the deed or deeds of release, relinquishment or confirmation of Earl Granville to the said Henry McCulloch, or Henry Eustace McCulloch, or the power or powers of attorney by which the conveyances from the said Henry McCulloch, or Henry Eustace McCulloch, purport to have been made. (Rev., s. 1600; Code, s. 1336; R. C., c. 44, s. 1; 1819, c. 1021.)

§ 1762. Conveyances or certified copies evidence of title under McCulloch.—In all trials where the title of either plaintiff or defendant shall be derived from Henry Eustace McCulloch, or Henry McCulloch, out of their tracts number one and three, it shall not be required of such party to produce, in support of his title, either the original grant from the crown to the proprietors, or a registered copy thereof; but in all such cases the grant or deed executed by such reputed proprietors, or by his or their lawful attorney, or a certified copy thereof, shall be deemed and held sufficient proof of the title of such proprietors, in the same manner as though the original grants were produced in evidence. (Rev., s. 1601; Code, s. 1337; R. C., c. 44, s. 2; 1807, c. 724.)

§ 1763. Certified copies of registered instruments evidence.—A copy of the record of any deed, mortgage, power of attorney, or other instrument required or allowed to be registered, duly authenticated by the certificate and official seal of the register of deeds of the county where the original or duly certified copy has been registered, may be given in evidence in any of the courts of the state where the original of such copy would be admitted as evidence, although the party offering the same shall be entitled to the possession of the original, and shall not account for the nonproduction thereof, unless by a rule or order of the court, made upon affidavit suggesting some material variance from the original in such registry or other sufficient grounds, such party shall have been previously required to produce the original, in which case the same shall be produced or its absence duly accounted for according to the course and practice of the court. (Rev., s. 1598; Code, s. 1251; 1893, c. 119, s. 2; R. C., c. 37, s. 16; 1846, c. 68, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The provisions of this section permitting the reception of the copies herein mentioned as evidence, constitute a statutory exception to the rule of the best evidence. Under this rule it is well established that a party is required to introduce that kind of proof which affords the greatest certainty of the fact in question. In other words he will not be permitted to offer evidence of little weight when he is in possession of much better evidence. However this rule is not without its numerous exceptions, the foundation of which is that the primary object of all rules of evidence is to promote the administration of justice, and wherever general convenience requires it, the general rule will be bent or construed so as to meet the exigency.

The limitation placed on the exception contained in this section must be noted. The certified copies are admissible in evidence "unless by rule or order of the court, * * * such party shall have been previously required to produce the original * * *," in which case the general rule again becomes applicable and the original must be produced or its absence accounted for.

Certified Copy as Evidence.—The record of a registered deed is competent evidence without producing the original where no rule of court for the production of the original has been issued. Ratliff v. Ratliff, 131 N. C. 425, 42 S. E. 887.

Copy of Registered Bond.—The "registry" or copy of the record of a bond to make title to land made by a deceased person, under which a deed has been made by the administrator of said obligor, is within the spirit and meaning of this section, and is admissible without accounting for the absence of the original. Doe v. Shelton, 46 N. C. 370.

Same—Official Bond.—Inasmuch as the duly certified copy of the record of any instrument required to be registered is admissible as full and sufficient evidence of such instrument, and as the register of deeds is required to register and keep the bond of the superior court clerk, a duly certified copy of the record of such bond is competent evidence of its provisions. State v. Baird, 118 N. C. 854, 24 S. E. 668.

Lack of Seal No Effect.—A copy of a grant from the register's office, which affirmatively shows that it was issued under the great seal of the state, is admissible in evidence, though the registry does not show the impress of the seal, or scroll to indicate it. Aycock v. Raleigh, etc., Railroad, 89 N. C. 321. And while the seal may be necessary to authenticate the grant, it will be presumed to have been affixed as required by law. Id.

Signature of Clerk Essential.—The failure of the clerk to sign his name to the certificate for registration, a requirement found in the provisions of sec. 3305, renders the instrument inadmissible as evidence under this section. Woodlieff v. Woodlieff, 192 N. C. 634, 135 S. E. 612.

Production of Original to Correct Mistakes.—The original deed may be shown in evidence to correct an omission by the register of deeds of the signature of the justice of the peace before whom the deed was acknowledged. Brown v. Hutchinson, 155 N. C. 205, 71 S. E. 302.

Parol Evidence to Explain Variance.—Where the original deed was lost, and it was contended that there was a material variance between the certified copy and the original deed, parol evidence to prove the correct description contained in the original instrument was rejected, this section being construed as to have no application to such a case. Hooper v. Justice, 111 N. C. 418, 422, 16 S. E. 626.

Time and Manner of Objecting.—A party against whom the registry of a deed (or other instrument), or a copy thereof has been introduced in evidence, can not then raise the objection that there is a variance between such registry, or copy, and the original instrument; if he desired to avail himself of such objection he should have required the production of the original in the way provided by this section. Devereux v. McMahon, 108 N. C. 134, 12 S. E. 902.

§ 1764. Common survey of contiguous tracts evident.—Whenever any person owns several tracts of land which are contiguous or adjoining, but held under different deeds and different surveys, it may be lawful for any such person to have all such bodies of land included in one common survey by running around the lines of the outer tracts, and thereupon the possession of any part of said land covered by such common survey shall be deemed and held in law as a possession of the whole and every part thereof: Provided, that nothing in this section shall be construed to affect the rights or claims of persons which have already accrued to any part of said land. In all cases where such common surveys are made as directed by this section, the same may be recorded and registered as in cases of deeds, and shall be evidence in like manner. (Rev., s. 1505; Code, s. 1277; 1869-70, c. 34, ss. 1, 2.)

When Possession of Part Equivalent to Whole.—Under the provisions of this section, by recording and registering a survey of the outer lines of several contiguous tracts, so as to exhibit their outer boundaries, as if the whole territory had been covered by one tract, a possession at any one point on either of the separate tracts will become equivalent to a possession of "the whole and every part." McNamee v. Alexander, 109 N. C. 242, 244, 13 S. E. 777.

Sufficiency of Proof.—The surveyor's testimony that the map is correct is sufficient to make it competent. Greenleaf v. Bartlett, 146 N. C. 495, 60 S. E. 419.

§ 1765. Certified copies registered in another county and used in evidence.—A copy from the office of the register of deeds of any county of the record of any deed, mortgage, power of attorney or other instrument required or allowed to be registered, duly authenticated by the certificate and official seal of the register of deeds of such county, may, upon presentation to the register of deeds of any other county, be registered without further proof, and the record thereof, or a duly certified copy of the same, may be given in evidence in any court in the state where the original of such copy would be admitted as evidence, although the party offering the same shall be entitled to the possession of the original, and shall not account for the nonproduction thereof, unless by a rule or order of the court, made upon affidavit suggesting some material variance from the original in such registry or other sufficient grounds, such party shall have been previously required to produce the original, in which case the same shall be produced or its absence duly accounted for according to the course and practice of the court. (Rev., s. 1599; Code, s. 1253; 1893; c. 119, s. 3; R. C., c. 37, s. 16; 1846, c. 68.)

As to variance between original and copy, see note of Ratliff v. Ratliff, 131 N. C. 425, 42 S. E. 887, under section 1763.

§ 1766. Deeds and records thereof lost, presumed to be in due form.—Whenever it is shown in any judicial proceeding that a deed or conveyance of real estate has been lost or destroyed, and that the same had been registered, and that the register's book containing the copy has been destroyed by fire or other accident, so that the copy thereof cannot be had, it shall be presumed and held, unless the contents be shown to have been otherwise, that such deed or conveyance transferred an estate in fee simple, if the grantor was entitled to such an estate at the time of conveyance, and that it was made upon sufficient consideration. (Rev., s. 1602; Code, s. 1348; R. C., c. 44, s. 14; 1854, c. 17.)

As to proof of contents, see 5 N. C. Enc. Dig. 510 et seq.

Presumption of Regularity.—The registration of a deed is presumed to be correct. Cochran v. Linville Imp. Co., 127 N. C. 386, 394, 37 S. E. 496.

§ 1767. Local: recitals in tax deeds in Haywood and Henderson.—In all legal controversies touching lands in the counties of Haywood and Henderson, in which either party shall claim title under any sale for taxes alleged to have been due and laid, in and for the year one thousand seven hundred and ninety-six, or any preceding year, the recital contained in the deed or assurance, made by the sheriff or other officer conveying or assuring the same, of the taxes having been laid and assessed, and of the same having remained due and unpaid, shall be held and taken to be prima facie evidence of the truth of each and every of the matters so recited. (Rev., s. 1606; Code, s. 1346; R. C., c. 44, s. 11.)

§ 1768. Local: copies of records from Tyrrell.—Copies of records of the county of Tyrrell between the years one thousand seven hundred and thirty-five and one thousand seven hundred and ninety-nine, when copied in a book and certified to by the clerk of the superior court of Tyrrell county as to the records of his office and by the register of deeds as to the records of his office, and deposited in their respective offices in Washington county, shall be treated in all respects as original records and received as evidence in all courts of Washington county. (Rev., s. 1612; 1903, c. 199.)

§ 1769. Local: records of partition in Duplin.—The transcripts made by the clerk of the superior court of Duplin county, in accordance with chapter three hundred and ninety-five of the laws of one thousand nine hundred and seven, of the reports of committees relating to the partition of real estate on file in his office prior and up to the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-six, entered and indexed in a book entitled Reports of Committees, A, and the reports of committees beginning with and subsequent to the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-six, entered and indexed in a book entitled Reports of Committees, B, shall be as competent evidence as are the original reports of the committees. (1907, c. 395, ss. 3, 4.)

§ 1770. Local: records of wills in Duplin.—The transcripts made by the clerk of the superior court of Duplin county, in accordance with chapter three hundred and ninety-five of the laws of one thousand nine hundred and seven, of all wills and entries of probate and dates of registration appearing on the same, on file in his office prior and up to the January term of the county court of Duplin county, one thousand eight hundred and thirty, and entered in a book designated as Record of Wills, A, and duly indexed as provided by law, shall be as competent evidence in any court as are the originals of such wills. (1907, c. 395, ss. 1, 2.)

§ 1771. Local: records of deeds and wills in Anson.—The copies of the deeds and deed books and of the wills and will books made in Anson county under the act of March second, one thousand nine hundred and five, shall have the same force and effect as the original deeds and deed books copied and as the original wills and will books copied, and shall take the place of said original deeds and deed books and wills and will books as evidence in all court procedure; and wherever said deed books or will books are ordered or directed to be produced in court by subpœna or other order of court, the copies made under such act shall be produced, unless the court shall specially order the production of the original books, and the copies so produced in court shall have the same validity and effect and be used for the same purposes, with the same effect, as the original books. (Rev., s. 1615; 1905, c. 663, s. 3.)

§ 1772. Local: records of wills in Brunswick.—Under the provisions of chapter one hundred and six of the laws of one thousand nine hundred and eight, authorizing and directing that all unrecorded wills, dated prior to January first, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five, on file in the office of the clerk of the superior court of Brunswick county, and which have been duly proved in the form required by law, and bearing the adjudication certificate of the proper officer, shall be recorded in the book of wills in the said office and properly indexed; that all wills recorded in the minutes of the court of pleas and quarter sessions or other books of record in said office shall be transcribed and indexed in the book of wills in said office; and that all wills recorded in the office of the register of deeds of said county shall be properly indexed in the book kept for the purpose in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county; the record of any instrument or certified copy thereof, recorded under the provisions of this article, shall be admitted in evidence in the trial of any cause, subject to the same rules upon which other wills are admitted. (1908, s 106.)

§ 1773. Copies of wills.—Copies of wills, duly certified by the proper officer, may be given in evidence in any proceeding wherein the contents of the will may be competent evidence. (Rev., s. 1603; Code, s. 2175; R. C., c. 119, s. 21; 1784, c. 225, s. 6.)

As to probate of copy of lost will, see sec. 368.

Certified Copy as Evidence.—Under this section a certified copy of a will is competent evidence in any case wherein the contents of the will would be competent evidence. Hampton v. Hardin, 88 N. C. 592, 594.

Copy of Will Made in Another State.—See note of Knight v. Wall, 19 N. C. 125, under sec. 1777.

§ 1774. Copies of wills in secretary of state's office.—Copies of wills filed or recorded in the office of the secretary of state, attested by the secretary, may be given in evidence in any court, and shall be taken as sufficient proof of the devise of real estate, and are declared good and effectual to pass the estate therein devised: Provided, that no such will may be given in evidence in any court nor taken as sufficient proof of the devise unless a certificate of probate appear thereon. (Rev., s. 1607; Code, s. 2181; R. C., c. 44, s. 12; 1852, c. 172; 1856-7, c. 22.)

§ 1775. Copies of wills recorded in wrong county.—Whereas, by reason of the uncertainty of the boundary lines of many of the counties of the state, wills have been proved, recorded and registered in the wrong county, whereby titles are insecure; for remedy whereof: The registry or duly certified copy of the record of any will, duly recorded, may be given in evidence in any of the courts of this state. (Rev., s. 1608; Code, s. 2182; 1858-9, c. 18.)

§ 1776. Copy of will proved and lost before recorded.—When any will which has been proved and ordered to be recorded was destroyed during the war between the states, before it was recorded, a copy of such will, so entitled to be admitted to record, though not certified by any officer, shall, when the court shall be satisfied of the genuineness thereof, be ordered to be recorded, and shall be received in evidence whenever the original or duly certified exemplification would be; and such copies may be proved and admitted to record under the same rules, regulations and restrictions as are prescribed in the chapter entitled Burnt and Lost Records. (Rev., s. 1609; Code, s. 2183; 1866-7, c. 127.)

§ 1777. Certified copies of deeds and wills from other states.—In cases where inhabitants of other states or territories, by will or deed, devise or convey property situated in this state, and the original will or deed cannot be obtained for registration in the county where the land lies, or where the property shall be in dispute, a copy of said will or deed (after the same has been proved and registered or deposited, agreeable to the laws of the state where the person died or made the same) being properly certified, either according to the act of congress or by the proper officer of the said state or territory, shall be read as evidence. (Rev., s. 1619; Code, s. 1344; R. C., c. 44, s. 9; 1802, c. 623.)

In General.—Records of other states, to be used in evidence of this state, must have the attestation of the clerk of the court whose record is offered, and the seal of the court, if it have one. If there be no seal, this must appear in the certificate of the clerk, and the judge, chief justice, or presiding magistrate of such court must certify that the record is properly attested. Riley v. Carter, 158 N. C. 484, 487, 74 S. E. 463; Kinseley v. Rumborgh, 96 N. C. 193, 2 S. E. 174; Hunter v. Kelly, 92 N. C. 285.

Test for Admission under Section.—The copy, to be admissible in evidence, must be of such a will as would be admitted to record in North Carolina; hence where a will was executed in Tennessee and from the certificate of probate on the exemplified copy produced here, it appears that but one witness swore that he subscribed the will as witness in the presence of the testator and the other witness to the will did not appear to have been sworn at all, it was held that such a will should not be read in evidence. Blount v. Patton, 9 N. C. 237.

Properly Authenticated Copy Admissible.—A copy of a will made in another state, with its probate certified by the judge of the court in which it was proved, and accompanied by the testimonial of the governor of that state, that the person who gave that certificate was the proper officer to take such probate, and to certify the same, is a sufficient authentication of the will to authorize its reception as evidence in our courts. Knight v. Wall, 19 N. C. 125.

Incomplete Authentication.—Where a will, proved in another state, bore the certificate of the clerk of the court wherein the probate was had, to the oath of the attesting witnesses, but had no other authentication, it was held inadmissible in evidence. Hunter v. Kelly, 92 N. C. 285, 287.

§ 1778. Copies of lost records in Bladen.—The clerk of the superior court of Bladen county shall transcribe the judgment docket and index books and the will books in his office, and all other books in said office containing records made since the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight, and the records so transcribed shall have the same force and effect as the original records would have, and shall be received in evidence as the original records and be prima facie evidence of their correctness and of the sufficiency of their probate, though the probates are lost and are not transcribed. (Rev., s. 1611; 1895, c. 415; 1903, c. 65.)

Art. 3. Public Records

§ 1779. Copies of official writings.—Copies of all official bonds, writings, papers, or documents, recorded or filed as records in any court, or public office, or lodged in the office of the governor, treasurer, auditor, secretary of state, attorney general or adjutant general, shall be as competent evidence as the originals, when certified by the keeper of such records or writings under the seal of his office when there is such seal, or under his hand when there is no such seal, unless the court shall order the production of the original. Copies of the records of the board of county commissioners shall be evidence when certified by the clerk of the board under his hand and seal of the county. (Rev., s. 1616; Code, ss. 715, 1342; R. C., c. 44, s. 8; 1792, c. 368, s. 11; 1871-2, c. 91; 1868-9, c. 20, s. 21.)

Copy Defined.—A copy, within the meaning of this section is a transcript of the original—a writing exactly like another writing. State v. Champion, 116 N. C. 987, 989, 21 S. E. 700. See also Wiggins v. Rogers, 175 N. C. 67, 94 S. E. 685.

The Copy Certified. — The power of an officer, who is the keeper of certain public records, to certify copies is confined to a certification of their contents as they appear by the records themselves, and the records must, therefore, be so certified, for he has no authority to certify to the substance of them, nor that any particular fact, as a date, appears on them. Wiggins v. Rogers, 175 N. C. 67, 94 S. E. 685.

A "Copy" of the Instrument Required.—This section makes competent only the "copies" of official records, etc., and a mere certified statement from the register's office is only evidence of the correctness of the record, and can not be admitted in evidence in place of the original record. State v. Champion, 116 N. C. 987, 989, 21 S. E. 700. (Cited and approved in Wiggins v. Rogers, 175 N. C. 67, 94 S. E. 685.)

Original Record Admitted.—This section does not prevent the admission in evidence of the original record itself. State v. Voight, 90 N. C. 741, 745; State v. Abernathy, 94 N. C. 545. See also, Riley & Co. v. Carter, 165 N. C. 334, 81 S. E. 414; State v. Hunter, 94 N. C. 829.

Some hesitancy was at first shown by the court in reaching this conclusion, due to a contrary ruling in the earlier cases. However, it is now well settled that it would be little less than an absurdity to exclude the best possible evidence, when adduced, merely because an inferior evidence, by copy, is made admissible (by statute or otherwise).

On this point, it is said by Mr. Greenleaf: "As to the proof of records, this is done by the mere production of the records, without more, or by copy." Again in the same section, "Where a record is the gist of the issue, if it is not in the same court, it should be proved by an exemplification." Greenleaf on Evidence, sec. 501.

In reference to these clauses it is said in Gray v. Davis, 27 Conn. 447, cited and approved in State v. Voight, supra: "But he (the author) does not say, and it is obvious he does not mean, that the contents of a record can not in any court be proved by the original record itself, if it can be produced, but only to state the manner in which proof may be and usually is made."

There can be no doubt as to the soundness of this ruling, but it would seem that the conclusion would best be placed on the actual wording of this section instead of dealing in such broad inferences. The Legislature has specifically said that the copies, herein made admissible, "shall be as competent evidence as the originals." From the very phraseology of this section it does not seem plausible to say it was intended that the admission of the copies should serve to exclude the original record itself.—Ed. Note.

Original Record Lost.—A certified copy of a petition in a suit is admissible in evidence upon proof of the loss of the original records. Weeks v. McPhail, 128 N. C. 130, 132, 38 S. E. 472. See also 5 N. C. Enc. Dig. 511 et seq.

Where a superior court record is lost, a certified copy of the transcript of the same in the Supreme Court is sufficient evidence of the record. Aiken v. Lyon, 127 N. C. 171, 175, 37 S. E. 199.

Incriminating Evidence Contained in Document.—Where the document admitted under the provisions of this section contains incriminating evidence, the defense often interposed by the accused is that to admit such paper would be in violation of the constitutional right of the defendant on trial for crime to have opportunity to confront his accusers and the witnesses offered to sustain the charge. It is settled, however, that this section is not violative of this constitutional right, since these provisions constitute a well-recognized exception to the privilege given by the constitution. State v. Dowdy, 145 N.

C. 432, 436, 58 S. E. 1002; State v. Behrman, 114 N. C. 797, 804, 19 S. E. 220. In reference to this point Mr. Greenleaf says: "The constitutional clause purported merely to adopt the general principle of the hearsay rule, that there must be confrontation, but it did not purport to enumerate all the exceptions and limitations to that principle. There were then a number of well-established exceptions, and there might be others in the future. The Constitution indorsed the general principle, subject to these exceptions, merely naming and describing it sufficiently to indicate the principle intended." Greenleaf on Evidence, section 163.—Ed. Note.

§ 1780. Authenticated copies of public records.—All copies of bonds, contracts, or other papers relating to or connected with the settlement of any account or any part thereof between the United States and an individual, or extracts therefrom when complete on any one subject, or copies from the books or papers on file, or records of any public office of the state or the United States, shall be received in evidence and entitled to full faith and credit in any of the courts of this state when certified to by the chief officer in said office or department to be true copies and authenticated under the seal of said office or department. (Rev., s. 1617; 1891, c. 501.)

Cross References.—See section 1779 and notes thereto. As to records judicially noticed, see sec. 1749 and notes thereto.

The matters appearing in transcript of any paper on file or records of any public office of the State or United States, being relevant to an account which a referee was directed to take, are admissible in evidence by virtue of the provisions of this section. Wallace Bros. v. Douglas, 114 N. C. 450, 19 S. E. 668. See also, Hinton v. Lake Drummond Canal Co., 166 N. C. 484, 82 S. E. 844.

Authentication Essential. — Proper authentication is essential to the admission in evidence of the copies of the original records, and papers purporting to be exemplification from the treasury department of the United States, not authenticated, will not be admitted. Mott v. Ramsay, 92 N. C. 152.

Parol Evidence Inadmissible. — The contents of the original record may not be proved by parol evidence under this section, but must be shown by a certified copy. National Surety Co. v. Brock, 176 N. C. 507, 97 S. E. 417.

Admitted if duly certified and authenticated, see note of Riley v. Carter, 158 N. C. 484, 74 S. E. 463, under sec. 1777.

§ 1781. Authenticated copy of record of administration.—When letters testamentary or of administration on the goods and chattels of any person deceased, being an inhabitant in another state or territory, have been granted, or a return or inventory of the estate has been made, a copy of the record of administration or of the letters testamentary, and a copy of an inventory or return of the effects of the deceased, after the same has been granted or made, agreeable to the laws of the state where the same has been done, being properly certified, either according to the act of congress or by the proper officer of such state or territory, shall be allowed as evidence. (Rev. s. 1618; Code, s. 1343; R. C., c. 44, s. 7; 1834, c. 4; U. S. Rev. Stat., ss. 905, 906.)

§ 1781(a). Certificate of Commissioner of Revenue as to ownership of automobile. — In all civil actions, arising out of an injury to person or property by reason of the operation of a motor vehicle of any kind, evidence as to the display numbers on a particular car, a copy of the record kept by the Commissioner of Revenue of such display numbers and the person who obtained them, certified under the hand and seal of said Commissioner of Revenue, shall be competent evidence of the ownership of the motor vehicle inflicting the injury or doing the damage. (1931, c. 88, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—It is stated in 9 N. C. Law Rev. 373, that this section is probably declaratory of existing law.

Art. 4. Other Writings in Evidence

§ 1782. Proof by attesting witness not required.—It is not necessary to prove by the attesting witness instruments to the validity of which the attestation is not requisite, and such instruments may be proved by admission or otherwise as if there had been no attesting witness thereto: Provided, that this section shall not affect the method and manner of proving instruments for registration. (Rev., s. 1604; 1905, c. 204.)

Essentials of Registration.—See sec. 3293 et seq., and notes thereunder.

§ 1783. Parol evidence to identify land described.—In all actions for the possession of or title to any real estate parol testimony may be introduced to identify the land sued for, and fit it to the description contained in the paper writing offered as evidence of title or of the right of possession, and if from this evidence the jury is satisfied that the land in question is the identical land intended to be conveyed by the parties to such paper-writing, then such paper-writing shall be deemed and taken to be sufficient in law to pass such title to or interest in such paper-writing is in all other respects sufficient to pass such title or interest. (Rev., s. 1605; 1891, c. 465, s. 1.)

As to vagueness of description in deeds, see sec. 992 and notes thereto.

As to admissibility of parol evidence as to deeds generally, see 5 N. C. Enc. Dig. 702 et seq.; 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 138.

In General.—A deed which fails to describe any land is as void now as it was before the passage of this section. Moore v. Fowle, 139 N. C. 51, 53, 51 S. E. 796. But a description by name, where lands have a known name, is sufficient. Id.

This section applies only where there is a description which can be aided by parol, but not when there is no description. Harris v. Woodward, 130 N. C. 580, 41 S. E. 790; Hemphill v. Annis, 119 N. C. 514, 26 S. E. 152; Lowe v. Harris, 112 N. C. 473, 17 S. E. 539.

This rule has been sanctioned by the courts, not only upon the idea that there must be a certain subject matter, but because its observance is essential to a proper enforcement of the statute of frauds. Blow v. Vaughan, 105 N. C. 198, 10 S. E. 891.

Ambiguous or Indefinite Terms.—Where the written terms contained in the contract are sufficient to pass the property, but are ambiguous or indefinite, then parol evidence of the expressions of the parties and attendant facts and circumstances may be heard to aid in ascertaining the correct meaning of the terms used, but not to alter or add to what has been written. Ward v. Gay, 137 N. C. 399, 49 S. E. 884.

Not Retroactive in Operation.—There is a general presumption against the retroactive operation of a statute where it would impair vested rights, therefore this section cannot be held to operate retrospectively so as to allow parol testimony to locate land referred to and ambiguously described in a contract made before the passage of the section. Lowe v. Harris, 112 N. C. 473, 17 S. E. 539. Shepherd, C. J., concurs, but further holds that the word "description" used in this section imports such description as can be aided by parol proof. Id.

When Description Sufficient.—A description of land in a deed, all that tract of land in two certain counties, lying on "both sides of old road between" designated points, and bounded by lands of named owners, "and others," being parts of certain State grants, conveyed by the patentee or enterer to certain grantees, etc., is sufficient to admit of parol evidence in aid of the identification of the lands as those intended to be conveyed. Buckhorn Land, etc., Co. v. Yarbrough, 179 N. C. 335, 102 S. E. 630.

While parol evidence is competent to "fit the description to the thing," it is not competent to establish a line or corner when the instrument by its terms wholly fails to identify such line or corner; in other words, it is competent to find but not to make a corner. Holmes v. Sapphire Valley Co., 121 N. C. 410, 28 S. E. 545.

§ 1784. Proof of handwriting by comparison.—In all trials in this state, when it may otherwise be competent and relevant to compare handwritings, a comparison of a disputed writing with any writing proved to the satisfaction of the judge to be genuine, shall be permitted to be made by witnesses, and such writings and the evidence of witnesses respecting the same may be submitted to the court and jury as evidence of the genuineness or otherwise of the writing in dispute: Provided, this shall not apply to actions pending on March 5, 1913. (1913, c. 52.)

In General.—The principle, formerly recognized in this State, that confined the proof of handwriting to the testimony of a competent witness in comparing that sought to be established with handwriting either admitted or proven to be that of the party, has been changed by this section, and where the disputed writing has been rendered competent under this principle, it may now be submitted to the jury, together with that admitted or proven since 5th March, 1913. Newton v. Newton, 182 N. C. 54, 108 S. E. 336.

Rule under Prior Law.—Before the passage of this section it was incompetent for a handwriting expert to testify to the genuineness, or otherwise, of the signature of a party to a writing based upon a comparison with another signature, not admitted to be genuine or requiring proof that it is so. Boyd v. Leatherwood, 165 N. C. 614, 81 S. E. 1025.

Same—Reasons.—In the cases decided under the prior law three reasons are given for excluding as incompetent a comparison by an expert witness of a signature or writing, not admitted to be genuine or connected with the case on trial, with a signature or writing which has been offered in writing, where the genuineness of the latter is drawn in question: (1) There is danger of fraud in the selecting of writings offered as specimens for the occasion. (2) The genuineness of specimens offered may be contested, and thus numberless collateral issues may be raised to confuse the jury and divert their attention from the real issue. (3) The opposing party may be surprised by the introduction of specimens, not admitted to be genuine, and for want of notice may fail to produce and offer evidence within his reach, tending to show their spurious character. 1 Greenleaf on Ev., secs. 578 to 580; Fuller v. Fox, 101 N. C. 119, 7 S. E. 589; Outlaw v. Hurdle, 46 N. C. 150; Tuttle v. Rainey, 98 N. C. 513, 4 S. E. 475; Pope v. Askew, 23 N. C. 16. This rule was recognized in the more recent cases. Martin v. Knight, 147 N. C. 564, 61 S. E. 447; Nicholson v. Eureka Lumber Co., 156 N. C. 59; Boyd v. Leatherwood, 165 N. C. 614, 616, 81 S. E. 1025.

Expert and Non-Expert Distinguished.—A comparison of handwriting is in some states permitted to be made by the jury or experts, and in others only by experts in the presence of the jury. Where a witness has acquired a knowledge of the person's writing, he compares a disputed signature or writing with an examplar in his own mind. But when he testifies as an expert he must first be furnished, as the basis of his testimony, with some specimen the genuineness of which may be insisted on before the jury. Tunstall v. Cobb, 109 N. C. 316, 320, 14 S. E. 28.

A witness who has qualified himself as an expert may, in the presence of the jury, be allowed to compare a paper, whose genuineness is questioned, with another paper executed by the party who alleges the falsity of the first, and express an opinion thereon, provided the instrument so proposed to be made the basis of comparison is not denied, or the person by whom it is alleged to have been made is estopped to deny it; but where the paper offered as such basis requires proof to establish its authenticity, it is erroneous to admit it in evidence. Tunstall v. Cobb, 109 N. C. 316, 14 S. E. 28.

Not Essential to See Person Write.—When the contents of letters written by a party to an action are relevant to the inquiry, it is not required that the witness should have seen the person write before he is permitted to identify the letter by the handwriting, for it is sufficient if he can do so from correspondence formerly had between them. Universal Oil, etc., Co. v. Burney, 174 N. C. 382, 93 S. E. 912.

Comparison by Jury.—Where payment of a note sued on is pleaded and the genuineness of the signature of the payee to a receipt for the amount is in dispute, and an expert in handwriting has given his opinion upon comparing with a magnifying glass the disputed signature with the genuine one, it is not error for the trial judge to permit the jury, while deliberating upon their verdict, to make the comparison with the magnifying glass for themselves, when it does not appear that it could have been to the prejudice of the appellant. As to whether this is otherwise permitted under the provisions of this section, quære? Gooding v. Pope, 194 N. C. 403, 140 S. E. 21.

Analogy to Proof of Agency.—In Newton v. Newton, 182 N. C. 54, 55, 108 S. E. 336, the court said: "As we understand the statute, the admission of testimony as to the genuineness of a writing by comparison of handwriting is now on the same basis as the declarations of agents. The court determines whether there is prima facie evidence of agency or of the genuineness of the writing admitted as a basis of comparison, and then the testimony of the witnesses and 'the writing' (in the plural) themselves are submitted to the jury. It is fair to the presiding judge to say that this statute was not called to his attention. It was adverted to by Walker, J., in Fourth Nat. Bank v. McArthur, 168 N. C. 48, 55, 84 S. E. 39, though the disputed writing in that case did not come within the statute.

Handwriting Irrelevant—Exclusion Harmless Error.—In this case the handwriting sought to be introduced as evidence before the jury and to be considered by them was irrelevant, and the action of the court in refusing to let the writing be submitted to the jury, to determine its genuineness, under the statute, was a harmless error. Newton v. Newton, 182 N. C. 54, 108 S. E. 336.

§ 1785. Bills of lading in evidence.—In all actions by or against common carriers in which it shall be thought necessary to introduce in evidence any bills of lading issued by said common carrier or by a connecting carrier, it shall be competent to introduce in evidence any paper-writing purporting to be the original bill of lading, or a duplicate thereof, upon proof that such paper purporting to be such bill of lading or duplicate was received in due course of mail from consignor or agent of said carrier or connecting carrier, or delivered by said common carrier to the consignee or other person entitled to the possession of the property for which said paper purports to be the bill of lading: Provided, that such purported bill of lading shall not be declared to be the bill of lading unless the said purported bill of lading is first exhibited by the plaintiff or his agent or attorney to the defendant or its attorney, or its agent upon whom process may be served, ten days before the trial where the point of shipment is in the state, and twenty days when the point of shipment is without the state. Upon such proof and introduction of the bill of lading, the due execution thereof shall be prima facie established. (1915, c. 287.)

§ 1786. Book accounts under sixty dollars.—When any person shall bring an action upon a contract, or shall plead, or give notice of, a setoff or counterclaim for goods, wares and merchandise by him sold and delivered, or for work done and performed, he shall file his account with his complaint, or with his plea or notice of setoff or counterclaim, and if upon the trial of the issue, or executing a writ of inquiry of damages in such action, he shall declare upon his oath that the matter in dispute is a book account, and that he hath no means to prove the delivery of any of the articles which he then shall propose to prove by himself but by this book, in that case such book may be given in evidence, if he shall make out by his own oath that it doth contain a true account of all the dealings, or the last settlement of accounts between himself and the opposing party, and that all the articles therein contained, and by him so proved, were bona fide delivered, and that he hath given the opposing party all just credits; and such book and oath shall be received as evidence for the several articles so proved to be delivered within two years next before the commencement of the action, but not for any article of a longer standing, nor for any greater amount than sixty dollars. (Rev., s. 1622; Code, s. 591; R. C., c. 15, s. 1; 1756, c. 57, ss. 2, 6, 7; C. C. P., s. 343a.)

Terms Construed.—In an early case, the words "to make out on his oath" and "to prove," used in this section, are construed to be synonymous terms. Kitchen v. Tyson, 7 N. C. 314.

Other Sections.—Notwithstanding the restrictions contained in sec. 1795, in relation to a person's testifying as to any matter between himself and a deceased person, when his executor or administrator is a party, he may, as heretofore, be permitted to testify under this section. Leggett v. Glover, 71 N. C. 211. See also, Nall v. Kelly, 169 N. C. 717, 86 S. E. 627 and cases cited.

This section is applicable only to actions brought under the "boob-debt law," hence in an action on a contract for sawing timber, it is not necessary to set out the items in the pleadings. McPhail v. Johnson, 115 N. C. 298, 302, 20 S. E. 373.

Swearing as to Price of Goods.—It is competent for a party under this section to swear to the price, as well as to the delivery of the articles stated in his account. Colbert v. Piercy, 25 N. C. 77.

Same—Cross-Examination.—It is competent for the opposite party to cross-examine the party, taking his oath as required by this section, both as to the article and the prices charged, with a view to contradict or discredit him, as he might do in regard to any other witness swearing to the account, the party so swearing being considered as a witness in his own cause. Colbert v. Piercy, 25 N. C. 77.

Where Original Account Exceeds Sixty Dollars.—Under this section, a plaintiff may prove by his own oath a balance of sixty dollars, due to him, although his account produced appears to have been originally for more than sixty dollars, but is reduced by credits below that amount. McWilliams v. Cosby, 26 N. C. 110.

Same—Dismissal of Part for Jurisdictional Purposes.—Where divers dealings are included in an account, the aggregate of which exceeds sixty dollars, the plaintiff can omit, or give credit for any item he may choose, so as to bring the case within the jurisdiction of a single magistrate. Waldo & Co. v. Jolly, 49 N. C. 173, 174. But after thus obtaining jurisdiction the plaintiff can not prove the account under this section for he is required to swear that the account rendered contains a true account of all the dealings. Id.

Proof of Set-Off Allowed. — The defendant may, under this section, prove a set-off. Webber v. Webber, 79 N. C. 572, 573, 575.

Same—Book and Oath Not Exclusive Evidence.—The book and the oath under this section are not evidence that the book contains all the credits and a full and true account of all the dealings between the parties, so as to show that nothing is due to the other party. Alexander v. Smoot, 35 N. C. 461.

Books of Decedent Admissible.—Under this section it is admissible to the amount of sixty dollars to offer the book accounts of a decedent, containing charges against third persons, and made by him. Bland v. Warren, 65 N. C. 372.

Unverified Entries on Own Book.—A party to an action may not show unverified entries of credit in his behalf on his own books involved in a disputed account, the same not falling within the intent and meaning of this section and secs. 1787, 1788, especially when it has not been made to appear that the person having made them is dead or can not be had to give his sworn statement of the transaction. Branch v. Ayscue, 186 N. C. 219, 119 S. E. 201.

§ 1787. Book accounts proved by personal representative.—In all actions where executors and administrators are parties, such book account for all articles delivered within two years previous to the death of the deceased may be proved under the like circumstances, rules and conditions; and in such case, the executor or administrator may prove by himself that he found the account so stated on the books of the deceased; that there are no witnesses, to his knowledge, capable of proving the delivery of the articles which he shall propose to prove by said book, and that he believes the same to be just, and doth not know of any other or further credit to be given than what is therein mentioned: Provided, that if two years shall not have elapsed previous to the death of the deceased, the executor or administrator may prove the said book account, if the suits shall be commenced within three years from the delivery of the articles: Provided further, that whenever by the aforesaid proviso the time of proving a book account in manner aforesaid is enlarged as to the one party, to the same extent shall be enlarged the time as to the other party. (Rev., s. 1623; Code, s. 592; R. C., c. 15, s. 2; 1756, c. 57, s. 2; 1796, c. 465; C. C. P., s. 343b.)

See sec. 1786 and notes thereto.

An administrator may, under this section, offer in evidence the book accounts of a decedent, containing charges against third persons, and made by him. Bland v. Warren, 65 N. C. 372.

§ 1788. Copies of book accounts in evidence.—A copy from the book of accounts proved in manner above directed may be given in evidence in any such action or setoff as aforesaid, and shall be as available as if such book had been produced, unless the party opposing such proof shall give notice to the adverse party or his attorney, at the joining of the issue, or ten days before the trial, that he will require the book to be produced at the trial; and in that case no such copy shall be admitted as evidence. (Rev., s. 1624; Code, s. 593; R. C., c. 15, s. 3; 1756, c. 57, s. 3; C. C. P., s. 343c.)

Production of Original after Notice.—In all cases under this and the two preceding sections, it is the duty of the party, who wishes to prove his debt by his own oath, to produce the original account when notice to that effect has been given to him by the other party. Coxe v. Skeen, 25 N. C. 443, 445.

A voluntary destruction of the original will not authorize the introduction of a copy. Coxe v. Skeen, 25 N. C. 443, 445.

§ 1789. Itemized and verified accounts.—In any actions instituted in any court of this state upon an account for goods sold and delivered, for services rendered, or labor performed, or upon any oral contract for money loaned, a verified itemized statement of such account shall be received in evidence, and shall be deemed prima facie evidence of its correctness. (Rev., s. 1625; 1897, c. 480; 1917, c. 32.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment in 1917 (ratified February 12, 1917) this section was applicable only to accounts for goods sold and delivered. See La Salle Extension University v. Ogburn, 174 N. C. 427, 93 S. E. 986; Nall v. Kelly, 169 N. C. 717, 86 S. E. 627. Even before the amendment of this section, where the case was not instituted "upon an account for goods sold and delivered," which fact took the proceedings beyond the operative force of this section, the case was not necessarily dismissed on this account, when the additional evidence offered served to enable the jury to determine the amount of damages to which the plaintiff was entitled. See Gainesville, etc., Hospital Ass'n v. Hobbs, 153 N. C. 188, 195, 69 S. E. 79.

Purpose.—This section was designed to facilitate the collection of such accounts where there was no bona fide dispute, and to relieve the plaintiff in such instances of the expense and delay of formally taking depositions. Nall v. Kelly, 169 N. C. 717, 86 S. E. 627.

Verification Essential.—An itemized account to be prima facie evidence of its correctness must be properly verified and stated so as to show an indebtedness. Knight v. Taylor, 131 N. C. 84, 42 S. E. 537.

Competency of Witness Required.—Under the terms of this section, as now drawn, an affiant, verifying an account so as to make the same prima facie evidence, must be a competent witness to the facts, and when it appears on the face of the account that he has not personal knowledge of these facts, or it is established that he is otherwise an incompetent witness, the ex parte account so verified should not be received in evidence. Nall v. Kelly, 169 N. C. 717, 720, 86 S. E. 627. And it must appear that he is not excluded under the provision of sec. 1795. See Lloyd & Co. v. Poythress, 185 N. C. 180, 116 S. E. 584.

An itemized, verified statement of an account is an ex parte statement and this section, governing its admission, must be strictly complied with, and the person who verifies the account, being treated as a witness pro tanto must be competent to testify as a witness in respect to the account if called upon at the trial, but where an itemized statement of account offered at the trial is verified by the treasurer of the plaintiff corporation who declares in his affidavit that "he is familiar with the books and business" of the plaintiff, it cannot be held as a matter of law that the affiant had no personal knowledge of the transaction, and the exclusion of the statement by the trial court will be held for reversible error. Nall v. Kelly, 169 N. C. 717, 86 S. E. 627, cited and distinguished. Endicott-Johnson Corp. v. Schochet, 198 N. C. 769, 153 S. E. 403.

Subordinate to Section 1795.—In Lloyd & Co. v. Poythress, 185 N. C. 180, 184, 116 S. E. 584, the court said: "We have held that this section, appearing as a section on the law of evidence, should be construed in subordination to C. S., 1795, under the principal announced in Cecil v. High Point, 165 N. C. 431, 81 S. E. 616." See also, Nall v. Kelly, 169 N. C. 717, 86 S. E. 627.

Prima Facie Case.—In an action to recover for goods sold and delivered, where a verified statement of the account shows that it is for goods sold by the plaintiff to the defendant and sets out the number and kind of articles, the catalogue numbers, price per dozen and discounts allowed, and there are trade terms and abbreviations well understood in the trade, which show more fully the kind of articles, it is properly itemized to make out a prima facie case under this section. Claus v. Lee, 140 N. C. 552, 53 S. E. 433; Lipinsky v. Revell, 167 N. C. 508, 83 S. E. 820.

Same—Nonsuit.—Where a verified account or affidavit to a statement for goods sold and delivered is insufficient to establish a prima facie case, under the provision of this section, and this is the only evidence offered, a judgment of nonsuit upon the evidence is properly allowed. Nall v. Kelly, 169 N. C. 717, 86 S. E. 627.

Same—Burden of Proof.—Where a prima facie case has been made out by the plaintiff, in his action to recover the purchase price of goods sold and delivered to the defendant, and the latter contends that he, as the agent for the former, was to sell upon commission, and that he had accounted for such sales, except a small balance which he tendered, or offered to submit to judgment for that amount, the burden is upon the defendant to show the fact of agency, and of accounting thereon, which is for the determination of the jury upon the question of indebtedness. Carr v. Alexander, 169 N. C. 665, 86 S. E. 613.

Account of Mercantile Corporation.—This section applied in Wright Co. v. Green, 196 N. C. 197, 145 S. E. 16.

Art. 5. Life Tables

§ 1790. Mortuary tables as evidence.—Whenever it is necessary to establish the expectancy of continued life of any person from any period of such person's life, whether he be living at the time or not, the table hereto appended shall be received in all courts and by all persons having power to determine litigation, as evidence, with other evidence as to the health, constitution and habits of such person, of such expectancy represented by the figures in the columns headed by the words "Completed age" and "expectation" respectively:

Need Not Be Put in Evidence.—This section being a public act, the tables herein contained are competent as evidence without being specially put in evidence. Coley v. Statesville, 121 N. C. 301, 317, 28 S. E. 482.

Tables Not Conclusive.—In an action to recover damages for a personal injury, the expectation of life tables contained in this section are not conclusive but merely evidential on the issue as to damages. Odom v. Canfield Lumber Co., 173 N. C. 134, 91 S. E. 716; Sledge v. Lumber Co., 140 N. C. 459, 461, 53 S. E. 295; Young v. Wood, 196 N. C. 435, 146 S. E. 70. The tables must be considered in connection with the "other evidence as to the health, constitution and habits" of the deceased. Russell v. Windsor Steamboat Co., 126 N. C. 961, 967, 36 S. E. 191.

§ 1791. Present worth of annuities.—Whenever it is necessary to establish the present worth or cash value of an annuity to a person, payable annually during his life, such present worth or cash value may be ascertained by the use of the following table in connection with the mortuary tables established by law, the first column representing the number of years the annuity is to run and the second column representing the present cash value of an annuity of one dollar for such number of years, respectively:

The present cash value of the annuity for a fraction of a year may be ascertained as follows: multiply the difference between the cash value of the annuities for the preceding and succeeding full years by the fraction of the year in decimals and add the sum to the present cash value for the preceding full year. When a person is entitled to the use of a sum of money for life, or for a given time, the interest thereon for one year may, computed at four and one-half per cent, be considered as an annuity and the present cash value be ascertained as herein provided. (Rev., s. 1627, 1905, c. 347, 1927, c. 215.)

Editor's Note.—The words "computed at four and one-half per cent." after the word "year" and before the word "may" near the end of the section were placed herein by the Act of 1927, which provided that it "shall apply only to estate hereafter created." This act became effective March 9, 1927.

Applicable Only to Annuities.—This section is intended to apply strictly to annuities, and therefore, in an action to recover damages for injuries causing death, it is error to permit the jury to consider the provisions thereof for the purpose of ascertaining the present value of the intestate's life. Poe v. Railroad, 141 N. C. 525, 526, 54 S. E. 406.

Art. 6. Competency of Witnesses

§ 1792. Witness not excluded by interest or crime.—No person offered as a witness shall be excluded, by reason of incapacity from interest or crime, from giving evidence either in person or by deposition, according to the practice of the court, on the trial of any issue joined, or of any matter or question, or on any inquiry arising in any suit or proceeding, civil or criminal, in any court, or before any judge, justice, jury or other person having, by law, authority to hear, receive and examine evidence; and every person so offered shall be admitted to give evidence, notwithstanding such person may or shall have an interest in the matter in question, or in the event of the trial of the issue, or of the suit or other proceeding in which he is offered as a witness. This section shall not be construed to apply to attesting witnesses to wills. (Rev., ss. 1628, 1629; Code, ss. 589, 1350; C. C. P., c. 342, 1866, c. 43, ss. 1, 4; 1869-70, c. 177; 1871-2, c. 4.)

Cross References.—See secs. 1793, 1795, 1799, 1801, and notes thereto. For general treatment of application of rule herein contained, see specially sec. 1795 and notes. See "Witnesses," 12 N. C. Enc. Dig. 725 et seq., 15 N. C. Enc. Dig. 829 et seq.

Editor's Note.—This section abolishes the common law rule which prevented a party who was interested in the result of the verdict and judgment from appearing as a witness. A similar enactment will be found in the codes of practically all the states.

A great number of varying constructions have been given to this section, and the decisions of the cases falling hereunder are not altogether harmonious. However, it seems settled that its provisions must be considered in the light of those contained in sec. 1795 which place certain restrictions on the general rule embodied in this section. In other words, the provisions of sec. 1795 form exceptions to this section, and take them from the operation of its principle, leaving the parties falling within these exceptions to stand upon the same footing as they did prior to the enactment of this section. See Charlotte Oil, etc., Co. v. Rippy, 124 N. C. 643, 645, 32 S. E. 980.

The construction of this section should also be in connection with the provisions of secs. 1793, 1801, since they all relate to the same subject—the competency of witnesses. Powell v. Strickland, 163 N. C. 393, 397, 79 S. E. 872. This being true, a portion of the notes found under each section will necessarily have some bearing on and may prove helpful to the practitioner in construing one or more of the other sections. A few of the decided cases are placed under this section simply to show that the general rule contained in its provisions constitutes the foundation for the decisions under the following sections.

Legatee under Will as Witness.—Under this section removing the disqualification on account of interest, the widow of the testator, who was named as a legatee and devisee in a will, is a competent witness to prove the fact that the script propounded was found among the papers of the deceased. Cornelius v. Brawley, 109 N. C. 542, 548, 14 S. E. 78. Nor would the last provision of the section prevent the widow in this case from testifying, since this provision applies only to attesting witnesses to the execution of a will. Id.

Beneficiary under Holograph Will.—Under this and the following section, one who is a beneficiary under a holograph will may testify to such competent relevant and material facts as tend to establish it as a valid will without rendering void the benefits he is to receive thereunder. It is otherwise as to an attesting witness of a will that the statute requires to be attested by witness thereto. In re Will of Westfeldt, 188 N. C. 702, 125 S. E. 531.

Executor as Witness.—An executor, named in a will, is a competent witness to testify as to the existence, probate and registration of a will, he being rendered competent by this section and is not disqualified by sec. 1795, as to transactions occurring after the death of the testator, as they can in no sense be considered as transactions between the witness and the testator. Cox v. Beaufort County Lumber Co., 124 N. C. 78, 32 S. E. 381.

The widow of a deceased vendor, who was present at the sale of a mule by her husband to the plaintiff, is a competent witness under this section, and was not excluded under sec. 1795, as she was not a party to the action and had no interest in the same. Little v. Ratliff, 126 N. C. 262, 35 S. E. 469.

Mortgagee.—Where he is not excluded under the provisions of sec. 1795, the mortgagee in a chattel mortgage is competent, as a subscribing witness thereto, to prove its execution for admission to probate, inasmuch as this section removes the disqualification formerly attaching to witnesses having an interest. Clark v. Hodge, 116 N. C. 761, 21 S. E. 562.

Fornication and Adultery.—In a trial for fornication and adultery a former defendant as to whom a nolle prosequi has been entered is a competent witness against the other defendant. State v. Phipps, 76 N. C. 203.

Party Testifying in Own Behalf.—The provisions of this section make it permissible for a party to testify in his own behalf. Autry v. Floyd, 127 N. C. 186, 37 S. E. 208; State v. McIntosh, 64 N. C. 607.

§ 1793. Parties Competent as witnesses.—On the trial of any issue, or of any matter or question, or on any inquiry arising in any action, suit or other proceeding in court, or before any judge, justice, jury or other person having, by law, authority to hear and examine evidence, the parties themselves and the person in whose behalf any suit or other proceeding may be brought or defended, shall, except as otherwise provided, be competent and compellable to give evidence, either viva voce or by deposition, according to the practice of the court, in behalf of either or any of the parties to said action, suit or other proceeding. Nothing in this section shall be construed to apply to any action or other proceeding in any court instituted in consequence of adultery, or to any action for criminal conversation. (Rev., s. 1630; Code, s. 1351; 1866, c. 43, ss. 2, 3.)

See secs. 1792, 1795, 1801 and notes thereto.

In General.—This, and secs. 1792 and 1795 should be construed together, and thus construed, they do not prohibit the evidence of the husband as to the conduct of his wife, where she is not a party, in his action against another for damages for criminal conversation with his wife and the alienation of her affections. Powell v. Strickland, 163 N. C. 393, 79 S. E. 872.

At common law, neither the husband nor the wife is allowed to prove the fact of access or non-access; and as such rule is founded "upon decency, morality and public policy," it is not changed by this section, allowing parties to testify in their own behalf. Boykin v. Boykin, 70 N. C. 262; King v. Lourton, 31 Eng. C. L. 312.

Testifying against Co-Defendant.—A defendant in a criminal case is, under this section, competent and compellable to testify for or against a co-defendant, provided his testimony does not criminate himself. State v. Medley, 178 N. C. 710, 100 S. E. 591; State v. Smith, 86 N. C. 705.

Same—Practice Not Commendable.—The practice of sending co-defendants to the grand jury to testify against each other, while allowable, is not commended. State v. Frizell, 111 N. C. 722, 16 S. E. 409.

Instructions Not to Incriminate Himself.—In an indictment for an affray, it is not error for the presiding judge to caution the witness (a defendant) before the counsel for the other defendant cross-examines him, that he need not tell anything to incriminate himself. State v. Weaver, 93 N. C. 595, 600.

§ 1794. Parties competent as witnesses in certain cases.—No person who is or shall be a party to an action founded on a judgment rendered before the first day of August, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight, or on any bond executed prior to said date, or the assignor, endorser or any person who has at the time of the trial, or ever has had any interest in such judgment or bond, shall be a competent witness on the trial of such action; but this section shall not apply to the trial of any action commenced before the first day of August, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight, nor to the trial of any action in which the defendant therein relies upon the plea of payment in fact, or pleads a counterclaim and also introduces himself as a witness to establish the truth of such plea, but in all such cases the rules of evidence shall prevail as in other cases. (Rev.,

s. 1633; Code, s. 580; C. C. P., s. 333; 1879, c. 183; 1883, c. 310, ss. 1, 2.)

Editor's Note.—This section is probably of little practical value today, since its provisions were made to apply only to bonds executed prior to the date of August 1, 1868. Therefore references alone to the cases construing the sections are here given. See Morgan v. Bunting, 86 N. C. 67; Coggins v. Flythe, 113 N. C. 102, 103, 18 S. E. 96; Waddell v. Swann, 91 N. C. 105, 108; Brown v. Cooper, 89 N. C. 237; Cannon v. Morris, 81 N. C. 139; Ex parte Macay, 84 N. C. 64; Borden v. Gulley, 92 N. C. 127; Clanton v. Price, 90 N. C. 96; Grant v. Hughes, 96 N. C. 177, 2 S. E. 339.

§ 1795. A party to a transaction excluded, when the other party is dead.—Upon the trial of an action, or the hearing upon the merits of a special proceeding, a party or a person interested in the event, or a person from, through or under whom such a party or interested person derives his interest or title by assignment or otherwise, shall not be examined as a witness in his own behalf or interest, or in behalf of the party succeeding to his title or interest, against the executor, administrator or survivor of a deceased person, or the committee of a lunatic, or a person deriving his title or interest from, through or under a deceased person or lunatic, by assignment or otherwise, concerning a personal transaction or communication between the witness and the deceased person or lunatic; except where the executor, administrator, survivor, committee or person so deriving title or interest is examined in his own behalf, or the testimony of the lunatic or deceased person is given in evidence concerning the same transaction or communication. (Rev., s. 1631; Code, s. 590; C. C P., s. 343.)

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Editor's Note.—Mr. Justice Clark in Bunn v. Todd, 107 N. C. 266, 11 S. E. 1043, gives the following analytical treatment to this section, which has been cited and approved in many of the cases coming within the principles of this section, and has proved to be a helpful guide-post for the courts in deciding as to the admissibility of the particular evidence involved in the case. It is submitted that if the practitioner, in passing upon the exclusion or non-exclusion of the evidence in the cases bearing upon this section, will carefully compare the point at issue with the clauses of the following out-line, then much time will have been saved, in addition to having the assurance that he more than likely will be correct in his conclusion since, as has been said, the substantive part of this resume has been accepted by the great majority (if not all) of the courts. See Fidelity Bank v. Wysong, etc., Co., 177 N. C. 28, 98 S. E. 769; Seals v. Seals, 165 N. C. 409, 81 S. E. 613.

It disqualifies—

WHOM—1. Parties to the action.
2. Persons interested in the event of the action.
3. Persons through or under whom the persons in the first two classes derive their title or interest.

A witness, although belonging to one of these three classes, is incompetent only in the following cases:

WHEN—To testify in behalf of himself, or the person succeeding to his title or interest, against the representative or a deceased person, or committee of a lunatic, or any one deriving his title of interest through them.

And the disqualification of such person, and in even such cases, is restricted to the following:

SUBJECT-MATTER.—As to a personal transaction or communication between the witness and the person since diseased or a lunatic.

And even as to those persons and in those cases there are the following:

EXCEPTIONS.—When the representative of, or person claiming through or under, the deceased person or lunatic is examined in his own behalf, or the testimony of the deceased person or lunatic is given in evidence concerning the same transaction. Burnett v. Savage, 92 N. C. 10; Sumner v. Candler, 92 N. C. 634.

The editor has deemed it expedient to use this excellent outline as the basis of his analysis of the section, and, wherever possible, has adhered to the same, making no departures but only continuing the treatment by breaking the lines into further ramifications of the same subjects in order to show the component parts thereof.

Purpose of Section.—The mischief the statute was passed to prevent was the giving of testimony by a witness interested in the event, as to a personal transaction or communication between the witness and the deceased person whose lips are sealed in death. Abernathy v. Skidmore, 190 N. C. 66, 128 S. E. 475, 476.

The purpose of this section is to exclude evidence of a personal transaction or communication between the witness and a person who by reason of death or lunacy cannot be heard. White v. Mitchell, 196 N. C. 89, 92, 144 S. E. 526.

This section applies to actions in tort as well as actions on contract. Boyd v. Williams, 207 N. C. 30, 175 S. E. 832.

Reasons for Exclusion.—The exclusion of such testimony rests not merely upon the ground that the dead man can not have a fair showing, but upon the broader and more practical ground that the other party to the action has no chance by the oath of the relevant witness to reply to the oath of the party to the action. In re Will of Mann, 192 N. C. 248, 134 S. E. 649. For other cases substantiating this statement, see 12 N. C. Enc. Dig. 754.

Testimony Not Within Section.—Where a widow is entitled during her widowhood to the profits on the land devised by her deceased husband, but not to his moneys commingled therewith in a deposit in a bank, and has died devising the total amount of the deposit: Held, testimony as to her receipt of the money from the crops is competent, not falling within the provisions of this section, and does not affect the title to other money owned by her husband at his death and given to her for life by his will. White v. Mitchell, 196 N. C. 89, 144 S. E. 526.

Same—Conversations with Living Persons. — Where the widow under the terms of the will of her husband may only dispose of the moneys in the bank to her credit, and not such as may at her death have passed to the remainderman under his will, it may be shown by disinterested witnesses as to what part passed under the widow's will, as not objectionable evidence under this section based upon conversations with other living parties interested under the husband's will. White v. Mitchell, 196 N. C. 89, 144 S. E. 526.

General Rule Applicable in Other States.—The decisions in other jurisdictions are equally emphatic in the rejection of such evidence, the statutes being the same as this one, relating to personal transactions or communications. See Comstock v. Comstock, 76 Minn. 396, where it is said: "A party to an action, or interested in the result thereof, can not give evidence as to conversations with a deceased person, even though the witness took no part in the conversation." See also, Holland v. Holland, 98 Appellate Div. (N. Y.) 366; Matthews v. Hoagland, 48 N. J. Eq. 455.—Ed. Note.

Rehearsal of Conversation Admissible.—Direct evidence of a conversation and understanding with the plaintiff's testator is, under this section, incompetent, but a rehearsal of that conversation is a part of the res gestae, and admissible. Gilmer v. McNairy, 69 N. C. 335.

Itemized and Verified Accounts.—Section 1789 relating to itemized and verified accounts is subordinate to this section. See note of Lloyd & Co. v. Poythress, 185 N. C. 180, 184, 116 S. E. 584, placed under sec. 1789.

The provisions of this section may be waived by the adversary party. Andrews v. Smith, 198 N. C. 34, 150 S. E. 670.

Where an administrator brings proceedings under the provisions of §§ 900, et seq., to examine a defendant to discover assets of the estate of the deceased, the administrator waives the provisions of this section and the testimony thus taken may be introduced by the defendant in his own behalf. Andrews v. Smith, 198 N. C. 34, 150 S. E. 670.

II. THE SECTION DISQUALIFIES WHOM.

A. Parties to the Action.

Editor's Note.—The general rule is that a party is not competent to testify as to a transaction with persons since deceased; e converso, a person not a party nor interested in the event of the suit may testify as to such transaction or communication.

It will be noticed that this section excludes the testimony of "a party or person interested;" in regard to parties, however, interest is not a necessary prerequisite to the exclusion of the evidence and it was not the legislative purpose so to make it. It is immaterial whether a "party" is interested or not but a "person," of course because of the context of the section, must be interested.

The following cases under this analysis line will demonstrate when persons are considered or are not considered parties within the meaning of this section.

A "next friend" is not a party to the suit. Mason v. McCormick, 75 N. C. 263. But his liability for costs renders him incompetent to testify to the transactions or conversations here under consideration. Id. See also McLeary v. Norment, 84 N. C. 235.

Testimony of Guardian.—Testimony of a guardian, suing an executor to establish a gift made by a testatrix to the guardian's ward, as to what occurred between the testatrix and executor, was admissible as against the objection that the guardian could not testify as to any communication or transaction between himself and testatrix. Zollicoffer v. Zollicoffer, 168 N. C. 326, 84 S. E. 349.

Testimony of Tenant.—In an action for goods sold and delivered to the intestate, a tenant of the intestate who was furnished with goods from the plaintiff's store, and who settled with the intestate, is competent to testify in the plaintiff's behalf as to the intestate's delivery to him of the merchandise because the witness is not a party to the action. Sorrell v. McGhee, 178 N. C. 279, 100 S. E. 434.

Probate of Will.—In a proceeding for the probate of a will, both propounders and caveators are parties within the meaning and spirit of this section. In re Will of Brown, 194 N. C. 583, 595, 140 S. E. 192.

Under this section the beneficiary under a will may not testify to transactions and communications with the deceased, but he may in proceedings of devisavit vel non give his opinion, based on his own observations, as to the mental incapacity of the deceased at the time of the execution of the writing propounded, and then testify to personal transactions he has had with him as being a part of the basis of his opinion, when evidence of this character is properly so confined upon the trial by instructions or otherwise, the weight and credibility being for the jury to determine. In re Will of Brown, 194 N. C. 583, 140 S. E. 192.

A defendant executor can not testify concerning a land transaction between himself and the intestate, in a suit brought by creditors of the estate to subject the land alleged to have been fraudulently conveyed to the defendant by the intestate. Grier v. Cagle, 87 N. C. 377; State v. Morris, 69 N. C. 444.

A member of the board of county commissioners is not a competent witness as to transactions with the defendant's intestate in a suit by the board. Commissioners v. Lash, 89 N. C. 159.

A principal debtor, who was a party to an action to foreclose a mortgage given by his sureties as security for the loan, was an incompetent witness to a contract with a defendant. Benedict v. Jones, 129 N. C. 475, 40 S. E. 223.

Party Acting in Corporate Capacity.—One who is a party to a suit, though in his corporate capacity, is not competent to testify as to a transaction with a person deceased. Commissioners v. Lash, 89 N. C. 159, 164.

In an action to recover for services rendered deceased testimony by the plaintiff, that plaintiff boarded deceased is incompetent under the provisions of this section. Price v. Pyatt, 203 N. C. 799, 167 S. E. 69.

Time and Place of Signing Receipt.—The defendant in an action for money demanded is disqualified by this section, to testify as to the time and place of signing a receipt by the plaintiff's intestate, in support of his plea of satisfaction. Sumner v. Candler, 86 N. C. 71.

B. Persons Interested in the Event of the Action.

1. General Consideration.

Cross Reference.—For a comprehensive treatment of this subject with many illustrations, see 12 N. C. Enc. Dig. 757 et seq; 15 N. C. Enc. Dig. 834 et seq.

The Rule Stated.—To be incompetent under this section a witness must be either a party to the action or interested in the event thereof. Having discussed the question of "parties" under the preceding analysis line, it next becomes pertinent to examine the subject of "interest" of witnesses and other persons not parties.

To determine when such interest exists so as to render the person incompetent, the following rule should be applied: The true test of the competency of a witness is whether he bears such a relation to the controversy that the verdict and judgment in the case may be used against him as a party in another action if not he is not disqualified. Jones v. Emory, 115 N. C. 158, 20 S. E. 206; Henderson v. McLain, 146 N. C. 329, 59 S. E. 873.

Nature of Interest Involved.—This section does not disqualify every witness who, in the broadest sense of the term, is interested in the event of the action, but only such as have a direct and substantial or a direct legal or pecuniary interest in the result. Jones v. Emory, 115 N. C. 158, 163, 20 S. E. 206; Helsabeck v. Doub, 167 N. C. 205, 83 S. E. 241; In re Gorham, 177 N. C. 271, 98 S. E. 717.

It follows that a mere sentimental interest will not suffice. Sutton v. Walters, 118 N. C. 496, 24 S. E. 357. And it has been held that relationship of the parties alone does not constitute the direct, legal, pecuniary interest required. See Bennett v. Best, 142 N. C. 168, 55 S. E. 84; Sutton v. Walters, 118 N. C. 495, 24 S. E. 357; Porter v. White, 128 N. C. 42, 38 S. E. 24.

Present Interest.—In Isler v. Dewey, 67 N. C. 93, 96, the court intimates that the interest necessary to disqualify is a present interest; that is, one retained by the party at the time of examination. In reaching this conclusion it was said: "Any other construction would make a statute, professedly for the removal of the incompetency of witnesses, the means of introducing new incompetencies unknown to the common law and opposed to its principles."

In Bunn v. Todd, 107 N. C. 266, 268, 11 S. E. 1043, it is said: "Originally this section disqualified a fourth class of persons, i. e. those who have had an interest in the subject matter of the suit, but whose interest has since ceased. This disqualification did not exist at common law, and was struck out of this section of the Code of 1883, except in the cases in which such persons still came under the third class of disqualified persons above [see the Editor's Note and analysis line I of this note] stated.

Witness Must Be Party in Interest.—The testimony of a witness, in an action against the administrator of his deceased brother-in-law to recover certain sums obtained by the deceased on two vouchers made to a fictitious firm and embezzled by him, that he collected the vouchers for the deceased through his bank and sent the proceeds to the deceased, is not incompetent as falling within the provisions of this section, the witness not being a party in interest and having no direct, legal or pecuniary interest in the event of the action. Ft. Worth, etc., R. Co. v. Hegwood, 198 N. C. 309, 151 S. E. 641.

In an action against the administrator of a deceased person to recover for breach of the deceased's contract to devise, testimony of witnesses not interested in the event as to declarations made by the deceased against his interest was properly admitted. Hager v. Whitener, 204 N. C. 747, 169 S. E. 645.

Not Confined to Parties to Action.—The provisions of this section are not confined to the parties to the action, but extend to testimony of a witness interested in the result of the action. Honeycutt v. Burleson, 198 N. C. 37, 150 S. E. 634.

2. Applications.

No Interest in Recovery—Interest in Subject Matter.—In an action against an insane person for damages for breach of warranty in a deed, a witness who is not interested in the recovery is not disqualified by this section, though he may have an interest in the land. Lemly v. Ellis, 143 N. C. 200, 55 S. E. 629.

Where some of the witnesses in an action in ejectment are not interested in the event, their testimony does not fall within the intent and meaning of this section and the exclusion of their testimony tending to show the tenancy of a decedent under whom one defendant claims as adverse possessor, is reversible error entitling the plaintiff to a new trial. Pitman v. Hunt, 197 N. C. 574, 150 S. E. 13.

Interest of Wife in Compensation Due Husband.—In an action against an administrator to recover the value of services the plaintiff alleges he has rendered the deceased, the wife of the plaintiff has no interest in the event which would bar her testimony as to a transaction with the deceased, and it is competent for her to testify to the contract relied upon by her husband the plaintiff. Helsabeck v. Doub, 167 N. C. 205, 83 S. E. 241.

In Linebarger v. Linebarger, 143 N. C. 229, 55 S. E. 709, the court had held that on an issue of devisavit vel non it was not competent to prove by a witness whose husband was one of the caveators and heirs at law of the testator, declarations of said testator offered for the purpose of showing undue influence, as such witness had an interest in the real estate, dependent upon the result of the action. This and the foregoing case are distinguishable, however, upon the ground that in the Linebarger case the property in controversy was land, and the wife's inchoate dower attached immediately upon the recovery by her husband.—Ed. Note.

The interest which a married woman has in the real property of her husband before and during coverture comes within the intent and meaning of this section, and will exclude testimony by her of a communication or transaction between her husband and a deceased person as to a contract made between them whereby a mortgage on the lands of her husband executed prior to his marriage was to be canceled by the deceased. Honeycutt v. Burleson, 198 N. C. 37, 150 S. E. 634.

The mother, in her illegitimate child's action against the estate of the deceased father on a contract made by him for the child's support, is not a party interested in the event of the action whose evidence on the trial is excluded under the provisoins of this section. Conley v. Cabe, 198 N. C. 298, 299, 151 S. E. 645.

Husband as Interested Party in Deed Drawn by Wife.—The husband is an interested witness in the event of the action, though not a party, when a trust deed made by his deceased wife is being attacked for the want of his joining therein; and upon the question of abandonment, his evidence, to the effect that his wife said to him she would give him a horse if he would leave, was incompetent. Whitty v. Barham, 147 N. C. 479, 61 S. E. 372. The testimony of the daughter that she heard the conversation to that effect would be the "indirect testimony of an interested witness as to a transaction or communication with deceased," and also incompetent. Id.

Husband as Interested Party in Check Given Wife. — When a check made payable to one of the intestate's daughters and signed by the intestate was introduced in evidence to show an advancement, the daughter's husband was held competent under this section to testify over objection that the check was given his wife as a wedding present, he having no interest in the event of the action. Likewise another daughter was permitted to testify for her sister, the transaction testified to not being between the witness and deceased, but between the witness's sister and deceased father. Vannoy v. Green, 206 N. C. 80, 173 S. E. 275.

Interest of Depositor's Son in Action to Recover Moneys Deposited.—In an action by the administrator of a deceased person against a bank to recover moneys deposited by the intestate, resisted on the ground that the deceased had authorized the bank to pay the money upon his son's checks, the latter being present at the time, the son was interested in the event since he would be liable to the plaintiff if he was not authorized to draw the checks and possibly to the defendant, and his testimony was incompetent under this section, and the fact that a third person was present at the time of the transaction and testified at the trial does not affect this result. Donoho v. Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., 198 N. C. 765, 153 S. E. 451.

Sheriff as Witness.—A deputy collected a sum of money on account of taxes and deposited the same with G. with instructions to pay it over to the sheriff, which was not done, and the deputy was afterwards required to pay the sheriff the sum so collected; it was held, in an action to recover the amount, brought by the deputy against the administrator of G., that the sheriff had no interest in the event of the action, and was a competent witness under this section. Allen v. Gilkey, 86 N. C. 65.

Testimony as to Partnership Transaction by Nonmember of Firm. — Where the defendant's liability depends upon whether he was a member of the defendant partnership at the time the firm contracted a debt with the plaintiff, the subject of the action, who has since died and his administrator has been made a party to the action, a witness who was not a member of the firm is not such person interested in the result as would exclude his direct testimony, under the provisions of this section as to the payment to his own knowledge by the deceased of the partnership debts. Herring v. Ipock, 187 N. C. 459, 121 S. E. 758.

Stockholder's Interest in Recovery on Contract of Sale.—Where defendant's intestate made two separate contracts with the holders of stock in a corporation to purchase their respective holdings, in an action by one of the stockholders to recover on the contract of sale the other testified that he had no claim against the estate on his contract. It was held the witness was not interested in the event, and his testimony as to transaction between decedent and plaintiff as to the contract of sale of plaintiff's stock was competent under this section. Winborne v. McMahan, 206 N. C. 30, 31, 173 S. E. 278.

In caveat proceedings propounders and caveators are "parties interested in the event" within the meaning of this section. In re Brown, 203 N. C. 347, 166 S. E. 72.

The interest of one who temporarily held the title to the lands in dispute prior to the defendant is a sufficient interest in the event to disqualify his testimony as to a conversation or transaction with the plaintiff's deceased predecessor in title. Dill-Cramer-Truitt Corp. v. Downs, 201 N. C. 478, 160 S. E. 492.

In this case, testimony of an endorser of a note, as to conversations with the payee's agent, now dead, showing the consideration which induced the endorsement, is not excluded under this section the agent not being a party interested in the event within the meaning of the statute for, although the agent guaranteed all notes to the payee, if there was a failure of consideration the payee could hold neither of the guarantors and had the endorser been liable he could not have recovered from the agent. American Agr. Chemical Co. v. Griffin, 204 N. C. 559, 169 S. E. 152.

Effect of Insolvency of Deceased.—In an action involving the validity of a deed of trust, where the trustor is dead and his estate insolvent, the son of the trustor is a competent witness as to his declarations concerning the trust; the disqualification of the son under this section is removed by the insolvency of his father's estate, for there is nothing for the children in any event of the action. Gidney v. Logan, 79 N. C. 214.

Holder of Insurance Policy.—A policy holder in a mutual life insurance company is not disqualified as "interested in the event of the action" to testify for the company suing to cancel another policy. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Leaksville Woolen Mills, 172 N. C. 534, 90 S. E. 574. See also Gwaltney v. Provident Sav. Life Assur. Soc., 132 N. C. 925, 44 S. E. 659; Gwaltney v. Provident Sav. Life Assur. Soc., 134 N. C. 552, 47 S. E. 122.

Agreement to Bequeath Property in Consideration of Services.—Where the plaintiff, in her own right and as administratrix of her mother, seeks to recover upon an alleged contract made by her mother and another person now deceased, under which her mother performed services to such other person under his agreement that he would devise and bequeath to her all of his property, it is incompetent for the plaintiff to testify to communications or transactions between her mother and such other person tending to establish her demand, for she is a party interested, within the contemplation of the statute. Brown v. Adams, 174 N. C. 490, 93 S. E. 989.

Agreement as to Disputed Boundary.—Testimony of a party interested in the result of the action that the deceased predecessor of the common source of title of the parties had agreed as to the boundary of the lands in dispute preliminary to making the deeds, that the deceased had the lands surveyed and that the witness saw the deceased mark the boundary claimed by him as controlling the description given in the deeds later made, is that of a transaction or communication prohibited by this section. Poole v. Russell, 197 N. C. 246, 148 S. E. 242.

C. Persons Deriving Title or Interest Through Two Preceding Classes.

In General.—The words of this section "derives its interest or title by assignment or otherwise" mean—gets from a source—some person, through or under one or more persons, successively, directly or indirectly, immediately or mediately, "his interest or title," any valuable interest in part or share of something real or personal, of whatever nature, whether legal or equitable, acquired by assignment, or by any other means, or in any other manner. Carey v. Carey, 104 N. C. 171, 10 S. E. 156.

It should be noted, however, that interest must be present and not speculative. So it has been held that a husband is not disqualified by interest from testifying in his wife's behalf in her action to recover for services rendered a deceased person, the possibilities of his being benefited by her will or in case of her intestacy being too remote. McCurry v. Purgason, 170 N. C. 463, 87 S. E. 244.

When deceased has had no interest in lands, but was simply an assignee, evidence of his declarations is admissible as no claim of title is made under him. Condor v. Secrest, 149 N. C. 201, 62 S. E. 921.

Attorney.—The fact that an attorney has had an interest in the event of a suit on account of the fee taxed does not disqualify him under this section. Syme v. Broughton, 85 N. C. 367. Nor is an attorney of one of the parties precluded from testifying for his client concerning the agreement. Propst v. Fisher, 104 N. C. 214, 10 S. E. 295, cited in note in 49 L. R. A. 426.

Testimony of Grantee of Deceased Debtor.—In an action in the nature of a creditor's bill, evidence of the brother of the immediate grantee of the deceased debtor was held incompetent as in favor of their sister, claiming title under the witness, the validity of which title was affected by the testimony. Sutton v. Wells, 175 N. C. 1, 94 S. E. 688.

Suits by Plaintiff against Surety.—See post, this note, "When the Disqualification Exists," III.

III. WHEN THE DISQUALIFICATION EXISTS.

Editor's Note.—Continuing the treatment as based upon Mr. Justice Clark's resume of this section, it is proper at this place to consider the circumstances which render incompetent the testimony of the witness who comes within one or more of the three classes of persons who are disqualified by the provision of this section. It will be seen from the outline given under the analysis line "General Consideration," that the testimony of such witness is excluded in two cases, (1) when he testifies in behalf of himself, or the person succeeding to his title or interest, and (2) when the testimony is against the representative of a deceased person, or any one deriving his title or interest through him. The following cases will illustrate the principles upon which the exclusion of the testimony falling within one or both of these two subdivisions is founded. They appear in the order as stated in the outline.

Party Testifying against Interest.—Under this section a witness may testify against his own interest, even if thereby other parties to the suit are injuriously affected and the disqualification applies only when a witness testifies in his own behalf. In re Worth's Will, 129 N. C. 223, 39 S. E. 956.

In proceedings to caveat a will, an heir at law who would receive more as a beneficiary under the will if it is not set aside may testify to declarations made by the testator after its execution which are competent to show that it was obtained by fraud and undue influence; and such testimony, being against the interests of the witness, is not prohibited by this section. In re will of Fowler, 159 N. C. 203, 74 S. E. 117; In re Worth's Will, 129 N. C. 223, 39 S. E. 956.

In an action to declare a deed void on the ground that it was never delivered to the grantee since deceased, testimony offered by the grantor tending to show that the deed had not been delivered is not incompetent under this section. Gulley v. Smith, 203 N. C. 274, 165 S. E. 710.

Contradicting Former Witness.—A defendant having an interest in the event of an action is not permitted under this section to testify in his own behalf, for the purpose of contradicting a former witness whose testimony tended to show that the defendant fraudulently procured an assignment from a person deceased. Bushee v. Surles, 77 N. C. 62.

Testifying in Favor of Representative.—Where a witness was not asked to testify against the representative or assignee of a dead person as to any transaction or communication between himself and the person deceased, but in favor of such a representative, the testimony being offered by the party to the suit who represented the dead person, it was held that such testimony does not fall within the inhibition of this section of the Code, which is intended to protect the deceased person's representative or assignee, who is suing or being sued. Bonner v. Stotesbury, 139 N. C. 3, 51 S. E. 781.

Representative Not a Party.—It is competent for a plaintiff, as a witness for himself, to testify where the representative of the deceased was not a party to the suit. Thomas v. Kelly, 74 N. C. 174.

Trustor as Witness.—Where a deed of trust was attacked for fraud, the trustee having died, and the property having been conveyed by a substituted trustee to the defendants, the trustor is not excluded by this section from being a witness for the plaintiff, who also claimed title through him. Isler v. Dewey, 67 N. C. 93.

Suits against Sureties.—Where the plaintiff sues the surety, and proposes to testify as to transactions between himself and the deceased principal of the surety, an interesting question arises which has been answered by the courts of North Carolina in a masterful manner. Is this testimony to be excluded and if so upon what grounds? In order to render the witness incompetent, the testimony must be against "the executor, administrator or survivor of a deceased person or a person deriving his title or interest from" such deceased person. From a cursory view of this problem it would seem that the testimony is not against the principal or his executor, administrator, etc., but when the rule of law, which gives the surety an action over against the representative of the principal, is recalled this view must be abandoned. It would seem that where the testimony affects the estate either directly or indirectly (i. e. giving rise to a right of subrogation against it) such testimony must be excluded.

In McGowan v. Davenport, 134 N. C. 526, 47 S. E. 27, Mr. Justice Walker in an illuminating opinion discussing this subject, says: "The rule to be deduced from these authorities is that the surety, who comes not within the letter but within the intendment of the law, stands in the same position and is entitled to the same protection under section 590 (this section) of the Code as the representative of his deceased principal when sued."

Conversation before Death of One of Contracting Parties Admissible.—A witness is not incompetent, under this section, to testify to a conversation had with two persons, one of whom is dead at the time of the trial, in reference to a contract made between them and the witness. Peacock v. Stott, 90 N. C. 518.

Partnership.—The death of one of the partners in a firm will not incapacitate the witness from proving a transaction with the firm while the other partner, who was present at the interview, is living. Peacock v. Stott, 90 N. C. 518.

Where the conversation is not strictly with the intestate, but is one held with him and two others who were associated with him in the transaction, then the provisions of this section do not incapacitate the party from testifying. Johnson v. Towsend, 117 N. C. 338, 340, 23 S. E. 271.

Testimony of Third Parties Present.—This section makes no exception where other parties are present but leaves these witnesses to be called by either, and their testimony to come before the jury and be considered by itself, its credit is unaffected by the testimony of the interested party. Isenhour v. Isenhour, 64 N. C. 640; McRae v. Molley, 90 N. C. 521, 524.

The administrator of a deceased guardian is a competent witness to prove the execution to said guardian by a debtor of a bond for the payment of money, such testimony not being against the representatives of a deceased person. Thompson v. Humphrey, 83 N. C. 416.

IV. SUBJECT MATTER OF THE TRANSACTION.

Cross Reference. — For full treatment, see 12 N. C. Enc. Dig. 769, et seq.; 15 N. C. Enc. Dig. 835 et seq.

Not Applicable unless Transaction Is Personal. — Under this section the parties in interest are disqualified from testifying only as to personal transactions with the deceased. For instance, such party could testify that a paper writing was in the handwriting of the deceased, as will be seen from the catchline "Proof of Handwriting" following in this note, or as to any independent fact which was neither a transaction nor communication with the testator. McCall v. Wilson, 101 N. C. 598, 600, 8 S. E. 225; Cox v. Beaufort County Lumber Co., 124 N. C. 78, 32 S. E. 381; Davidson v. Bardin, 139 N. C. 1, 51 S. E. 779.

Test as to When Transaction Is "Personal."—A fair test in undertaking to ascertain what is a "personal transaction of communication" with the deceased is to inquire whether, in case the witness testifies falsely, the deceased, if living, could contradict it of his own knowledge. Sherrill v. Wilhelm, 182 N. C. 673, 675, 110 S. E. 95.

Driving of Car Is "Transaction" within Meaning of Statute.—Where the only evidence of negligence in an action by the wife of the driver to recover for injuries sustained in an automobile accident was her testimony that he was traveling at an excessive speed upon a curve, and that the accident occurred when the car failed to make the curve, and that she had spoken to him in regard to the speed he was driving the car, the driving of the car was a transaction within the meaning of the term as used in this section and her testimony of his manner of driving and her statement to him regarding the speed was incompetent under this section, her testimony of the transaction and communication being an essential or material link in the chain establishing liability of the estate to her. Boyd v. Williams, 207 N. C. 30, 175 S. E. 832.

Transaction Must Be Exclusive Source of Knowledge.—In order to exclude the testimony under this provision, it must be made to appear that the only source of the witnesses' information is a "personal transaction between her and the deceased." Thompson v. Onley, 96 N. C. 9, 1 S. E. 620. And it is proper to show whether the witness had knowledge of the fact testified to, from sources extraneous to his personal communications or relations with the deceased. Charlotte Oil, etc., Co. v. Rippy, 123 N. C. 626, 31 S. E. 879.

Facts Occurring Out of Presence of Deceased.—A witness offered to prove a fact which occurred out of the presence of, and in no sense a transaction with, a deceased person is not incompetent under this section. It is only when the transaction is between the deceased and the living party that the statute prohibits the latter from testifying. Lockhart v. Bell, 86 N. C. 443.

Substantive Facts.—In an action in the nature of a creditor's bill, testimony of the deceased debtor's grantee that the deceased grantor occupied the building part of the time after she got her deed to the land in litigation, it was held admissible as being to a substantive fact of which she had knowledge independently of any statement by the deceased. Sutton v. Wells, 175 N. C. 1, 94 S. E. 688.

The rule may be deduced, therefore, that a party in interest may testify to any substantive fact which is independent of any transaction or communication with the deceased or is based upon independent knowledge not derived from such source. Sutton v. Wells, 175 N. C. 1, 94 S. E. 688. See also In re Will of Saunders, 177 N. C. 156, 98 S. E. 378; Price Real Estate, etc., 191 N. C. 176, 131 S. E. 587.

Conversation of Deceased with Living Defendant.—This section does not apply to the testimony of an interested witness as to a conversation between her deceased father and a living defendant. This is not testimony "concerning a personal transaction." Abernathy v. Skidmore, 190 N. C. 66, 128 S. E. 475.

Testimony Given in Former Trial.—It is competent for the plaintiff's witness to testify what the deceased maker of the note sued upon testified on a former trial as to its payment, such being not a personal transaction within the meaning of the provisions of this section. Worth v. Wrenn, 144 N. C. 656, 657, 57 S. E. 388; Costen v. McDowell, 107 N. C. 546, 12 S. E. 432.

Proof of Handwriting.—A party interested in the event of a suit is not an incompetent witness, under this section, to prove the handwriting of the deceased person. Rush v. Steed, 91 N. C. 226; Hussey v. Kirkman, 95 N. C. 63, 65; Armfield v. Colvert, 103 N. C. 147, 9 S. E. 461; Sawyer v. Grady, 113 N. C. 42, 18 S. E. 79.

These decisions are based on the distinction which is drawn between proving the handwriting and proving the actual signing of the paper, the latter being held to be a transaction within the meaning of this section while the former is not. A similar distinction was drawn in the case of State v. Maxwell, 64 N. C. 313, the case having been decided prior to the insertion of the word "personal" before the word "transaction." In the Rush Case the court regards this amendment as the legislative recognition of the soundness of this distinction and says that it (the amendment) was "probably induced by the decision in State v. Maxwell."—Ed. Note.

Will Cases.—In Cox v. Beaufort County Lumber Co., 124 N. C. 78, 82, 32 S. E. 381, it is held that this section does not apply to wills, but that they are governed by sections 4137 and 4138; this was placed on the ground that this section applies where there is necessarily a contract or agreement between the parties, and in the case of a will there is ordinarily no transaction between the parties.

By the same reasoning it is held that attesting a will is not a "personal transaction," the witness being of the law and not of the party. Vester v. Collins, 101 N. C. 114, 7 S. E. 687. Again, a beneficiary may testify as to the leaving of a holograph will with her for safe keeping. McEvan v. Brown, 176 N. C. 249, 97 S. E. 20. Or to the fact that when a will was opened it contained certain erasures and that they were not made by him. In re Will of Saunders, 177 N. C. 156, 98 S. E. 378.

Circumstances may arise, however, in which the person interested as a beneficiary may attempt to testify as to personal transactions or conversations with the deceased and this testimony would, of course, be excluded. But the rule of exclusion does not apply, as may be inferred from the preceding cases, as to facts of which the witness had knowledge by means other than by personal transactions with the deceased. So the rule does exclude the witness from testifying as to the identity of certain papers as being those which he had previously seen in the testator's presence; nor to the fact that it was the same "will," when only for the purpose and effect of the identification of the sheets in question. In re Will of Mann, 192 N. C. 248, 134 S. E. 649.

Mental Capacity of Deceased Formed from Conversation.—Where a witness testifies to the want of mental capacity in a grantor to take a deed, and that his opinion was formed from conversation and communication between the witness and grantor, it was held competent to prove the facts upon which such opinion was founded, the provisions of this section not applying as the subject was not a "transaction" within its meaning. McLeary v. Norment, 84 N. C. 235; Bakestraw v. Pratt, 160 N. C. 436, 76 S. E. 259.

Services of Physician.—Testimony by a physician, the plaintiff, that he attended the deceased as such, for which he had an account against him, of the number of visits, sum due therefor, etc., is incompetent as being "personal" transactions with the deceased, prohibited by this section. Knight v. Everett, 152 N. C. 118, 67 S. E. 328; Dunn v. Currie, 141 N. C. 123, 53 S. E. 533.

Sale of Property by Guardian.—It is competent for the plaintiff to prove the sale of his property by his guardian as this is not a personal transaction within the meaning of this section. State v. Osborne, 67 N. C. 259.

Testimony as to Placement of Deed.—This section does not exclude testimony that the witness saw the decedent place the deed, under which the witness claims, in a trunk as it does not involve a communication or transaction with him. Carroll v. Smith, 163 N. C. 204, 79 S. E. 497; Cornelius v. Brawley, 109 N. C. 542, 548, 14 S. E. 78.

In a proceeding for dower, the decision of the question whether the plaintiff left her husband's home of her own volition or by reason of what the law will recognize as compulsion, is an inquiry that does not necessarily involve a transaction or communication with her husband which disqualifies her under this section. Hicks v. Hicks, 142 N. C. 231, 55 S. E. 106.

Claim That Intestate was Holder in Due Course.—Where the administrator of the deceased claims that his intestate was a holder of a negotiable instrument in due course for value, and relies upon his intestate's possession to make out a prima facie case, it is not a personal transaction or communication with the deceased, prohibited by statute, for it may be shown in rebuttal that after maturity it was seen in the possession of another claimant of the title. Price Real Estate, etc., Co. v. Jones, 191 N. C. 176, 131 S. E. 587.

Evidence of the declarations of a deceased partner tending to show that the deceased partner made an agreement with plaintiff that check given for a disputed account and marked thereon balance on account was not to be taken as full settlement is incompetent as a transaction or communication with a deceased person prohibited by this section. Walston v. Coppersmith, 197 N. C. 407, 149 S. E. 381.

Sale of Interest in Partnership.—This section does not apply to a transaction between living persons by which one of them sold to the other his interest in a firm of which the decedent was the other partner. Brantley v. Marshbourn, 166 N. C. 527, 82 S. E. 959.

V. EXCEPTIONS.

Similar Evidence Previously Introduced.—This section does not apply where evidence, similar to that which is being introduced, has previously been introduced and the door has been opened to the objecting party. Davidson v. West Oxford Land Co., 126 N. C. 704, 708, 36 S. E. 162. For other cases substantiating this statement, see 12 N. C. Enc. Dig. 784.

Grounds for Exceptions. — The rule of exclusion, if left absolute in form, might in certain cases, it was thought, work unequally, and therefore the exception was inserted to make it fair and just in its operation. There is nothing inequitable in requiring that the opposing testimony to that given in evidence by the other side should be limited to the same transaction or communication. It could not be otherwise without opening the door much wider than the necessity of the particular case justified. Pope v. Pope, 176 N. C. 283, 287, 96 S. E. 1034. Where the testimony, of a deceased adverse party has been given and is available, the reason for the exclusion rule ceases. Phillips v. Intestate Land Co., 174 N. C. 542, 94 S. E. 12.

In order to "open the door" for the admission of evidence of transactions or communications with a deceased person, prohibited by this section, such evidence must relate to the particular subject-matter of the evidence testified to by the adverse party, or the same transaction, and the door is not necessarily opened to all transactions or fact situations growing out of the controversy. Walston v. Coppersmith, 197 N. C. 407, 149 S. E. 381.

Limitation of the Exception.—Where the door is opened to the opposing party to testify for himself, he can testify only as to those particular transactions and communications to which the testimony of the deceased person or his representative was pertinent. Summer v. Candler, 92 N. C. 634.

Illustrations.—Where the defendant executor has testified as to certain matters relating to the identification of certain letters the deceased had written upon the question of whether he should be held liable as a partner for the debts of a firm, it is competent for the plaintiff's witness to testify in the plaintiff's behalf, as to other matters relating thereto and tending to fix the deceased which liability as a partner, under the principle that when the defendant has himself "opened the door by his own evidence" the plaintiff may testify as to the completed transaction, and this section prohibiting testimony as to transaction, etc., with a deceased person, does not apply. Herring v. Ipock, 187 N. C. 459, 121 S. E. 758.

It is incompetent as a transaction with a deceased person in an action against his estate to recover for services rendered him under a contract, for the plaintiff to testify as to personal services rendered by her as coming within her demand for damages. Pulliam v. Hoge, 192 N. C. 459, 135 S. E. 288. The court said: "We do not think the defendant 'opened the door' by asking the plaintiff for an explanation as to why she had changed the amount at her demand." Id.

VI. PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

Effect of Failure to Object.—Objections to the competency of testimony must be taken in due time; if not, they are waived. Therefore, where a party was allowed to testify, upon examination in chief, to a conversation between himself and the defendant's testator, and during the cross-examination the defendant objected to the competency of such testimony and asked that it might be excluded, it was held that, although incompetent, the objection to its reception came too late. Meroney v. Avery, 64 N. C. 312. Where a general objection as to witnesses, competency was overruled, and afterwards no specific objection was made to his testimony as to transactions with the decedent, the objection will be deemed waived. Norris v. Stewart, 105 N. C. 455, 10 S. E. 912, 18 Am. St. Rep. 917.

The objection will not be considered unless so specific as to show that the evidence is objectionable. Perkins v. Berry, 103 N. C. 131, 9 S. E. 621. The incompetency must appear at the time of the objection to the evidence, so that the court may pass intelligently upon the objection. Harris v. Harris, 178 N. C. 7, 100 S. E. 125.

When Admission of Evidence Harmless. — The erroneous admission of evidence of transactions with deceased persons prohibited by this section, becomes immaterial when from the answers by the jury to the issues it appears that this evidence was disregarded by them. Ray v. Ray, 175 N. C. 290, 95 S. E. 550. For a treatment of harmless error generally see section 688, analysis line II, Band C, and the notes thereto.

Determination on Appeal of Relevancy of Testimony. — Where testimony of transactions or communication with a decedent is properly excluded as irrelevant to the issue, its competency or incompetency under this section will not be determined on appeal. Pendleton v. Spencer, 205 N. C. 179, 170 S. E. 637.

§ 1796. Executors may testify as to estates in their hands.—In all actions now pending or which may be hereafter instituted upon judgments rendered before the first day of August, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight, or upon any bond or promissory note under seal executed prior to said date, wherein a reference has been or may be ordered by the court to ascertain the condition or state of the assets belonging to the estate of any deceased debtor in the hands of his administrator or executor, who is or may be defendant in such actions, it shall be competent for the defendant administrator or executor of such deceased debtor to testify and be examined as a witness in his own behalf concerning his administration upon the estate of his intestate or decedent. When in such cases the defendant administrator or executor testifies or is examined as a witness in his own behalf, it shall also be competent for the plaintiff to testify and be examined in the same in regard to such administration. (Rev., s. 1632; 1885, c. 361.)

For history of section, see Coggins v. Flythe, 113 N. C. 102, 18 S. E. 96.

§ 1797. Communications between attorney and client.—In cases where fraud upon the state is charged it shall not be a sufficient cause to excuse any one from imparting any evidence or information legally required of him, because he came into the possession of such evidence or information by his position as counsel or attorney before the consummation of such fraud, and any person refusing for such cause to answer any question when legally required so to do shall be guilty of contempt, and punished at the discretion of the court or other body demanding such information: Provided, that it shall not be competent to introduce any admissions thus made on the trial of any persons making the same. (Rev., s. 1620; Code, s. 1349; 1874-5, c. 213.)

Statutory Exception.—This section, providing that communications to counsel, in cases of fraud where the State is concerned, are not privileged, constitutes a statutory exception to the general rule privileging communications made to an attorney where the relation of attorney and client exists. Hughes v. Boone, 102 N. C. 137, 159, 9 S. E. 286.

§ 1798. Communications between physician and patient.—No person, duly authorized to practice physic or surgery, shall be required to disclose any information which he may have acquired in attending a patient in a professional character, and which information was necessary to enable him to prescribe for such patient as a physician, or to do any act for him as a surgeon: Provided, that the presiding judge of a superior court may compel such disclosure, if in his opinion the same is necessary to a proper administration of justice. (Rev., s. 1621; 1885, c. 159.)

See 13 N. C. Law Rev., 326.

In General.—The principle by which a physician may not be compelled to divulge communications and other matters which have come to his knowledge by observation of his patient is regulated by statute, and under the provisions of this section, the privilege is qualified, and it rests within the discretion of the trial judge, in the administration of justice, to compel the physician, called as a witness, to testify to such matters when relevant to the inquiry. State v. Martin, 182 N. C. 846, 109 S. E. 74. See notes of this case under section 4426.

If the statements were privileged under this section, then in the absence of a finding by the presiding judge, duly entered upon the record, that the testimony was necessary to a proper administration of justice, it was incompetent, and upon defendant's objection should have been excluded. Sawyer v. Weskett, 201 N. C. 500, 501, 160 S. E. 575.

What Information Included.—It is the accepted construction of this statute that it extends, not only to information orally communicated by the patient, but to knowledge obtained by the physician or surgeon through his own observation or examination while attending the patient in a professional capacity, and which was necessary to enable him to prescribe. Smith v. Roper Lumber Co., 147 N. C. 62, 64, 60 S. E. 717; Gartside v. Ins. Co., 76 Mo. 446; Dilleber v. Ins. Co., 69 N. Y. 256.

Relationship of Physician and Patient Must Exist.—The admissions of one accused of crime are not rendered confidential within the meaning of the law when made to a psychiatrist examining him by order of the court in order to form an opinion as to whether the defendant had sufficient capacity to be in law guilty of crime, since, under the circumstances of this case, the relationship of physician and patient did not exist, and this section is not applicable. State v. Newsome, 195 N. C. 552, 143 S. E. 187.

Privilege May Be Waived.—The privilege given by this section is for the benefit of the patient alone, and it may be insisted on or waived at his discretion, subject to the exceptions included in the section. Smith v. Roper Lumber Co., 147 N. C. 62, 64, 60 S. E. 717; Fuller v. Knights of Pythias, 129 N. C. 318, 40 S. E. 65.

Judge's Finding of Record that Testimony Necessary.—Before a physician may testify to matters arising in his confidential relationship with his patient, our statute requires that the trial judge find that in his opinion such testimony is "necessary to a proper administration of justice," and in the absence of such finding appearing of record on appeal, it is reversible error for the trial judge upon defendant's exception to admit testimony of the insured's physician tending to show that the insured in his application for life insurance had made misstatements of material facts that would avoid the insurer's liability in his suit to cancel the policy issued thereon. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Boddie, 194 N. C. 199, 139 S. E. 228

§ 1799. Defendant in criminal action competent but not compellable to testify.—In the trial of all indictments, complaints, or other proceedings against persons charged with the commission of crimes, offenses or misdemeanors, the person so charged is, at his own request, but not otherwise, a competent witness, and his failure to make such request shall not create any presumption against him. But every such person examined as a witness shall be subject to cross examination as other witnesses. Except as above provided, nothing in this section shall render any person, who in any criminal proceeding is charged with the commission of a criminal offense, competent or compellable to give evidence against himself, nor render any person compellable to answer any question tending to criminate himself. (Rev., ss. 1634, 1635; Code, ss. 1353, 1354; 1881, c. 89, s. 3; 1881, c. 110, ss. 2, 3; 1856-7, c. 23; 1866, c. 43, s. 3; 1868-9, c. 209, s. 4.)

Cross Reference.—See 12 N. C. Enc. Dig. 809 et seq.; 15 N. C. Enc. Dig. 849 et seq.

Privilege and Not a Duty.—A defendant in a criminal matter can only be examined as a witness by his own request. State v. Ellis, 97 N. C. 447, 2 S. E. 525.

Treated as Other Witnesses.—When the defendant exercises this privilege he is treated just as any other witness and thereby subjects himself to all the disadvantages of that position. State v. Efler, 85 N. C. 585; State v. Hawkins, 115 N. C. 712, 715, 20 S. E. 623.

Where a defendant in a criminal prosecution testifies in his own behalf he waives his constitutional privilege not to answer questions tending to incriminate him and is subject to cross-examination for the purpose of impeaching his credibility as other witnesses. State v. Griffin, 201 N. C. 541, 160 S. E. 826.

Extent of Cross Examination Permitted.—Cross examination of a defendant under this section is not confined to matters brought out on direct examination, but questions are admissible to impeach, diminish or impair the credit of the witness. State v. Dickerson, 189 N. C. 327, 127 S. E. 256.

Testimony May Be Used in Subsequent Trial.—Where a defendant, in a prosecution for another crime, testified in his own behalf, after having been informed of his privilege not to testify, admissions made by him are competent evidence against him in a subsequent trial. State v. Simpson, 133 N. C. 676, 45 S. E. 567.

Failure to Take Stand.—The failure of the prisoner charged with homicide to take the witness-stand voluntarily will not create a presumption against him. State v. Bynum, 175 N. C. 777, 95 S. E. 101.

Same—How Far Subject to Comment.—The introduction or non-introduction of a party as a witness in his own behalf should be the subject of comment only as the introduction or non-introduction of any other witness might be. Goodman v. Sapp, 102 N. C. 477, 9 S. E. 483.

On this point the court in Gragg v. Wagner, 77 N. C. 246, said: "It is the privilege and not the duty of a party to an action to offer himself as a witness in his own behalf, and he is not the proper subject for unfriendly criticism because he declines to exercise a privilege conferred upon him for his own benefit merely. The fact is not the subject of comment at all; certainly not, unless under very peculiar circumstances, which must necessarily be passed upon by the judge presiding at the trial, as a matter of sound discretion." Goodman v. Sapp, 102 N. C. 477, 483, 9 S. E. 483.

General Character Can Be Shown.—When a prosecutor or defendant in a criminal action goes upon the stand as a witness he becomes just as any other witness, and his general character can be proven, not only as it was before a charge affecting it was made, but as it is at the date he goes upon the stand. State v. Spurling, 118 N. C. 1250, 24 S. E. 533.

Same—Not in Issue unless So Placed.—Where a defendant goes on the witness stand and testifies, he does not thereby put his character in issue, but only puts his testimony in issue, and the State may introduce evidence tending to show the bad character of the witness solely for the purpose of contradicting him. State v. Cloninger, 149 N. C. 567, 63 S. E. 154; State v. Foster, 130 N. C. 666, 41 S. E. 284.

Same—Where Introduced by Defendant.—When the defendant introduces evidence himself to prove his good character, then that evidence is substantive evidence, and may be considered by the jury as such. State v. Cloninger, 149 N. C. 567, 63 S. E. 154.

The right of the defendant to offer testimony of his good character does not depend upon his having been examined as a witness in his own behalf. State v. Hice, 117 N. C. 782, 23 S. E. 357.

The court in State v. Efler, 85 N. C. 585 said: "In declaring him to be 'a competent witness' we understand the statute (this section) to mean that he shall occupy the same position with any other witness, be under obligation to tell the truth, entitled to the same privileges, receive the same protection, and equally liable to be impeached or discredited * * * But by availing himself of the statute he assumes the position of a witness and subjects himself to all the disadvantages of that position, and his credibility is to be weighed and tested as that of any other witness." State v. Traylor, 121 N. C. 674, 676, 28 S. E. 493. (Parenthesis supplied).

Same—Put in Issue by State.—Where, in the trial of a criminal action, the defendant testifies in his own behalf and introduces no evidence as to his general character, but the State introduces evidence to show that such character is bad, it was held that such evidence by the State can be considered only as affecting the credibility of the defendant as a witness and not as a circumstance in determining the question of his guilt or innocence. State v. Traylor, 121 N. C. 674, 28 S. E. 493.

Where There Are Two or More Defendants.—Even prior to the enactment of this section on a trial for an affray one defendant could not oppose the testifying of his codefendant for himself, the State's counsel not objecting. State v. Hamlet, 85 N. C. 520.

Testifying as to Confessions.—The defendant in a criminal action is competent as a witness in his own defense upon the preliminary hearing of the trial judge, as to whether confessions he had made to the officers of the law were voluntarily made or induced from him contrary to law. State v. Whitener, 191 N. C. 659, 132 S. E. 603.

Admission before Magistrate.—Where a prisoner made certain confessions which were induced by hope, and therefore inadmissible, but a day or so after, upon his examination before a committing magistrate, he asked to be examined as a witness on his own behalf, when he admitted that he had made the confessions, but said that they were not true, it was held, that his evidence given before the magistrate was admissible against him, and it was for the jury to say whether they believed the confession, or that part of his evidence declaring that the confessions were not true. State v. Ellis, 97 N. C. 447, 2 S. E. 525.

Weight Given Testimony Is for Jury.—While the interpretations of this section require defendant's testimony to be scrutinized, it is the province of the jury to determine from his demeanor and the attending circumstances the weight which they will accord his testimony, and a charge of the court that "the law presumes" that he is naturally laboring under the temptation to testify to whatever he thinks may be necessary to clear himself and that the jury should take into consideration what a conviction would mean to defendant, etc., is held to impose a burden and cast a shadow upon his testimony greater than the law requires and to constitute reversible error. State v. Wilcox, 206 N. C. 691, 175 S. E. 122.

Constitutional Provision as to Self-Incrimination.—See N. C. Const., Art. I, Sec. 11, and notes thereto.

§ 1800. Testimony enforced in certain criminal investigations; immunity.—If any justice of the peace, magistrate of police, mayor of a town, or judge of the supreme or superior courts shall have good reason to believe that any person within his jurisdiction has knowledge of the existence and establishment of any faro-bank, faro-table or other gaming table prohibited by law, or of any place where intoxicating liquors are sold contrary to law, in any town or county within his jurisdiction, such person not being minded to make voluntary information thereof an oath, then it shall be lawful for such justice of the peace, magistrate, mayor, or judge to issue to the sheriff of the county or to any constable of the town or township in which such faro-bank, faro-table, gaming table, or place where intoxicating liquors are sold contrary to law is supposed to be, a subpœna, capias ad testificandum, or other summons in writing, commanding such person to appear immediately before such justice of the peace, magistrate, mayor or judge and give evidence on oath as to what he may know touching the existence, establishment and whereabouts of such faro-bank, faro-table or other gaming table, or place where intoxicating liquors are sold contrary to law, and the name and personal description of the keeper thereof. Such evidence, when obtained, shall be considered and held in law as an information on oath, and the justice, magistrate, mayor or judge may thereupon proceed to seize and arrest such keeper and destroy such table, or issue process therefor as provided by law. No person shall be excused, on any prosecution, from testifying touching any unlawful gaming done by himself or others; but no discovery made by the witness upon such examination shall be used against him in any penal or criminal prosecution, and he shall be altogether pardoned of the offenses so done or participated in by him. (Rev., ss. 3721, 1637; Code, ss. 1215, 1050; R. C., c. 35, s. 50; 1858-9, c. 34, s. 1; 1889, c. 355; 1913, c. 141.)

Section Constitutional.—This section is not unconstitutional by reason of the Fifth Amendment to Constitution of the United States, because it does not apply to the State; nor does it violate Article I, section 11, Constitution of North Carolina, for the reason that the said statute grants a pardon to the witness. In re Briggs, 135 N. C. 118, 47 S. E. 403.

Witness Compellable to Testify.—In a prosecution for gaming a witness may be compelled to testify, although his answer tends to criminate him, since he is pardoned for the offense. State v. Morgan, 133 N. C. 743, 45 S. E. 1033.

Sufficiency of Indictment.—In an indictment for keeping a common gaming-house the use of the word "gaming" is sufficient. State v. Morgan, 133 N. C. 743, 45 S. E. 1033.

§ 1801. Husband and wife as witnesses in civil actions.—In any trial or inquiry in any suit, action or proceeding in any court, or before any person having, by law or consent of parties, authority to examine witnesses or hear evidence, the husband or wife of any party thereto, or of any person in whose behalf any such suit, action or proceeding is brought, prosecuted, opposed or defended, shall, except as herein stated, be competent and compellable to give evidence, as any other witness on behalf of any party to such suit, action or proceeding. Nothing herein shall render any husband or wife competent or compellable to give evidence for or against the other in any actions or proceedings in consequence of adultery, or in any action or proceeding for divorce on account of adultery (except to prove the fact of marriage); or in any action or proceeding for or on account of criminal conversation, except that in actions of criminal conversation brought by the husband in which the character of the wife is assailed she shall be a competent witness to testify in refutation of such charges. No husband or wife shall be compellable to disclose any confidential communication made by one to the other during their marriage. (Rev., s. 1636; Code, s. 588; C. C. P., s. 341; 1866, c. 43, ss. 3, 4; 1919, c. 18.)

Cross References.—See full discussion of subject in 12 N. C. Enc. Dig. 733 et seq. As to competency in criminal actions, see section 1802 and notes thereto.

In General.—Husbands and wives are competent and compellable to give evidence for or against each other, save only in the particular cases mentioned in the section. Barringer v. Barringer, 69 N. C. 179, 181.

The provisions of this section are quite clear and self-explanatory. The legislative intent is apparent and little room is left for a judicial construction of the clauses herein contained. A few of the leading cases are sufficient to show that the decisions of the various cases arising hereunder have been predicated upon the section as actually worded, without any judicial inferences being drawn by the courts. —Ed. Note.

Divorce for Adultery.—In divorce for alleged adultery, neither the husband nor the wife is a competent witness. Perkins v. Perkins, 88 N. C. 41; Horne v. Horne, 75 N. C. 101, 103.

Contradiction by Wife.—Under this section, a wife, sued for divorce for adultery, is competent to deny the evidence of witnesses that she was guilty of adultery with them. Broom v. Broom, 130 N. C. 562, 41 S. E. 673.

Same—Criminal Conversation.—In an action by the husband for damages for criminal conversation with his wife, the evidence of the wife in behalf of the defendant to rebut the evidence of the plaintiff is incompetent under this section. Grant v. Mitchell, 156 N. C. 15, 71 S. E. 1087. But since the amendment of 1919 the wife is competent to rebut charges where her character is assailed which would seem to include all actions for criminal conversation.—Ed. Note.

In an action for criminal conversation wherein the husband has testified to immoral relations between his wife and the defendant, the wife is a competent witness for the defendant for the purpose of refuting the charges made against her character. Chestnut v. Sutton, 204 N. C. 476, 168 S. E. 680.

Confidential Communications Defined.—The confidential communications made between husband and wife which neither will be compelled to disclose, are those which are communicated "during their marriage." Whitford v. North State Life Ins. Co., 163 N. C. 223, 79 S. E. 501.

Same—Protected.—The confidential communications between husband and wife cannot, on the grounds of public policy, be admitted in evidence. State v. Brittain, 117 N. C. 783, 23 S. E. 433.

In a suit in equity to set aside a judgment rendered in an action at law for fraud, letters from the plaintiff in the former action to his wife respecting fraud in that action are properly excluded when the letters are obtained by a third party with the consent of the wife, the letters being privileged communications and inadmissible against either the husband or the wife. McCoy v. Justice, 199 N. C. 602, 603, 155 S. E. 452.

Where a witness has written a letter to his wife the asserted right of the defendant to cross examine the witness on the letter to produce evidence tending to show bias or prejudice of the witness is excluded by the inhibitions of this section when the letter is procured by the defendant with the consent and privity of the wife alone. State v. Banks, 204 N. C. 233, 167 S. E. 851.

Applied, in action by husband for criminal conversation, in Rouse v. Creech, 203 N. C. 378, 166 S. E. 174.

§ 1802. Husband and wife as witnesses in criminal actions.—The husband or wife of the defendant, in all criminal actions or proceedings, shall be a competent witness for the defendant, but the failure of such witness to be examined shall not be used to the prejudice of the defense. Every such person examined as a witness shall be subject to be cross-examined as are other witnesses. No husband or wife shall be compellable to disclose any confidential communication made by one to the other during their marriage. Nothing herein shall render any husband or wife competent or compellable to give evidence against each other in any criminal action or proceeding, except to prove the fact of marriage in case of bigamy, and except that in all criminal prosecutions of a husband for an assault and battery upon his wife, or for abandoning his wife and/or his children, or for neglecting to provide for her support and/or the support of his children, it shall be lawful to examine the wife in behalf of the state against the husband. (Rev., ss. 1634, 1635, 1636; Code, ss. 588, 1353, 1354; 1856-7, c. 23; 1866, c. 43; 1868-9, c. 209; 1881, c. 110; 1933, c. 13, s. 1; c. 361.)

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 231, for brief criticism of the 1933 amendment to this section.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, cc. 13 and 361, added, near the end of this section, the words "and/or his children" following the word "wife" and the words "and/or the support of his children" following the word "support."

In General.—Under this section the husband or wife is a competent witness for the defendant in all criminal actions or proceedings. State v. Harbison, 94 N. C. 885. But neither is competent or compellable to give evidence against the other in any criminal proceeding. Id.

Under this section a wife is neither competent nor compellable to testify against her husband in a criminal proceeding, hence hearsay evidence of her declarations, not made in his presence or by his authority, which would be prejudicial to the husband, is inadmissible. State v. Reid, 178 N. C. 745, 101 S. E. 104.

Discretion of Trial Judge.—Where the defendant husband is alleged to have stolen certain property it is competent for him to introduce his wife as a witness to prove from what source he got the money to pay for such property, but unless he introduces her in proper time it rests within the discretion of the trial judge whether her testimony will be received. State v. Lemon, 92 N. C. 791, 793.

Confidential Communication.—Testimony of a witness that at the time of the arrest of the defendant, by the officers of the law, his wife was present and said to him: "I told you that you would get into it if you did not stay with me like I wanted you to," to which he replied: "hush," is not a confidential communication between husband and wife within the contemplation of this section and may be testified to by the witness who was present and heard it, and is some evidence of guilt in connection with the other evidence in the case. State v. Freeman, 197 N. C. 376, 148 S. E. 450.

The confidential communications between husband and wife cannot, on the grounds of public policy, be admitted in evidence. State v. Brittain, 117 N. C. 783, 23 S. E. 433.

Husband May Testify against Wife in Assault.—Conversely to the rule enunciated in this section, that a wife may testify against her husband in actions for assault against her, it appears that a husband may testify in assaults by the wife against him, and this was so held. State v. Davidson, 77 N. C. 522; State v. Alderman, 182 N. C. 917, 919, 110 S. E. 59.

In case of assault and battery with intent to kill by poison, with evidence tending to show the previous threats of the wife, and that the poison was put into the food prepared by the daughter in her mother's presence at their home, and that the husband was poisoned from eating thereof, the testimony of the husband as to his wife's previous threats is not inadmissible under the provisions of this section, but is admissible for the purpose of showing knowledge and identifying the perpetrators of the crime, and is distinguishable from the rule that threats are ordinarily inadmissible on trials for assault and battery. State v. Alderman, 182 N. C. 917, 110 S. E. 59.

The rule that neither the husband nor wife is competent to testify against the other in criminal cases does not apply to proof of assault by the one upon the other. State v. French, 203 N. C. 632, 166 S. E. 747.

A wife under this section is not competent to testify against her husband in a prosecution for felonious burning and the admission of her testimony entitles him to a new trial. State v. Kluttz, 206 N. C. 726, 175 S. E. 81.

Failure of Wife to Appear and Testify.—The failure of the wife to be examined as a witness in behalf of a husband tried for a criminal offense, is expressly excluded as evidence to the husband's prejudice by this section, though she is competent to testify. State v. Harris, 181 N. C. 600, 107 S. E. 466.

Where the trial judge has properly excluded from the consideration by the jury testimony relating to the wife's failure to appear and testify in behalf of her husband on his trial for a homicide, the prisoner may not successfully complain of error on appeal in the failure of the trial judge to again instruct the jury thereon, when there has been no exception taken to the charge of the court or the refusal of any prayer for instruction on the subject. State v. Harris, 181 N. C. 600, 107 S. E. 466.

Where a prisoner's wife, on his trial for a homicide, has failed to appear and be examined in her husband's defense, and a witness has testified to facts relating thereto, before the trial judge has had opportunity to rule upon the prisoner's objection, the reading of this section by the trial judge to the jury, and his telling them they must not consider this failure of the wife to appear as evidence to the prisoner's prejudice, renders the error harmless, if any was committed. State v. Harris, 181 N. C. 600, 107 S. E. 466.

Abandonment of Children.—The wife is not competent to testify against her husband in a criminal action, unless the action comes within the exceptions enumerated in this section, and upon the trial of the husband for wilfully abandoning and failing to support his minor children, the admission of the wife's testimony against him is reversible error. State v. Brigman, 201 N. C. 793, 161 S. E. 727.

Abandonment of Wife.—Under this section the wife is a competent witness against her husband as to the fact of abandonment, or neglect to provide adequate support. State v. Brown, 67 N. C. 470.

Proof of Marriage. — The wife is competent to prove the fact of marriage under an indictment against her husband for abandonment. State v. Chester, 172 N. C. 946, 90 S. E. 697. The holding was otherwise under a former wording of the statute. State v. Brown, 67 N. C. 470.

Same—Bigamy.—In an indictment for bigamy the first wife of the defendant is a competent witness to prove the marriage, public cohabitation as man and wife being public acknowledgments of the relation and not coming within the nature of the confidential relations which the policy of the law forbids either to give in evidence. State v. Melton, 120 N. C. 591, 26 S. E. 933. See also State v. McDuffie, 107 N. C. 885, 890, 12 S. E. 83.

Adultery Prior to Marriage.—Where a man and woman are indicted for fornication and adultery, and a nol. pros. is entered as to the feme defendant, the husband of the woman is a competent witness to show adultery between the defendants committed before the marriage of the woman and the witness. State v. Wiseman, 130 N. C. 726, 41 S. E. 884.

Competency of Divorced Parties. — A divorced husband is incompetent to testify against the divorced wife in the trial of an indictment against her for fornication and adultery which occurred prior to the divorce. State v. Raby, 121 N. C. 682, 28 S. E. 490.

§ 1802(a). Wife may testify in applications for peace warrants.—The wife shall be competent to make affidavit and testify in application for peace warrants against the husband. (1933, c. 13, s. 2.)

Art. 7. Attendance of Witness

§ 1803. Issue and service of subpoena.—In obtaining the testimony of witnesses in causes depending in the superior, criminal and inferior courts, the following rules shall be observed in practice, to wit:

In suits where witnesses are to appear at any court, the clerk at the instance of a party shall issue a subpoena, directed to the sheriff or other officer of the county where such witnesses reside, naming the time and place for their appearance, the names of the parties to the suit wherein the testimony is to be given, and the party at whose instance they are summoned. Every subpoena made returnable immediately shall be issued only in term time, and shall be personally served on the witness therein named. A copy of every subpoena issued by the clerk in vacation, in case any witness therein named is not to be found, may be left at his usual place of residence; and such copy certified by the sheriff or other officer, and left as aforesaid, shall be deemed a legal summons, and the person therein named shall be bound to appear in the same manner as if personally summoned. (Rev., s. 1639; Code, s. 1355; R. C., c. 31, s. 59; 1777, c. 115, s. 36.)

§ 1804. Attendance before referee or commissioners.—In all cases not otherwise provided for, when witnesses are required to attend any court, commission, referee, order of survey, or jury of view, a summons shall be issued by the clerk of the court, at the request of either party, naming the day and place when and where they are to appear, the names of the parties to the suit, and in whose behalf summoned. (Rev., s. 1640;

§ 1805. Subpœna duces tecum issued.—In all causes depending in any court, in which the production of an original paper, lodged in any of the public offices of the state, or in any office of any court, shall become necessary, the court may issue the process of subpœna duces tecum, requiring such persons who hold said offices to attend the court with such original paper, in like manner and under the same penalties as witnesses are required in cases of subpœna to testify. (Rev., s. 1641; Code, s. 1372; R. C., c. 31, s. 81; 1797, c. 476.)

§ 1806. Subpœnas and depositions upon removal of cause.—When any cause shall be removed from the superior court of one county to that of another, after the order of removal, depositions may be taken in the cause, and subpœnas for the attendance of witnesses and commissions to take depositions may issue from either of said courts, under the same rules as if the cause had been originally commenced in the court from which the subpoenas or commissions issued. (Rev., s. 1642; Code, s. 1371; R. C., c. 31, s. 72; 1810, c. 787; 1832, c. 8.)

In General.—Until the transcript is deposited the removal is not consummated and the cause is not constituted so as to give full jurisdiction to the court to which the removal is ordered, hence to meet this situation the provision of this section gives to the clerk of either court the power to issue subpoenas for witnesses. Commissioners v. Lemly, 85 N. C. 342, 346.

Upon removal jurisdiction of the court from which the cause is removed ceases, unless otherwise provided in the order of removal, or by consent of the parties in writing, duly filed. Fisher v. Cid Copper Min. Co., 105 N. C. 123, 10 S. E. 1055.

This section, however, makes one exception to the general rule by allowing the subpoena to be issued from either court. Fisher v. Cid Copper Min. Co., 105 N. C. 123, 10 S. E. 1055.

Time for Depositing Transcript.—The party procuring the order of removal has until the term of the court to which the cause is removed to deposit his transcript. Fisher v. Cid Copper Min. Co., 105 N. C. 123, 10 S. E. 1055.

§ 1807. Witnesses attend until discharged; effect of nonattendance.—Every witness, being summoned to appear in any of the said courts, in manner before directed, shall appear accordingly, and continue to attend from term to term until discharged, when summoned in a civil action or special proceeding, by the court or the party at whose instance such witness shall be summoned, or, when summoned in a criminal prosecution, until discharged by the court, the prosecuting officer, or the party at whose instance he was summoned; and in default thereof shall forfeit and pay, in civil actions or special proceedings, to the party at whose instance the subpoena issued, the sum of forty dollars, to be recovered by motion in the cause, and shall be further liable to his action for the full damages which may be sustained for the want of such witness's testimony; or if summoned in a criminal prosecution shall forfeit and pay eighty dollars for the use of the state, or the party summoning him. If the civil action or special proceeding shall, in the vacation, be compromised and settled between the parties, and the party at whose instance such witness was summoned should omit to discharge him from further attendance, and for want of such discharge he shall attend the next term, in that case the witness, upon oath made of the facts, shall be entitled to a ticket from the clerk in the same manner as other witnesses, and shall recover from the party at whose instance he was summoned the allowance which is given to witnesses for their attendance, with costs.

No execution shall issue against any defaulting witness for the forfeiture aforesaid but after notice made known to him to show cause against the issuing thereof; and if sufficient cause be shown of his incapacity to attend, execution shall not issue, and the witness shall be discharged of the forfeiture without costs; but otherwise the court shall, on motion, award execution for the forfeiture against the defaulting witness. (Rev., s. 1643; Code, s. 1356; R. C., c. 31, ss. 60, 61, 62; 1777, c. 115, ss. 37, 38, 43; 1799, c. 528; 1801, c. 591.)

Cross References.—See 12 N. C. Enc. Dig. 725 et seq.; 15 N. C. Enc. Dig. 829 et seq.; as to fees and mileage of witnesses, see section 3893 and notes thereto; as to recovery of costs, see sections 1273, 1274.

Duty to Attend.—When a subpoena has been served on a witness, he is required by this section to attend from term to term until discharged. State v. Gwynn, 61 N. C. 445.

Non-Attendance Need Not Be Wilful.—This section does not require that the failure of the witness to attend should be "wilful." In re Pierce, 163 N. C. 247, 79 S. E. 507.

When Witness May Elect.—Where two subpoenas are served upon a witness, requiring his attendance on the same day at different places distant from each other, he is not bound to obey the writ which may have been first served, but may make his election between them. Icehour v. Martin, 44 N. C. 478.

Test of Inability to Attend.—In an early case, Eller v. Roberts, 25 N. C. 11, it was held that where a witness alleges that he was unable to attend court, this inability must be decided by reference to the modes of travelling which are in use in the community.

Where Service Had on Transient.—A witness, who is summoned in this State, while casually here, but who resides in another state, cannot be required to pay a forfeiture for non-attendance, if he has returned to his own state and is there at his domicile. Kinzey v. King, 28 N. C. 76.

Attorney Not Exempt.—A witness who fails to appear when the case is called in which he has been subpoenaed to testify is not justified in his default because he is a practicing attorney at law and has cases to try in another county at the date upon which the case was called wherein he was a witness, and the party who subpoenaed him can recover the penalty, with the costs of the motions. In re Pierce, 163 N. C. 247, 79 S. E. 507.

An issue in bastardy is not a "criminal prosecution" so as to subject a defaulting witness to the fine of eighty dollars, prescribed by this section. Ward v. Bell, 52 N. C. 79.

§ 1808. Witnesses exempt from civil arrest.—Every witness shall be exempt from arrest in civil actions or special proceedings during his attendance at any court, or before a commissioner, arbitrator, referee or other person authorized to command the attendance of such witness, and during the time such witness is going to and returning from the place of such attendance, allowing one day for every thirty miles such witness has to travel to and from his place of residence. (Rev., s. 1644; Code, s. 1367; R. C., c. 31, s. 70; 1777, c. 115, s. 44.)

Common Law Rule Not Repealed.—This section does not serve to repeal the common law rule of exemption of witnesses from civil arrest. Cooper v. Wyman, 122 N. C. 784, 787, 29 S. E. 947.

Not Applicable to Criminal Proceeding.—The exemption of witnesses from civil arrest accorded by this section, and of nonresident parties and witnesses voluntarily attending court here, on grounds of public policy does not apply to parties arrested in criminal proceedings. White v. Underwood, 125 N. C. 26, 34 S. E. 104.

Procedure for Claiming Exemption.—Where a party has not been granted the exemption from service of summons (which the courts seem to have placed on the same plane as the exemption from civil arrest), his remedy is not a motion to dismiss the action, but a motion, on special appearance, to set aside the return of service. Dell School v. Pierce, 163 N. C. 424, 79 S. E. 687. This is because the service is not void but voidable. Cooper v. Wyman, 122 N. C. 784, 29 S. E. 947.

Nonresident Attorney.—This section does not prevent service of summons on a nonresident attorney in this State to represent his clients in a matter pending in the federal court. Greenleaf v. Peoples Bank, 133 N. C. 292, 45 S. E. 638.

Art. 8. Depositions

§ 1809. Manner of taking depositions in civil actions.—Any party in a civil action or special proceeding, upon giving notice to the adverse party or his attorney as provided by law, may take the depositions of persons whose evidence he may desire to use, without any special order therefor, unless the witness shall be beyond the limits of the United States.

Depositions shall be taken on commission, issuing from the court and under the seal thereof, by one or more commissioners, who shall be of kin to neither party, and shall be appointed by the clerk; or depositions may be taken by a notary public of this state or of any other state or foreign country, without a commission issuing from the court.

Depositions shall be subscribed and sealed up by the commissioners or notary public, and returned to the court, the clerk whereof or the judge holding the court, if the clerk is a party to the action, shall open and pass upon the same, after having first given the parties or their attorneys no less than one day's notice; and all such depositions, when passed upon and allowed by the clerk, without appeal, or by the judge upon appeal from the clerk's order, or by the judge holding the court, when the clerk is a party to the action, shall be deemed legal evidence, if the witness be competent. (Rev., s. 1652; Code, s. 1357; 1911, c. 158; R. C., c. 31, s: 63; 1893, c. 360; 1881, c. 279.)

Cross Reference.—For full treatment of this subject, see 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. 686 et seq.; 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 742 et seq. See sections 1810, 1819, 1820 and notes there placed.

Editor's Note.—This section now corresponds in substance with similar provisions found in the codes of most of the states. As it originally stood, it contained many restrictive clauses which no longer appear.

Purpose of Section.—The purpose of this section is to save the inconvenience and cost of taking witnesses to the court, unless the party desiring the testimony of the witness sees fit to summon him to attend the court and testify in person. Sparrow v. Blount, 90 N. C. 514, 516.

Optional with Party Desiring the Evidence.—A party may take the deposition; he is not obliged to do so and it is optional with him whether he will or not. Sparrow v. Blount, 90 N. C. 514, 516.

Right of Cross Examination.—Where a cause has been referred and regularly proceeded with before a commissioner to take deposition therein, the party has a right to cross-examine the witnesses of the opposing party, which may not be denied him as a matter of law. Sugg v. St. Mary's Oil Engine Co., 193 N. C. 814, 138 S. E. 169.

Presumed Regular.—The presumption is that a deposition has been properly taken when it appears thereon that it was taken by one named in the commission on the day and at the designated place. Younce v. Broad River Lumber Co., 155 N. C. 239, 71 S. E. 329.

May Be Taken in Place of Business.—It is not error to take a deposition in the place of business of one of the parties if such place is named in the notice and there is no suggestion that the other party suffered any prejudice thereby. Bank v. Carr, 130 N. C. 479, 41 S. E. 876.

May Be Taken before Answer.—The plaintiff is not required to delay taking the deposition of a witness in a cause until after the answer is filed. Freeman v. Brown, 151 N. C. 111, 65 S. E. 743.

Leading Question.—It is discretionary with the trial judge whether or not answers to leading questions shall be stricken out of the deposition. Bank v. Carr, 130 N. C. 479, 41 S. E. 876.

Necessity of Sealing.—A deposition must be sealed up by the commissioners, so as to prevent inspection and alteration; it need not be certified under the seal of the commissioners. Ward v. Ely, 12 N. C. 372.

Where a deposition was found among the papers, with a commission unattached, and an envelope which appeared to have been sealed up and afterwards broken open, it was held, that this was sufficient evidence to justify the clerk in finding that the deposition had been taken under such commission, and had been returned to him sealed up by the commissioner, and therefore, that the clerk had done right in passing upon and allowing such deposition to be read. Hill v. Bell, 61 N. C. 122.

Name of Witness in Commission Not Essential.—It is not necessary that the commission issued for taking depositions name the particular witness to whose depositions exceptions are taken, when the notice to take the deposition gave the name of the witness and the address of the commissioner, and the requirement of the statute has been met. Jeffords v. Albemarle Waterworks, 157 N. C. 10, 72 S. E. 624.

Signature of Witness Unnecessary.—Where a deposition is otherwise regular and identified, it should not be refused as evidence because it has not been signed by the witness whose testimony was being taken, this not being required by our statute. Boggs v. Cullowhee Min. Co., 162 N. C. 393, 78 S. E. 274. And the fact that it was signed when neither party was present is not ground for refusing to admit it. Riff v. Yadkin, etc., Co., 189 N. C. 585, 127 S. E. 588.

Question Need Not Be Written.—In the taking of a deposition, interrogatories are not required to be in writing, and when there is nothing to indicate that the deposition does not contain the whole of the deponent's testimony or that it was not written down at the time and in the presence of the witness, a motion to quash should be refused. Chippewa Valley Bank v. National Bank, 116 N. C. 815, 21 S. E. 688.

Attachment or Identification of the Papers.—While it is customary, and the better practice, to attach to a deposition a paper-writing therein referred to, or, if there are more than one deposition, to attach it to one and identify it by reference in the others, and in case the writing is a matter of record or in the custody of the court, over which the parties have no control, to attach an exemplified copy; it is not required by our statutes that the writing be so attached, and when this has not been done, the fact of identity may be proved as any other fact in evidence. In re Will of Clodfelter, 171 N. C. 528, 88 S. E. 625.

As to waiver of formal defects, see note of McArter v. Rhea, 122 N. C. 614, 30 S. E. 128, under section 1819.

Notice to Adverse Party Required.—A party offering to read a deposition as evidence must prove that he has given the notice of the opening of the deposition before the clerk prescribed by this section, or show facts that would amount to a waiver by the opposite party of the statutory requirement. Berry v. Hall, 105 N. C. 154, 10 S. E. 903. See section 1810 and notes thereto.

Power of Clerk.—This section allowing the clerk to pass upon depositions, only applies to the depositions of competent witnesses; where, therefore, he passed upon and allowed one to be read which was taken out of the county, under a commission without a seal, it was held, that such action of his might well be disregarded by the court trying the cause. Sehorn v. Williams, 51 N. C. 575.

An Appeal Essential for Review by Court.—The superior court has no jurisdiction to decide whether a deposition be regularly taken, except on appeal from the clerk's decision. Hix v. Fisher, 60 N. C. 474.

Qualification of Commissioner Presumed.—A commissioner appointed to take depositions will be presumed to be properly qualified until the contrary is shown. Gregg v. Mallett, 111 N. C. 74, 15 S. E. 936.

Mistake in Name.—Where the notice to take depositions correctly states the name of the commissioner appointed to take them, and is otherwise regular, it is error for the trial judge to exclude the depositions, as evidence, on account of a slight error in the spelling of the commissioner's name. Hardy v. Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co., 167 N. C. 22, 83 S. E. 5.

Commissioner Related to Parties.—The commissioner should not be related to either of the parties, but the burden of proving this relationship rests upon the movant.

Younce v. Broad River Lumber Co., 155 N. C. 239, 71 S. E. 329.

Same—Objection.—An objection that a commissioner to take depositions is related to one of the parties must be taken at the time of opening such depositions before the clerk. Kerr v. Hicks, 131 N. C. 90, 42 S. E. 532.

Duty of Witness to Answer.—The commissioner acts for the court and it is the duty of the witness to answer proper questions propounded by him, just as though the examination is conducted before the judge or clerk. Bradley, etc., Co. v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 141, 146, 17 S. E. 69.

Delay of Commission Insufficient for Continuance.—Commissions to take testimony are issued at the instance, and for the benefit, of one of the parties, and he will usually make them returnable at the earliest day consistent with convenience. But if through laches or from a wish to delay the trial, he should not do so, the non-execution of the commission will be adjudged an insufficient reason for asking a continuance. Duncan v. Hill, 19 N. C. 291.

§ 1810. Notice required for taking depositions.—In taking depositions in civil actions or special proceedings, written notice of the time and place of taking a deposition, specifying the name of the witness, must be served by the party at whose instance it is taken upon the adverse party of his attorney. The time for serving such notice shall be as follows: Three entire days when the party notified resides within ten miles of the place where the deposition is to be taken; in other cases, where the party notified resides in the state, one day more for every additional twenty miles, except where the deposition is to be taken within ten miles of a railway in running operation in the state, when one day only shall be given for every hundred miles of railway to the place where the deposition is to be taken. When a deposition is to be taken beyond the state, ten days notice of the taking thereof shall be given, when the person whose deposition is to be taken resides within ten miles of a railway connecting with a line of railway within twenty miles of the place where the person notified resides. In other cases, where there are no railways running as above specified, twenty days notice shall be given. When objection is taken to the reading of any such deposition, upon the ground that there are no railways or connecting railways to and from the points specified in this section, or that the notice given had otherwise been actually insufficient, it shall devolve upon the party objecting to satisfy the court of the truth of his allegation. (Rev., s. 1652; Code, s. 1357; 1881, c. 279.)

Cross Reference.—See full treatment of this subject in 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. 686 et seq.; 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 742 et seq.; as to form and sufficiency in general, see 4 N. C. Enc. 692; as to certainty of time and place, see 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. 693 et seq.

In General.—The object of the notice is to give the party an opportunity to attend and cross-examine; and, while on the one hand, a party will not be forced to attend on Sunday, or on a day when his presence is required at another place for the purpose of that very suit, so, on the other, it is held that the principle is complied with substantially, if the notice describes the place with reasonable certainty. Owens v. Kinsey, 51 N. C. 38, 40.

Variance between Notice and Certificate.—A deposition certified to have been taken at the house of J. E. was objected to because the notice was to take it at the house of J. A. E., it was held, that it would be presumed that the notice and certificate referred to the same person. Ellmore v. Mills, 2 N. C. 359.

Alternative Days.—A notice to take a deposition on "the 5th or 6th" of a certain month was held sufficient. Kenedy v. Alexander, 2 N. C. 25.

On a Particular Day for Several Successive Weeks.—Notice to take a deposition on a particular day of every week for three successive months is not good. Bedell v. State Bank, 12 N. C. 483.

Conflicting Dates.—Where notice is served that depositions will be taken at the same time in two different places, so that the party who is notified cannot be present at both, he may attend at either place designated and disregard the notice as to the other, and the deposition taken in his absence at the other place will, on motion, be quashed or suppressed, but where he elects to appeal by counsel and cross-examines the witnesses without making any objection at the time, this is a waiver as to any defect in the notice. Ivey v. Bessemer City Cotton Mills, 143 N. C. 189, 55 S. E. 613.

Certainty of Place.—A misdescription of a place, in one small particular, in a notice to take depositions will not be fatal, if there be other descriptive terms used in the notice, less liable to mistake, by which such place may be identified. Pursell v. Long, 52 N. C. 102.

Reasonableness as to Time.—Where the statute required three days' notice of the taking of a deposition, and only two days' notice was given and the opposite party appeared and objected to the shortness of notice, and declined to cross-examine the deponent, the deposition was rejected. In such cases one day should be counted inclusive, and the other exclusive. Beasley v. Downey, 32 N. C. 284.

Where Parties Specially Mentioned.—Where notice was given to take the deposition of certain parties, specifically mentioned, "and others," and depositions of those particularly mentioned were not taken, it was held to be no ground for exception. McDugald v. Smith, 33 N. C. 576.

The notice directing the commissioner to take the depositions of persons named "and others," depositions taken of others than those named are admissible. In re Will of Rawlings, 170 N. C. 58, 86 S. E. 794.

Notice to One of Joint Defendants.—Upon a bill against joint administrators relative to the acts of the intestate, of which the administrators put in a joint answer, a deposition taken by the plaintiff upon notice to one of the defendants only was excluded, though it was the deposition of the plaintiff's only witness, who had since died. Cox v. Smitherman, 37 N. C. 66.

Served at Residence of Party.—Notice of taking a deposition is sufficient, if left at a party's residence. Kennedy & Co. v. Fairman, 2 N. C. 404.

As to service by publication, see section 1811.

Service by Constable.—A town constable cannot serve a notice to take depositions in an action pending in the superior court. Cullen v. Absher, 119 N. C. 441, 26 S. E. 33.

Notice by Guardian Appointed after Person Released as Sane.—Where a party to an action has become insane and placed in a State institution therefor, and is thereafter released therefrom as sane, § 6214, the court is without authority, after his regaining his sanity, to appoint a guardian ad litem for him, § 451, and notice to the guardian so appointed as to the taking of depositions of witnesses does not comply with the requirements of this section, and upon objection, the depositions so taken should be excluded. Orr v. Beachboard, 199 N. C. 276, 154 S. E. 311.

Proof of Service.—The practice permits the person, who has served the notice that a deposition will be taken, to appear before the commissioners and swear to that fact and if it be shown by the certificate of the commissioners, the deposition may be read. Sawrey v. Murrell, 3 N. C. 397. As to service and proof, see 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. 695 et seq.

Absent Party or Attorney.—In taking depositions where a party lives out of the State, notice may be given to the absent party, or to his attorney in court. Savage v. Rice, 1 N. C. 19.

§ 1811. Publication of notice in case of nonresident.—Instead of the notice served upon the adverse party or his attorney in taking depositions in civil actions or special proceedings, when the adverse party is a nonresident and has no attorney of record, it shall be sufficient to publish notice to the adverse party in some newspaper published in the county where the action is pending, or if no newspaper is published in such county, then in some newspaper in the judicial district, for three consecutive weeks, giving the time and place of taking the deposition and specifying the name of the witness. And when the adverse party is a nonresident and service of notice cannot be had upon him or his attorney in this state, then one publication of notice to open such deposition shall be sufficient notice. (1913, c. 137.)

Where the defendant had left for parts unknown, and his attorney in the case had died, and none other been substituted, and plaintiff was desirous of taking a deposition in New England, an order was made directing publication for three successive weeks in a newspaper, of notice that the deposition would be taken at a certain place and day three months after publication. Maxwell v. Holland, 2 N. C. 302.

§ 1812. Depositions for defendant in criminal actions.—In all criminal actions, hearings and investigations it shall be lawful for the defendant in any such action to make affidavit before the clerk of the superior court of the county in which said action is pending, that it is important for the defense that he have the testimony of any person, whose name must be given, and that such person is so infirm, or otherwise physically incapacitated, or nonresident of this state, that he cannot procure his attendance at the trial or hearing of said cause. Upon the filing of such affidavit, it shall be the duty of the clerk to appoint some responsible person to take the deposition of such witness, which deposition may be read in the trial of such criminal action under the same rules as now apply by law to depositions in civil actions: Provided, that the solicitor or prosecuting attorney of the district, county or town in which such action is pending have ten days notice of the taking of such deposition, who may appear in person or by representative to conduct the cross-examination of such witness. This section shall not apply to the taking of depositions in courts of justices of the peace. (Rev., s. 1652; Code, s. 1357; 1891, c. 522; 1893, c. 80; 1915, c. 251.)

For full treatment of admissibility in evidence, see 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. 699 et seq.; 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 743.

Not Applicable to State Witnesses.—In State v. Harris, 181 N. C. 600, 107 S. E. 466, Stacy, J., commenting on an offer of a trial judge to allow the defense to take depositions of State's witnesses, in a dissenting opinion said: "This section provides that the defendant, in all criminal actions, may take the depositions of witnesses to be used as evidence in his behalf. But this applies to his own witnesses and not to those who testify against him. It would be strange, indeed, to say that a statute, intended to grant, as it does, a privilege to the defendant, could be used to deprive him of his constitutional guarantees. As to the witnesses offered by the State, he has the right to demand their presence in the courtroom, and to confront them with other witnesses, and to subject them to the test of a cross-examination. State v. Mitchell, 119 N. C. 784, 25 S. E. 783, 1020. The prisoner may not be required to examine the State's witnesses in the absence of the jury; and the contrary suggestion of his Honor, though unintentional, was prejudicial to the defendant."

Where there are several defendants in the same bill of indictment, it is not necessary to notify each of the others of the taking of a deposition by one for use as evidence on his behalf. State v. Finley, 118 N. C. 1162, 24 S. E. 495.

A deposition taken under this section is competent to be read in favor of one prisoner, although it contains testimony charging his codefendant with committing the crime. When so read, it is the duty of the presiding judge to instruct the jury that they are not to consider it as evidence against the codefendant thus charged with the crime, but only as evidence in favor of the prisoner who offers it. State v. Finley, 118 N. C. 1162, 24 S. E. 495.

§ 1813. Depositions in justices' courts.—Any party in a civil action before a justice of the peace may take the deposition of all persons whose evidence he may desire to use in the action; and to do so he may apply to the clerk of the superior court for a commission to take the same, and shall proceed in all things in taking such depositions as if such action was pending in the superior court. When any such depositions are returned to the clerk, they shall be opened and passed upon by the clerk, and delivered to the justices of the peace before whom the trial is to be had; and the reading and using of said depositions shall conform to the rules of the superior court. (Rev., s. 1646; Code, s. 1359; 1872-3, c. 33.)

§ 1814. Depositions before municipal authorities.—Any board of aldermen, board of town or county commissioners or any person interested in any proceeding, investigation, hearing or trial before such board, may take the depositions of all persons whose evidence may be desired for use in said proceeding, investigation, hearing or trial; and to do so, the chairman of such board or such person may apply in person or by attorney to the superior court clerk of that county in which such proceeding, investigation, hearing or trial is pending, for a commission to take the same, and said clerk, upon such application, shall issue such commission; and the notice and proceeding upon the taking of said depositions shall be the same as provided for in civil actions; and if the person upon whom the notice of the taking of such deposition is to be served is absent from or cannot after due diligence be found within this state, but can be found within the county in which the deposition is to be taken, then, and in that case, said notice shall be personally served on such person by the commissioner appointed to take such deposition; and when any such deposition is returned to the clerk it shall be opened and passed upon by him and delivered to such board, and the reading and using of such deposition shall conform to the rules of the superior court. (Rev., s. 1653; 1889, c. 151.)

§ 1815. Depositions in quo warranto proceedings.—In all actions for the purpose of trying the title to the officer of clerk of the superior court, register of deeds, county treasurer or sheriff of any county, it shall be competent and lawful to take the deposition of witnesses before a commissioner or commissioners to be appointed by the judge of the district wherein the case is to be tried, or the judge holding the court of said district, or the clerk of the court wherein the case is pending, under the same rules as to time of notice and as to the manner of taking and filing the same as is now provided by law for the taking of depositions in other cases; and such depositions, when so taken, shall be competent to be read on the trial of such action, without regard to the place of residence of such witness or distance of residence from said place of trial: Provided, that the provisions of this section shall not be construed to prevent the oral examination, by either party on the trial, of such witnesses as they may summon in their behalf. (Rev., s. 1654; 1889, c. 428.)

§ 1816. Commissioner may subpoena witness and punish for contempt. — Commissioners to take depositions appointed by the courts of this state, or by the courts of the states or territories of the United States, arbitrators, referees, and all persons acting under a commission issuing from any court of record in this state, are hereby empowered, they or the clerks of the courts respectively in this state, to which such commission shall be returnable, to issue subpœnas, specifying the time and place for the attendance of witnesses before them, and to administer oaths to said witnesses, to the end that they may give their testimony. And any witness appearing before any of the said persons and refusing to give his testimony on oath touching such matters as he may be lawfully examined unto shall be committed, by warrant of the person before whom he shall so refuse, to the common jail of the county, there to remain until he may be willing to give his evidence; which warrant of commitment shall recite what authority the person has to take the testimony of such witness, and the refusal of the witness to give it. (Rev., s. 1649; Code, s. 1362; R. C., c. 31, s. 64; 1777, c. 115, s. 42; 1805, c. 685, ss. 1, 2; 1848, c. 66; 1850, c. 188.)

Power Not Exclusively in Commissioner.—The power to commit to jail a person refusing to testify before a commissioner, as provided for in this section, is not given exclusively, if at all, to the commissioner, but he may invoke the aid of the judge from whom he derives his appointment and whose authority is defied. Bradley, etc., Co. v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 141, 17 S. E. 69.

§ 1817. Attendance before commissioner enforced.—The sheriff of the county where the witness may be shall execute all such subpœnas, and make due return thereof before the commissioner, or other person, before whom the witness is to appear, in the same manner, and under the same penalties, as in case of process of a like kind returnable to court; and when the witness shall be subpœnaed five days before the time of his required attendance, and shall fail to appear according to the subpœna and give evidence, the default shall be noted by the commissioner, arbitrator, or other person aforesaid; and in case the default be made before a commissioner acting under authority from courts without the state, the defaulting witness shall forfeit and pay to the party at whose instance he may be subpœnaed fifty dollars, and on the trial for such penalty the subpœna issued by the commissioner, or other person, as aforesaid, with the indorsement thereon of due service by the officer serving the same, together with the default noted as aforesaid and indorsed on the subpœna, shall be prima facie evidence of the forfeiture, and sufficient to entitle the plaintiff to judgment for the same, unless the witness may show his incapacity to have attended. (Rev., s. 1650; Code, s. 1363; R. C., c. 31, s. 65; 1848, c. 66, s. 2; 1850, c. 188, ss. 1, 2.)

§ 1818. Remedies against defaulting witness before commissioner.—But in case the default be made before a commissioner, arbitrator, referee or other person, acting under a commission or authority from any of the courts of this state, then the same shall be certified under his hand, and returned with the subpœna of the court by which he was commissioned or empowered to take the evidence of such witness; and thereupon the court shall adjudge the defaulting witness to pay to the party at whose instance he was summoned the sum of forty dollars; but execution shall not issue therefor until the same be ordered by the court, after such proceedings had as shall give said witness an opportunity to show cause, if he can, against the issuing thereof. (Rev., s. 1651; Code, s. 1364; R. C., c. 31, s. 66; 1850, c. 188, s. 2.)

§ 1819. Objection to deposition before trial.—At any time before the trial, or hearing of an action or proceeding, any party may make a motion to the judge or court to reject a depositions for irregularity in the taking of it, either in whole or in part, for scandal, impertinence, the incompetency of the testimony, for insufficient notice, or for any other good cause. The objecting party shall state his exceptions in writing. (Rev., s. 1648; Code, s. 1361; 1895, c. 312; 1903, c. 132; 1869-70, c. 277, ss. 13, 17.)

Cross References.—See 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. 703 et seq.; 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 744; see section 1820 and notes thereto; as to formal defects in general, see 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. 704; as to motion to quash, see section 1820 and notes thereto.

Purpose of Section.—The purpose of this section is to settle the depositions as evidence before the trial or hearing and thus prevent surprise, misapprehension, confusion and delay on the trial. Carroll v. Hodges, 98 N. C. 418, 420, 4 S. E. 199.

Time and Manner of Objection.—As stated by the section exceptions to a deposition, especially those which relate to its regularity, should be disposed of; at the latest, before the trial is entered upon. Ivey v. Bessemer City Cotton Mills, 143 N. C. 189, 197, 55 S. E. 613; Barnhardt v. Smith, 86 N. C. 473, 480; Carroll v. Hodges, 98 N. C. 418, 4 S. E. 199. Such objection must be made in writing. Brittain v. Hitchcock, 127 N. C. 400, 37 S. E. 474.

Same—When Allowed at Trial.—Where it appeared that no notice had been given to the adverse party of the taking of a deposition, and that it had not been passed upon by the clerk, it was held that an objection to its reception might be taken on the trial of the action. Bryan v. Jeffreys, 104 N. C. 242, 10 S. E. 167.

Waiver of Formal Defects.—Where a party attends upon and takes part in taking depositions, he thereby waives all objections of a formal character, but a void process will not be vitalized unless there is an amendment without prejudiced to third parties. McArter v. Rhea, 122 N. C. 614, 30 S. E. 128.

The failure to insert the name of the commissioner in the commission to take the deposition is waived by the objecting party appearing at the taking of the deposition and making no objection thereto until after the trial was begun. Womack v. Gross, 135 N. C. 378, 47 S. E. 464; Tomlison Chair Mfg. Co. v. Townsend, 153 N. C. 244, 69 S. E. 145.

Where the provision of this section as to making the objection before trial and in writing are not complied with, the objection to the deposition is waived Woodley v. Hassell, 94 N. C. 157.

For discussion of waiver in general, see 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. 706; as to cross-examination of witnesses, see 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. 707.

Cited in Hood System Industrial Bank v. Dixie Oil Co., 205 N. C. 778, 779, 172 S. E. 360.

§ 1820. Deposition not quashed after trial begun.—No deposition shall be quashed, or rejected, on objection first made after a trial has begun, merely because of an irregularity in taking the same, provided it shall appear that the party objecting had notice that it had been taken, and it was on file long enough before the trial to enable him to present his objection. (Rev., s. 1647; Code, s. 1360; 1869-70, c. 227, s. 12.)

Cross References.—See 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. 703 et seq.; 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 744; as to rights to suppress in general, see 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. 698 et seq.; 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 743; see also section 1819 and notes thereto; as to waiver of former defects, see note of McArter v. Rhea, 122 N. C. 614, 30 S. E. 128, under section 1819 and references there made.

Opportunity to Object before Trial.—Where a deposition was open and on file before the trial, and an objection thereto was made for the first time on the trial, it was held that the objection could not be sustained. Morgan v. Royal Fraternal Ass'n, 170 N. C. 75, 81, 86 S. E. 975; citing Ivey v. Bessemer City Cotton Mills, 143 N. C. 189, 55

S. E. 613. And this is true whether the motion is to quash the deposition in whole or in part. Carroll v. Hodges, 98 N. C. 418, 4 S. E. 199.

Filing as Notice.—Where the deposition had been on file for two or three months before the trial, the appellant's counsel having notice and being present when it was opened by the clerk and ordered by him to be read in evidence on the trial, and they making no objections thereto, it was held that such deposition could not be quashed on oral objection made at the trial. Carroll v. Hodges, 98 N. C. 418, 4 S. E. 199.

As to failure to give notice to adverse party, see note of Bryan v. Jeffreys, 104 N. C. 242, 10 S. E. 167, under section 1819. See also, Notice, 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. 704.

Preservation of Exception.—Where a commissioner to take depositions has, over the objection and exceptions of a party litigant, denied him the right of cross-examination of a witness of his opponent, and has appealed therefrom to the trial court, and preserved his right, the exception gives notice of the grounds upon which it was based, and on his motion on the trial, the deposition relating to that part of the evidence will be stricken out. Sugg v. St. Mary's Oil Engine Co., 193 N. C. 814, 138 S. E. 169.

Incompetent Questions. — Since a deposition can be quashed only for irregularities in the taking or the incompetency of witnesses, objection should be taken to the questions and answers of the deponent by way of exception and not by motion to quash the depositions. Jeffords v. Albemarle Waterworks, 157 N. C. 10, 72 S. E. 624.

Stated in Gulf States Steel Co. v. Ford, 173 N. C. 195, 91 S. E. 844.

§ 1821. When deposition may be read on the trial.—Every deposition taken and returned in the manner provided by law may be read on the trial of the action or proceeding, or before any referee, in the following cases, and not otherwise:

1. If the witness is dead, or has become insane since the deposition was taken.

2. If the witness is a resident of a foreign country, or of another state, and is not present at the trial.

3. If the witness is confined in a prison outside the county in which the trial takes place.

4. If the witness is so old, sick or infirm as to be unable to attend court.

5. If the witness is the president of the United States, or the head of any department of the federal government, or a judge, district attorney, or clerk of any court of the United States, and the trial shall take place during the term of such court.

6. If the witness is the governor of the state, or the head of any department of the state government, or the president of the university, or the head of any other incorporated college in the state, or the superintendent or any physician in the employ of any of the hospitals for the insane for the state.

7. If the witness is a justice of the supreme court, or a judge, presiding officer, clerk or solicitor of any court of record, and the trial shall take place during the term of such court.

8. If the witness is a member of the congress of the United States, or a member of the general assembly, and the trial shall take place during a session of the body of which he is a member.

9. If the witness has been duly summoned, and at the time of the trial is out of the state, or is more than seventy-five miles by the usual public mode of travel from the place where the court is sitting, without the procurement or consent of the party offering his deposition.

10. If the action is pending in a justice's court the deposition may be read on the trial of the action, provided the witness is more than seventy-five miles by the usual public mode of travel from the place where the court is sitting. (Rev., s. 1645; Code, s. 1358; R. C., c. 31, s. 63; 1777, c. 115, ss. 39, 40, 41; 1803, c. 633; 1828, c. 24, ss. 1, 2; 1836, c. 30; 1869-70, c. 227, s. 11; 1881, c. 279, ss. 1, 3; 1905, c. 366; 1919, c. 324.)

Cross References.—For full treatment of admissibility, see 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. 699 et seq.; 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 743. As to manner, form, and time of taking exceptions, see sections, 1819, 1820 and notes thereto; as to grounds of taking, see 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. 687 et seq.; 13 N. C. Enc. Dig. 742; as to depositions in criminal actions, see section 1812 and notes thereto, together with references there made; as to parties entitled to use depositions, see 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. 703.

Witnesses Must Be Summoned. — As this section originally stood it was not required of the plaintiff to summon the witnesses. Barnhardt v. Smith, 86 N. C. 473. But since the addition of the words "if the witness has been duly summoned," the witness must be under subpoena at the time the depositions are taken. Sparrow v. Blount, 90 N. C. 514, 515.

Right of Rebuttal.—The party contesting the admissibility of the deposition may show that the witness lives within seventy-five miles of the court, in which case the deposition cannot be read. Sparrow v. Blount, 90 N. C. 514.

Selected Parts.—It is not permissible to introduce selected portions of depositions without offering the whole. Sternberg v. Crockon, etc., Co., 172 N. C. 731, 90 S. E. 935.

Witness Unable to Talk.—The deposition of a witness adjudged to be unable to talk or remain in court is admissible in evidence under this section. Willeford v. Bailey, 132 N. C. 402, 43 S. E. 928.

Where Admissible in Subsequent Action.—In the trial of an action a deposition regularly taken in another action between the same parties and involving the same subject matter is admissible as substantive evidence. Hartis v. Charlotte Elect. R. Co., 162 N. C. 236, 78 S. E. 164. It may be introduced whether the deponent was examined as a witness in the case being tried or not. Mabe v. Mabe, 122 N. C. 552, 29 S. E. 843.

The difference between hearsay evidence and that obtained by deposition, as pointed out by the court in the Hartis case, lies in the fact that in the latter instance the testimony is taken before one who is empowered to administer oaths, and the adverse party is given full opportunity to cross-examine.—Ed. Note.

Same—Where Action Survives.—Where the deposition de bene esse of the plaintiff in an action has been taken in accordance with law, who has since died, but the cause of action survives, it may properly be read in evidence in behalf of those who survive him in interest, and have properly been made parties to the original action. Barbee v. Cannady, 191 N. C. 529, 132 S. E. 572.

Meaning of "Duly Summoned."—By reasonable construction the ninth sub-division of this section means that where the deposition has been regularly taken, and where the witness is more than seventy-five miles from the place of trial without the consent of the party, and the presence of the witness cannot be procured, the deposition may be read if a subpoena has been duly issued—not necessarily served. Tomlinson Chair Mfg. Co. v. Townsend, 153 N. C. 244, 69 S. E. 145.

§ 1822. Depositions taken in the state to be used in another state:

1. By whom obtained. In addition to the other remedies prescribed by law, a party to an action, suit or special proceeding, civil or criminal, pending in a court without the state, either in the United States or any of the possessions thereof, or any foreign country, may obtain, by the proceedings prescribed by this section, the testimony of a witness and in connection therewith the production of books and papers within the state to be used in the action, suit or special proceeding.

2. Application filed. Where a commission to take testimony within the state has been issued from the court in which the action, suit or special proceeding is pending, or where a notice has been given, or any other proceeding has been taken for the purpose of taking the testimony within the state pursuant to the laws of the state or country wherein the court is located, or pursuant to the laws of the United States or any of the possessions thereof, if it is a court of the United States, the person desiring such testimony, or the production of papers and documents, may present a verified petition to any justice of the supreme court or judge of the superior court, stating generally the nature of the action or proceeding in which the testimony is sought to be taken, and that the testimony of the witness is material to the issue presented in such action or proceeding, and he shall set forth the substance of or have annexed to his petition a copy of the commission, order, notice, consent or other authority under which the deposition is taken. In case of an application for a subpœna to compel the production of books or papers, the petition shall specify the particular books or papers, the production of which is sought, and show that such books or papers are in the possession of or under the control of the witness and are material upon the issues presented in the action or special proceeding in which the deposition of the witness is sought to be taken.

3. Subpœna issued. Upon the filing of such petition, if the justice of the supreme court or judge of the superior court is satisfied that the application is made in good faith to obtain testimony within the provisions of this section, he shall issue a subpœna to the witness, commanding him to appear before the commissioner named in the commission, or before a commissioner within the state, for the state, territory or foreign country in which the notice was given or the proceeding taken, or before the officer designated in the commission, notice or other paper, by his title or office, at a time and place specified in the subpœna, to testify in the action, suit or special proceeding. Where the subpœna directs the production of books or papers, it shall specify the particular books or papers to be produced, and shall specify whether the witness is required to deliver sworn copies of such books or papers to the commissioner or to produce the original thereof for inspection, but such books and original papers shall not be taken from the witness. This subpœna must be served upon the witness at least two days, or, in case of a subpœna requiring the production of books or papers, at least five days before the day on which the witness is commanded to appear. A party to an action or proceeding in which a deposition is sought to be taken or a witness subpœnaed to attend and give his testimony, may apply to the court issuing such subpœna to vacate or modify the same.

4. Witness compelled to attend and testify. If the witness shall fail to obey the subpœna, or refuse to have an oath administered, or to testify or to produce a book or paper pursuant to a subpœna, or to subscribe his deposition, the justice or judge issuing the subpœna shall, if it is determined that a contempt has been committed, prescribe punishment as in case of a recalcitrant witness. Upon proof by affidavit that a person to whom a subpœna was issued has failed or refused to obey such subpœna, to be duly sworn or affirmed, to testify or answer a question propounded to him, to produce a book or paper which he has been subpœnaed to produce, or to subscribe to his deposition when correctly taken down, the justice or judge shall grant an order requiring such person to show cause before him, at a time and place specified, why he should not appear, be sworn or affirmed, testify, answer a question propounded, produce a book or paper, or subscribe to the deposition, as the case may be. Such affidavit shall set forth the nature of the action or special proceeding in which the testimony is sought to be taken, and a copy of the pleadings or other papers defining the issues in such action or special proceeding, or the facts to be proved therein. Upon the return of such order to show cause, the justice or judge shall, upon such affidavit and upon the original petition and upon such other facts as shall appear, determine whether such person should be required to appear, be sworn or affirmed, testify, answer the question propounded, produce the books or papers, or subscribe to his deposition, as the case may be, and may prescribe such terms and conditions as shall seem proper. Upon proof of a failure or refusal on the part of any person to comply with any order of the court made upon such determination, the justice or judge shall make an order requiring such person to show cause before him, at a time and place therein specified, why such person should not be punished for the offense as for a contempt. Upon the return of the order to show cause, the questions which arise must be determined as upon a motion. If such failure or refusal is established to the satisfaction of the justice or judge before whom the order to show cause is made returnable, he shall enforce the order and prescribe the punishment as hereinbefore provided.

5. Deposit for costs required. The commissioner herein provided for shall not proceed to act under and by virtue of his appointment until the party seeking to obtain such deposition has deposited with him a sufficient sum of money to cover all costs and charges incident to the taking of the deposition, including such witness fees as are allowed to witnesses in this state for attendance upon the superior courts. From such deposit the commissioner shall retain whatever amount may be due him for services, pay the witness fees and other costs that may have been incurred by reason of taking such deposition, and if any balance remains in his hands, he shall pay the same to the party by whom it was advanced. (Rev., s. 1655; 1903, c. 608.)

Art. 8A. Perpetuation of Testimony

§ 1822(1). Relief afforded by superior courts.— The relief afforded in courts of equity by what is known as a "bill to perpetuate testimony" shall be afforded by the superior courts of this State. (1935, c. 254, s. 1.)

§ 1822(2). How to obtain relief. — Such relief may be obtained either by a special proceeding before the clerk of the superior court, or by a civil action brought to the superior court in term. (1935, c. 254, s. 2.)

§ 1822(3). Rules of procedure; admissibility of testimony taken.—Such special proceedings and civil actions shall be governed by the same rules of procedure that govern other special proceedings and civil actions; and the testimony taken therein shall be admissible in the trial of any controversy, under the same regulations and restrictions which govern depositions taken in other cases in which the taking of depositions is provided for by the laws of this State: Provided, however, the evidence so perpetuated shall not be competent against any person who was not served with notice now provided by law for the taking of depositions in civil causes to be present and cross examine said witnesses. (1935, c. 254, s. 3.)

§ 1822(4). Taxing costs. — The costs of such special proceedings and civil actions shall be taxed against the party at whose instance the proceeding is instituted. (1935, c. 254, s. 4.)

Art. 9. Inspection and Production of Writings

§ 1823. Inspection of writings.—The court before which an action is pending, or a judge thereof, may, in their discretion, and upon due notice, order either party to give to the other, within a specified time, an inspection and copy, or permission to take a copy, of any books, papers, and documents in his possession or under his control, containing evidence relating to the merits of the action or the defense therein. If compliance with the order be refused, the court, on motion, may exclude the paper from being given in evidence, or punish the party refusing, or both. (Rev., s. 1656; Code, s. 578; R. C., c. 31, s. 82; R. S., c. 31, s. 86; 1821, c. 1095; C. C. P., s. 331; 1828, c. 7.)

Cross References.—For full discussion of subject, see 5 N. C. Enc. Dig. 673 et seq.; 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 120 et seq.; see section 1824 and notes thereto; as to vacation of order, see 5 N. C. Enc. Dig. 674; as to examination of adverse party, see section 900 and notes there placed.

Editor's Note.—This section is quite similar to the provisions of section 1824 and must be construed therewith. In many of the cases the courts have used the term "production" when more properly the term "inspection" should be used, as the case was decided primarily under the provisions of section 1823. The reasoning used by the courts would indicate that this use of language has not been through inadvertence, but on the other hand would seem to furnish an additional support to the statement that the two sections are kindred in their nature and substance.

Liberally Construed.—This section is remedial, and should be liberally construed to advance the remedy intended thereby to be afforded. Abbitt v. Gregory, 196 N. C. 9, 11, 144 S. E. 297.

Discretion of Court.—Whether the trial court shall grant an order for the inspection of writings upon a sufficient affidavit rests in his sound discretion. Dunlap v. London Guaranty, etc., Co., 202 N. C. 651, 163 S. E. 750.

Application for Order.—While a "roving commission for the inspection of papers" will not be ordinarily allowed, an application for an order for inspection of writings is sufficiently definite when it refers to papers under the exclusive control of the adverse party, which relate to the immediate issue in controversy, which could not be definitely described, and an order based thereon will be upheld. Bell v. Murchison National Bank, 196 N. C. 233, 145 S. E. 241.

Substitute for Bill of Discovery.—This section is primarily designed and intended to afford the facilities for the ascertainment of truths that were formerly supplied by a bill of discovery. Girard Nat. Bank v. McArthur, 165 N. C. 374, 81 S. E. 327.

Must Be Pertinent to Issue.—Upon motion to allow inspection or copy of books, papers, etc., before trial, it must be made to appear that the instrument in question relates to the merits of the action or is pertinent to the issue. Evans v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 167 N. C. 415, 83 S. E. 617.

Where No Information Could Be Gained.—Under this section, a person will not be ordered to allow an inspection of the paper-writing if the party making the request knows the contents thereof. Sheek v. Sain, 127 N. C. 266, 37 S. E. 334. The court said: "The object of this section is to enable a party to get information that he did not have, or to give him more definite information, or data, than he already had." Id.

Inspection within Specified Time.—This section only authorizes the judge to order one party to exhibit the writing to the other and require a copy to be given him or permit him to take a copy of the same, within a specified time. Sheek v. Sain, 127 N. C. 266, 272, 37 S. E. 334. It was not intended that there should be an investigation of the controversies—a kind of inferior court or petty trial—with witnesses and lawyers on both sides. Id.

An examination of an adverse party, under § 900 et seq., may be joined with an order under this section for an inspection of writings, in the possession or under the control of the party to be examined. Abbitt v. Gregory, 196 N. C. 9, 11, 144 S. E. 297.

Due Notice Required.—The inspection as provided for in this section can only be had upon the order of the court, made after due notice. Vann v. Lawrence, 111 N. C. 32, 34, 15 S. E. 1031.

Same—Duration of Notice.—A notice to produce papers, etc., "on a trial to be had this day," is not confined to a trial on that day, but extends to a trial at a subsequent term. State v. Kimbrough, 13 N. C. 431.

As an Aid to Frame Complaint.—In an action by a stockholder of a corporation to set aside as fraudulent an assignment by the corporation of a contract, the plaintiff is entitled under this section to inspect the records and books of the corporation in order to obtain information upon which to frame his complaint. Holt v. Southern Finishing, etc., Co., 116 N. C. 480, 487, 21 S. E. 919. This is true even though their evidence may result in pecuniary injury. Id.

Depositing the Papers Not Required.—This section does not authorize the judge or clerk to issue an order that the respondent be required to deposit the papers in the clerk's office. Mills v. Biscoe Lumber Co., 139 N. C. 524, 52 S. E. 200.

Extent of Admission.—The papers, when produced by the method herein prescribed, are competent evidence for all legitimate purposes. Austin v. Secrest, 91 N. C. 214, 218.

Applicability of Res Judicata.—An order of the judge, reversing an order of the clerk with reference to the production of papers, is a discretionary matter, and being an administrative order in the cause, and not affecting the merits, is not res judicata and the motion can be renewed and a new order obtained. Mills v. Biscoe Lumber Co., 139 N. C. 524, 52 S. E. 200.

Motion to Nonsuit.—A motion to nonsuit a plaintiff for not producing books or papers, cannot be made unless a previous order of the court has been obtained for the production of such books or papers. Graham v. Hamilton, 25 N. C. 381.

Where Inspection Refused.—Where the judge refuses an inspection which is of the character authorized by this section, it still rests within his discretion to compel the production of the writing later or upon trial, when its competency and pertinency as evidence bearing on the issue may be better determined. Evans v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 167 N. C. 415, 83 S. E. 617.

The affidavit supporting an order for inspection of writings must sufficiently designate the writings sought to be inspected and show that they are material to the inquiry, and where the affidavit is insufficient the order based thereon is invalid. Dunlap v. London Guaranty, etc., Co., 202 N. C. 651, 163 S. E. 750.

Review. — Where the trial court, within its discretion, has ordered a party to give to the other an inspection and copy of certain books, papers or documents containing material evidence, and the order is supported by sufficient findings of fact, and there is no evidence of abuse of such discretion, the order is not reviewable on appeal, and the appeal will be dismissed. Abbitt v. Gregory, 196 N. C. 9, 144 S. E. 297.

Reviewal by Supreme Court.—The Supreme Court will not pass upon the propriety of discharging a rule for the production of papers under this section unless the facts are stated upon which the application is based. Maxwell v. McDowell, 50 N. C. 391.

Appeal Allowed.—An appeal lies from an order requiring a person to allow an inspection of paper writings. Sheek v. Sain, 127 N. C. 266, 37 S. E. 334.

Applied to note for purpose of taking photographic copy thereof, in Girard Nat. Bank v. McArthur, 165 N. C. 374, 81 S. E. 327. Applied in Long v. Oxford, 104 N. C. 408, 10 S. E. 525, to determine the genuineness of a new promise on an indebtedness set up by the plaintiff to defendant's plea of the statute of limitations.

Stated in McDonald v. Carson, 94 N. C. 497; Whitten v. Western Union Tel. Co., 141 N. C. 361, 54 S. E. 289; Harper v. Pinkston, 112 N. C. 293, 17 S. E. 161.

§ 1824. Production of writings.—The courts have full power, on motion and due notice thereof given, to require the parties to produce books or writings in their possession or control which contain evidence pertinent to the issue, and if a plaintiff shall fail to comply with such order, and shall not satisfactorily account for his failure, the court, on motion, may give the like judgment for the defendant, as in cases of nonsuit; and if a defendant shall fail to comply with such order, and shall not satisfactorily account for his failure, the court, on motion as aforesaid, may give judgment against him by default. (Rev., s. 1657; Code, s. 1373; R. C., c. 31, s. 25; 1821, c. 1095; 1828, c. 7.)

Cross Reference.—See full treatment in 5 N. C. Enc. Dig. 673 et seq.; 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 120 et seq., see section 1823 and notes thereto.

As to requirement of pertinence to issue, see note of Evans v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 167 N. C. 415, 83 S. E. 617, under section 1823.

Complaint Essential.—A court cannot under this section order the production of papers by the defendant where no complaint has been filed, so that, in case the papers are not produced, the court can render judgment for the plaintiff, according to the provision of the section. Branson v. Fentress, 35 N. C. 165.

Where No Answer Filed.—Where no answer has been filed, the defendant is not entitled to an order to inspect a check in possession of the plaintiff, under this section. Sheek v. Sain, 127 N. C. 266, 37 S. E. 334.

Proof by Parol.—The contents of a paper writing cannot be proved by parol, unless notice has been given to the adverse party, who has it in possession to produce it on trial. Murchison v. McLeod, 47 N. C. 239.

As to requirement of notice, see note of Vann v. Lawrence, 111 N. C. 32, 15 S. E. 1031, under section 1823.

Due notice is notice sufficient to enable the party to have the document when called for. McDonald v. Carson, 95 N. C. 377.

Generally if a party dwells in another town than that in which the trial is had, a service of notice upon him at the place where the trial is had, or after he has left home to attend court, to produce papers, is not sufficient. Beard v. Southern R. Co., 143 N. C. 136, 55 S. E. 505.

As to extent of admission, see note of Austin v. Secrest, 91 N. C. 214, under section 1823.

Affidavit for Non-Production.—Where the plaintiff's affidavit stated that he had not seen the letter (ordered produced) since he first sent it, that he had not knowingly destroyed it, and had made diligent search for it and could not find it, thus it was held to be sufficient cause shown for a discharge of the rule for its production. Fuller v. McMillan, 44 N. C. 206.

Stated in McDonald v. Carson, 94 N. C. 497.

§ 1825. Admission of genuineness.—Either party may exhibit to the other, or to his attorney, at any time before the trial, any paper material to the action, and request an admission in writing of its genuineness. If the adverse party, or his attorney, fail to give the admission within four days after the request, and if the party exhibiting the paper be afterwards put to expense in order to prove its genuineness, and the same be finally proved or admitted on the trial, such expense, to be ascertained at the trial, shall be paid by the party refusing the admission, unless it appear to the satisfaction of the court that there were good reasons for the refusal. (Rev., s. 1658; Code, s. 578; R. C., c. 31, s. 82; R. S., c. 31, s. 86; 1821, c. 1095; 1828, c. 7; C. C. P., s. 331.)

Comments by Counsel.—Counsel may comment as to the truth of the contents of an instrument as suggested by its appearance, even after the admission in writing under this section that the instrument is genuine. Knight v. Houghtalling, 85 N. C. 17.

Art. 10. Confederate Currency

§ 1826. Scale of depreciation.—Contracts solvable in Confederate currency may be discharged according to the following scale of depreciation of Confederate currency, the gold dollar being the unit and measure of value, from November first, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-one, to May first, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five:

Months	1861	1862	1863	1864	1865

December 10th to 20th, inclusive	....	....	.....	42.00
December 20th to 30th, inclusive	....	....	.....	49.00

This scale applies to the time of contracting and not to the times said debts become due. (Rev., s. 1659; Code ss. 2495, 2496; 1866, c. 39, s. 1; 1866-7, c. 44.)

CHAPTER 36

FENCES AND STOCK LAW

Art. 1. Lawful Fences

§ 1827. Fences to be five feet high.—Every planter shall make a sufficient fence about his cleared ground under cultivation, at least five feet high, unless otherwise provided in this chapter, unless there shall be some navigable stream or deep watercourse that shall be sufficient, instead of such fence, and unless his lands shall be situated within the limits of a county township or district wherein the stock law may be in force. (Rev., s. 1660; Code, s. 2799; R. C., c. 48, s. 1; 1777, c. 121, s. 2; 1791, c. 354, s. 1.)

For full treatment of fences, see 6 N. C. Enc. Dig. 441; as to defective fences, see 1 N. C. Enc. Dig. 372.

Requirements Mandatory.—Proof that plaintiff's fence is a "good ordinary one" such as the neighbors have, does not dispense with the obligation imposed by this section. Runyan v. Patterson, 87 N. C. 343.

A pasture field is not "ground under cultivation," within the meaning of this section, irrespective of whether it is woods pasture or cleared pasture. State v. Perry, 64 N. C. 305, 306.

The word "planter" as used in this section does not include hirelings, laborers or employees who have no discretion as to the plans for fencing. State v. Taylor, 69 N. C. 543.

Effect of Failure to Comply with Section.—If the statutory requirement is not complied with one cannot recover damages caused by animals of another, although the animal may be vicious and the fences are "good ordinary ones" such as the plaintiff's neighbors have. Runyan v. Patterson, 87 N. C. 343.

Cited in State v. Anderson, 123 N. C. 705, 31 S. E. 219.

§ 1828. Local: Four and a half feet in certain counties.—A fence four and one half feet high is a lawful fence in the counties of Alleghany, Bladen, Brunswick, Burke, Caldwell, Cherokee, Craven,

Cumberland, Currituck, Davie, Davidson, Duplin, Harnett, Henderson, Jackson, Lenoir, Perquimans, Randolph, Richmond, Robeson, Rutherford, Sampson, Tyrrell, Yancey, Wake, Washington and Wilkes. This section does not apply to stock-law fences, nor in Tyrrell county to wire fences which are lawful fences if four feet high. (Rev., s. 1661; 1889, c. 175; 1891, c. 36; 1905, c. 3, 333; 1909, cc. 55, 94; P. L. 1911, c. 15.)

§ 1829. Local: Four feet in certain counties.—A fence four feet high is a lawful fence in the counties of Bertie, Buncombe, Carteret, Hyde, Madison, McDowell, New Hanover, Northampton and Pamlico. (Rev., s. 1662; 1885, c. 304; 1887, c. 66; 1889, c. 390; 1903, cc. 66, 211; 1909, c. 178, s. 2; P. L. Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 48.)

§ 1830. Watercourse made lawful fence by county commissioners.—Any five electors, residents of the same county, may apply to the board of commissioners of the county, at any regular meeting of the same, by written petition praying that any watercourse, or any part of any watercourse, in the county, may be made a lawful fence. Notice of such petition shall be posted forty days at the courthouse door, by the clerk of the board, before such petition shall be acted upon. Upon the hearing of such petition, the board of county commissioners is authorized to declare any watercourse, or any part of any watercourse to which the petition applies, a lawful fence. And the several acts of the general assembly, declaring certain watercourses, in part or in whole, lawful fences, are so far repealed as to enable the board of commissioners of any county to declare any such acts, or parts thereof, to be null and void in said county. Any order made under this section shall be of record and signed by the chairman, and may be rescinded by the board of commissioners at any regular meeting. (Rev., s. 1663; Code, ss. 2808, 2809, 2810; 1872-3, c. 98.)

§ 1831. Injury to wire fence forbidden. — If any person shall willfully destroy, cut or injure any part of wire fence or a fence composed partly of wire and partly of wood situated on the land of another, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be imprisoned not exceeding thirty days or fined not exceeding fifty dollars. (Rev., s. 3413; 1889, c. 516.)

Purpose of Section.—This section is not in conflict with section 4317, as that section was meant to protect the inclosure while this one was meant to protect the fences irrespective of whether or not they enclosed any field. State v. Biggers, 108 N. C. 760, 12 S. E. 1024.

Art. 2. Division Fences

§ 1832. Division fences maintainable jointly.—Where two or more persons have lands adjoining, which are either cultivated or used as a pasture for stock, the respective owners of each piece of land shall make and maintain one-half of the fence upon the dividing line. (Rev., s. 1664; Code, s. 2800; 1868-9, c. 275, s. 1.)

§ 1833. Remedy against delinquent owner.—If any person who is liable to build or keep up a part of any division fence fails at any time to do so, the owner of the adjoining land, after notice, may build or repair the whole, and recover of the delinquent one-half of the cost before any court having jurisdiction. (Rev., s. 1670; Code, s. 2807; 1868-9, c. 275, s. 7.)

Only Civil Liability.—A violation of this section does not subject the wrongdoer to indictment. His liability is civil only. State v. Watson, 86 N. C. 626.

§ 1834. Fence erected because of changed use of land.—If the owner of a tract of land, who chooses neither to cultivate it, to use it as a pasture, nor to permit his stock to run on it, afterwards uses it in either of these ways and does not so enclose his stock that they cannot enter on the lands of an adjoining owner, he shall refund to such owner one-half the value of any fence erected by the latter on the dividing line. (Rev., s. 1665; Code, s. 2801; 1868-9, c. 275, s. 2.)

§ 1835. When owner may remove his part of division fence.—If any owner of land liable to contribute for the keeping up of a division fence determines neither to cultivate his land nor permit his stock to run thereon, he may give the adjoining owner three months notice of his determination; and in that case, at any time after the expiration of such notice and between the first day of January and the first day of March, but at no other time, he may remove the half of the fence kept up by himself, and shall be no longer liable to keep up the same. (Rev., s. 1671; Code, s. 2802; 1903, c. 20; 1868-9, c. 275, s. 8; 1883, c. 111.)

Counties Not Subject to Stock Law.—In counties where the "stock law" is applicable, this section will not be applied and a division fence may be dispensed with at any time without notice. State v. Edmonds, 121 N. C. 679, 28 S. E. 545.

Liability for Violating.—A violation of this section will not subject one to indictment. State v. Watson, 86 N. C. 626.

§ 1836. Proceeding to value division fence.—The value of such fence shall be ascertained as follows: Either owner may summon the other to appear before any justice of the peace of the township in which the dividing line is situate; or if it be situate in more than one township, then before any justice of the peace of any township in which any part of it is situate. In his summons he shall name a certain day, not less than five days after the summons, for the appearance of the defendant; he shall also state the purpose of the summons to be the adjustment of all matters in controversy respecting the dividing fence between the parties. The justice shall hear the complaint and defense. If the facts be found such as entitle either party to demand contribution of the other, the justice shall call on the complainant to name an indifferent person, qualified to act as a juror of the township, and if the complainant refuses the justice shall name one for him. The justice shall then call on the defendant to name an indifferent person, qualified to act as a juror of the township, and if the defendant refuses the justice shall name one for him. The justice shall then name a third indifferent person. These three persons, or any two of them, shall view the premises and decide all matters in controversy between the parties, relating to a fence on the dividing line. They shall make a written report to the justice, who shall give judgment thereon, and for the costs, which shall be paid by the owners of the several pieces of land equally. The jurors shall each receive one dollar per day. The fees of the justice and constable shall be as in other cases. Either party may appeal as provided in other cases of justices' judgments. (Rev., s. 166; Code, s. 2803; 1868-9, c. 275, s. 3.)

§ 1837. Contents of jurors' report.—The report of the jurors shall also state the kind of fence which ought to be kept up, and assign to each owner, in such manner as that it may be identified, the part which he shall keep up. (Rev., s. 1667; Code, s. 2804; 1868-9, c. 275, s. 4.)

§ 1838. Register to record report.—The justice shall return the report, together with a transcript of the proceedings, to the register of deeds of his county for registration. The justice shall collect from the parties the fees of the register, and pay the same to him. (Rev., s. 1668; Code, s. 2805; 1868-9, c. 275, s. 5.)

§ 1839. Final judgment on report; effect.—The final judgment upon the report of the jurors shall be binding on the owners of the respective lands and their assigns, so long as such ownership shall continue, or until the same shall be set aside, modified or reversed. (Rev., s. 1669; Code, s. 2806; 1868-9, c. 275, s. 6.)

§ 1840. Removal of common fence misdemeanor.—If any person owning, occupying, cultivating or being in possession of any lands under a common fence protecting the lands, crops or property of others, shall remove such fence or any part thereof during the time in which any crops are growing or being actually cultivated thereon, or property is protected by such fence, and before such crops are harvested, without the consent and permission of such person or persons whose crop or property is protected by such common fence, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days: Provided, that the provisions of this section shall not apply when ninety days notice of such removal shall have been given to all persons owning, cultivating or in possession of lands surrounded by such common fence, or having property protected thereby, and when thereafter such fence shall be removed between the first day of January and the first day of March following such notice of intended removal. (Rev., s. 3412; Code, s. 2820; 1903, c. 20.)

As to liability for removal in general, see 6 N. C. Enc. Dig. 453.

Editor's Note.—When a fence is altogether on the land of a person, although used as a common fence he has the right to move it and he is not subject to criminal prosecution, but a civil right might arise under sec. 1835. State v. Watson, 86 N. C. 626. Neither will an indictment lie for removing a fence when the party removing the fence has possession of the land on both sides of the fence although title may be in the prosecutor, and the defendant is only a tenant by curtesy. State v. Williams, 44 N. C. 197.

Cited in State v. Dunn, 95 N. C. 697.

Art. 3. Stock Law

§ 1841. Term "stock" defined.—The word "stock" in this chapter shall be construed to mean horses, mules, colts, cows, calves, sheep, goats, jennets, and all neat cattle, swine and geese. (Rev., s. 1681; Code, s. 2822.)

Editor's Note.—For an act to place certain portions of Dare county under the statewide stock law, see Public Laws of 1935, chapter 263.

Dogs.—A dog is not "stock" within the meaning of the section, but is nevertheless subject to larceny. Meekins v. Simpson, 176 N. C. 130, 96 S. E. 894.

§ 1842. County elections.—Upon the written application of one-fifth of the qualified voters of any county made to the board of commissioners thereof, it shall be the duty of the commissioners from time to time to submit the question of "stock law" or "no stock law" to the qualified voters of said county. And if at any such election a majority of the votes cast is in favor of "stock law," then the provisions of this chapter relating to the stock law shall be in force over the whole of said county. (Rev., s. 1672; Code, s. 2812.)

As to proceedings in general, see 6 N. C. Enc. Dig. 449; as to "majority of qualified voters," see N. C. Const. Art. VII, sec. 7.

In General.—In a county where only a part of the townships have stock laws, an election covering the whole county is held valid, and it does not interfere with the principles of local self-government. Smalley v. Board, 122 N. C. 607, 29 S. E. 904; Perry v. Board, 130 N. C. 558, 41 S. E. 787.

Mandamus to Compel Election.—When a petition duly signed by the required number of voters is filed with the commissioners, and they refuse to call an election, mandamus may be brought to compel them to grant the petition. Perry v. Board, 130 N. C. 558, 41 S. E. 787.

§ 1843. Township elections.—Upon the written application of one-fifth of the qualified voters in any township, made to the board of commissioners of the county wherein the township is situated, it shall be the duty of the commissioners to submit the question of "stock law" or "no stock law" to the qualified voters of the township; and if at any such township election a majority of the votes cast is in favor of "stock law," then the stock law shall be in force in said township. (Rev., s. 1673; Code. s. 2813.)

In General.—The fact that a township has "stock laws" does not bar the voters in that township from voting in a county election. Smalley v. Board, 122 N. C. 607, 29 S. E. 904.

§ 1844. District elections.—Upon the written application of one-fifth of the qualified voters of any district or any territory, whether the boundaries of said district follow township lines or not, made to the board of county commissioners at any time, and setting forth well-defined boundaries of the district, it shall be the duty of the commissioners to submit the question of "stock law" or "no stock law" to the qualified voters of the district, and if at any such election a majority of the votes cast is in favor of "stock law," then the stock law shall be in force over the whole of said district. (Rev., s. 1674; Code, s. 2814.)

"Well Defined Boundaries."—The words are not too indefinite to admit of proof to locate the boundaries where the beginning is "at a certain tract of land," and the difficulty as to the uncertainty of the point of beginning is removed where there is a call for the boundaries of lands of successive proprietors, thence to a certain point. Newsom v. Earnheart, 86 N. C. 391.

Right to Join Districts.—The commissioners have no power when several districts adjoin each other to unite them into one territory, provide for the construction of one boundary fence, and assess a uniform tax on all the real property in the several districts so united to meet the expense of the fence. Bradshaw v. Board, 92 N. C. 278.

§ 1845. Local: How territory released from stock law.—Upon the written application of a majority of the qualified voters in any district, territory or well defined boundary, made to the board of county commissioners, at any time, setting forth that the citizens of said district, territory or boundary are within the stock-law boundary, and are desirous of being released from the laws governing stock-law territory, it shall be the duty of the commissioners to submit the question of "no stock law" or "stock law" to the qualified voters of said district or territory, and if at any such election a majority of the votes cast is against stock law, then the said district or territory shall be released and free from the operation of the stock law: Provided, the expense incurred in changing the fence in such boundary, district or territory so released be paid by the property holders in such boundary, district or territory, and that the commissioners of the county levy the tax to pay the same on the property holders of such boundary, district or territory so released, but they shall not be further liable for keeping up said stock-law fence: Provided, that in any territory where stock law now prevails no election against stock law shall be held in less than two years from the date of the election adopting stock law in said territory: Provided further, that if "no stock law" should carry, it shall not take effect until six months from the date of its ratification: Provided still further, that neither "stock law" nor "no stock law" shall take effect during crop season.

This section applies only to the counties of Cherokee, Clay, Graham, Jackson, Macon, Mitchell, Pender, Randolph, Swain, and to Hogback Township in Transylvania County. (Rev., s. 1675; 1895, c. 35; 1897, cc. 461, 516; 1903, c. 60; 1907, c. 874, s. 3; P. L. 1911, cc. 265, 469; P. L. 1915, c. 379; P. L. 1917, c. 662.)

Editor's Note.—It was at one time the public policy of the State to allow stock to run at large. Jones v. Witherspoon, 52 N. C. 555. A land holder was required to inclose his fields to protect his crops. But this policy has now been changed and except in cases of a petition and majority vote by the residents of a county or district for "no stock-law" the stock must be kept within the close of the owner.

When a "no stock-law" is duly passed, before the stock can be turned out to run at large the district or county passing such law must be inclosed so that the stock will not range out of "no stock-law" territory and on the crops of others, not in the "no stock-law" territory. Marsburn v. Jones, 176 N. C. 516, 97 S. E. 422.

This section provides that the expense incurred in building such a fence shall be paid by a tax on the property holders of the district or county. This certainly does not authorize a tax solely upon the real estate in the county or district. Hawes v. Commissioners, 175 N. C. 268, 95 S. E. 482. Therefore, to raise this fund an election must be held and authority granted by the majority of the voters. Marsburn v. Jones, 176 N. C. 516, 97 S. E. 422.

Section 1860 provides for a tax on the real property of a district or county, but that section is applicable only to districts or counties that pass the "stock-law" and cannot be applied to those passing "no stock-law."

For an act to place certain portions of Dare county under the statewide stock law, see Public Laws of 1935, chapter 263.

§ 1846. How election conducted.—Every election under this chapter shall be held and conducted under the same rules and regulations and according to the same penalties provided by law for the election of members of the general assembly: Provided, no such county, township or district election shall be held oftener than once in any one year, although the boundaries of such district may not be the same. (Rev., s. 1676; Code, s. 2815.)

§ 1847. Powers and duties of county commissioners.—The board of commissioners of the county may provide for a new registration of voters, designate places for holding elections, and make all regulations, and do all other things necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this chapter relating to the stock law. (Rev., s. 1677; Code, s. 2826.)

Building and Repairing Fences.—County commissioners are not required by the stock-law to personally superintend the fence around the no fence territory; they discharge their duty under the statute when they levy the necessary taxes, appoint the committees, etc., to keep the fence in repair. State v. Commissioners, 97 N. C. 388, 1 S. E. 641.

But an owner of stock, however, who resides outside of such territory, is not liable to have his stock impounded within such territory, unless the county commissioners have kept the fence in good repair. In such case the presumption is that the fence is in good order, and the burden of showing the contrary on the party alleging it. Coor v. Rogers, 97 N. C. 143, 1 S. E. 613.

§ 1848. Admission of lands adjoining stock-law territory.—Any person, or any number of persons, owning land in a county, district or township which shall not adopt the stock law, or adjoining any county, township or district where a stock law prevails, may have his or their lands enclosed within any fence built in pursuance of this chapter. All such adjacent lands, when so enclosed, shall be subject to all the provisions of law with respect to livestock running at large within the original district so enclosed, as if it were a part of the township, county or district with which it is hereby authorized to be enclosed. Any number of landowners, whose lands are contiguous, may at any time build a common fence around all their lands, with gates across all public highways; and no livestock shall run at large within any such enclosure, under the pains and penalties prescribed in this chapter. (Rev., s. 1678; Code, s. 2821.)

Cited in Edwards v. Supervisors, 127 N. C. 62, 37 S. E. 73.

§ 1849. Allowing stock at large in stock-law territory forbidden.—If any person shall allow his livestock to run at large within the limits of any county, township or district in which a stock law prevails or shall prevail pursuant to law, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (Rev., s. 3319; Code, s. 2811; 1889, c. 504.)

Cited in State v. Brigman, 94 N. C. 888; dissenting opinion, Daniels v. Homer, 139 N. C. 219, 252, 51 S. E. 992.

§ 1850. Impounding stock at large in territory.—Any person may take up any livestock running at large within any township or district wherein the stock law shall be in force and impound the same; and such impounder may demand fifty cents for each animal so taken up, and twenty-five cents for each animal for every day such stock is kept impounded, and may retain the same, with the right to use it under proper care, until all legal charges for impounding said stock and for damages caused by the same are paid, the damages to be ascertained by two disinterested freeholders, to be selected by the owner and the impounder, the freeholders to select an umpire, if they cannot agree, and their decision to be final. (Rev., s. 1679; Code, s. 2816.)

As to right to impound, see 1 N. C. Enc. Dig. 368; as to larceny of stock and malicious injury to, see secs. 4264, 4265.

Constitutionality. — This and the following sections are constitutional. Hogan v. Brown, 125 N. C. 251, 34 S. E. 411. And resident owners may be required to pay a higher penalty than non-resident owners. Broadfoot v. Fayetteville, 121 N. C. 418, 28 S. E. 515.

Not Applicable to Stock in Control.—This section does not authorize the taking up and impounding of livestock unless running at large, and does not apply to cows securely tied to trees under the immediate control of the owner with the permission of the lessee of the land, and it is forceable trespass to take them away over the protest of the owner, to prevent which the owner may use all necessary force, unless the taking is by appropriate legal proceedings. Kirkpatrick v. Crutchfield, 178 N. C. 348, 100 S. E. 602. See also, State v. Hunter, 118 N. C. 1196, 24 S. E. 708.

Strays from No Fence Territory.—In State v. Mathis, 149 N. C. 546, 548, 63 S. E. 99, Connor, J., said: "While it is usual for the counties or townships which adopt a 'stock law' to build a common fence, it is not necessary that they do so." In State v. Garner, 158 N. C. 630, 74 S. E. 458, the court held that the owner of cattle who permits them to run at large in fence territory, but they stray across the line into a no-fence territory, is liable, though he does not turn them out for that purpose. Owen v. Williamson, 171 N. C. 57, 59, 87 S. E. 959.

Liability for Killing Strayers.—Under this section one has the power to take up a stray, and the law requires that he do so in preference to killing or injuring it. If he wantonly kills such stray, he is guilty of a misdemeanor. State v. Brigman, 94 N. C. 888. See sec. 4494.

§ 1851. Owner notified; sale of stock; application of proceeds.—If the owner of such stock be known to the impounder he shall immediately inform the owner where his stock is impounded, and if the owner shall for two days after such notice willfully refuse or neglect to redeem his stock, then the impounder, after ten days written notice posted at three or more public places within the township where the stock is impounded, and describing the stock and stating place, day and hour of sale, or if the owner be unknown, after twenty days notice in the same manner, and also at the courthouse door, shall sell the stock at public auction, and apply the proceeds in accordance with the preceding and succeeding sections, and the balance he shall turn over to the owner if known, and if the owner be not known, to the county commissioners for the use of the school fund of the district wherein said stock was taken up and impounded, subject in their hands for six months to the call of the legally entitled owner. (Rev., s. 1680; Code, s. 2817.)

As to notice and how given, see 1 N. C. Enc. Dig. 368.

Constitutional.—See notes to preceding section.

§ 1852. Impounding unlawfully misdemeanor.—If any person shall willfully and unlawfully toll, drive, or in any way move any other person's horse, mule, ass, neat cattle, sheep, hog, goat, or dog, from the range or elsewhere, into any stock-law district, or into the limits of any city or town having the right to impound or destroy the same, with intent to secure the poundage or other penalty, or with intent to injure the owner of such animal, or to require him to pay any poundage or penalty on account of such animal, or for hire or reward, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. If any person shall unlawfully and willfully remove any animal above named from any lawful inclosure, with intent to injure the owner, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3309; 1895, c. 141, s. 1.)

§ 1853. Illegally releasing or receiving impounded stock misdemeanor.—If any person unlawfully receives or releases any impounded stock, or unlawfully attempts to do so, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (Rev., s. 3310; Code, s. 2819; 1889, c. 504.)

§ 1854. Impounded stock to be fed and watered.—If any person shall impound, or cause to be impounded in any pound or other place, any animals, and shall fail to supply to the same during such confinement a sufficient quantity of good and wholesome food and water, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (Rev., s. 3311; Code, s. 2484; 1891, c. 65; 1881, c. 368, s. 3.)

§ 1855. Right to feed impounded stock; owner liable.—In case any animal is at any time impounded as aforesaid, and shall continue to be without necessary food and water for more than twelve successive hours, it shall be lawful for any person from time to time, and as often as it shall be necessary, to enter into and upon any such pound or other place in which any animal shall be so confined, and to supply it with necessary food and water so long as it shall remain so confined. Such person shall not be liable to any action for such entry, and the reasonable cost of such food and water may be collected by him of the owner of such animal. (Rev., s. 1682; Code, s. 2485; 1881, c. 368, s. 4.)

In General.—The law recognizes the difference between an impounding fee and a charge for food; for sec. 1850 prescribes the impounding fees for taking up stock running at large, and this section prescribes for payment of feeding such stock when taken up. The former fees go to the officer or the town or county, and the latter is a humane provision without which the stock might suffer for want of food and water. Owen v. Williamston, 171 N. C. 57, 60, 87 S. E. 959.

§ 1856. Injuring lands in stock-law territory by riding or driving.—If any person, by riding or driving upon the lands of another without permission, or while driving livestock along any roadway, public or private, shall willfully, deliberately or recklessly do or permit to be done any actual injury to said land, or to the crops or other property growing or being thereon, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. But no such offender shall be proceeded against unless the party injured, or some one in his behalf, shall cause a warrant to be issued or an indictment to be found against the party offending, within fifteen days after the commission of the offense. (Rev., s. 3321; Code, s. 2828; 1889, c. 118.)

§ 1857. Owner in stock-law territory allowing stock outside.—If any person having stock within the limits of a stock-law territory shall allow the same to run at large beyond the boundaries of said territory, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days: Provided, that a person owning or renting land outside of the stock-law territory may turn his stock upon the said land outside of the stock-law district. (Rev., s. 3322; Code, s. 2827; 1889, c. 266; 1885, c. 371.)

§ 1858. Stock-law territory to be fenced around.—The stock authorized by this chapter shall not be enforced until a fence has been erected around any territory proposed to be enclosed, with gates on all the public roads passing into and going out of said territory: Provided, that all streams which are or may be declared to be lawful fences shall be sufficient boundaries, in lieu of fences: Provided further, no fence shall be erected along the boundary lines of any county, township or district where a stock law prevails. (Rev., s. 1683; Code, s. 2823.)

§ 1859. Commissioners may declare natural barrier sufficient fence.—In any county in the state in which or in any portion of which the stock law is now in force or may hereafter be adopted, the county commissioners of said county in their discretion may declare any watercourse, mountain, mountain range or parts of same, and also other natural and sufficient obstruction along the line of said stock-law territory to be and constitute a sufficient stock-law fence, and in that event such watercourse, mountain, mountain range or part thereof and obstructions so declared by said commissioners shall be and constitute a lawful fence to all intents and purposes. (Rev., s. 1684; 1901, c. 542.)

In General.—It is competent for the county commissioners to forbid stock from running at large within the county, and declare a mountain range, a creek, or other natural line, a fence as the limit within which the law shall operate, and it is not a valid defence that no fence had been built on the line to prevent the stock from the adjoining county to run at large on his side of the line when one is prosecuted for allowing his stock to run at large. State v. Mathis, 149 N. C. 546, 63 S. E. 99.

§ 1860. Assessment of landowners for fence.—For the purpose of building stock-law fences, the board of commissioners of the county may levy and collect a special assessment upon all real property, taxable by the state and county, within the county, township or district which may adopt the stock law, but no such assessment shall be greater than one-fourth of one per centum on the value of said property. (Rev., s. 1685; Code, s. 2824.)

As to tax for no stock-law fence, see notes to sec. 1845; As to taxation in general, see 6 N. C. Enc. Dig. 449.

In General.—In Busbee v. Commissioners, 93 N. C. 143, Smith, C. J., says: "But these local assessments are not under all the restraints put upon the taxing power. They stand upon a different footing and rest upon the equitable and just consideration that lands rendered more valuable by the improvements ought to contribute to the expense of making the improvements, and that these expenses ought not to fall upon the entire body of the taxpayers. The advantage is to the land, and to the persons only as owners of the land."

This section does not authorize the imposition of the assessment on the real estate of a township withdrawn from the benefit of the stock law by express legislative enactment for the purpose of raising money to replace the money withdrawn from the general fund to pay the expenses of fences erected by the commissioners. Harper v. Commissioners Co., 133 N. C. 106, 45 S. E. 526.

Constitutionality.—This section does not come within the prohibition of the State Constitution providing for uniform tax, as this is not of the nature of a tax, but is an assessment to defray expenses of local improvements, although called a tax by the Legislature. Shuford v. Commissioners, 86 N. C. 552; Cain v. Commissioners, 86 N. C. 8.

When Applicable.—The provisions of this section, apply both to the cases where the adoption of the stock law is dependent on a popular vote, and where it is made absolute by an act of the General Assembly. Busbee v. Commissioners, 93 N. C. 143.

District in Two Counties.—If the district organized lies in two counties the assessment shall be as if it was all in one county. Commissioners v. Commissioners, 92 N. C. 180.

Railroad's Liability.—The roadbed and right of way of a railroad are liable to an assessment for local improvements. Commissioners v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 133 N. C. 216, 45 S. E. 566.

Assessment Must be for Stock-Law Fences Only.—An assessment by a county upon the real estate to build a fence for the purpose of keeping the stock in anti-stock-law territory from trespassing is unauthorized by law. Hawes v. Commissioners, 175 N. C. 268, 95 S. E. 482.

§ 1861. Condemnation of land for fence.—If the owner of any land objects to the building of any fence herein allowed, his land, not exceeding twenty feet in width, shall be condemned for the fenceway in accordance with the procedure specified in the article Condemnation Proceedings under the chapter Eminent Domain. (Rev., s. 1686; Code, s. 2825.)

§ 1862. Injury to stock-law fences misdemeanor in stock-law territory.—If any person willfully tears down, or in any manner breaks a fence or gate, or leaves open a gate erected around a stock-law territory, or willfully breaks any enclosure within any township, district or county where a stock law is in force, and wherein any stock is confined, so that the same may escape therefrom, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (Rev., s. 3411; Code, s. 2820; 1889, c. 504.)

As to criminal liability in general, see 6 N. C. Enc. Dig. 453.

Cited in State v. Dunn, 95 N. C. 697, 698.

§ 1863. Impounder violating stock law misdemeanor.— If any impounder willfully misappropriates money that he may receive from sale of stock impounded, or in any manner willfully violates any provisions of the law in regard thereto, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (Rev., s. 3312; Code, s. 2820; 1889, c. 504.)

Cited in State v. Dunn, 95 N. C. 697, 698.

§ 1864. Local: Depredations of domestic fowls in certain counties.—In the counties and parts of counties hereafter enumerated, where the stock law prevails, it shall be unlawful for any person to permit any turkeys, geese, chickens, ducks or other domestic fowls to run at large, after being notified as provided in this section, on the lands of any other person while such lands are under cultivation in any kind of grain or feedstuff, or while being used for gardens or ornamental purposes.

Any person so permitting his fowls to run at large, after having been notified to keep them up, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding five dollars or imprisoned not exceeding five days, or if it shall appear to any justice of the peace that after two days notice any person persists in allowing his fowls to run at large and fails or refuses to keep them upon his own premises, then the said justice of the peace may, in his discretion, order any sheriff, constable or other officer to kill said fowls when so depredating.

CHAPTER 36(A)
FIDUCIARIES

§ 1864(d). Short title.—This law may be cited as the Uniform Fiduciaries Act. (1923, c. 85, s. 14.)

Editor's Note.—This and the following sections constitute the Uniform Fiduciaries Act which was recommended by the national conference of commissioners on uniform state laws in 1922.

The general purpose is to establish uniform and definite rules in place of divers and indefinite rules now prevailing as to constructive notice or breaches of fiduciary obligations, and to facilitate the performance by fiduciaries of their obligations, rather than to favor any particular class of persons dealing with them. In order to prevent occasional breaches of trusts, the courts have sometimes adopted rules which can nevertheless be evaded by dishonest fiduciaries but at the same time seriously hamper honest fiduciaries in the performance of their obligations. Hence the need for regulations overcoming these difficulties and establishing uniformity.

With this general purpose in mind the law is framed so that its application is restricted to the liabilities of the persons dealing with fiduciaries and does not deal with the liabilities of the fiduciaries themselves. It contemplates only situations where the persons dealing with a fiduciary know him to be such so that questions relating to actual or constructive notice of the existence of the trust or other fiduciary obligations are not within the scope of the act. It was suggested by the commissioners that fear that inadequate protection to beneficiaries will result is partially dissipated by the fact that the English courts have adopted similar rules which work well in practice.

It should be observed that in none of the situations dealt with in this act is the standard of due care or negligence made the test of liability. While the act recognizes that there are instances when the person dealing with the fiduciary should be held liable, it proceeds upon the theory that this is true only when acting with actual knowledge or in bad faith, and in such instances only does the person deal with a fiduciary at his own peril.

Same—Prior Law.—Under the law of this State prior to this statute, the law as to the various class of fiduciaries has varied just a little but it was held very generally that where one accepted the assets of the estate held in trust by the fiduciary in payment of an individual debt, he was charged with notice and considered a party to the wrong, and thus a dealer at his peril. So it has been held that in equity (in the early cases the rule at law was otherwise) the executor or administrator can make no valid sale or pledge of the assets as a security for or in payment of his own debt on the principle that the transaction itself gives the purchaser or mortgagee notice of the misapplication. Powell v. Jones, 36 N. C. 337, 338; Bradshaw v. Simpson, 41 N. C. 243, 246. Although the purchaser in good faith at a sale was protected. Gray v. Armistead, 41 N. C. 74. But it was the rule with respect to trustees that the purchaser must put himself on the footing of having an equal equity with the cestui que trust, and this he cannot do if he has notice, actual or constructive, of the trust; for, as the trustee has no right to sell, the sale amounts to a breach of duty, in which the purchaser, of necessity, participates, without reference to the application of the fund. Gray v. Armistead, 41 N. C. 74, 78. And where a party unites with a trustee in a breach of trust, or there were circumstances to put him on guard and awaken suspicion, he was required to repay to the trust fund any of its assets which he received in consequence of the breach of trust. Dancy v. Duncan, 96 N. C. 111, 1 S. E. 455.

To make the purchaser of a legal title trustee for the cestui que trust, it was not necessary that he should have notice of the particular trust. It was sufficient if he had notice that the person, from whom he bought, was but a naked trustee. He ought to have inquired and searched out the cestui que trust. Maples v. Medlin, 5 N. C. 220.

So it was, of course, held that where a guardian transferred a note, payable to him as guardian, without indorsement, to one of his creditors as security for his own debt, and became insolvent, the assignee, though he paid a valuable consideration for the note, having had notice of the trust, was, at the suit of the ward, restrained from collecting the note. Lockhart v. Phillips, 36 N. C. 342.

And where a bond was, on its face, payable to a guardian for the benefit of his ward, this was prima facie notice to one, who took an assignment of it, that it was the property of the ward and subject to his equities. More especially was this the case, where the bond was taken in payment of the personal debt of the guardian, and where it was taken at an oppressive discount. Exum v. Bowden, 39 N. C. 281.

It was settled law, therefore, that when a person got from an administrator, or other person acting in a fiduciary capacity, the trust fund or any part of it as payment of the trustee's own debt, that person could not hold the fund from the cestui que trust any more than the original trustee could have done. Gray v. Armistead, 41 N. C. 74; Wilson v. Doster, 42 N. C. 231; Hendrick v. Gidney, 114 N. C. 543, 546, 19 S. E. 598.

The purchasers from fiduciaries who had no right to sell were not protected even though they had no actual or constructive knowledge of the trust, it would seem, because the purchase itself was presumed to make them parties to the wrong and charge them with notice. And even when the fiduciary had a right generally to sell, much less than actual or particular knowledge in detail was sufficient to convert a person, who co-operated with a dishonest trustee in an act amounting to a breach of trust into a trustee. Constructive notice from the possession of the means of knowledge, had that effect, although the party was actually ignorant, but ignorant merely because he did not investigate. It was well settled, that if anything appeared to a party calculated to attract attention or stimulate inquiry, the person was affected with knowledge of all that the inquiry would have disclosed. Buning v. Ricks, 22 N. C. 130, 134.

From what has been said in this note, it is evident that the law in this State was materially modified, although in the instance of a person dealing with a fiduciary known to be violating his trust or in bad faith the rule is not changed.

§ 1864(e). Definition of terms.—1. In this law unless the context or subject-matter otherwise requires:

"Bank" includes any person or association of persons, whether incorporated or not, carrying on the business of banking.

"Fiduciary" includes a trustee under any trust, expressed, implied, resulting or constructive, executor, administrator, guardian, conservator, curator, receiver, trustee in bankruptcy, assignee for the benefit of creditors, partner, agent, officer of a corporation, public or private, public officer, or any other person acting in a fiduciary capacity for any person, trust or estate.

"Person" includes a corporation, partnership, or other association, or two or more persons having a joint or common interest.

"Principal" includes any person to whom a fiduciary as such owes an obligation.

2. A thing is done "in good faith" within the meaning of this law when it is in fact done honestly, whether it be done negligently or not. (1923, c. 85, s. 1.)

Origin of Definitions—"Bank."—The definition of "banks" contained in this section was taken from the Uniform Negotiable Instruments Act, section 2976 of this Code. As to what constitutes the business of banking, see section 216 (a).

Same—"Persons."—The word "persons" as here defined is a combination of the definitions in the N. I. L., section 2976 of this Code; section 76 of the Uniform Sales Acts; the Uniform Warehouse Receipt Act, section 4037 of this Code; section 22 of the Uniform Stock Transfer Act; and section 2 of the Uniform Partnership Act.

Same—"Fiduciary" and "Principal."—The definitions of "fiduciary" and "principal" are both new with this act. However, it is well to observe that two classes of fiduciaries are contemplated: (1) Those holding property in their own name, and (2) those dealing with property which is held in the name of the principal. Different provisions are necessarily made in some of the following sections in regard to these two classes of fiduciaries.

Same—"Good Faith." — The definition of "good faith" is taken verbatim from section 76 of the Uniform Sales Act; the Uniform Warehouse Receipt Act, section 4037 of this Code; section 52 of the Uniform Bills of Lading Act; section 22 of Uniform Stock Transfer Act. "Good Faith" is not defined in the N. I. L. sections 2976 of this Code, et seq.

It will probably be of interest to point out that in the tentative draft of this section by the National Commissioners it ended with a definition of "bad faith" in the following language: "And a thing is done in the bad faith when it is in fact done dishonestly." This was omitted by a vote of the National Conference. The N. I. L. contains no definition of "bad faith."

The courts have held that the test of good faith is the subjective test of honesty, and not the objective test of due care. See Branman's Neg. Inst. Laws, pp. 187 et seq.

§ 1864(f). Application of payments made to fiduciaries.—A person who in good faith pays or transfers to a fiduciary any money or other property which the fiduciary as such is authorized to receive, is not responsible for the proper application thereof by the fiduciary; and any right or title acquired from the fiduciary in consideration of such payment or transfer is not invalid in consequence of a misapplication by the fiduciary. (1923, c. 85, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—It was pointed out by the commissioners drafting this act in submitting it to the conference that it applies only when the fiduciaries are authorized to receive the property or money transferred. Under such circumstances it applies to all transfers and not to payments of money only. It also applies to all fiduciaries and not merely trustees.

This section is based upon statutes existing in England, Alabama, Colorado, Delaware, Kansas, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Rhode Island, South Dakota, and Wisconsin.

It was stated in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 291 that this section accords with the North Carolina decisions, Tyrrell v. Morris, 21 N. C. 559; Gray v. Armistead, 41 N. C. 74; Kadis v. Weil, 164 N. C. 84, 80 S. E. 229, unless a change results from the elimination by the definition of "fiduciary" in section 1864(e) of certain distinctions hitherto recognized between some classes of fiduciaries. Exum v. Bowden, 39 N. C. 281; Gray v. Armistead, supra.

§ 1864(g). Registration of transfer of securities held by fiduciaries.—If a fiduciary in whose name are registered any shares of stock, bonds or other securities of any corporation, public or private, or company or other association, or of any trust, transfers the same, such corporation or company or other association, or any of the managers of the trust, or its or their transfer agent, is not bound to inquire whether the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in making the transfer, or to see to the performance of the fiduciary obligation, and is liable for registering such transfer only when registration of the transfer is made with actual knowledge that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in making the transfer, or with knowledge of such facts that the action in registering the transfer amounts to bad faith. (1923, c. 85, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—This section is based upon a Massachusetts statute which was passed in 1918 and amended in 1926 relating to trustees. See Gen. Laws, ch. 203, section 21, Cum. St. ch. 203, section 21. There are similar statutes in Delaware (R. C. 1915, section 3396); Kentucky (St. 1909, section 4169); Pennsylvania (Purdon's Dig. 13 ed. 4850, section 7), and a very recent statute in Illinois.

This section applies only when the stock or securities are registered in the name of the fiduciary and has no application when it is in the name of the principal; nor where registered in the name of the decedent and the executor or administrator wishes to transfer it to his own name or that of a third person. It does not, therefore, interfere with the provisions of the inheritance tax laws.

In submitting this section, the framers called attention to the various practices with respect to the manner of registering stock on the corporation registers. It was pointed out that in England by statute no notice of the trust is registered upon the books of the corporation, that similar provisions are often made in charters, and in the United States provisions are made especially in instruments creating trusts. The commission also denounced the practice of trustees registering stock held in trust in their own names without disclosing the relation, or registering it in the name of the broker to facilitate the transfer.

In cases where it is desirable to make a transfer of securities more difficult in order to reduce the amount of the fiduciaries' bond, it may be done by giving notice to the corporation that the stock shall be transferrable only upon proof of certain facts, or only upon an order of the court. After such notice the corporation would be liable if it should improperly register the transfer.

This section appears to change the rule of Baker v. Railroad, 173 N. C. 365, 92 S. E. 170, which required a corporation before registering a transfer of stock held in the name of a fiduciary as such, to inquire whether the fiduciary was committing a breach of trust in making the transfer. 1 N. C. Law Rev. 291.

§ 1864(h). Transfer of negotiable instrument by fiduciary.—If any negotiable instrument payable or indorsed to a fiduciary as such is indorsed by a fiduciary, or if any negotiable instrument payable or indorsed to his principal is indorsed by a fiduciary empowered to indorse such instrument on behalf of his principal the indorsee is not bound to inquire whether the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in indorsing or delivering the instrument, and is not chargeable with notice that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary unless he takes the instrument with actual knowledge of such breach or with knowledge of such facts that his action in taking the instrument amounts to bad faith. If, however, such instrument is transferred by the fiduciary in payment of or as security for a personal debt of the fiduciary to the actual knowledge of the creditor, or is transferred in any transaction known by the transferee to be for the personal benefit of the fiduciary, the creditor or other transferee is liable to the principal if the fiduciary in fact commits a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in transferring the instrument. (1923, c. 85, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—This and the two following sections deal with paper drawn or indorsed by fiduciaries.

One of the primary purposes of this section is to bring the rule as to instruments negotiated by or to fiduciaries as to notice of a defect in harmony with the N. I. L., section 3037. Notwithstanding that section 3037 provides that, to constitute notice of an infirmity in an instrument or defect in the title of the person negotiating it, the person to whom it is negotiated must have had actual knowledge of the defect or infirmity or knowledge of such facts as to make the taking amount to bad faith, the courts generally have ignored the N. I. L. and held that where the fiduciary relation is shown on its face, the payee or indorsee is bound to make inquiry. But if there is nothing upon the face of the instrument to indicate the relation one may be holder in due course whether negligent or not unless he acted in bad faith. So courts unconsciously substituted the objective test of negligence for the subjective test of the N. I. L. Thus it may be seen that instead of contradicting the N. I. L., these sections supplement it.

North Carolina has followed the uniform application of the N. I. L. See Smathers v. Toxaway Hotel Co., 162 N. C. 346, 78 S. E. 224; 167 N. C. 469, 83 S. E. 844; Setzer v. Deal, 135 N. C. 428, 47 S. E. 466; Ford v. Brown, 114 Tenn. 467, 88 S. W. 1036. And see 1 N. C. L. Rev. 291.

It is worth noting that these sections cover two situations requiring different rules. (1). Where the instrument is given in a transaction not known by the taker to be for the personal benefit of the fiduciary. Under such circumstances the taker is not bound to inquire but the transaction is presumed to be proper and is rebutted, only by proof of actual knowledge that it is improper, or proof of bad faith. Under the last two circumstances the taker is liable in either case. To illustrate, if the taker suspects that the fiduciary's action is improper but refrains from investigating, he acts at his own peril. The test should be that of subjective test of bad faith and not that of objective test of negligence. (2). The next situation is where the taker knows the instrument to be given for the personal benefit of the fiduciary. Distinction is made between (a) cases where the instrument is made payable to the principal, or to the fiduciary in his representative capacity, and as such is indorsed in payment of or as security for a personal debt of the fiduciary [this is the case covered by section 1864(h)]; (b) where the instrument is made or drawn by the fiduciary as such, payable to the personal creditors of the fiduciary, and delivered to such creditors in payment of or as security for the personal debt of the fiduciary on the one hand [this is the situation covered by section 1864(i)], and (c) cases where the instrument is drawn by the fiduciary on behalf of the principal payable to the fiduciary personally, or by the fiduciary as such to himself personally, and by the fiduciary indorsed to his personal debtor in payment of his personal debt [this is the situation covered by section 1864(j)]. In (a) and (b) there is strong presumption of improper action, but in (c) it is plausible that the instrument was given to the fiduciary in payment of a just debt owed by the principal, such as salary, commission, reimbursement for expenses, dividends or the like. Therefore in (c) the person taking the instrument in payment is liable only in case he had actual knowledge of the improper action, but in (a) and (b) he is liable unless the fiduciary in fact acted properly. See the discussion in 34 Harv. Law Rev. 454, note 25.

The language of these sections as to bad faith is made to conform to the similar language of bad faith in the N. I. L.

§ 1864(i). Check drawn by fiduciary payable to third person.—If a check or other bill of exchange is drawn by a fiduciary as such, or in the name of his principal by a fiduciary empowered to draw such instrument in the name of his principal, the payee is not bound to inquire whether the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing or delivering the instrument, and is not chargeable with notice that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary unless he takes the instrument with actual knowledge of such breach or with knowledge of such facts that his action in taking the instrument amounts to bad faith. If, however, such instrument is payable to a personal creditor of the fiduciary and delivered to the creditor in payment of or as security for a personal debt of the fiduciary to the actual knowledge of the creditor, or is drawn and delivered in any transaction known by the payee to be for the personal benefit of the fiduciary, the creditor or other payee is liable to the principal if the fiduciary in fact commits a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing or delivering the instrument. (1923, c. 85, s. 5.)

See note under section 1864(h).

§ 1864(j). Check drawn by and payable to fiduciary.—If a check or other bill of exchange is drawn by a fiduciary as such or in the name of his principal by a fiduciary empowered to draw such instrument in the name of his principal, payable to the fiduciary personally, or payable to a third person and by him transferred to the fiduciary, and is thereafter transferred by the fiduciary, whether in payment of a personal debt of the fiduciary or otherwise, the transferee is not bound to inquire whether the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in transferring the instrument, and is not chargeable with notice that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary unless he takes the instrument with actual knowlege of such breach or with knowlege of such facts that his action in taking the instrument amounts to bad faith. (1923, c. 85, s. 6.)

See note under section 1864(h).

§ 1864(k). Deposit in name of fiduciary as such.—If a deposit is made in a bank to the credit of a fiduciary as such, the bank is authorized to pay the amount of the deposit or any part thereof upon the check of the fiduciary, signed with the name in which such deposit is entered, without being liable to the principal, unless the bank pays the check with actual knowledge that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing the check or with knowledge of such facts that its action in paying the check amounts to bad faith.

If, however, such a check is payable to the drawee bank and is delivered to it in payment of or as security for a personal debt of the fiduciary to it, the bank is liable to the principal if the fiduciary in fact commits a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing or delivering the check. (1923, c. 85, s. 7.)

Editor's Note.—This and the three following sections deal with depositories of the funds of fiduciaries.

The purpose of these sections is to lay down uniform rules making banks acting solely as depositories liable only when they have actual knowledge of the fiduciary's breach of duty or when acting in bad faith. Where the bank acts as creditor, however, it is made liable to the same extent as other creditors.

The weight of authority has been to the effect that depositories are not bound to inquire into the fiduciary's authority to make deposits even though made as the fiduciary's personal account. Nor have depositories as a general rule been required to inquire into the purpose for which withdrawals have been made, whether payable to the fiduciary personally or as fiduciary, or to third persons. But a depository has been bound to make inquiry where the fiduciary pays a personal debt out of fiduciary funds deposited in the bank.

This and the two following sections are in accord with the tendency of the North Carolina decisions as indicated in Bank v. Clapp, 76 N. C. 482; Bank v. Insurance Co., 150 N. C. 770, 774, 64 S. E. 902; Miller v. Bank, 176 N. C. 152, 96 S. E. 977. They are also in accord with the general weight of authority. U. S. Fidelity, etc., Co. v. Bank, 77 W. Va. 665, 88 S. E. 109; Duckett v. Natl. Mechanics Bank. 86 Md. 400, 38 Atl. 983. See also 1 N. C. Law Rev. 291.

§ 1864(l). Deposit in name of principal.—If a check is drawn upon the account of his principal in a bank by a fiduciary who is empowered to draw checks upon his principal's account, the bank is authorized to pay such check without being liable to the principal, unless the bank pays the check with actual knowledge that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing such check, or with knowledge of such facts that its action in paying the check amounts to bad faith. If, however, such a check is payable to the drawee bank and is delivered to it in payment of or as security for a personal debt of the fiduciary to it, the bank is liable to the principal if the fiduciary in fact commits a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing or delivering the check. (1923, c. 85, s. 8.)

See note under section 1864(k).

§ 1864(m). Deposit in fiduciary's personal account.—If a fiduciary makes a deposit in a bank to his personal credit of checks drawn by him upon an account in his own name as fiduciary or of checks payable to him as fiduciary or of checks drawn by him upon an account in the name of his principal if he is empowered to draw checks thereon, or checks payable to his principal and indorsed by him, if he is empowered to indorse such checks, or if he otherwise makes a deposit of funds held by him as fiduciary, the bank receiving such deposit is not bound to inquire whether the fiduciary is committing thereby a breach of his obligation as fiduciary; and the bank is authorized to pay the amount of the deposit or any part thereof upon the personal check of the fiduciary without being liable to the principal, unless the bank receives the deposit or pays the check with actual knowledge that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in making such deposit or in drawing such check, or with knowledge of such facts that its action in receiving the deposit or paying the check amounts to bad faith. (1923, c. 85, s. 9.)

See note under section 1864(k).

§ 1864(n). Deposit in names of two or more trustees.—When a deposit is made in a bank in the name of two or more persons as trustees and a check is drawn upon the trust account by any trustee or trustees authorized by the other trustee or trustees to draw checks upon the trust account, neither the payee nor other holder nor the bank is bound to inquire whether it is a breach of trust to authorize such trustee or trustees to draw checks upon the trust account, and is not liable unless the circumstances be such that the action of the payee or other holder or the bank amounts to bad faith. (1923, c. 85, s. 10.)

Editor's Note.—This section is limited in its application to trustees. It is a general rule that one trustee cannot bind his cotrustee unless authorized by him to do so, and that a trustee can delegate only such of his duties as are ministerial. It is questionable whether or not the drawing of a check is a ministerial duty as a general rule. Probably as to the principal it is, but not as to income. But be that as it may, neither the bank nor payees or other holders are put upon inquiry as to the authority.

This section applies only to trustees and not to other classes of fiduciaries, and its application is limited to checks according to the opinion of the drafters.

See 1 N. C. L. Rev. 292, to the same effect.

§ 1864(o). Law not retroactive. — The provisions of this law shall not apply to transactions taking place prior to the time when it takes effect. (1923, c. 85, s. 11.)

§ 1864(p). Cases not provided for in law. — In any case not provided for in this act the rules of law and equity, including the law merchant and those rules of law and equity relating to trusts, agency, negotiable instruments and banking, shall continue to apply. (1923, c. 85, s. 12.)

§ 1864(q). Uniformity of interpretation. — This law shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it. (1923, c. 85, s. 13.)

CHAPTER 37

FISH AND FISHERIES

SUBCHAPTER I. FISHERIES COMMISSION BOARD ACT.

Art. 1. Definitions and General Provisions

§ 1865. Fish, fishing, fisheries, defined. — Wherever the word "fish" or "fishes", as a substantive, occurs in this subchapter, it shall be construed to include porpoises and other marine mammals, fishes, mollusca, and crustaceans, and wherever the word "fishing," or "fisheries" occurs it shall be construed to include all operations involved in using, setting or operating apparatus employed in killing or taking the said animals or in transporting and preparing them for market. (1915, c. 84, s. 24.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1935, chapter 35 reinvested the Department of Conservation and Development Board with all the rights, powers and duties conferred upon Fisheries Commission Board by section 1878. See note to section 1878. See also, sections 1901(a) et seq., 2078(q) et seq.

§ 1866. Administrative agencies under former laws conformed to present law.—All acts relating to the fisheries of North Carolina are hereby amended so that the words "shellfish commissioner," "oyster commissioner," or "fish commissioner" shall read "fisheries commissioner," and the words "shellfish commission" shall read "fisheries commission." (1915, c. 84, s. 25; 1917, c. 290, s. 9.)

§ 1867. State jurisdiction over fisheries.—The state of North Carolina shall have exclusive jurisdiction and control over all the fisheries of the state wherever located. (1915, c. 84, s. 18; 1917, c. 290, s. 9.)

§ 1868. Edible fish used only as food. — Any person, firm or corporation who catches or causes to be caught any edible fish in the waters of the state of North Carolina for any other purpose than as food, and any person, firm or corporation who shall use any edible fish for fertilizing purposes shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not less than fifty dollars or imprisoned not less than thirty days. (1915, c. 84, s. 23.)

Art. 2. Fisheries Commission Board; Organization, Officers, Support

§ 1869. Creation and organization of board. — For the purpose of enforcing laws relating to all fish, there is hereby created a fisheries commission, which shall consist of eleven members appointed by the governor and confirmed by the senate, at least six of whom shall be from the several fishing districts of the state, and shall have a practical knowledge of or be familiar with the fishing industry, who shall be denominated the fisheries commission board. Four of said members shall be appointed for a term of two years from April first, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-three, four for a term of four years from said date, and three for a term of six years from said date, and shall be so designated by the governor in his message to the senate appointing them. Any commissioner appointed by the governor under this law may be removed by him for cause. In the case of death, resignation, removal from the state, removal by the governor for cause, or mental disability of any commissioner during his term of office, his successor shall be appointed by the governor to fill out the unexpired term, and such appointment shall be reported to the next session of the senate for its action. If the senate shall refuse to confirm any appointee of the governor, then it shall be his duty to appoint another and send his name to the senate for its action. At the expiration of the term of office of any of said commissioners, his successor shall be appointed in a like manner by the governor for a term of six years.

The eleven members shall receive four dollars per day each and traveling expenses while attending meetings of the board; Provided, the per diem and expenses shall not exceed two hundred and fifty dollars ($250.00) each per annum: Provided further, that the chairman shall receive such compensation as the board may allow. (1915, c. 84, s. 1; 1917, c. 290, s. 1; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 42, s. 1; 1923, c. 168, s. 1.)

See note to section 1878.

Editor's Note.—This section was amended by Public Laws of 1923, ch. 168, sec. 1. In 1 N. C. Law Rev. 301 it is stated that the effect of the amendment was "to increase the membership of the Fisheries Commission Board from five to eleven and regulate the manner of their appointment, transfer to it the property held by the former board and confer upon it the same powers and duties, with the idea of infusing new life into the work."

§ 1870. Fish commissioner and assistant commissioners.—Said board shall appoint a fisheries commissioner within thirty days after the passage of this act, and the said commissioner shall be responsible to the fisheries commission board for carrying out the duties of his office, and shall make semiannual reports to them at such time as they may require. The term of office of said commissioner and his successor in office shall be four years or until his successor is appointed and qualified, and in case of vacancy in the office the appointment shall be to fill the vacancy. The said commissioner may appoint three assistants by and with the consent of the fisheries commission board, who shall hold said officers at the pleasure of the fisheries commissioner and the board, whose duties shall be prescribed by the fisheries commissioner. The aforesaid commissioner and assistant commissioners shall receive such pay as the fisheries commission board shall determine. During the absence of the commissioner, or his inability to act, the fisheries commission board shall appoint one of the assistant commissioners to have and exercise all the powers of the commissioner. The commissioner and assistant commissioners shall each execute and file with the secretary of state a bond, payable to the state of North Carolina, in the sum of five thousand dollars for the commissioner and twenty-five hundred dollars each for each of the assistant commissioners, with sureties to be approved by the secretary of state, conditioned for the faithful performance of their duties and to account for and pay over, pursuant to law, all moneys received by them in their office. The fisheries commissioner and assistant commissioners shall take and subscribe an oath to support the constitution, and for the faithful performance of the duties of his office, which oaths shall be filed with their bonds. The assistant commissioners may be removed for cause by the commissioner, who may appoint their successors. (1915, c. 84, s. 1; 1917, c. 290, s. 1; 1925, c. 310.)

Editor's Note.—By the amendment of 1925 three assistants were allowed the commissioner, where prior to this he was allowed only two.

§ 1871. Fish inspectors.—The fisheries commissioner may appoint, with the approval of the fisheries commission board, inspectors in each county having fisheries under his jurisdiction, who will assist him at such times as he may require. The said inspector shall serve under the direction of the commissioner, receiving compensation not to exceed three dollars per day and necessary expenses while in actual service. (1915, c. 84, s. 2.)

§ 1872. Board and officers to be free from financial interest in fisheries.—The fisheries commissioner, assistant commissioners, and inspectors shall not be financially interested in any fishing industry in North Carolina. (1915, c. 84, s. 8; 1921, c. 194, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—By the amendment of 1921 the provision that "The members of the fisheries commission board" shall not be interested was omitted.

§ 1873. Clerical force and office.—The fisheries commissioner shall rent and equip an office, which will be adequate for the business of the commission, in some town conveniently located to the maritime fisheries, and he is authorized to employ such clerks and other employees as may be necessary for the proper carrying on of the work of his office, by and with the consent of the fisheries commission board. (1915, c. 84, s. 3.)

§ 1874. Boats and equipment. — The fisheries commissioner is authorized, by and with the consent of the fisheries commission board, to purchase or rent such boats, nets, and other equipment as may be necessary to enable him and his assistants to fulfill the duties specified in this chapter. (1915, c. 84, s. 4.)

§ 1875. "Fisheries commission fund" derived from imposts.—All license fees, taxes, rentals, of bottoms for oyster or clam cultivation and other imposts upon the fisheries, in whatever manner collected, shall, except as otherwise provided in this chapter, be deposited with the state treasurer to the credit of the fisheries commission fund, to be drawn upon as directed by the fisheries commission board. (1915, c. 84, s. 9.)

§ 1876. Temporary and annual appropriations.—There is hereby appropriated out of the general treasury as a supplementary fund the sum of ten thousand dollars annually for two years, or as much thereof as may be needed, to the fisheries commission to carry out the work of the commission in the protection and promotion of the fisheries of the state, this sum to be repaid to the general treasury by the fisheries commission when it shall be on a self-sustaining basis; said sum to be used and expended as directed by the fisheries commission board, and any part of it that may be required may be used for purchasing boats and other equipment necessary to carry out the work of the commission.

The sum of ten thousand dollars is appropriated annually for the support and maintenance of the fisheries commission. (1915, c. 84, s. 16; 1917, c. 193, s. 26.)

§ 1877. Succeeds fish commission and oyster commission as to funds, property, and debts. — Any money that may be in the state treasury to the credit of the fish commission and oyster commission fund on May first, 1915, shall be transferred by the state treasurer to the credit of the fisheries commission fund, and the fisheries commission board is authorized to pay out of the fisheries commission fund all just claims that may be oustanding against the fish or oyster commissions.

All boats, fishing and oyster tackle, office supplies, stationery, and all other supplies of whatever character belonging to the fish commission and oyster commission shall be transferred to the fisheries commissioner for the use of the fisheries commission. (1915, c. 84, ss. 16, 17.)

§ 1877(a). Moneys credited to fisheries commission board; transfer equipment and supplies.—Any money that may be in the state treasury on April first, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-three, to the credit of the present fisheries commission board shall be held by the state treasurer to the credit of the fisheries commission board created by act of March 6, 1923 (Sec. 1869, C. S.), and said board is authorized to pay out of the fisheries commission fund all just claims that may be outstanding against the present fisheries commission board. All boats, fishing and oyster tackle, office supplies, stationery, and all other supplies of whatever character belonging to the present fisheries commission board shall be transferred to the fisheries commission board created by said act of March 6, 1923, on or before April first, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-three. (1923, c. 168, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The effect of this and the following section is summarized in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 301.

§ 1877(b). Powers and duties conferred.—All powers and duties imposed by chapter thirty-seven of the Consolidated Statutes, and the amendments heretofore or hereafter made to the same, upon the present fisheries commission board are hereby conferred upon the fisheries commission board created by act of March 6, 1923. (See Sec. 1869.) (1923, c. 168, s. 3.)

Art. 3. Powers and Duties of Board and Officers

§ 1878. Regulations as to fish, fishing, and fisheries made by board.—The fisheries commission board is hereby authorized to regulate, prohibit, or restrict in time, place, character, or dimensions, the use of nets, appliances, apparatus, or means employed in taking or killing fish; to regulate the seasons at which the various species of fish may be taken in the several waters of the State, and to prescribe the minimun sizes of fish which may be taken in the said several waters of the State, or which may be bought, sold, or held in possession by any person, firm, or corporation in the State; and to make such rules regulating the shipment and transportation of fish, oysters, clams, crabs, escallops, and other water products as it may deem necessary; and all regulations, prohibitions, restrictions and prescriptions, after due publication, which shall be construed to be once a week for four consecutive weeks in some newspaper published in North Carolina, shall be of equal force and effect with the provisions of this act; and any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned, at the discretion of the court. (1915, c. 84, s. 21; 1917, c. 290, s. 7; 1925, c. 168, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The proviso for regulation and transportation of fish, etc., is new with Public Laws of 1925.

At the end of section 2 of this act amending this section there appears a clause headed "subsec." (d) and providing for a tax on clams. This clause was evidently intended as subsection (d) of section 3 of the act amending section 1893, and has been included in that section.

Public Laws 1935, chapter 35 provides: "Section one thousand eight hundred seventy-eight of the Consolidated Statutes of North Carolina relating to 'regulations as to fish, fishing and fisheries made by board' is hereby reenacted and the Department of Conservation and Development Board is hereby re-invested with all the rights, powers and duties conferred upon the Fisheries Commission Board by said section, and the said Department of Conservation and Development Board is authorized to exercise the said powers and duties, notwithstanding any statute amending or in any way affecting the said law since the ratification thereof, and all laws and clauses of laws in conflict with the said section are hereby repealed to the extent that they may have affected the same." See also, sections 1901(a) et seq., 2078(q) et seq.

Jurisdiction.—The jurisdiction of the board extends to all the public waters of the State or over which it has control. "The several waters of the State" is the precise language of the section referred to, and the numerous portions of the law in which places are expressly mentioned are not in restriction of the general words of the principal section, but these places are only mentioned because special provision is made as being desirable or necessary for those places. State v. Dudley, 182 N. C. 822, 825, 109 S. E. 63.

The Taking of Escallops.—Under the powers so conferred and in promotion of the general purposes of the statute, the Fisheries Commission Board may establish a formal rule or regulation, which prohibited the taking of escallops with drags or scrapes in certain waters, and a violation of this rule will warrant conviction. State v. Dudley, 182 N. C. 822, 824, 109 S. E. 63.

§ 1879. Regulations affecting existing interests not effective for two years.—In making regulations the fisheries commission board shall give due weight and consideration to all factors which will affect the value of the present investment in the fisheries, and no changes in the existing laws which, if they should go into effect immediately, would tend to cause fishermen to lose their property shall go into effect until two years from the date that the change has been made by the fisheries commission board. (1915, c. 84, s. 21; 1917, c. 290, s. 7.)

§ 1880. Hearing before changes as to certain regulations.—If, however, a petition signed by five or more voters of the district or community which will be affected by the proposed changes is filed with the fisheries commission board through the fisheries commissioner, assistant commissioners or inspectors, asking that they have a hearing before any proposed change in the territory, size of mesh, length of net, or time of fishing shall go into effect, petitioning that they be heard regarding such change, the fisheries commission board shall in that event designate by advertisement for a period of thirty days at the courthouse and three other public places in the county affected, and also by publication in a newspaper of the county, if such is published in said county, once a week for two consecutive weeks, a place at which said board will meet and hear argument for and against said change, and may ratify, rescind, or alter this previous order of change as may seem just in the premises. (1915, c. 84, s. 21; 1917, c. 290, s. 7.)

§ 1881. Regulation of shipment of water products.—The fisheries commission board shall have power and authority to make such rules regulating the shipment and transportation of fish, oysters, clams, crabs, escallops, and other water products as it may deem necessary. (1919, c. 333, s. 4.)

§ 1882. Reports of board to legislature; publication.—The fisheries commission board shall cause to be prepared and submitted to each legislature a report showing the operations, collections and expenditures of the fisheries commission; and it shall also cause to be prepared for publication such other reports, with necessary illustrations and maps, as will adequately set forth the results of the work and the investigations of the fisheries commission, all such reports, illustrations, and maps to be printed and distributed at the expense of the state, as are other public documents, as the fisheries commission board may direct. (1915, c. 84, s. 15.)

§ 1883. Duties of commissioner.—It is the duty of the commissioner: To enforce all acts relating to the fish and fisheries of North Carolina.

By and with the advice and consent of the fisheries commission board, to make such regulations as shall maintain open for the passage of fishes all inlets and not less than one-third of the width of all sounds and streams, or such greater proportions of their width as may be necessary.

To collect and compile statistics showing the annual product of the fisheries of the state, the capital invested, and the apparatus employed, and any fisherman refusing to give these statistics shall be refused a license for the next year.

To prepare and have on file in his office maps based on the charts of the United States coast and geodetic survey, of the largest scale published, showing as closely as may be the location of all fixed apparatus employed during each fishing season.

To have surveyed and marked in a prominent manner those areas of waters of the state in which the use of any or all fishing appliances are prohibited by law or regulation, and those areas of water in the state in which oyster tonging or dredging is prohibited by law.

To prosecute all violations of the fish laws, and wherever necessary he may employ counsel for this purpose.

To remove pending trial nets or other appliances he finds being fished or used in violation of the fisheries laws of the state.

To carry on investigations relating to the migrations and habits of the fish in the waters of the state, also investigations relating to the cultivation of the oyster, clam and other mollusca, and of the terrapin and crab, and for this purpose he may employ such scientific assistance as may be authorized by the fisheries commission board.

The commissioner shall be responsible for the collection of all license taxes, fees, rentals, or other imposts on the fisheries, and shall pay same into the state treasury to the credit of the fisheries commission fund. He shall on or before the twenty-fifth day of each month mail to the treasurer of the state a consolidated statement showing the amount of taxes and license fees collected during the preceding month, and by and from whom collected.

He shall, in an official capacity, have power to administer oaths and to send for and examine persons and papers.

If any fisherman fail or refuse to give statistics as required in this section, the board may extend the time of his operations, and the fisheries commission board is empowered to make such rules and regulations as they think proper to procure statistics as to the annual products of the fisheries of the state. (1915, c. 84, s. 5; 1917, c. 290, s. 10.)

§ 1884. Violations of law to be investigated; nets seized and sold; bond of commissioner liable. —It is the duty of the fisheries commissioner, or any of his assistants or deputies, whenever a complaint is made to him, either orally or in writing, stating that any of the laws relating to fish or fisheries are being violated at any particular place, to go himself or send a deputy to such place and investigate same, and he shall seize and remove all nets or other appliances set or being used in violation of the fisheries laws of the state, sell same at public auction after advertisement for twenty days at the courthouse and three other public places in the county in which the seizure was made, and apply the proceeds of sale to the payment of costs and expenses of such removal, and pay any balance remaining to the school fund of the county nearest to where the offense is committed. And the failure of the fisheries commissioner or his deputies to perform the above prescribed duty shall render his bond liable to a penalty of five hundred dollars, one-half to go to the informant and the other half to be paid to the school fund of the county in which the action is brought. (1911, c. 18.)

In General.—In Lawton v. Steele, 152 U. S. 133, 38 L. Ed. 385, 14 S. Ct. 499, the court holding that the authority to summarily destroy nets used in violation of the law for the protection of fish, "is a lawful exercise of the police power of the State and does not deprive the citizen of his property without due process of law." Daniels v. Homer, 139 N. C. 219, 224, 51 S. E. 992.

§ 1885. Arrests without warrant; investigation of unlawful transportation of seafood.—The fisheries commissioner, assistant commissioners and inspectors shall have power, without warrant, to arrest any person or persons violating any of the fishery laws in their presence, who shall be carried before a magistrate for trial as is required by law in case of persons arrested without warrant. Authority also expressly is vested in the fisheries commissioner, assistant commissioners, and inspectors when they or either of them has reason to believe that any seafood products are unlawfully possessed, or are being transported unlawfully, or are about to be transported unlawfully, without the license tax therefor and thereon having been paid, to stop, or cause to be stopped, any vehicle or conveyance of transportation, of whatsoever kind, for the purpose of investigation and examination; and if upon such investigation and examination it appears that any seafood products are unlawfully possessed, or that the license tax therefor and thereon has not been paid, the said fisheries commissioner, assistant commissioner, or inspector making such investigation and examination shall have the power and authority, without first having applied for and obtained warrant so to do, to arrest the person or persons owning and/or having in his or their possession for transportation and actually engaged in the transportation of the said seafood products on which said license taxes have not been paid, and take him, or them, for trial before some magistrate in the county where such arrest is made; and it shall not be obligatory upon the said commissioner, assistant commissioner, or inspector first to apply for and obtain warrant before making such investigation and inspection. (1915, c. 84, s. 6; 1917, c. 290, s. 2; 1935, c. 118.)

Editor's Note.—The last sentence of this section relating to the authority to investigate unlawful transportation of seafood was added by the amendment of 1935.

§ 1886. Taking fish for scientific purposes. —The fisheries commissioner and the United States bureau of fisheries may take and cause to be taken for scientific purposes or for fish culture any fish or other marine organism at any time from the waters of North Carolina, any law to the contrary notwithstanding; and may cause or permit to be sold such fishes or parts of fishes so taken as may not be necessary for purposes of scientific investigations or fish culture: Provided, that in taking fish for fish culture in the hatcheries of this state the fish shall only be taken while the hatcheries are in operation and only between the hours of four and eleven p. m. (1915, c. 84, s. 7.)

Art. 4. Taxes and Regulations

§ 1887. Licenses to fish; issuance, terms, and enforcement.—Each and every person, firm, or corporation, before commencing or engaging in any kind of fishing in the state, shall file with an inspector of the county in which he desires to fish, or with the fisheries commissioner or any of his assistant commissioners, a sworn statement as to the number and kind of nets, seines, or other apparatus intended to be used for fishing. Upon filing this sworn statement on oath the fisheries commissioner shall issue or cause to be issued to the said party or parties a license as prescribed by law; said applicant shall pay a license fee equal in amount to the fee or tax prescribed by law for fishing different kinds of apparatus in the waters of the State of North Carolina, or for tonging or dredging for oysters, as the case may be. The fisheries commissioner shall keep in a book especially prepared for the purpose an exact record of all licenses, to whom issued, the number and kind of nets, boats, and other apparatus licensed, and the license fees received. He shall furnish to each person, firm, or corporation in whose favor a license is issued a special tag which will show the license number and number of pound nets, or yards of seine, or yards of gill net that the licensee is authorized to use, and the licensee shall attach said tag to the net in a conspicuous manner satisfactory to the fisheries commissioner. All boats or vessels licensed to scoop, scrape, or dredge oysters shall display on the port side of the jib, above the reef and bonnet and on the opposite side of mainsail, above all reef points, in black letters not less than twenty inches long, the initial letter of the county granting the license and the number of said license, the number to be painted on canvas and furnished by the fisheries commissioner, for which he shall receive the sum of fifty cents. Any boat or vessel used in catching oysters without having complied with the provisions of this section may be seized, forfeited, advertised for twenty days at the courthouse and two other public places in the county where seized, and sold at some public place designated in the advertisement, and the proceeds, less the cost of the proceedings, shall be paid into the school fund. The licenses to fish with nets shall all terminate on December thirty-first. Any person who shall willfully use for fishing purposes any kind of net whatever, without having first complied with the provisions of this section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction, shall be fined twenty-five dollars for each and every offense. (1915, c. 84, s. 10; 1917, c. 290, s. 9.)

Editor's Note.—See note to section 1878.

In General.—Fishing in waters when prohibited by law is a public nuisance, and the general assembly has the power to authorize a prompt abatement of the nuisance by seizure and sale of the nets subject to the right of their owner to contest the fact of his violation of the law by a proceeding of claim and delivery, or by injunction to prevent sale, or by action to recover the proceeds of sale and damages. Daniels v. Homer, 139 N. C. 219, 51 S. E. 992.

§ 1888. Resident may catch shellfish for own use.—No tax shall be levied or collected from bona fide residents or citizens of this state who take fish, oysters, clams, escallops, or crabs other than with dredges for his own personal or family's use and consumption. But if any person shall sell or offer for sale any such products without having first procured a license, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not less than five dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (1917, c. 290, s. 6.)

§ 1889. Licenses for oyster boats; schedule.—The fisheries commissioner, assistant commissioner, or inspector, may grant license for a boat to be used in catching oysters upon application made, according to law, and the payment of a license tax as follows: On any boat or vessel without cabin or deck, and under custom-house tonnage, using scrapes or dredges, measuring over all twenty-five feet and under thirty, a tax of two dollars and fifty cents; fifteen feet and under twenty-five feet, a tax of one dollar and fifty cents; on any boat or vessel with cabin or deck and under custom-house tonnage, using scrapes or dredges, measuring over all thirty feet or under, a tax of four dollars; over thirty feet, a tax of five dollars; on any boat or vessel using scoops, scrapes, or dredges required to be registered or enrolled in the custom house, a tax of seventy-five cents a ton on gross tonnage. No vessel propelled by steam, gas or electricity, and no boat or vessel not the property absolutely of a citizen or citizens of this state, shall receive license or be permitted in any manner to engage in the catching of oysters anywhere in the waters of this state. (1915, c. 84, s. 11; 1933, c. 106.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to Public Laws of 1933, c. 106, the fees required by this section were: $3, $2, $5, $6, and $1.50. The substantial reductions were effected by the amendment.

§ 1890. Boats using purse seines or shirred nets; tax.—All boats or vessels of any kind used in operating purse seines or shirred nets shall pay a license fee of seventy-five cents per ton on gross tonnage, custom-house measurement, which shall be independent of and separate from the seine or net tax on the seines or nets used on said boats. This license fee shall be for one year from January 1st, and shall not be issued for any period less than one year. It shall be issued by the fisheries commission. (1915, c. 84, s. 12; 1917, c. 290, s. 3; 1919, c. 333, s. 3; 1933, c. 106, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to Public Laws 1933, c. 106, the fee required was $2 per ton instead of $.75 per ton.

§ 1891. Licenses for various appliances and their users; schedule.—The following license tax is hereby levied annually upon the different fishing appliances used in the waters of North Carolina:

Anchor gill nets, fifty cents for each hundred yards or fraction thereof.

Stake gill nets, fifty cents for each hundred yards or fraction thereof: Provided, that when any person uses more than one such net the tax shall be imposed upon the total length of all nets used and not upon each net separately.

Drift gill nets, twenty-five cents for each hundred yards or fraction thereof.

Pound nets, one dollar and fifty cents on each pound; the pound is construed to apply to that part of net which holds and from which the fish are taken.

Submarine pounds, or submerged trap nets, one dollar and fifty cents for each trap or pound.

Seines, drag nets and mullet nets under one hundred yards, fifty cents each.

Seines, drag nets and mullet nets over one hundred yards and under three hundred yards, fifty cents per hundred yards or fraction thereof.

Seines, drag nets and mullet nets over three hundred yards and under one thousand yards, seventy-five cents per one hundred yards or fraction thereof.

Seines, drag nets and mullet nets over one thousand yards, one dollar per one hundred yards or fraction thereof.

Fyke nets, twenty-five cents each.

For each trot line used in taking hard crabs, one dollar and fifty cents.

[Nonresident motor boats chartered by residents of the state and used in taking shrimp, ten dollars ($10.00) for each boat, and on each non-resident person acting as principal or employed in taking shrimp, a license tax of ten dollars ($10.00) for each year.]

Resident motor boats used in taking shrimp, three dollars ($3.00) for each boat.

Motor boats used in hauling nets, two dollars and fifty cents ($2.50) for each boat.

Motor boats used in dredging crabs or escallops, three dollars ($3.00) for each boat.

For each trawl used in taking fish or shrimp, one dollar ($1.00).

Nonresident angler's license to fish with rod and reel anywhere in the fresh waters of the State during the open season, five dollars ($5.00) each; that nothing herein contained shall be construed so as to require an angler's license of any one to fish on his own land or on any privately owned lake or pond.

And for other apparatus used in fishing, the license shall be the same as that for the apparatus or appliance which it most resembles for the purpose used.

In addition to the officers now empowered by law, the clerks of the superior courts in the state are authorized to issue nonresident angler's license under chapter thirty-seven, consolidated statutes of North Carolina, in accordance with rules and regulations to be prescribed by the state fisheries commission board. (1915, c. 84, s. 14; 1917, c. 290, s. 5; 1919, c. 333, s. 3; 1925, c. 168, s. 1; 1927, c. 59, ss. 5, 7; 1931, c. 117; 1933, c. 106, s. 3; c. 433.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 repealed the words in brackets in this section. However, this act was amended by Public Laws 1931, c. 331, which made its provisions regulating the taking of shrimp in the public waters of the State, subject to the approval and supervision of the Department of Conservation and Development under the general law theretofore existing.

Public Laws of 1933, cc. 106 and 443, made substantial changes in the fees required by this section.

§ 1892. License tax on dealers and packers.—An annual license tax, for the year beginning January 1st in each year, to be collected by the fisheries commission board, is imposed on all persons or dealers who purchase or carry on the business of canning, packing, shucking, or shipping the sea products enumerated below, as follows: On—oysters, two dollars and fifty cents;

escallops, two dollars and fifty cents;

clams, two dollars and fifty cents;

crabs, for shipment out of the state, two dollars and fifty cents;

fish, two dollars and fifty cents;

shrimp, two dollars and fifty cents: Provided, no license tax shall be imposed on fishermen who pay a license on nets to catch fish or shrimp, and who ship only the fish or shrimp caught in such licensed nets. (1917, c. 290, s. 5; 1919, c. 333, ss. 1, 2; 1933, c. 106, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 106, reduced the fees on oysters, scallops and clams, from $5 to $2.50. The amendment also omitted the former provision requiring a license of fifty cents a year for shucking or selling oysters and clams on local market by retail.

§ 1893. Purchase tax on dealers; schedule; collection.—All dealers in and all persons who purchase, catch, or take for canning, packing, shucking, or shipping the sea products enumerated below shall be liable to a tax to be collected by the fisheries commission board as follows: On—

Oysters, two cents a bushel, except coon oysters, one cent a bushel; escallops, five cents a gallon; clams, four cents a bushel; soft crafts, one and one-quarter cents a dozen; hard crabs, four cents a bushel; shrimp, cooked or green, fifteen cents per one hundred pounds: Provided, however, no license tax shall be imposed or required for trot lines used for taking hard crabs from public grounds: Provided, further, that no license tax shall be imposed or required for power boats used for dredging escallops or crabs: Provided, further, that no license shall be required of any person who takes oysters for shucking and sells such oysters at retail on local markets.

But none of these products shall be twice taxed, and no tax shall be imposed on oysters, escallops, or clams taken from private beds or gardens. Upon failure to pay said tax, the license provided in the preceding section shall at once be null and void and no further license shall be granted during the current year; and it shall be the duty of the commissioner, assistant commissioner, or inspector to institute suit for the collection of said tax. Such suit shall be in the name of the state of North Carolina on relation of the commissioner or inspector at whose instance such suit is instituted, and the recovery shall be for the benefit and for the use of the general fisheries commission fund. Any person failing or refusing to pay said tax shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1915, c. 84, s. 13; 1917, c. 290, s. 4; 1919, c. 333, s. 1; 1921, c. 194, s. 2; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 42, ss. 2-4; 1923, c. 170; 1925, c. 168, s. 3; 1927, c. 59; 1929, c. 113; 1933, c. 106, s. 5; 1935, c. 151.)

Editor's Note.—The Public Laws of 1927, ch. 59, sec. 2, calls for the amendment of subsection (b) of the Act of 1925. There is no subsection (b) and it is obvious that subsection (d) is referred to; this last subsection is out of place (probably through a printer's error) in the Laws of 1925.

The Act of 1929 struck out the line of this section relating to the tax on crab meat, it being the intention of the act to repeal all laws providing for a tax on crab meat.

Public Laws 1933, c. 106, changed the fees and added the three provisos appearing at the end of the first paragraph.

The tax of four cents a bushel on hard crabs was added by the amendment of 1935.

§ 1893(a). License tax on trawl boats.—There shall be levied annually upon each trawl boat, or boat used for trawling purposes, documented in the customs house, a license tax of twenty-five cents per gross ton, and on each trawl boat, or boat used for trawling purposes, not documented in the customs house a license tax of two dollars, and a tax of one dollar for each net. (1933, c. 106, s. 6.)

§ 1894. Printed regulations furnished dealers.—It is the duty of the fisheries commission board, upon issuing any license under the provisions of this subchapter to furnish with said license the printed regulations controlling the waters in which such fisherman applying therefor proposes to fish. (1917, c. 290, s. 12.)

§ 1895. Dealers to keep and furnish statistics.—All persons, firms, or corporations engaged in buying, packing, canning, or shipping oysters, escallops, clams, crabs, shrimp, and fish taken from the public grounds or natural beds of the state, or the natural waters or streams of the state, shall keep a permanent record of all such products, showing the quantity of each of said products so purchased, packed, canned, or shipped, the kind of fish, from whom each of said species of fish, mollusca, or crustaceans were purchased, that a statement of all these facts shall be made whenever required by the fisheries commissioner, but shall be at least at the end of each month. That all such records shall be open at all times to the fisheries commissioner, assistant commissioner, or any one under the direction of the fisheries commissioner. (1917, c. 290, s. 11.)

§ 1896. Disturbing marks or property of commission prohibited.—Any person or persons removing, injuring, defacing, or in any way disturbing the posts, buoys, or any other appliances used by the fisheries commission in marking the restricted areas relating to any and all fishing, or marking other areas in which oyster tonging or dredging is prohibited by law, and those marking oyster bottoms that are leased for oyster cultivation, or shall injure or destroy any boat or other property of any kind used by the fisheries commission board or any officer or employee thereof, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned, at the discretion of the court; and any person anchoring or mooring a boat to any of these buoys or posts shall, upon conviction, be fined not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars and imprisoned thirty days in jail, at the discretion of the court. (1915, c. 84, s. 22; 1917, c. 290, s. 8.)

§ 1897. Explosives, drugs, and poisons prohibited.—It shall be unlawful to place in any of the waters of this state any dynamite, giant or electric powder, or any explosive substance whatever, or any drug or poisoned bait, for the purpose of taking, killing or injuring fish. And any one violating this section shall, upon conviction, be fined not less than one hundred dollars and imprisoned not less than thirty days. (1915, c. 84, s. 19.)

§ 1898. Possession of fish killed by explosives as evidence.—The possession of fish killed by explosive agencies shall be prima facie evidence that explosives were used for the purpose of killing fish. (Rev., s. 2466; Code, s. 3405; 1889, c. 312; 1911, c. 170.)

§ 1899. Discharge of deleterious matter into waters prohibited.—It shall be unlawful to discharge or to cause or permit to be discharged into the waters of the state any deleterious or poisonous substance or substances inimical to the fishes inhabiting the said water; and any person, persons or corporation violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court: Provided, this section shall not apply to corporations chartered either by general law or special act before the 4th day of March, 1915. (1915, c. 84, s. 20.)

§ 1900. Operation of boats in violation of rules and laws forfeits boats and apparatus.—If any person, firm or corporation shall use or operate any boat or vessel of any kind, in violation of any rule of the fisheries commission board, or any of the fish laws, it shall be the duty of the fisheries commissioner to revoke any license issued and seize such boat or vessel and any apparatus or appliance so used or operated; but the fisheries commission board shall have authority to compromise by agreement with the owner of such boat or appliance for any such violation, and may return such boat or appliance so seized to the owner and reinstate license. (1919, c. 333, s. 5.)

See note to secs. 1884 and 1887.

§ 1901. Violations of fisheries law misdemeanor; licenses forfeited.—Upon failure of any person, firm or corporation to comply with any of the provisions of this article, or any of the fisheries laws, any license issued to any such person, firm or corporation may be revoked by the fisheries commission, and upon satisfactory settlement may be reinstated, with the consent of the board. All such persons violating the provisions of this article or of the fisheries law shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1917, c. 290, s. 11; 1919, c. 333, s. 4.)

SUBCHAPTER IA. CONSOLIDATION OF FISHERIES COMMISSION WITH DEPARTMENT OF CONSERVATION AND DEVELOPMENT.

§ 1901(a). Duties and powers transferred.—The duties and powers now and heretofore exercised by the Fisheries Commission of North Carolina under and by virtue of chapter thirty-seven of Consolidated Statutes of one thousand nine hundred and nineteen (1919) and all amendments thereto shall be transferred to and assumed by the Department of Conservation and Development. § 1901(d). Transfer of funds.— All moneys in the State treasury on April first, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-seven, to the credit of the Fisheries Commission Board shall be transferred by the State Treasurer to the credit of the Department of Conservation and Development, and the new Board created hereby is authorized to pay out of the Fisheries Commission fund all just claims that may be outstanding against the present Fisheries Commission Board. (1927, c. 57, s. 4.)

§ 1901(e). Titles transferred and vested.—The title to all property, both real and personal, now and heretofore vested in the present Fisheries Commission Board, is hereby transferred and vested in the Board of Conservation and Development, including the fish hatcheries, boats, fishing and oyster tackle, automobiles, trucks, equipment, office supplies, stationary, and all other supplies and property of whatever character belonging to the present Fisheries Commission Board shall be transferred to the Board of Conservation and Development as provided for herein, such transfer and vesting of title to be effective from and after April first, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-seven. SUBCHAPTER II. SHELLFISH

Art. 5. Shellfish; General Laws

Part 1. Definition of Natural Oyster Bed

Oyster bed defined.—A natural oyster or clam bed, as distinguished from an artificial oyster or clam bed, shall be one not planted by man, and is any shoal, reef or bottom where oysters are to be found growing in sufficient quantities to be valuable to the public. (Rev., s. 2371; 1893, c. 287, s. 1.)

Part 2. Leases of Bottoms

§ 1903. Fisheries commissioner to lease.—The fisheries commissioner shall have power to lease to any duly qualified person, firm or corporation, for purposes of oyster or clam culture, any bottom of the waters of the state not a natural oyster bed, as defined in this article, nor a clam reservation, as defined in this article, in accordance with the provisions of this part of this article. (1909, c. 871, ss. 1, 9; 1919, c. 333, s. 6.)

§ 1904. Lessee to be citizen.—Any citizen of North Carolina, or firm or corporation organized under the laws of the state and doing business within its limits, shall be granted the privilege of taking up bottoms for purposes of oyster or clam culture, under the provisions of this article. (1909, c. 871, ss. 2, 9; 1919, c. 333, s. 6.)

§ 1905. Areas leased in different waters.—The area which may be taken up for purposes of oyster or clam culture shall be not less than one acre nor more than fifty acres, with the exception of the open waters of Pamlico sound (and for the purposes of this article open waters of Pamlico sound shall mean the waters that are outside of two miles of the shore line), in which the minimum limit shall be five acres and the maximum shall be two hundred acres: Provided that the limit of entry in Core sound, North river, Newport river, Bogue sound, and all bays and creeks bordering on these waters, and in Jones bay, Rose bay, Abels bay, Swan Quarter bay, Middle bay, Bay river, Deep bay, Juniper bay, West and East Bluff bays, Wysocking bay, Fire creek, Stumpy Point bay, Mouse Harbor bay, Maw bay and Broad creek, tributaries of Pamlico sound, shall be one acre as a minimum and ten acres as a maximun: Provided further, however, that after March 9, 1910, the minimum area in Core sound, North river, Newport river, Bogue sound, and all bays and creeks bordering on these waters, and in Jones bay, Rose bay, Abels bay, Swan Quarter bay, Middle bay, Bay river, Deep bay, Juniper bay, West and East Bluff bays, Wysocking bay, Fire creek, Stumpy Point bay, Mouse Harbor bay, Maw bay and Broad creek, tributaries of Pamlico sound, shall be one acre and the maximum fifty acres; but no person, firm, corporation or association shall severally or collectively hold any interest in any lease or leases aggregating an area of greater than fifty acres, except in the open waters of Pamlico sound, where the aggregate area shall be two hundred acres.

The fisheries commission board shall have authority to specify the acreage any one person may lease in the counties of Pender, New Hanover and Brunswick. (1909, c. 871, ss. 2, 9; 1919, c. 333, s. 6; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 46, s. 1.)

§ 1906. Prerequisites for lease; application; deposit; survey; location.—Such persons, firms or corporations desiring to avail themselves of the privileges of this article shall make written application, on a form to be prepared by the fisheries commissioner, setting forth the name and address of the applicant, describing as definitely as may be the location and extent of the bottom for which application is made, and requesting the survey and leasing to the applicant of said bottom. As soon as possible after the application is received, the fisheries commissioner shall cause to be made a survey and map of said bottom at the expense of the applicant. The fisheries commissioner shall also thoroughly examine said bottoms by sounding and by dragging thereover a chain to detect the presence of natural oysters. Should any natural oysters be found, the commissioner shall cause examination to be made to ascertain the area and density of oysters on said bottom or bed, to determine whether the same is a natural bed, under the definition contained in this article. He shall be assisted in this examination on tonging ground by an expert tonger, to be appointed by the board of county commissioners of the county in which said bottom or the greater portion thereof is located, and the question as to whether the oyster growth is sufficiently dense to fall within the definition of the natural bed shall be determined by the quantity of oysters which the said expert tonger may be able to take in a specified time; and on dredging ground the commissioner shall be assisted by an expert dredger, appointed by the board of county commissioners of the county in which said bottom or the greater portion thereof is located, and the question as to whether the oyster growth is sufficiently dense to fall within the definition of the natural bed shall be determined by the quantity of oysters which the said expert dredger may be able to take in a specified time. The fisheries commissioner shall require the bodies of bottoms applied for to be as compact as possible, taking into consideration the shape of the body of water and the consistency of the bottom. No application shall be entertained nor lease granted for a piece of bottom within two hundred yards of a known natural bottom, bed or reef. A deposit of ten dollars will be required of each applicant at the time of making his application, said sum to be credited to the cost of the survey of the bottom applied for. (1909, c. 871, ss. 3, 9; 1919, c. 333, s. 6.)

§ 1907. Execution of lease; notice and filing; marking and planting.—Immediately upon the completion of the survey and the mapping thereof, and the payment by the applicant of the cost of said survey and map, the fisheries commissioner shall execute to the applicant, upon a form approved by the attorney-general of the state, a lease for the bottom applied for. A copy of the lease, map of the survey and a description of the bottom, defining its position, shall be filed in the office of the fisheries commissioner. After the execution of said lease, the lessee shall have the sole right and use of said bottoms, and all shells, oysters and culls thereon or placed thereon shall be his exclusive property so long as he complies with the provisions of this law. The lessee shall stake off and mark the bottoms leased in the manner prescribed by the fisheries commissioner, and failure to do so within a period of thirty days of an order so to do issued by the commissioner shall subject said lessee to a fine of five dollars per acre for each sixty days default in compliance with said order. The corner stakes, at least, of each lease shall be marked with signs plainly displaying the number of the lease and the name of the lessee. The lessee shall, within two years of the commencement of his lease, have planted upon his holdings a quantity of shells equal to an average of fifty bushels of seed oysters or shells per acre of holdings, and within four years from the commencement of his lease a quantity of oysters or shells equal to an average of not less than one hundred and twenty-five bushels per acre. The fisheries commissioner shall, upon granting any lease, publish a notice of the granting of same in a newspaper of general circulation in the county wherein the bottom leased is located. (1909, c. 871, ss. 4, 9; 1919, c. 333, s. 6.)

§ 1908. Term and rental.—All leases made under the provisions of this article shall begin upon the issuance of the lease, and shall expire on the first day of April of the twentieth year thereafter. The rental shall be at the rate of fifty cents per acre for the first ten years and one dollar per acre per year for the next ten years of the lease, payable annually in advance on the first day of April of each year: Provided, that in the open waters of Pamlico Sound (and for the purposes of this article the open waters of Pamlico Sound shall mean the waters that are outside the four miles of the shore line) the rental shall be at the rate of fifty cents per acre per year for the first three years, one dollar per acre per year for the next seven years, and two dollars per acre per year for the next ten years, of the lease. This rental shall be in lieu of all other taxes and imposts whatever, and shall be considered as all and the only taxation which can be imposed by the state, counties, municipalities or other subordinate political bodies. The rental for the first year shall be paid in advance, to an amount proportional to the unexpired part of the year to the first of April next succeeding. (1909, c. 871, ss. 5, 9; 1919, c. 333, s. 6; 1933, c. 346.)

Editor's Note.—The rental fees were reduced, by Public Laws 1933, c. 346, from $1 and $2, to $.50 and $1, respectively.

§ 1909. Nature of lessee's rights; assignment and inheritance.—The said lease shall be heritable and transferable, in whole or in part, provided the qualifications of the heirs and transferees are such as are described by this article. Nonresidents, acquiring by inheritance or process sale, or persons already holding the maximum area permitted by this article, shall within a period of twelve months from the time of acquisition dispose of said prohibited or excess of holding to some qualified person, firm or corporation, under penalty of forfeiture. The lease shall be subject to mortgage, pledge, seizure for debt and the same other transactions as are other property rights in North Carolina. No transfer shall be of effect unless of court record, until entered on the books of the fisheries commissioner. (1909, c. 871, ss. 6, 9; 1919, c. 333, s. 6.)

§ 1910. Renewal of lease.—The term of each lease granted under the provisions of this article shall be for a period of twenty years from the first day of April preceding the date of granting of said lease. At the expiration of the first lease, the lessee, upon making written application on the prescribed form, shall be entitled to successive leases on the same terms as applied to the last ten years of the first lease, for a period not exceeding ten years each. (1909, c. 871, ss. 7, 9; 1919, c. 333, s. 6.)

§ 1911. Forfeiture of lease for nonpayment.—The failure to pay the rental of bottoms leased for each year in advance on or before the first day of April, or within thirty days thereafter, shall ipso facto cancel said lease and shall forfeit to the state the said leased bottoms and all oysters thereon, and upon said forfeiture the fisheries commissioner is hereby authorized to lease the said bottoms to any qualified applicant therefor: Provided, that no forfeiture shall be valid, however, under the provisions of this section, unless there shall have been mailed by the fisheries commissioner to the last address of the lessee upon the books of the commissioner a thirty days notice of the maturity of said rental. (1909, c. 871, ss. 8, 9; 1919, c. 333, s. 6.)

§ 1912. Contest over grant of lease; time for contest; decision; appeal.—If any person, within four months of the publication of the notice of granting of any lease, make claim that a natural oyster bottom, bed or reef exists within the boundaries of said lease, he shall, under oath, state his claim, and request the fisheries commissioner to cancel said lease: Provided, however, that each such claim and petition shall be accompanied by a deposit of twenty-five dollars. No petition unaccompanied by said deposit shall be considered by the commissioner. The fisheries commissioner shall, in person, examine into said claim, and if the decision should be against the claimant, the deposit of twenty-five dollars shall be forfeited to the state and deposited to the credit of the fisheries commission fund. Should, however, the claim be sustained and a natural bed be found within the boundary of the lease, the said natural bed shall be surveyed and marked with stakes or buoys, at the expense of the lessee, and the said natural bed be thrown open to the public fishery. If no such claim be presented within a period of four months, or if when so presented it fail of substantiation, as provided, the lessee shall thereafter be secure from attack on such account, and his lease shall be incontestable so long as he complies with the other provisions of this article. In each and every such case the decision of the fisheries commissioner shall be subject to review and appeal before a judge of the superior court, who shall render a decision without the aid of a jury, and his decision shall be final. (1909, c. 871, s. 9; 1919, c. 333, s. 6.)

Part 3. Licenses and Taxes

§ 1913. License to catch oysters; oath of applicant. — Any person desiring to catch oysters from the public grounds and natural oyster beds shall make and subscribe to the following oath, before some officer qualified to administer oaths:

I, ... (state if owner, lessee, master, captain, mate, foreman, or agent of any boat used, or that may be used, in dredging oysters from the public grounds of the state), being an applicant for oyster license, do solemnly swear that I am a citizen of North Carolina, and have been a resident of the state for the two years next preceding this day; that my place of residence is now in .... County; that I will not, if granted license, employ any nonresident or unlicensed person as an assistant or serve as an assistant to any nonresident who is owner, lessee, master, captain, mate or foreman, or who has any interest in, or in the profits derived from, any boat that is used or that may be used in dredging oysters from the public grounds of the state, or unlicensed person, nor will I transfer, assign, or otherwise dispose of my license to any person, firm or corporation that I will not knowingly or willfully violate or evade any of the laws or regulations of the state relating to oyster industry: so help me, God.

He shall then present to and file said oath with the fisheries commissioner, assistant commissioner or inspector, who, if satisfied with the truth of the statement made in the oath of application, shall issue to him an oysterman's license in the following form:

State of North Carolina, ... County.

....., a resident of ..... County, having this day made application to me for an oysterman's license, and having filed with me the oath prescribed by law, I do hereby grant to him license to catch oysters from the public grounds of this state from the fifteenth day of October, ..., until the first day of next April.

Witness my hand and official seal, this the .... day of ....., 19.... .....,

Fisheries Commissioner, Assistant Fisheries Commissioner, or Inspector (as the case may be).

§ 1914. Filing oath; recording license; fees. — The oath and a record of the license shall be kept by the fisheries commissioner, assistant commissioner or inspector, and for issuing and recording the same he shall receive from the applicant a fee of twenty-five cents, which, together with all other license fees collected under this chapter, shall be paid over to the state treasurer and constitute part of the fisheries commission fund. No fee shall be charged by the clerk for administering the oath. (Rev., s. 2409; 1903, c. 516, s. 7; 1905, c. 525, ss. 4, 6.)

§ 1915. Licensee to be resident, not interested in oyster boat.—No person shall be licensed to catch oysters from the public grounds of the state who is owner, lessee, master, captain, mate or foreman, or who owns an interest in or who is an agent for any boat that is used or that may be used in dredging oysters from the public grounds of the state, who is not a bona fide resident of this state and who has not continuously resided therein for two years next preceding the date of his application for license, and no nonresident shall be employed as a laborer on any boat licensed to dredge oysters under this subchapter who has an interest in or who receives any profit from the oysters caught by any boat permitted to dredge oysters on the public grounds of the state. Any person, firm or corporation employing any nonresident laborer forbidden by this section, upon conviction shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 2408; 1903, c. 516, s. 6; 1905, c. 525, s. 3.)

§ 1916. Tax on oysters exported from state.— All oysters going out of the state in any boat or vessel shall pay a tax of two cents per tub. (1907, c. 969, s. 11; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 42, s. 3.)

Constitutionality.—An act levying a tax upon all claims and oysters shipped out of a county is constitutional. Brooks v. Tripp, 135 N. C. 159, 47 S. E. 401.

§ 1917. Oyster dealer's license. — The fisheries commissioner, assistant commissioner or inspector shall, upon application and the payment of a fee of fifty cents, grant to the applicant a dealer's license, authorizing the applicant to engage in the business of buying, purchasing, canning, packing, shucking or shipping oysters. Such license shall not be issued prior to the fifteenth day of November of any year and shall expire on the fifteenth day of March following. The assistant fisheries commissioner or inspector granting the license shall at once mail a duplicate to the fisheries commissioner. Nothing contained in this section (except as to New Hanover, Onslow and Pender counties) shall be deemed to require any license of persons engaged in the business of buying, purchasing, canning, packing, shucking or shipping oysters which were not taken or caught from the public grounds or natural oyster beds of the state: Provided, that in New Hanover, Onslow and Pender counties such license shall not be issued prior to the fifteenth day of October in any year and shall expire on the first day of April following. (Rev., s. 2411; 1903, c. 516, s. 9; 1905, c. 525, s. 6; 1907, c. 969, ss. 7, 13; 1915, c. 136, s. 3.)

In General.—It is fully established that fish, including oysters and other shellfish, as well as game, being a valued source of food supply, come well within the police power of the State and are subject to rules and regulations reasonably designed to protect them and promote their increase and growth, and that such rules and regulations may not be set aside or ignored because they indirectly affect or trench upon some private rights that are, or would be, ordinarily recognized. Daniels v. Homer, 139 N. C. 219, 51 S. E. 992; Rea v. Hampton, 101 N. C. 51, 7 S. E. 649; Patsone v. Commonwealth, 232 U. S. 138, 58 L. Ed. 539, 34 S. Ct. 281; New York v. Hesterberg, 211 U. S. 31, 53 L. Ed. 75, 29 S. Ct. 10; Lawton v. Steele, 152 U. S. 133, 38 L. Ed. 385. 14 S. Ct. 499; State v. Sermons, 169 N. C. 285, 84 S. E. 337.

License by Mandamus.—If one applies for a license and the oyster commissioners refuse to grant it, he must apply for mandamus to compel an issuance, for he will not be excused for a violation on the ground that the commissioner would not issue a license when applied for. State v. Snipes, 161 N. C. 242, 76 S. E. 243; State v. Sermons, 169 N. C. 285, 84 S. E. 337.

§ 1918. Monthly report of licenses to be filed.—The fisheries commissioner, assistant commissioner or inspector who are authorized to issue license or to collect a license tax shall, on or before the fifteenth day of each month, mail to the fisheries commissioner a statement, showing all licenses issued during the preceding month, to whom issued and for what purpose, and the amount of tax collected by them from all sources under the oyster laws, and shall at the same time remit said amount direct to the state treasurer. They shall at the same time mail to each inspector asking for the same a list of all persons to whom license has been issued and of all boats or vessels licensed, and for what purpose. (Rev., s. 2412; 1903, c. 516, s. 4; 1905, c. 525, s. 6.)

§ 1919. Oyster beds real property for taxation, etc.—All grounds taken up or held for the purpose of cultivating shellfish shall be subject to taxation as real estate, and shall be so considered in the settlement of the estates of deceased or insolvent persons. (Rev., s. 2380; 1887, c. 119, s. 9.)

Part 4. Catching and Dealing in Oysters Regulated

§ 1920. Close season for oysters; exceptions.—If any person shall buy or sell oysters in the shell which have been taken from the public grounds or natural oyster beds of this state between the fifteenth day of April and the fifteenth day of October in any year, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days: Provided, that oysters may be taken with hand-tongs from March fifteenth to May first and with dredges from March fifteenth to April fifth, in any year, to be used for planting on private grounds entered and held under the laws of this state, upon the condition further that they shall not be removed from said private grounds within a period of three months from time of planting: Provided further, that oysters may be taken with hand-tongs only for home consumption: Provided further, that coon oysters may be taken from November first to May first of each year in the waters of Onslow and Carteret counties.

This section, except as specifically provided, is inapplicable to New Hanover, Onslow and Pender counties. (Rev., s. 2383; 1907, c. 969, ss. 4, 13; 1913, c. 85; 1915, c. 120.)

In General.—This section and section 1935 cannot be construed together with the effect that the license is not required when oysters are shown to have been procured from private owners, there being no necessary or essential connection between the two, the first applying to all citizens of the State, and forbidding them to buy or sell oysters taken from public grounds or natural beds during a closed season, etc., and the other being a law referring only to regular dealers, requiring that they shall be licensed, and designed to render more effective the legislation in protection of the fish and oyster industries of the State. State v. Sermons, 169 N. C. 285, 84 S. E. 337.

§ 1921. Oyster dealers to keep records.—All persons engaged in buying, packing, canning, shucking or shipping oysters shall keep a permanent record of all oysters either bought or caught by them, or by persons for them, when and from whom bought, the number of bushels and the price paid therefor. All these records shall at all times be open to the examination and inspection of the fisheries commissioner, assistant commissioner and inspector, and upon request shall be verified by the parties making them. If any person engaged in buying, packing, canning, shucking or shipping oysters taken or caught from the public grounds or natural oyster beds of the state shall fail to keep a permanent record of all oysters bought by him or caught by him, or by persons for him, when and from whom bought, the number of bushels and the price paid therefor, or shall fail upon demand to exhibit such record as required by law, or shall fail to verify the same, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (Rev., ss. 2396, 2418; 1903, c. 516, s. 5; 1915, c. 136, s. 2.)

§ 1922. Oyster measure.—All oysters measured in the shell shall be measured in a circular tub with straight sides and straight, solid bottom, with holes in the bottom not more than one-half inch in diameter. The said measures shall have the following dimensions: A bushel tub shall measure eighteen inches from inside to inside across the top, sixteen inches from inside to inside chimb to the bottom and twenty-one inches diagonal from inside chimb to top. All measures found in the possession of any dealer not meeting the requirements of this section shall be destroyed by said fisheries commissioners, assistant commissioner or inspector. Any person using an unlawful measure for the sale or purchase of oysters shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev.,

s. 2417; 1903, c. 510, s. 12; 1907, c. 969, s. 10; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 42, s. 2.)

§ 1923. Local modification as to oyster measures in New Hanover, Onslow and Pender counties.—In New Hanover, Onslow and Pender counties all measures used for buying or selling oysters shall have a brand, to be adopted by the fisheries commissioner, stamped therein by said commissioner, assistant commissioner, or his lawful inspectors. (Rev., s. 2417; 1903, c. 516, s. 12; 1907, c. 969, s. 13.)

§ 1924. Illegal measures prohibited.—If any person shall in buying or selling oysters use any measure other than that prescribed by law for the measurement of oysters, or if any dealer in oysters shall have in his possession any measure for measuring oysters other than that prescribed by law, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (Rev., s. 2399; 1903, c. 516, s. 12.)

§ 1925. Dredging regulated as to territory and season.—Any bona fide resident of the state duly licensed according to law and using a licensed boat or vessel may use scoops, scrapes or dredges in catching or taking oysters from the fifteenth day of November in each year to the first day in April following, from the public grounds and natural oyster beds in the broad open waters of Pamlico sound, Pamlico river, Neuse river and Shoal river, except in those portions of said sound and rivers in which the use of such instruments and implements is prohibited as herein provided. No person shall use any implement or instrument except hand-tongs in catching oysters in any bay, river, creek, strait, or any tributary of such, which borders upon or empties into Pamlico sound, Pamlico river, or Long Shoal river, except as hereinafter provided; and any point inside of a line drawn from the farthest or extreme outward point of land or marsh on the one side to the farthest or extreme outward point of land or marsh on the opposite side of any creek, strait or bay shall be construed to be within the said creek, strait or bay for the purpose of this section. Nor shall any person use any implement or instrument except hand-tongs in the waters of Pamlico sound from what is known as the reef or reefs in the eastern portion of said sound to the line of banks bordering its eastern shores; nor along the shores of Pamlico county inside of a line beginning at Maw point and running to the west end of Brant island, thence to Pamlico point; nor in the waters of Pamlico sound north of a line running from Long Shoal light to Gull Shoal life-saving station, from the first day of February of each year to the fifteenth day of November, nor in any of the waters of Carteret county. And for the purpose of this section, the northern boundary of said county shall be a line extending from Swan point to Harbor island light, thence a line to Southwest Straddle light, thence a line to Northwest point light, thence a line to the middle of Ocracoke inlet; nor in the waters of Neuse river above a line in said river running from Carbacon buoy to the western point of land at Pierce's creek. (Rev., 2413; 1903, c. 516, ss. 13, 14, 15; 1905, c. 507, s. 2.)

§ 1926. Illegal dredging prohibited; evidence.—If any person shall use any scoops, scrapes or dredges for catching oysters except at the times and in the places in this chapter expressly authorized, or shall between the fifth day of April and the fifteenth day of November of any year carry on any boat or vessel any scoops, scrapes, dredges or winders, such as are usually or can be used for taking oysters, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

If any boat or vessel shall be seen sailing on any of the waters of this state during the season when the dredging of oysters is prohibited by law in the same manner in which they sail to take or catch oysters with scoops, scrapes or dredges, the said boat or vessel shall be pursued by any officer authorized to make arrests, and if said boat or vessel apprehended by said officer shall be found to have on board any wet oysters or the scoops, scrapes, dredges or lines, or deck wet, indicating the taking or catching of oysters at said time, and properly equipped for catching or taking oysters with scoops, scrapes or dredges, such facts shall be prima facie evidence that said boat or vessel has been used in violation of the provisions of the law prohibiting the taking or catching of oysters with scoops, scrapes or dredges in prohibited territory or at a season when the taking or catching of oysters with scoops, scrapes or dredges is prohibited by law, as the case may be. (Rev., ss. 2385, 2397; 1903, c. 516, ss. 13, 14, 15, 28.)

§ 1927. Dredging prohibited in certain waters of Pamlico sound; exception.—It shall be unlawful for any person to use any rakes, scrapes, scoops or dredges, or any other instrument or implement other than ordinary hand-tongs, for the purpose of taking or catching oysters from the public oyster grounds or natural oyster beds in any of the waters of Pamlico sound or its tributaries north of a line running from West Bluff bay to the center of Ocracoke inlet; any person found guilty of the violation of this prohibition shall be punished by a fine not less than twenty-five dollars or imprisoned not less than thirty days. (1909, c. 559.)

§ 1928. Culling required; size limit. — All oysters taken from the public grounds of this state, with whatsoever instrument or implement, shall be culled, and all oysters whose shells measure less than two and one-half inches in longest diameter, except such as are attached to a large oyster and cannot be removed without destroying the small oyster, and all shells taken with the said oysters shall be returned to the public ground when and where taken, and no oysters shall be allowed by the inspectors to be marketed which shall consist of more than ten per cent of such small oysters and shells, except "coon" oysters and oysters largely covered with mussels: Provided, these musseled oysters must not contain more than five per cent of shells or small oysters under regulation size. (Rev., s. 2415; 1903, c. 516, s. 11; 1905, c. 525; 1907, c. 969, s. 8; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 42, s. 1.)

§ 1929. Local modification as to culling oysters in New Hanover, Onslow and Pender counties.—In New Hanover, Onslow and Pender counties the preceding section is in force, except that the oysters shall be measured "from hinge to mouth," instead of in longest diameter. (Rev., s. 2415; 1903, c. 516, s. 11; 1905, c. 525; 1907, c. 969, s. 13.)

§ 1930. Taking unculled oysters for planting permitted to residents.—Residents of the state of North Carolina shall be permitted to take oysters without culling from natural rocks at any time during the year for planting purposes only, in the waters of North Carolina. (1917, c. 153.)

§ 1931. Unculled oysters seized and scattered on public grounds.—Whenever oysters are offered for sale or loaded upon any vessel, car or train, without having been properly culled according to law, the commissioner, assistant commissioner, or inspector shall seize the boat, vessel, car or train containing the same and shall cause the said oysters to be scattered upon the public grounds, and the costs and expenses of said seizure and transportation shall be a prior lien to all liens on said boat, vessel, car or train, and if not paid on demand the officers making the seizure shall, after advertisement for twenty days, sell the same and make title to the purchaser, and after paying expenses as aforesaid pay the balance, if any, into the oyster fund. For the towing of said boat, a charge of three dollars and fifty cents per hour shall be charged against said boat for towage.

The last sentence is not applicable in New Hanover, Onslow, and Pender counties. (Rev., s. 2416; 1903, c. 516, s. 3; 1907, c. 969, ss. 9, 13.)

§ 1932. Shells to be bought and scattered on public beds.—The fisheries commissioner is hereby empowered to expend one-half of the balance to the credit of the oyster fund on the fifteenth day of April in each year for the purpose of buying oyster shells and scattering the same on the natural oyster grounds of the state during the months of April and May. (Rev., s. 2421; 1903, c. 516, s. 20.)

Part 5. Criminal Offenses Connected with Oyster Industry

§ 1933. Perjury in application for oyster license.—If any person shall make any false statement for the purpose of procuring any license, which may be required by law, to catch oysters, or to engage in the oyster industry, he shall be guilty of perjury and punished as provided by law. (Rev., s. 2390; 1903, c. 516, s. 17.)

§ 1934. Catching oysters without license.—If any person shall catch oysters from the public grounds of the state without having first obtained a license according to law, or shall employ any person as agent or assistant, or shall as the agent or assistant of any person catch oysters from the public grounds, without all of said persons having first obtained a license according to law, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (Rev., s. 2386; 1903, c. 516, s. 6.)

§ 1935. Oyster dealing without license.—If any person shall engage in the business of buying, canning, packing, shipping or shucking oysters taken or caught from the public grounds, or natural oyster beds of the state, without having first obtained a license as required by law, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. Art. 9. Commercial Fishing; General Regulations

§ 1964. Right of fishing in grantee of land under water.—Whenever any person acquires title to lands covered by navigable water under the subchapter Entries and Grants of the chapter entitled State Lands, the owner or person so acquiring title has the right to establish fisheries upon said lands; and whenever the owner of such lands improves the same by clearing off and cutting therefrom logs, roots, stumps, or other obstructions, so that the said land may be used for the purpose of drawing or hauling nets or seines thereon for the purpose of taking or catching fish, the person who makes or causes to be made the said improvements, his heirs and assigns, shall have prior right to the use of the land so improved, in drawing, hauling, drifting or setting nets or seines thereon, and it shall be unlawful for any person, without the consent of such owner, to draw or haul nets or seines upon the land so improved by the owner thereof for the purpose of drawing or hauling nets or seines thereon. This section shall apply where the owner of such lands shall erect platforms or structures of any kind thereon to be used in fishing with nets and seines. Every person who shall willfully destroy or injure the said platforms or structures, or shall interfere with or molest the owner in the use of such lands as aforesaid, or in any other manner shall violate this section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. This section shall not relieve any person from punishment for the obstruction of navigation. (Rev., s. 2460; Code, s. 3384; 1874-5, c. 183, ss. 1-6.)

As to license to fish, see sec. 1887; as to entry of land covered by water, for wharves, see sec. 7543; as to injuries to nets by boats, see sec. 1972.

In General. — The right to fish in navigable waters is open to all, and the proprietorship of the adjacent beach gives no exclusive right of fishing in the navigable waters in front thereof; nor does the fact that the plaintiff as owner of the adjacent beach has been in the habit of drawing a seine up to her beach at that point give her such exclusive fishery, no matter for how many years she has exercised or enjoyed such privilege. No title to land under navigable waters can be acquired by user, since even an express grant of land covered by navigable waters is void by the terms of the statute. Bell v. Smith, 171 N. C. 116, 117, 87 S. E. 987.

The right of fishing in a navigable river is subordinate to the right of navigation. Lewis v. Keeling, 46 N. C. 299.

§ 1965. Seines prohibited to nonresidents; exceptions.—If any person who has not resided in the state continuously for at least twelve months next preceding the day on which he shall begin to take fish shall use, or cause to be used, in any of the waters of the state, any weir, hedge, net, or seine, for the purpose of taking fish for sale or exportation, or if any person shall assist in using, or be interested in using or causing to be used, in any such waters for the purpose aforesaid, any weir, hedge, net, seine or tongs in the use of which any such nonresident person may have an interest, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Nothing herein shall prevent any person from fishing with seines hauled to the shore at any fishery, the title to which fishery or any interest therein having been acquired by such person by lease, purchase or inheritance. This section shall not extend to servants employed to fish by any persons allowed to fish in the navigable waters of the state. No nonresident of the state shall make any sale, assignment or transfer of any fishery, weir, or other fishing apparatus, or privilege mentioned in this section, to any citizen of the state for the purpose of operating and working said fishery, weir, or other fishing apparatus as aforesaid, under the name and ownership of such citizen, or as the servant or employee of any citizen; and any sale, transfer or assignment not made bona fide and for a full consideration shall be null and void.

Upon affidavit founded upon information and belief that any nonresident of the state is operating any such fishery, weir, or other fishing apparatus as aforesaid in the waters of the state, under such sale, assignment or transfer, as the pretended servant or employee of any citizen of the state, it shall be the duty of the justice of the peace before whom said affidavit is made to issue a warrant against the said nonresident and citizen under whose name said fishery is operated, and upon conviction the said offenders shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, for every offense, be fined not more than fifty dollars, or imprisoned not more than thirty days. Upon the said trial, the burden of proof shall be on the defendants to prove the bona fides and full consideration of said sale or transfer. (Rev., s. 2467; Code, ss. 3379, 3380; R. C., c. 81, s. 5; 1844, c. 40, s. 1; 1876-7, c. 33; 1883, c. 171; 1931, c. 81.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 inserted the word "lease" in the second sentence of this section.

In General.—The defendants were indicted for unlawfully taking oysters. It was proved that they were residents of the State of Virginia, but were in the employment of one W., who was a resident of North Carolina. It was held that the defendants were not guilty if they, in good faith, were acting as servants of W. State v. Conner, 107 N. C. 931, 11 S. E. 992.

§ 1965(a). Fishing with nets, etc., by non-residents prohibited. — It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation, which has not been a bona fide resident of the State for twelve months continuously, next preceding the date on which the fishing shall commence, to use or cause to be used in the waters of the State, which shall include the distance of three nautical miles, measured from the outer beaches or shores of the State of North Carolina out and into the waters of the Atlantic Ocean, any seines, trawls or nets of any kind for the purpose of taking fish for sale or exportation. Any person, firm or corporation violating this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined or imprisoned at the discretion of the court.

It shall be the duty of the Fisheries Commissioner whenever he has reasonable grounds to believe that this section is being violated in any particular place, to go himself or send a duly authorized deputy to such place and such officer finding that the provisions of this section are being violated is hereby authorized and empowered to seize and remove all nets, machinery, or other appliances or paraphernalia being used in violation of this section, and to sell the same at public auction, after advertisement for ten days at the Court House door in the county in which the seizure was made, or in which the seized property is taken under the provisions of this section, and apply the proceeds from said sale, first to payment of costs and expenses of such sale and removal, and pay the balance of said proceeds remaining, if any, to the school fund of the county in which or nearest to where the offense is committed.

Such Fisheries Commissioner, or his authorized deputy, is further authorized and empowered to seize any boat, vessel or ship of any kind or nature, used in thus violating the law, and to bring the same into the nearest port in said State having sufficient depth of water to properly accommodate such boat, vessel or ship so seized. Such boat, vessel or ship so found being used contrary to the provisions of this Statute, shall be forfeited to the State and the said Fisheries Commissioner is hereby authorized, empowered and directed to institute proceedings for the purpose of condemning and selling such boat, vessel or ship, in the name of the State, in the Superior Court in the County in which such seized boat, vessel or ship is taken under the provisions of this act. The said Fisheries Commissioner, however, with the approval of the Director of the Department of Conservation and Development, shall have authority to compromise, by agreement with the owner of such boat, vessel or ship, for any such violation, and upon such compromise and the payment of the sum of money agreed upon, he may release such boat, vessel or ship to the owner thereof, without further proceedings being taken. If, however, no such compromise, thus authorized, shall be made between the Fisheries Commissioner, with the approval of the Director of the Board of Conservation and Development, then the owner of such boat may execute and deliver to the Fisheries Commissioner a bond, with adequate security, not less than the value of such boat, conditioned to return said boat to the custody of said Fisheries Commissioner, if upon the trial of the cause in the Superior Court as aforesaid it should be determined that the said boat was forfeited.

This authority to seize the said boat, under the circumstances hereinbefore detailed, shall in no way affect the liability of the owners and those operating the boat and thus using it in fishing, to be prosecuted for the misdemeanor hereinbefore defined. Provided, nothing contained in this section shall be construed to prevent any person, firm or corporation, which has been a bona fide resident of the State of North Carolina for twelve months continuously next preceding the date on which the fishing shall commence from employing non-resident employees in connection with fishing as authorized by law. (1931, c. 36, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—This section empowers the Fisheries Commissioner or his deputies to seize nets and appliances used in violation of law and sell the same at public auction, after advertisement for ten days, or to seize any boat engaged in violation of the law and institute proceedings for condemnation in the name of the state. Such power in administrative agencies is held to be due process (Daniels v. Homer, 139 N. C. 219, 51 S. E. 992. See 3 N. C. L. Rev. 27), since the owner has recourse to the courts to recover his property before condemnation by injunction or by claim and delivery proceedings and may maintain an action for damages for the value of the property against the officials who seized it, if such taking prove to be wrongful. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 389.

§ 1965(b). Fishing within three-mile limit permitted with pound nets.—It shall be lawful to set pound nets of not less than one and one-quarter inch bar, when fished, in the Atlantic ocean within the three-mile limit and between Cape Hatteras and the Virginia line, but not nearer to any inlet than three miles nor nearer the beach or ocean shore than four hundred yards. (1931, c. 118, s. 1.)

§ 1965(c). Permission to set up apparatus to be granted by department of conservation and development and federal government; license fee. —Application for entry for the purpose of constructing permanent and semi-permanent, or stationary fishing apparatus within the three-mile limit under the provisions of this Act shall be made to the department of conservation and development. Permits for the erection of such fishing apparatus, nets, wires or devices, may be granted by the department of conservation and development if such construction are deemed to not be a menace to public safety or navigation. No construction, or any part of a construction, to be erected under the authority of this section shall be made until permission is secured from the department of conservation and development and from the federal government. The license fee for the erection of fishing apparatus, nets, wires, or other construction which is an integral part of such fishing device, under the authority of this section, shall be at the rate of twenty-five dollars per pocket per year, and said license shall expire each year on December thirty-one: Provided, however, the license fee herein levied shall not apply where the investment for such apparatus does not exceed the sum of one thousand dollars. (1931, c. 118, s. 2.)

§ 1965(d). Taking of shrimp by non-residents prohibited. — It shall be unlawful for a person, who has not in good faith resided in the State of North Carolina for a period of twelve months to take shrimp within the territorial waters of the State. (1931, c. 117, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The act from which this and the succeeding section were taken was amended by Public Laws 1931, c. 331, which made its provisions, regulating the taking of shrimp in the public waters of the State, subject to the approval and supervision of the department of conservation and development under the general law theretofore existing.

Such restrictions against non-residents taking shrimp and fish are justified under the police power which may be exercised in favor of residents as to the state's natural resources. Corfield v. Coryell, Fed. Cas. No. 3230, 4 Wash. C. C. 371. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 389.

§ 1965(e). Closed season for residents taking shrimp. — It shall be unlawful for any resident of the State of North Carolina to take shrimp for commercial purposes in any of the waters of said State between the fifteenth day of May and the fifteenth day of August in any year: Provided, however, that any such resident may take such shrimp to be used as bait only, but not exceeding one bushel per day per boat. (1931, c. 117, s. 3.)

See note under preceding section.

§ 1965(f). Violation of two preceding sections made misdemeanor.—Any person, firm or corporation offending against the provisions of sections 1965(d) and 1965(e) shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished in the discretion of the court. (1931, c. 117, s. 4.)

§ 1966. Menhaden fishing forbidden to non-residents.—It is unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation, not a citizen or resident of the state of North Carolina, to catch, capture, or otherwise take any menhaden or fatbacks within the waters of the state of North Carolina to the extreme limits of the state's jurisdiction in and over said waters; and for the purpose of this law the following boundaries are hereby declared to be the boundaries to which the waters of the said state extend, to wit: a distance of three nautical miles, measured from the outer beach or shore of the state of North Carolina out and into the waters of the Atlantic ocean; and any portions or portion of any water within a distance of three nautical miles from said waters of the Atlantic ocean to any beach or shore of said state shall be deemed, for the purpose of this act, within the waters of said state: Provided, that any citizen or resident of the state of North Carolina, whether person, firm, or corporation, may take, capture, or catch any menhaden or fatbacks at any time, subject to existing laws; provided, it shall be lawful for non-residents of the State to catch, or capture menhaden (fat-backs) from the waters of North Carolina, North of Cape Hatteras, on the payment to the State Fisheries Commissioner of seventy-five cents per ton on gross tonnage of such boats as they may operate, licenses issued under this proviso to expire December thirty-first of each year.

It is unlawful for any nonresident person, persons, firm, or corporation knowingly to buy, cook, or manufacture into fertilizer any menhaden or fatbacks caught, taken, or captured contrary to the provisions of the above.

Any person, persons, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction in any county opposite the place at which said act is done, shall be fined not less than twenty-five hundred dollars or imprisoned for two years, or both, in the discretion of the court: Provided, that each catch, or taking, or purchase, or act of manufacture, shall constitute a distinct and separate offense.

It is the duty of the fisheries commissioner or assistant commissioner, whenever an affidavit is delivered to him stating that the affiant is informed and believes that said act is being violated at any particular place, to go himself or send a duly authorized deputy to such place, to investigate the same, and such officer shall seize and remove all nets, machinery, or other appliances and paraphernalia setting or being used in violation of this section, sell same at public auction and apply the proceeds of such sale to the payment of costs and expenses of such removal, and pay any balance remaining into the school fund of the county nearest to the place where the offense is committed. (1911, c. 102; 1923, c. 154, ss. 2, 3.)

§ 1967. Menhaden fishing with nets regulated.—If any person shall catch any menhaden or fatbacks within the waters of the state of North Carolina, to the extreme limits of the state's jurisdiction as defined in the preceding section, in any purse net or purse seine with a bar of less than one inch and with a mesh of less than two inches, or shall knowingly cook or manufacture for fertilizer any menhaden or fatbacks caught in any net or seine having bars of less than one inch or having meshes of less than two inches, at any place within the state of North Carolina, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and for each and every offense shall be fined not less than five hundred dollars or imprisoned for one year, or both, in the discretion of the court. Every person found fishing for menhaden or fatbacks within three miles of the shore of any county shall be presumed to have violated this section. And all such persons, firms or corporations shall be subject to all the pains and penalties denounced in this section, and they may be prosecuted in the courts of any county in this state. All persons aiding and abetting shall be guilty as principals.

This section is inapplicable to the counties of Dare, Brunswick, Pender, and New Hanover. (Rev., s. 2438; 1905, cc. 274, 508.)

§ 1968. Poisoning streams.—If any person shall put any poisonous substance for the purpose of catching, killing or driving off any fish in any of the waters of a creek or river, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3417; Code, s. 1094; 1883, c. 290.)

§ 1968(a). Putting explosives in waters forbidden.—No person, firm or corporation shall put or place in any waters within or on the boundaries of this State any electricity, explosives or poisonous substances whatsoever for the purpose of catching, injuring or killing fish. No person, firm or corporation shall allow substances, poisonous to fish to be turned into or allowed to run, flow, wash or be emptied into any waters within this commonwealth, designated by Fisheries Commission Board as fish producing waters, unless it be shown to the satisfaction of the Fisheries Commission Board or to the proper court that every reasonable and practicable means has been used to abate and prevent the pollution of waters in question by emptying into same any deleterious or poisonous substances: Provided this section shall not apply to dyestuffs or sewage discharged from cotton mills.

In prosecutions under this section for pollution of water by substances known to be injurious to fish or fish food, it shall not be necessary to prove that such substances have actually caused the death of any particular fish.

No person shall fish or trespass with intent to fish in or upon any waters or bed or banks of any water, or any land controlled or owned, or occupied by the State Fisheries Commission. No person shall wilfully or maliciously destroy or damage any ponds, property or appliance whatsoever of the commission, nor interfere, obstruct, pollute or diminish the natural flow of water into or through any State fish hatchery.

Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall, on conviction, be fined not less than one hundred dollars for each and every offense: Provided, further, that this act shall apply only to such fish producing streams designated as such by the Fisheries Commission Board, and that no prosecution under this act shall be instituted except by said Fisheries Commission Board. (1927, c. 107.)

§ 1969. Fish offal in navigable waters.—If any person shall throw, or cause to be thrown, into the channel of any of the navigable waters of the state, any fish offal, in any quantity that shall be likely to hinder or prevent the passage of fish along such channel, or if any person shall throw or cause to be thrown into the waters known as the Frying Pan, tributary to the Great Alligator river, in Tyrrell county, any fish offal in any quantities whatsoever, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 2444; Code, ss. 3386, 3389, 3407.)

§ 1970. Sunday fishing.—If any person fish on Sunday with a seine, drag-net or other kind of net, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined not less than two hundred nor more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned not more than twelve months. (Rev., s. 3841; Code, s. 1116; 1883, c. 338; 1933, c. 438.)

Editor's Note.—By amendment of 1927, ch. 59, sec. 3, of Public Laws this section was made applicable to all the counties, and the provision that exempted Onslow County was repealed.

Public Laws 1933, c. 438, omitted the exception as to nets fastened to stakes.

For act exempting stationary fisheries in Onslow County from operation of section, see Public Laws 1933, c. 51.

§ 1971. Robbing nets.—If any person shall, without authority of the owner, take any fish from any nets of any kind, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 2478; Code, s. 3418; 1883, c. 137, s. 5.)

§ 1972. Vessel injuring nets.—If any master or other person having the management or control of a vessel or boat of any kind, in the navigable waters of the state, shall willfully, wantonly, and unnecessarily do injury to any seine or net which may be lawfully hauled, set or fixed in said waters for the purpose of taking fish, he shall forfeit and pay to the owner of such seine or net, or other person injured by such act, one hundred dollars, and shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 2465; Code, ss. 3385, 3389.)

In General.—The right of navigation is paramount but not exclusive. If nets are across the channel of a river, or are in any other way a bar to navigation, they may be run over with impunity by any vessels that may find it reasonably necessary to do so. Lewis v. Keeling, 46 N. C. 299, 62 Am. Dec. 168; State v. Baum, 128 N. C. 600, 38 S. E. 900. But there must be some such necessity. As was said by the court in Lewis v. Keeling, supra, "There must be no wantonness or malice, no unnecessary damage, but a bona fide exercise of the paramount right of navigation." Hopkins v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 131 N. C. 463, 465, 42 S. E. 902.

§ 1973. Injury to fishing structures.—If any person shall willfully destroy or injure any platform or structure on any land covered by navigable waters, which land has been duly entered and granted and over which the owner has, according to law, acquired a prior right of fishery, or shall interfere with or molest the owner in the use thereof or of said prior right of fishery, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. If any person shall willfully destroy or injure any platform or structure erected in any navigable waters by the owner of the adjoining land for the purpose of drawing or hauling nets or seines thereon, or shall interfere with or molest the owner in the use of any such lands, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., ss. 3414, 3415; Code, s. 2753; 1874-5, c. 183, ss. 2-4.)

§ 1974. Obstructing passage of fish in streams.—If any person shall set a net of any description across the main channel of any river or creek, or shall erect, so as to extend more than three-fourths of the distance, across any such river or creek any stand, dam, weir, hedge or other obstruction to the passage of fish, or shall erect any stand, dam, weir, or hedge, in any part of any river or creek that may be left open for the passage of fish, or who, having erected any dam where the same was allowed, and shall not make and keep open such slope or fishway as may be required by law to be kept open for the free passage of fish, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; Provided, that this section shall not apply to the creeks in the sound between Bogue inlet and Brown inlet, in Onslow county, except the main channel thereof. (Rev., s. 2457; Code, ss. 3387, 3388, 3389; 1909, c. 466, s. 1.)

§ 1975. Dams for mills and factories regulated; sluiceways.—No person shall place or allow to remain any dam for mill or factory purposes in the Chowan river between Holliday's island and the Virginia line; in the Meherrin river between its mouth and the Virginia line; in the Roanoke river from the mouth of the Cashie river to the Virginia line; in the Dan river from the crossing of the state line to a point nearest Danbury; in the Neuse river from New Bern to Neuse station in Wake county; in Contentnea creek from its junction with the Neuse to the junction of Turkey and Moccasin creeks; in the Cape Fear river from Wilmington to the junction of Haw and Deep rivers and thence in Haw river to the line of Chatham and Alamance counties, and also in Deep river to the Randolph and Chatham line; in Rocky river from its mouth to the crossing of the Pittsboro and Ashboro road; in the New Hope river from its mouth to the Orange county line; in Northeast Cape Fear river from Wilmington to South Washington; in Black river from its mouth to the junction of the Coharie; in the South river from its junction with the Black river to the crossing of the Fayetteville and Warsaw public road; in Lumber river from the state line to the northern boundary of Robeson county; in the Yadkin river from the state line to Patterson's factory; in Elk creek, a tributary of the Yadkin river, from its mouth to Daniel Wheeler's in Watauga county; in Stony Fork creek, a tributary of the Yadkin river, from its mouth to John Jones's old store; in Ararat river from its mouth to the bridge at Mount Airy; in North Fork of Catawba from its mouth to Turkey Cove; in Broad river from the state line to Reedy Patch creek; in Green river from its mouth to its junction with North Pacolet; in the Tennessee river from the state line to its junction with the Nantahala; in Pigeon river from the state line to the Forks of Pigeon; in the French Broad river from the state line to Brevard and in the Swannanoa river; in Toe river from the state line to the confluence of the North and South Forks of Toe; in New River from the state line to the point of divergence from the western boundary line of Alleghany county; in Little river in Johnston county from its junction with Neuse river in Wayne county to the Wake county line; in Cane river from the mouth of same to mouth of Bolling creek in Yancey county, also Old Fields of Toe on North Toe river in Mitchell county; Johns river from its mouth to the forks of said river near Carrell Moore's in Caldwell county; Catawba river from the South Carolina line to the town of Old Fort in McDowell county, unless the owner thereof shall construct thereon at his own expense a sluiceway for the free passage of fish, of a width not less than three feet nor more than ten feet: Provided, such sluiceway shall be constructed according to plans and specifications to be furnished by the board of agriculture, and shall not injure the water-power of such owner: Provided further, in order to ascertain whether sluiceways will or will not injure the water-power aforesaid, the owner of such dam may select two disinterested persons and the board of agriculture two others, who may select the fifth person to aid in the arbitration and settlement of such complaint: Provided further, this section shall not apply to Pigeon river in Haywood county: Provided also, it shall be lawful for any person to remove any obstruction in the main channel of the Cape Fear river to the width of one hundred feet, for the free passage of fish in the county of Harnett. This proviso, however, shall not apply to any dam or obstruction placed or kept upon said river by the Cape Fear iron and steel company. (Rev., s. 2462; Code, s. 3410; 1901, c. 208; 1880, c. 34; 1881, cc. 21, 32, 250, 320; 1905, c. 278; P. L. 1913, c. 758.)

§ 1976. Sluiceways and fish passages; regulation and enforcement.—The sluiceways referred to in the preceding section shall be so constructed and placed upon such dams by the owner thereof within sixty days after notice has been given by the board of agriculture, under a penalty of one hundred dollars per day for each day thereafter that such dam shall remain without such sluiceway, and shall be kept open by him during the months of February, March, April, May, June, October and November, and at all other times when there is sufficient water to supply both the water-power and the sluiceway, a fine of fifty dollars per day for each day said sluiceway shall be allowed to remain closed, and any person who shall fish with net, trap, hook and line, or who shall take in any way whatsoever any fish within two hundred feet of said sluiceway, shall be subject to a fine of one dollar for each fish so taken, or a fine of fifty dollars for each offense, or imprisonment for thirty days.

No other obstruction to the passage of fish shall exist or be built between the designated points in the streams mentioned in this and the preceding section unless an opening of not less than twenty-five feet, and not more than seventy-five feet, embracing the main channel of said streams, shall be made by the owner of such obstructions within twenty days after notice from the board of agriculture to make such opening under penalty of fifty dollars per day for each day such obstruction shall remain unopened. Said notice shall be served by the sheriff of the county, and his return shall be prima facie evidence of notice in any suit for such penalty. (Rev., ss. 2463, 2464; Code, ss. 3411, 3412; 1880, c. 34, ss. 2, 3.)

Art. 10. Commercial Fishing; Local Regulations

(Rev., s. 2448; Code, ss. 3382, 3414; 1883, c. 69; R. C., c. 81, s. 1844, c. 40, s. 7; 1852, c. 13; 1893, c. 147; Ex. Sess. 1908, c. 19, s. 1.)

Pod-Nets Interfering with Seines.—When stakes of pod-net fishermen interfere with the use of Albemarle sound for seining they may be removed by any party with whom they interfere. Hettrick & Bro. v. Page, 82 N. C. 65.

§ 2141(s). Powers of commission: To propagate game.—The commission may acquire, by gift, purchase or capture, wild birds or animals for propagation purposes or for restocking the forests and covers of this State. It may establish and maintain refuges and sanctuaries on lands owned by the State or leased by the commission and propagate wild birds or animals thereon and distribute such birds and animals in the covers of the State, or to private land owners in such sections of the State as show the need of restocking, at its discretion. (1927, c. 51, s. 16.)

§ 2141(t). Powers of commission: To permit killing of game when injurious to agriculture.—The commission shall have power to issue permits to kill any species of birds or animals which may become seriously injurious to the agriculture or other interests in any particular community, or such birds or animals may be captured alive by it or under its direction and planted in other sections of the State for restocking, or may be disposed of in such other manner as it may determine. Any permit issued pursuant to this section shall expire within four (4) months after the date of issuance. (1927, c. 51, s. 17.)

§ 2141(u). Powers of county game commission.—This article shall not be construed to dissolve any game commissions now existing in the several counties, nor to prohibit the creation of game commissions in the several counties, and such commissions now existing and such as may be created shall exist, but supervision of the provisions of this article and the direction of the policies and administration of this article and other acts which may exist for the same purposes as this shall be vested in and abide with the state game commission, and the powers of such county commissions as may exist or may be created shall be of a nature advisory and recommendatory to the state game commission and the exercise of any powers by them shall require the approval of the state game commission. In counties where game commissions are not created by legislative act the game commission of said county shall be composed of the chairman of the board of county commissioners, the clerk of the superior court, and the duly appointed and bonded county game warden as authorized in section 2141(w). (1927, c. 51, s. 18; 1933, c. 422, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1933, c. 422, added, as the last sentence of the section, the provision applicable in counties where commissions are not created by legislative act.

§ 2141(v). Powers of Warden: To issue permits.—The Warden may issue a permit, revocable for cause, to any person, authorizing the holder to collect and possess wild animals or wild birds or birds' nests or eggs for scientific, propagation, or exhibition purposes. Before such a permit to take for scientific purposes is issued, the applicant must file written testimonials from two well known ornithologists or zoölogists and pay the sum of one dollar ($1.00) for the permit; but duly accredited representatives of public educational or scientific institutions, or governmental departments of the United States engaged in the scientific study of birds and animals, may be granted such a permit without endorsements or charge or without being required to obtain a hunting license. If the Warden is satisfied of the good faith of the applicant, he shall issue to him a permit which shall fix the date of its expiration and may fix a restriction upon the number and kinds of animals, birds, or birds' nests or eggs to be taken thereunder, but no such permit shall be valid after the last day of the calendar year in which it is issued. Permits to take game animals or game birds during the close season shall not be issued except to a duly accredited representative of a school, college, university, public museum, or other institution of learning, or a representative of the Federal Government engaged in the scientific study of birds and animals or to a duly accredited representative of a State game department or commission to restock the covers of the State which he represents. Specimens of birds or animals legally taken and birds and animals reared in domestication pursuant to the provisions of this act and to regulations of the commission may be bought, sold and transported at any time by any person holding a valid permit issued in accordance with the provisions of this section. When transported by common carrier or contained in a package, said specimens of any package in which the same are transported shall have clearly and conspicuously marked on the outside the name and address of the consignor and consignee, and an accurate statement of the numbers and kinds of birds or animals, specimens or parts thereof or birds' nests or eggs contained therein, and that such specimens are for scientific or propagation purposes. Each person receiving a permit under this section must file, at the expiration of his permit, with the Warden a report of his operations under the permit, which report shall set forth the name and address of the permittee, the number of his permit, the number of each species of birds, animals, or birds' nests or eggs taken thereunder or otherwise acquired, disposition of the same, names and addresses of persons acquiring the same from the permittee, and number of each species on hand for propagation purposes at the expiration of the permit. The commission is hereby authorized to prescribe from time to time rules and regulations governing the possession, purchase, sale and transportation of birds and animals raised in domestication pursuant to the provisions of this act. (1927, c. 51, s. 19.)

§ 2141(w). Powers of Warden: To employ deputies.—With the approval of the commission, the Warden may employ such Deputy Wardens, refuge keepers, employees and agents as shall be necessary for the proper carrying out of the provisions of this act and with the approval of the commission shall arrange the compensation of such Deputy Wardens, refuge keepers, employees and agents. The Warden shall have general supervision and control over all such Deputy Wardens, refuge keepers and employees, and, under the supervision and direction of the commission, shall enforce all the provisions of this act and any other laws now in force or hereafter enacted for the protection of wild birds and animals, and shall exercise all necessary powers incident thereto. It shall be the duty of the Deputy Wardens, refuge keepers and employees to obey and carry out the instructions and directions of the Warden for the enforcement of this act. (1927, c. 51, s. 20.)

Although a man may have been duly appointed under this section he is not an employee of the State before he has received word of his appointment and accepted it. Birchfield v. Department of Conservation, etc., 204 N. C. 217, 167 S. E. 855.

§ 2141(x). Powers of Warden: To prepare form of license and to execute warrants.—It shall be the duty of the Warden, immediately after his appointment, to prepare forms of hunting licenses and other forms necessary for the use in the administration of the provisions of this act and to properly distribute them to the officers and persons required to issue licenses or use such forms. The Warden shall cause the hunting license accounts of officers and persons issuing licenses to be examined and audited at least once during each year and shall require such officers or persons promptly to pay to him in accordance with the provisions of this act all moneys received by them from the sales of hunting licenses.

The Warden and each of his deputies shall have power to execute all warrants issued for violation of this act and to serve subpœnas issued for examination, investigations, or trial of offenders against any of the provisions of this act: to make search after having first obtained proper warrant therefor, of any place or thing which such Warden has cause to believe contains wild birds or animals or any parts thereof, or the nests or eggs of birds possessed in violation of law; to seize wild birds or animals or parts thereof, or nests, or eggs of birds killed, captured, or possessed in violation of law, or showing evidence of illegal killing; to seize and confiscate all instruments or devices illegally used in taking wild birds or animals and to hold the same to be disposed of as provided in this act; to arrest without warrant any person committing a violation of this act in his presence, and to take such person immediately before a court having jurisdiction for trial or hearing; and to exercise such other powers of peace officers in the enforcement of the provisions of this act, or of judgments obtained for violation thereof, as are not herein specifically conferred. (1927, c. 51, s. 21.)

§ 2141(y). Powers of Warden: To dispose of seized game and devices.—All game birds and the edible portions of game animals seized under the provisions of this act shall be disposed of by the Warden or under his direction, by gift to hospitals, charitable institutions, or almhouses within the State. Non-game birds or parts thereof and the plumes or skins of wild birds or birds of foreign species shall be disposed of by the Warden by gift to scientific and educational institutions within the State, or may be retained by him for use of the commission, or in his discretion they may be destroyed. The Warden shall take a receipt from the donee for any such gift and file such receipt in his office, and he shall keep a permanent record of such gifts. The heads, antlers, horns, hides, skins, or feet, or parts of any game or fur-bearing animal, seized under the provisions of this act, if the person from whom the same were seized is convicted of violating any of the provisions of this act, or if the owner thereof is unknown, may be sold for cash by the Warden, or under his direction, at public auction to the highest bidder. Notice of the time and place of such sale, together with a description of the articles to be sold, shall be given by the Warden or under his direction in such manner as he may determine to be best calculated to bring the best price therefor: Provided, that if the property seized is perishable that same may be disposed of by the Warden immediately. The Warden or his deputies authorized to make the sale shall issue to the purchaser a certificate stating that the purchaser has the legal right to be in possession of the articles bought, and any one so acquiring said article or articles from the State, other than the person from whom they were seized, shall have the right to possess the same. If the person from whom any of said articles were seized be acquitted of the charge of violating any of the provisions of this act the article so seized, unless it be an instrument or device the use of which is prohibited by this act, or money derived from the sale thereof if it was perishable property, shall be returned to him. No officer shall be liable for any damage on account of any search, examination, seizure, or sale as herein provided. It shall be, and is hereby made, the duty of each deputy game warden to make a full and complete report to the Warden of all property by him confiscated because of a violation of the game laws of this State, showing in detail a description of the property, the person from whom it was confiscated, the price received therefor upon public sale, and the disposition of the money. The Warden shall keep in his office a permanent record showing all property confiscated by him or any of his deputies, and the disposition made thereof under the provisions of this act. (1927, c. 51, s. 22.)

§ 2141(z). Officers constituted deputy game wardens.—All sheriffs, deputy sheriffs, police officers, forest wardens, park patrolmen, refuge keepers and constables are hereby made ex officio deputy game wardens, and it shall be their duty to aid in the enforcement of this law. In addition to fees to which he may be entitled under the general law of this State any ex officio deputy game warden shall receive the sum of five dollars ($5.00) in any case involving a violation of this act in which he secures the evidence upon which the conviction was obtained, which shall be assessed against the defendant and paid by such defendant as a part of the cost in case of conviction; if no conviction is procured, no fee shall be taxed against the county or State. (1927, c. 51, s. 23.)

§ 2141(z)1. Police powers of wardens and ex officio wardens. — All game wardens duly appointed by the Department of Conservation and Development and all ex officio game wardens named in the North Carolina Game Law shall be authorized and empowered as fully as is the sheriff and other local officers to enforce local and county laws relating to the open and closed seasons to hunt or protect red and grey foxes. (1931, c. 143, s. 5.)

§ 2141(aa). Warden, deputies and refuge keepers constituted special forest wardens.—The Warden, deputy wardens and refuge keepers are hereby made ex officio Special Forest Wardens and charged with the duty of reporting to Forest Wardens, all infractions of the forest fire laws and to assist Forest Wardens in extinguishing forest fires, and generally enforcing the laws and regulations for the preservation of the forests. (1927, c. 51, s. 24.)

§ 2141(bb). Payment to state treasurer of license fees.—The warden shall promptly pay to the state treasurer all moneys received by him from the sale of hunting licenses or from any other source arising through the administration of this article, and the state treasurer shall deposit all such moneys in a special fund to be known as the state game fund and which is hereby reserved, set aside, appropriated and made available until expended as may be directed by the commission in the enforcement of this article, for the purposes of this article, and shall be used for no other purpose. (1927, c. 51, s. 25; 1933, c. 422, s. 2; 1935, c. 374.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 omitted the proviso which formerly appeared at the end of this section relating to payment of percentage to the county game commission.

§ 2141(cc). Initial expenses; department of conservation and development authorized to advance funds.—In order to pay the initial expenses, including the purchase of supplies, printing and distribution of licenses and for all other necessary expenses for the enforcement of this act pending receipt of the first year's hunting licenses, the State Treasurer is hereby authorized and directed to advance out of the State appropriation allotted by the General Assembly of nineteen hundred and twenty-seven to the Department of Conservation and Development a sum not to exceed ten thousand dollars. This amount shall be refunded to the account of the Department of Conservation and Development out of the first monies received under "The North Carolina Game Law." All vouchers involving expenditures and the amount so advanced by the Department of Conservation and Development shall be approved by the director of said department. (1927, c. 51, s. 26; 250, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—While the Act of 1927, ch. 250, sec. 4, purported to repeal § 27 of ch. 51 [2141(dd)], it was obvious that § 26, which corresponds to this section, was the section intended to be replaced. Public Laws 1929 c. 278, s. 2, amended Public Laws 1927, ch. 250, s. 4 to make it conform to this obvious intent.

§ 2141 (dd). License required. — No person shall at any time take any wild animals or birds without first having procured a license as provided by this act, which license shall authorize him to hunt or trap only during the periods of the year when it shall be lawful. The applicant for a license shall fill out a blank application in the form prescribed and furnished by the Warden. Said application shall be subscribed and sworn to by the applicant before an officer authorized to administer oaths in this State, and the persons hereby authorized to issue licenses are hereby authorized to administer oaths to applicants for such licenses. Licenses must be issued by the Clerk of the Superior Court of each county, the Warden, deputy wardens and such other persons as the Warden may authorize in writing. Said applicant, if a resident of this State, shall pay to the officer or person issuing the license the sum of one dollar ($1.00) as a license fee, and the sum of twenty-five cents (25c.) as a fee to the officer or person other than the State Game Warden, for issuing the same, and shall obtain a Resident Hunting License, which shall entitle him to take game birds and animals in the county of his residence, or shall pay to the officer or person issuing the license, the sum of three dollars ($3.00), as a license fee, and the sum of twenty-five cents ($.25) as a fee to the officer or other person other than the State Game Warden, for issuing the same, and shall obtain a resident State hunting license, which shall entitle him to take game birds and animals in counties other than the county of his residence, and in the State at large, as authorized by this act. All persons who have lived in this State for at least six months immediately preceding the making of such application shall be deemed a resident citizen for the purpose of this act. Said applicant, if a non-resident of this State, or a resident for less than six months, or an alien, shall pay to the officer or person issuing the license fifteen dollars ($15.00) as a license fee and the sum of twenty-five cents (25c.) as a fee to the officer or person other than the State Game Warden for issuing the license, and shall obtain a Non-resident Hunting License which shall entitle him to take game birds and game animals as authorized by this act: Provided, that a non-resident who holds fee simple title to lands in North Carolina, may hunt on such lands by payment of a license fee of five dollars ($5.00) plus twenty-five cents ($.25) for the issuing officer. Such non-resident must make a sworn application to the State Game Warden on forms provided by said Wardens, setting forth the location of such lands, the non-resident's title thereto, and such other information as may be required by the Warden, and if such non-resident be a corporation, then only the non-resident president, the vice-president, the secretary-treasurer, and the directors, not to exceed seven in number, of such corporation, shall be permitted to take out a non-resident landowners hunting license, as herein provided. On and after the first day of August one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine, any person who shall at any time take fur-bearing animals by trapping, shall take out and shall annually procure a trapper's license, and shall pay therefor the sum of two dollars ($2.00) as a license fee, and the sum of twenty-five cents ($.25) as a fee to the officer or person other than the State Game Warden, for issuing the same, and shall obtain a license which shall permit him to trap in the county of his residence, or, shall pay the sum of three dollars ($3.00) as a license fee and the sum of twenty-five cents ($.25) as a fee to the officer or person other than the State Game Warden, for issuing the same, and shall obtain a license which shall entitle him to trap in the counties other than that of his residence and in the State at large. Said applicant, if a nonresident of this State, or a resident of less than six months, or an alien, shall pay to the officer or person issuing the license, the sum of twenty-five dollars ($25.00) as a license fee, and the sum of twenty-five cents ($.25) as a fee to the officer or person, other than the State Game Warden, for issuing the license, and shall obtain a non-resident trapper's license, which shall entitle him to trap in the State at large. Trapping licenses shall be issued on forms to be provided by the State Game Warden, and shall be distinguished from the general hunting licenses above provided. The manner of taking fur-bearing animals by trapping, shall be as provided in the said North Carolina Game Law, as amended, and the proceeds from the sale of trapping licenses shall be subject to the disposition made in said law, as amended. Any person acting for hire as a hunting guide shall obtain a guide's license, and shall pay therefor a license fee in an amount not to exceed the sum of ten dollars ($10.00), the Board of Conservation and Development being hereby authorized and empowered to provide classifications, and to fix fees within said limit as to class. The Board of Conservation and Development is hereby authorized and empowered to prescribe rules and regulations respecting the duties of guides, to require that guides take an oath to abide by the game laws of the State, and to rescind the license of any guide convicted of violating the game law of the State. The Board of Conservation is hereby authorized and empowered to issue combination licenses for hunting and trapping, and for hunting and fishing, which said combination license may be for an amount less than the total of the trapping and hunting, or hunting and fishing, licenses when purchased separately. Such combination licenses shall show upon the face thereof the amount allocated to hunting and the amount to trapping or fishing, as the case may be, and the amount shown as allocated to fishing, shall be disposed of as by law provided for the funds derived from the sale of fishing licenses, and the amounts shown for hunting and trapping shall be disposed of according to the provisions of this act, as amended. Provided, that the Warden may, upon request, issue a Non-resident License to any Game Warden of the United States or of a State of the United States without the payment of any fees, which license may be used by such warden of the United States, or of a State of the United States, only in the discharge of his official business: provided, that nothing herein shall be construed so as to prevent or prohibit the Boards of County Commissioners in the several counties of the State from levying license fees upon non-resident hunters in addition to the fees prescribed by this act and such moneys as are received from said additional license fees levied in the several counties shall be paid to the treasurers of the respective counties and shall be appropriated and disbursed by said counties for any purposes. Whenever an additional fee is levied by the several counties it shall be the duty of the Warden and those acting under and through him to collect said fees and to pay the same to the Treasurer of the said counties and the issuance of the State hunting license shall in all such cases be evidence of the payment of both State and County fees. (1927, c. 51, s. 27; 1929, c. 278, ss. 3, 7.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1931, c. 315, applicable only to Alleghany County, amended this section by adding thereto: "Provided, no license be required to chase foxes when no game is bagged and the hunting is not done on horseback."

For an act fixing licenses for the seasons of '33-'34 and '34-'35, see Public Laws 1933, c. 422, § 3. Public Laws 1933, c. 157 fixed the law in regard to hunting foxes with dogs in Northampton County. However, this act was repealed by Public Laws 1935, chapter 211.

§ 2141(ee). Form of license.—The form of licenses shall be determined and the license blanks prepared by the Warden and furnished by him to the officers or persons authorized to issue licenses. Each licensee shall have his license on his person at all times when he is taking game animals or birds and shall exhibit the same for inspection to any warden or officer requesting to see it. No person shall alter or loan, change or transfer any li-

Disposition of license fees.—The license fees provided to be paid in this act shall be remitted by the officers or persons issuing the license on the first Tuesday of each month to the Warden, with a schedule setting forth the name and address of each licensee, the serial number and classification of the license, and the amount paid for each license issued, except that the officer or person issuing licenses shall, before making such remittance, deduct and retain as his fee the amount of fees provided to be paid to him by the provisions of this act for issuing licenses. On or before the first day of May of each year, each officer or person authorized to issue license shall forward to the Warden the stubs of licenses issued by him and all unused licenses, together with a report covering the number of licenses issued and the amount of license money received by him; the Warden shall tabulate the total number of licenses of all kinds issued in the State and the fees received therefor, and he shall include such data in his biennial report. (1927, c. 51, s. 31.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 422, struck out the section as it formerly appeared and substituted the present section. § 2141(jj)1. Protection of public hunting grounds by department of conservation and development.—In order to improve hunting, to open to the hunting public lands well stocked with game, and to give landowners some income through game protection and propagation, the state of North Carolina through the department of conservation and development is authorized to recognize, list, and assist the owners in protecting their lands which are a part of public hunting grounds organized under this section of the North Carolina game law subject to the following conditions, stipulations, and such rules as the conservation board may adopt for the regulation of said hunting grounds:

(3) The department of conservation and development will list and assist in advertising such public hunting grounds as are formed under this section, subject to such rules and regulations as may be adopted by the board from time to time and in accordance with the North Carolina game law and this section. The department of conservation and development will furnish at cost to the owners of public hunting grounds posters to be used in posting such lands, such poster to state that the lands are posted under this section of the North Carolina game law and in case of withdrawal of recognition by the department such posters shall be removed from the lands effected within ten days after notice to owner or owners;

(4) Owners of public hunting grounds shall require of each and every hunter the prescribed hunting licenses as set forth elsewhere in the North Carolina game law;

(5) The owners of public hunting grounds may require of each and every hunter a per day rate for hunting, rates to be approved by the department of conservation and development, said rates not to exceed four dollars ($4.00). In addition to charges for the privilege of shooting game, landowners may charge a dog hire when landowners furnish dogs, dogs to be furnished only by request of the hunter;

(6) When any group of owners of a public hunting ground organized under this section decide to promote the hunting of certain kinds of game, said kinds of game used for stocking to be propagated in game breeding plants organized and operated under the game and other laws of North Carolina, the owners shall be permitted to charge hunters such fees and rates as are approved by the board of conservation and development;

(7) No hunter is allowed to quit the hunting grounds at the end of the day's or part of a day's hunting without seeing the authority who gave him permission to hunt on said hunting grounds and paying all accounts due said authority;

(8) No construction or interpretation shall be put on this section or any part thereof as to permit the sale of dead game killed in accordance with this section, abrogate the bag limits, time of hunting, open and closed seasons as prescribed elsewhere in the North Carolina game law;

(9) No person shall hunt or discharge firearms

upon any public hunting grounds organized under this section without being accompanied by one of the landowners or a personal representative of one landowner or after securing, on the day of the hunt or day preceding the hunt, written permission to hunt under the authority of this act, said written permission to bear the name in full, age, and address of the hunter, under the penalty of being fined in the courts, upon conviction, not less than twenty-five dollars for each and every offense;

(10) When hunting grounds, or any part thereof, organized and operated under this section, are used for purposes not consistent with the federal, state, and local laws, the department of conservation and development shall withdraw recognition from the area or such parts thereof as are deemed advisable, and report the case to the proper civil officials. (1931, c. 159; 1933, c. 422, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The only change effected by the 1933 amendment appears in clause (1). Public Laws 1933, c. 422, changed the minimum area recognized from 3,000 acres to 1,000 acres.

§ 2141(jj)2. Consent in writing to hunt upon another's lands.—It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to hunt with guns or dogs upon the lands of another without first having obtained permission from the owner or owners of such lands, and said permission so obtained may be continuous for one open hunting season only. (1933, c. 422, s. 6.)

This section does not repeal c. 210, Public Laws 1931 relating to Bladen County Game Laws.

§ 2141(kk). Unprotected birds. — English sparrows, great horned owl, Cooper's hawk, sharp-shinned hawk, crows, jays, blackbirds, and buzzards and their nests and eggs may be taken, possessed, bought and sold and transported at any time and in any manner, but such birds may not be killed by the use of poison except under a permit issued by the Warden. (1927, c. 51, s. 34.)

§ 2141(ll). Unlawful possession.—The possession, transportation, purchase or sale of any dead game animals, dead game birds or any parts thereof during the closed season in North Carolina, though said animals, birds, or any parts thereof were taken or killed without the State in the open season in such State, shall be unlawful: Provided, said animals or birds or parts thereof belong to anyone of the families or classes protected by the North Carolina Game Law as amended to date. (1931, c. 143, s. 4.)

§ 2141 (mm). Manner of taking game.—No person shall at any time of the year take in any manner, number, or quantity, any wild bird or wild animal, or take the nest or eggs of any wild bird, or possess, buy, sell, offer or expose for sale, or transport at any time or in any manner any such bird, animals, or part thereof, or any birds' nest or egg, except as permitted by this act; the possession of any game animals, except squirrels and rabbits; or game birds or part of such animals, or game birds in any hotel, restaurant, cafe, market or store, or by any produce dealer in this State shall be prima facie evidence of the possession thereof for the purpose of sale in violation of the provisions of this act; but this provision shall not be construed to prohibit the person lawfully obtaining game from having it prepared in a public eating place and served to himself and guests: Provided, however, that for the purpose of this act any person hiring another to kill aforesaid game animals or game birds and receiving same, shall be deemed buying same, and subject to the penalties of this act. Game birds and game animals shall be taken only in the day time, between half an hour before sunrise and sunset, with a shotgun not larger than number ten (10) gauge, or a rifle, unless otherwise specifically permitted by this act. No person shall take any game animals or game birds or migratory game birds from any automobile, or by aid of or with the use of any jack-light, or other artificial light, net, trap, salt-lick, or poison; nor shall any such jack-light, net, trap, snare, salt-lick or poison be used or set to take any animals or birds; nor shall birds or animals be taken from an airplane, power-boat, sailboat, or any boat under sail, or any floating device towed by a power-boat or sailboat; nor shall any person take any dove, wild turkey or upland game bird on any field or in any cover in which corn, wheat, or other grain has been deposited for the purpose of drawing such birds thereto. A person may take game and wild animals during the open season therefor, with the aid of dogs, unless specifically prohibited by this act. It shall be lawful for organized field trial clubs, or associations for the protection of game, to run trials for dogs at any time: Provided, that no game birds or game animals shall be taken during the closed season by reason thereof. The Board of Conservation and Development shall have, and is hereby given, full power and authority to make regulations defining the manner of taking fur-bearing animals by steel traps, and to prohibit the use of steel traps in any county or districts of the State when it shall appear necessary and advisable by the said Board so to do, after petition and hearing, as provided in section 2141 (r) of the Code. Any person who shall cut down den trees in taking game or fur-bearing animals shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1927, c. 51, s. 36; 1929, c. 278, s. 6.)

§ 2141(mm)1. Board of Conservation and Development may license business of propagating game. — Any person desiring to engage in the business of propagating in captivity upland game birds, ducks, and geese or any of them on land of which he is the owner or lessee and selling same pursuant to the provisions of this section, may make application in writing to the Board of Conservation and Development for a license to do so. The Board when it shall appear that such application is made in good faith shall upon the payment of a fee of two dollars, issue to each applicant a license permitting such licensee to propagate such game birds on land of which he is the owner or lessee, the location of which shall be stated in such application and such license; to sell and ship such propagated game birds in the State and from the State alive at any time for breeding or stocking purposes and to take such propagated game birds except quail and wild turkey in any manner and at any time and sell the carcasses for food as hereinafter prescribed: Provided, that propagated upland game birds may be killed by shooting only from November twentieth to February fifteenth, inclusive; and, Provided further, that propagated migratory game birds may be killed by shooting only during the open season for migratory game birds. Each such license shall expire on the thirty-first day of December of the year in which it is issued. Each holder of a game bird propagating license shall keep such license prominently displayed at the place of business specified therein.

Every person holding a game bird propogating license issued by the Board shall keep accurate written records showing the number of game birds of each species propagated, bought, or sold, and the disposition thereof. These records shall be kept permanently on the premises stated in such license and shall be open for inspection by any duly authorized representative of the Board at all reasonable times.

Migratory game birds propagated in accordance with this section shall not be bought or sold for food unless each bird before attaining the age of four weeks shall have had removed from the web of one foot a portion thereof in the form of a "V" large enough to make a well defined mark which shall be sufficient to identify it as a bird propagated in accordance with this section of the North Carolina Game Law. Game birds propagated in accordance with this section may be bought, sold or offered for sale for food only after being tagged with an indestructible metal tag which shall be supplied by the Board.

Common carriers shall receive and transport game birds tagged as aforesaid but to every package containing such propagated game birds shall be affixed a tag or label upon which shall be plainly printed or written the name, address and license number of the person by whom such propagated game birds are shipped and the name and address of the person to whom such propagated game birds are to be transported and number of each kind contained therein. The Board shall be entitled to receive and shall collect for each tag to be affixed to the carcass of each game bird propagated, in accordance with this section, the sum of five cents. The said tags shall remain affixed as aforesaid until the carcasses of such propagated game birds shall be finally prepared for consumption: Provided, that the owner or proprietor of a hotel, restaurant, boarding house, or the manager of a club, may sell a portion of a tagged game bird to a guest, customer, or member, for consumption on the premises.

The proprietor or keeper of a hotel, restaurant or cafe, boarding-house or club, desiring to serve game to his patrons, may make application to the Department of Conservation and Development for a license to do so. The Department, when it shall appear that such application is made in good faith, shall upon the payment of a fee of ten dollars ($10.00) issue to each such applicant a license permitting the holder thereof to buy and possess game birds lawfully tagged, and to serve such game to his patrons for consumption at any time, but only on the premises, the location of which shall be definitely stated in such license and the application therefor. Each such license to serve game birds shall expire on the thirty-first day of December in the year in which it is issued. Each person holding a license to serve game birds shall keep such license prominently displayed at the place of business specified therein. The holder of a license to serve game birds may purchase only game birds tagged in accordance with law. Each holder of a license to serve game birds shall keep accurate written records of each and every purchase, which records shall contain the name and address of the person or corporation from whom such game birds were purchased, the date of each transaction and the number and kind of game birds included in each purchase. These records shall be kept permanently at the place of business specified in the license and shall be open for inspection by any duly authorized representative of the Department at all reasonable times. Each holder of a license to serve game birds shall send a certified copy of these records for the previous calendar year to the Department not later than January fifteenth. The Department shall furnish the forms on which these records are to be kept. (1931, c. 320.)

§ 2141(nn). Unlawful transportation.—No common carrier or employee of such carrier shall, while engaged in such business, transport for the owner any wild animals or birds or any part thereof, or nest or eggs of any bird, nor shall any such carrier or employee knowingly receive or possess the same for shipment for another, unless the person offering the same for shipment is in possession of valid hunting license or collecting permit. A person who is a resident of this State may transport within the State, otherwise than by parcel post, during the open season therefor, game birds and game animals lawfully taken. A person who is a non-resident of the State and a holder of a valid non-resident hunting license, may under a permit issued by the Warden, transport within this State, or from a point within to a point without, otherwise than by parcel post, during the open season therefor, game birds and game animals lawfully taken by him or parts thereof, but he shall not transport out of the State during any one open season more than two male deer and two wild turkeys, or during one calendar week more than two days' bag limit of other game animals and game birds. A person may transport, buy or sell at any time and in any manner non-game animals and the fur of a fur-bearing animal lawfully taken. A person may transport, except by parcel post, and possess at any time and in any manner, the head, antlers, hide, feet or skin, of game animals or game birds lawfully taken. A person may buy and sell at any time the mounted specimens of heads, antlers, hides, and feet of game animals, and the skins of game birds lawfully taken and possessed: Provided, the person selling such specimens has a written permit, issued by the Warden, authorizing him to do so. The State Game Warden, all District Game Wardens, County Game Wardens and Refuge Wardens shall have the power to enter and search any refrigerating plants, refrigerators and ice boxes of all public refrigerating storage plants, meat shops, hotels, restaurants or other public eating places in which such officer, making such search, has reasonable grounds to believe that game taken, killed or stored in violation of the North Carolina Game Law has been concealed or stored and which will furnish evidence of a violation of such law; and such search may be made without warrant except that no dwelling may be searched without a warrant. (1927, c. 51, s. 37; 1931, c. 143, s. 10, c. 282, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—This section was amended twice in 1931. The first amendment inserted the words "buy or sell" in the fourth sentence. The other amendment added the last sentence. This amendment seems to be contrary to the constitutional provision prohibiting searches without a warrant (N. C. Const., Art. 1, § 15) and goes much further than provisions for enforcing the Prohibition Law [§ 3411(l)] and the Narcotic Act (§ 6682), both of which require a warrant before seizure. It is conceded that, in the exercise of the police power, a state may regulate such businesses as meat packing, barber shops, etc., and provide for regular inspection of such places to bring about the enforcement of the law. Likewise, health officers may make inspections of places where food is sold to see that requirements of sanitation and cleanliness are observed. But no such inspection is involved in the present amendment, the sole purpose of which seems to be to assist in the enforcement of the game laws. Consequently, the exemption of dwellings from search without a warrant does not save the constitutionality of the amendment, as other buildings are included in the protection against unreasonable searches. See Carroll v. U. S., 267 U. S. 132, 45 Sup. Ct. 280, 69 L. Ed. 543, 9 N. C. Law Rev. 389, 390.

§ 2141 (nn)1. Transportation of rabbits.—The State-wide Game Law of one thousand nine hundred and twenty-seven is hereby amended so as to permit the shipment of rabbits out of the State during the open season for hunting rabbits. (1929, c. 46, s. 1.)

§ 2141(oo). Packages to be marked.—Any package in which any wild animal or bird or part thereof, or egg or nest of any wild bird, is transported shall have clearly and conspicuously marked on the outside thereof the names and addresses of the consignor and consignee, together with an accurate statement of the number and kinds of animals or birds, or parts thereof, or eggs or nests, contained therein. (1927, c. 51, s. 38.)

§ 2141(pp). Audubon Society dissolved.—The Audubon Society of North Carolina as incorporated originally in chapter three hundred and thirty-seven (337) of the Private Laws of one thousand nine hundred and three, and subsequently in sections one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two to one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four inclusive of the Revisal of one thousand nine hundred and five, and in sections two thousand and eighty-seven to two thousand and ninety-seven inclusive of the Consolidated Statutes of North Carolina of one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, is hereby dissolved and the said acts relating to its incorporation are hereby repealed. Within thirty days (30) after the passage of this act, the Governor shall cause the books and accounts of the said Audubon Society of North Carolina to be audited; immediately thereafter, all of the office supplies, furniture and fixtures, together with all documents, records, accounts, moneys, real estate and other properties belonging to said Audubon Society shall become the property of the commission and the title thereto shall immediately vest in and abide with the commission: Provided, however, that the commission shall pay out of the funds received from the said Audubon Society all sums and fees then due the agents and wardens of said society and shall pay such other indebtedness of the said society as shall be established. (1927, c. 51, s. 39.)

§ 2141(qq). Punishment for violation of article.—Any person who takes, possesses, transports, buys, sells, offers for sale or has in possession for sale or transportation any wild bird, animal or part thereof, or nest or egg of any bird, in violation of any of the provisions of this article, or who violates any other of the provisions of this article, or who fails to perform any duty imposed upon him by this article, or who violates any lawful order, rule or regulation adopted by the commission, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon the first offense and conviction thereof, shall be fined not more than fifty dollars ($50.00) or imprisoned for not more than thirty days, and upon the second offense and conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars ($25.00) nor more than two hundred dollars ($200.00), or by imprisonment for not more than six months, or both, in the discretion of the Court, and in all cases the commission may revoke the license of any offender convicted under this section. Any person who shall swear or affirm to any false statement in any application for a hunting license shall be deemed guilty of perjury and on conviction shall be subject to the punishment provided for in the crime of perjury. (1927, c. 51, s. 40.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws, 1931, c. 143, ss. 12, 13, amending this article to make this section applicable to all of its provisions, provided: "All general laws or parts of general laws in conflict with this act are hereby repealed or modified, but only to the extent to which they conflict."

Public Laws of 1933, c. 422, § 7, provides: "Any person or persons violating any of the provisions of this act [amending §§ 2141(u), 2141(bb), 2141(ii), 2141(jj) 1, and adding § 2141(jj) 2,] shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not to exceed fifty dollars or imprisoned for not more than thirty days for each offense."

§ 2141(rr). Exception.—Whereas the hunting of certain migratory wild fowl is regulated by the act of Congress through the United States Biological Survey, the said migratory wild fowl, on waters of certain sounds, to wit: Currituck, Albemarle, Pamlico, Croatan, Bogue, Core and Roanoke, are hereby exempted from the provisions of this article: Provided, however, that all other game in the said territory except the said migratory wild fowl shall come within the provisions of this article, and, provided further, that nothing in this article shall be construed as applying to local measures looking to the regulation and licensing of the hunting of such migratory wild fowl. (1927, c. 51, s. 41.)

§ 2141(ss). Continuation of existing laws; conflicting laws repealed.—The provisions of this article so far as they are the same as those of existing laws and are not in conflict therewith or with other laws relating to the protection of game, shall be construed as a continuation of such laws. Wherever the provisions of this article are in conflict with the provisions of laws now existing, this article shall be construed to repeal such provisions of existing laws as are conflicting or inconsistent with the provisions and purposes, of this article, and, for all intents and purposes, to vest in the State Game Commission the supervision of game conservation and the administration of all laws related thereto. (1927, c. 51, s. 42.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1929 chapter 278, amendatory of this article, in section 9 provides: "this act shall in no way alter, change or affect any local or Public-Local Game Act passed at this session of the General Assembly, but all such acts shall remain in full force and effect."

§ 2141(tt). Department of Conservation and Development.—The duties and powers now vested in the "State Game Commission" under and by virtue of the North Carolina game law of 1927, are transferred to and shall be assumed by the Department of Conservation and Development. (Acts 1927, c. 250, s. 1.)

Purpose of Act.—The purpose of this and the following sections is to transfer all the powers, privileges, functions, duties and administration of "The North Carolina Game Law" to the Department of Conservation and Development in the interest of economy of administration and the unification of the agencies of conservation in the State.

§ 2141(uu). Department clothed with powers.—The Department of Conservation and Development shall be clothed with all the powers, duties, privileges and authority now vested in the "State Game Commission." The said "State Game Commission" shall by virtue of this section cease to be. (1927, c. 250, s. 2.)

§ 2141(vv). Administration of game law.—The Department of Conservation and Development is hereby empowered to assume and administer in all respects and to the same degree "The North Carolina Game Law" as is now provided for in this article, known as "The North Carolina Game Law." (1927, c. 250, s. 3.)

§ 2141(ww). Game law funds kept separate.—All funds derived from the administration of "The North Carolina Game Law" shall be kept separate and distinct from any other funds in the said department of Conservation and Development. Not exceeding ten per cent of the annual gross proceeds from the sale of hunting license and fishing license under the North Carolina Game Law shall be appropriated, or in any wise allocated, to forest fire suppression and prevention work. (1927, c. 250, s. 5; 1931, c. 282, s. 5.)

§ 2141(xx). Employees of department used in administration of game law.—The Director of the Department of Conservation and Development is authorized and empowered in the interest of economy and the better administration of the different functions of the department to utilize the services of any one or more of the employees or appointees of said department in the administration of "The North Carolina Game Law" and the administration of any work connected with said department—and is authorized to charge to the separate accounts provided for the service being done a reasonable and fair proportion of the expenses and salary of any of such employees or appointees that may function in more than one capacity. (1927, c. 250, s. 6.)

§ 2141(yy). Construction of acts.—Nothing contained in any public, public-local or private act, passed in the session of 1927 of the General Assembly, shall be construed as repealing, abrogating, modifying or changing any of the sections, provisions, terms or powers contained on the day of its ratification in an act entitled and known as Senate bill seven hundred and thirty-two, House bill two hundred and one, "to provide for the protection and conservation of wild birds and animals, to create a State Game Commission and the office of the State Game Warden," and any and all such acts in conflict therewith are hereby repealed. (1927, c. 253.)

§ 2141(zz). Dealers in fur required to take out license from Department of Conservation and Development.—Every person, firm or corporation who buys raw furs, pelts or skins of fur bearing animals shall take out a license from the Department of Conservation and Development on forms prescribed by said Department and before engaging in such business shall pay the amounts of license set forth in this act. The funds so received by the Department of Conservation and Development for fur dealer's license shall be deposited with the State Treasurer as provided by law to the credit of the Department of Conservation and Development and shall be expended by the said Department for the protection and promotion of the fur bearing industry in North Carolina, including the administration and enforcement of this law and for no other purpose. (1929, c. 333, s. 1.)

§ 2141(aaa). Amount of license; license to be good only in county of residence.—Such licenses must be taken out before any person, firm or corporation in any manner engages in the business of buying and selling furs, and the amount of said licenses shall be as follows: For a resident state-wide license the sum of twenty-five dollars, which will entitle the holder to buy and sell furs in any or all of the counties of North Carolina; for a resident county license the sum of ten dollars, which will entitle the holder to buy or deal in furs only in the county designated in the license, and for each additional county the sum of ten dollars; for a non-resident of the state of North Carolina before he shall be permitted to engage in the business of buying or selling furs or dealing in same, any such person, firm or corporation shall annually take out a fur dealer's license and shall pay therefor the sum of one hundred dollars for a state-wide license. These licenses shall be issued through the wardens or agents of the department of conservation and development as a part of their official duties. An annual license shall be issued for the sum of five dollars per annum: Provided, such license shall be issued only to a dealer buying only in the county of his residence, at a fixed place of business. (1929, c. 333, s. 2; 1933, c. 337, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to Public Laws 1933, c. 337, the state-wide license for a resident was $75, instead of $25. The license for a non-resident was $400, instead of $100, and counties were permitted to collect an additional $50 from such resident. The next to the last sentence formerly provided for an annual local license of $5, instead of $1, with the limitation that the buying should not exceed $500 worth of furs per annum.

§ 2141(bbb). Dealers to report annually to department total amount of furs bought.—Every person, firm or corporation who takes out a fur dealer's license shall report to the Department of Conservation and Development on April first of each year and every year the total amount of furs bought by such dealer, including the species of fur bearing animals and the number of each, and such other information as required by the Department of Conservation and Development. (1929, c. 333, s. 3.)

§ 2141(ccc). What counties may levy tax.—No county, city or town shall have the right to levy any license on resident fur dealers except that the county in which such dealers or buyers maintain a place of business or residence may charge and collect from such dealers a license tax of not more than five dollars per annum. (1929, c. 333, s. 4; 1933, c. 337, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—Ten dollars, instead of five dollars, was the amount permitted to be collected prior to Public Laws 1933, c. 337.

§ 2141(ddd). Permits may be issued to non-resident dealers.—It shall be lawful for the department of conservation and development to issue permits to non-resident dealers for the purchase of raw furs from only statewide licensed fur dealers in North Carolina. (1929, c. 333, s. 5; 1933, c. 337, s. 3; 1935, c. 471, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to Public Laws 1933, c. 337, this section contained the proviso limiting permits to the purchase of furs from dealers who had taken out the $75 license.

The amendment of 1935 inserted the word "statewide" preceding the word "licensed," near the end of this section.

§ 2141(eee). Licenses for each employee of dealer; fees; applicants must be residents. — All bona fide members of a resident firm or corporation and their bona fide regular employees, all such members and employees being residents of North Carolina, shall be required to take out a license showing their employment and shall pay therefor the sum of twenty-five dollars each. Provided that the employees of a resident firm or corporation operating under a county resident fur dealer's license shall be required to pay only the sum of ten dollars ($10.00). Applicants for resident fur dealers license must have actually resided in the state for six months next before making application for such license. (1929, c. 333, s. 6; 1933, c. 337, s. 4; 1935, c. 471, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—In the first sentence of this section, Public Laws of 1933, c. 337, struck out the word "duplicate" before the word license. It also increased the sum from $10 to $25.

The amendment of 1935 added the proviso at the end of the section.

§ 2141(fff). Non-resident buying furs in state personally or through agent classed as non-resident fur dealer.—Any non-resident person, firm or corporation or any agent or person acting as agent therefor, who in any manner, purchases or solicits to purchase furs in North Carolina, except as provided in section 2141(ddd), shall be subject to and shall procure from the department of conservation and development a non-resident fur dealer's license before he shall be entitled to purchase or solicit to purchase furs as above set out in this section. (1929, c. 333, s. 7; 1935, c. 471, s. 2.)

§ 2141 (ggg). Violation a misdemeanor.—Any person, firm or corporation who shall violate any of the provisions of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not more than one hundred dollars or imprisoned not more than sixty days for the first offense, and on conviction of second violation of this law such person, firm or corporation shall pay not less than two hundred dollars or be imprisoned not more than six months or both in the discretion of the court. (1929, c. 333, s. 8.)

Migratory game birds propagated in accordance with this section shall not be bought or sold for food, unless each bird before attaining the age of four weeks, shall have had removed from the web of one foot a portion thereof in the form of a "V" large enough to make a well defined mark, which shall be sufficient to identify it as a bird propagated in accordance with this section of the North Carolina Game Law. Migratory game birds propagated in accordance with this section may be bought, sold or offered for sale for food only after being tagged with an indestructible metal tag which shall be supplied by the board.

Common carriers shall receive and transport game birds tagged as aforesaid but to every package containing such propagated game birds shall be affixed a tag or label upon which shall plainly be printed or written the name, address and license number of the person by whom such propagated game birds are shipped and the name and address of the person to whom such propogated game birds are to be transported and number of each kind contained therein. The board shall be entitled to receive and shall collect for each tag to be affixed to the carcass of each game bird propagated, in accordance with this section, the sum of five cents. The said tags shall remain affixed as aforesaid until the carcasses of such propagated game birds shall be finally prepared for consumption: Provided, that the owner or proprietor of a hotel, restaurant, boarding house, or the manager of a club, may sell a portion of a tagged game bird to a guest, customer, or member, for consumption on the premises.

The proprietor or keeper of a hotel, restaurant or café, boarding house or club, desiring to serve game to his patrons, may make application to the department of conservation and development for a license to do so. The department, when it shall appear that such application is made in good faith, shall upon the payment of a fee of ten dollars ($10.00) issue to each such applicant a license permitting the holder thereof to buy and possess game birds lawfully tagged, and to serve such game to his patrons for consumption at any time, but only on the premises, the location of which shall be definitely stated in such license and the application therefor. Each such license to serve game birds shall expire on the thirty-first day of December in the year in which it is issued. Each person holding a license to serve game birds shall keep such license prominently displayed at the place of business specified therein. The holder of a license to serve game birds may purchase only game birds tagged in accordance with law. Each holder of a license to serve game birds shall keep accurate written records of each and every purchase, which records shall contain the name and address of the person or corporation from whom such game birds were purchased, the date of each transaction and the number and kind of game birds included in each purchase. These records shall be kept permanently at the place of business specified in the license and shall be open for inspection by any duly authorized representative of the department at all reasonable times. Each holder of a license to serve game birds shall send a certified copy of these records for the previous calendar year to the department not later than January fifteenth. The department shall furnish the forms on which these records are to be kept. The board is hereby authorized to prescribe from time to time rules and regulations governing the possession, purchase, sale and transportation of birds raised in domestication pursuant to the provisions of this article. (1935, c. 486, s. 29.)

§ 2141(24). Unlawful transportation.—No common carrier or employee of such carrier shall, while engaged in such business, transport for the owner any wild animals or birds or any part thereof, or nest or eggs of any bird, nor any such carrier or employee knowingly receive or possess the same for shipment for another, unless the person offering the same for shipment is in possession of valid hunting license or collecting permit. A person who is a resident of this State may transport within the State otherwise than by parcel post, during the open season therefor, game birds and game animals lawfully taken. A person who is a non-resident of the State and a holder of a valid non-resident hunting license, may, under a permit issued by the commissioner, transport within this State, or from a point within to a point without, otherwise than by parcel post, during the open season therefor, game birds and game animals lawfully taken by him or parts thereof, but he shall not transport out of the State during any one open season more than two male deer and two wild turkeys, or during one calendar week more than two days' bag limit of other game animals and game birds. A person may transport, buy, or sell at any time or in any manner, non-game animals and the fur of fur-bearing animals lawfully taken and tagged. A person may transport, except by parcel post, and possess at any time and in any manner the head, antlers, hides, feet or skin of game animals or game birds lawfully taken. A person may buy and sell at any time the mounted specimens of heads, antlers, hides and feet of game animals, and the skins of game birds lawfully taken and possessed: Provided, the person selling such specimens has a written permit issued by the commissioner, authorizing him to do so. (1935, c. 486, s. 22.)

§ 2141(25). Marking packages in which game transported. — Any package in which any wild animal or bird or parts thereof or egg or nest of any wild bird is transported shall have clearly and conspicuously marked on the outside thereof, the names and addresses of the consignor and consignee, together with an accurate statement of the number and kinds of animals or birds or parts thereof, or eggs or nests, contained therein. (1935, c. 486, s. 23.)

§ 2141(26). Privately owned public hunting grounds.—In order to improve hunting, to open to the hunting public lands well stocked with game, and to give landowners some income through game protection and propagation, the State of North Carolina, through the department of conservation and development, is authorized to recognize, list, and assist the owners in protecting their lands which are a part of public hunting grounds organized under this section of the North Carolina Game Law, subject to the following conditions, stipulations, and such rules as the conservation board may adopt for the regulation of said hunting grounds:

(1) The minimum area recognized under this article is one thousand (1,000) acres;

(2) Owners of land included in a hunting ground formed under this article must organize, adopt rules and regulations for the operation of said hunting grounds, and be recognized by the department of conservation and development before such hunting grounds are put into operation under this article;

(3) The department of conservation and development will list and assist in advertising such public hunting grounds as are formed under this article, subject to such rules and regulations as may be adopted by the board from time to time, and in accordance with the North Carolina Game Law and this article. The department of conservation and development will furnish at cost to the owners of public hunting grounds posters to be used in posting such lands, such posters to state that the lands are posted under this section of the North Carolina Game Law and in case of withdrawal of recognition by the department such posters shall be removed from the land affected within ten days after notice to owner or owners;

(4) Owners of public hunting grounds shall require of each and every hunter the prescribed hunting licenses as set forth elsewhere in the North Carolina Game Law;

(5) The owners of public hunting grounds may require of each and every hunter a per day rate for hunting, rates to be approved by the department of conservation and development, said rates not to exceed four dollars ($4.00). In addition to charges for privileges of shooting game, landowners may charge a dog hire when landowners furnish dogs, dogs to be furnished only by request of the hunter;

(6) When any group of owners of a public hunting ground, organized under this article, decide to promote the hunting of certain kinds of game, said kinds of game used for stocking to be propagated in game breeding plants organized and operated under the game and other laws of North Carolina, the owner shall be permitted to charge hunters such fees and rates as are approved by the board of conservation and development;

(7) No hunter is allowed to quit the hunting grounds at the end of the day or part of a day's hunting without seeing the authority who gave him permission to hunt on said hunting grounds and paying all accounts due said authority;

(8) No construction or interpretation shall be put on this section or any part thereof as to permit the sale of dead game killed in accordance with this article, abrogate the bag limits, time of hunting, open and closed seasons as prescribed elsewhere in the North Carolina Game Law;

(9) No person shall hunt or discharge firearms upon any public hunting grounds organized under this section without being accompanied by one of the landowners or a personal representative of one landowner, or after securing, on the day of the hunt, or day preceding the hunt, written permission to hunt under the authority of this article, said written permission to bear the name in full, age, and address of the hunter, under the penalty of being fined in the courts, upon conviction, not less than twenty-five dollars ($25.00) for each and every offense;

(10) When hunting grounds or any part thereof, organized and operated under this article are used for purposes not consistent with the federal, state and local laws, the department of conservation and development shall withdraw recognition from the area of such parts thereof as are deemed advisable, and report the case to the proper civil officials. (1935, c. 486, s. 24.)

GAMING CONTRACTS AND FUTURES

Art. 1. Gaming Contracts

§ 2142. Gaming and betting contracts void. — All wages, bets or stakes made to depend upon any race or upon any gaming by lot or chance, or upon any lot, chance, casualty or unknown or contingent event whatever, shall be unlawful; and all contracts, judgments, conveyances and assurances for and on account of any money or property, or thing in action, so wagered, bet or staked, or to repay, or to secure any money, or property, or thing in action, lent or advanced for the purpose of such wagering, betting, or staking as aforesaid, shall be void. (Rev., s. 1687; Code, ss. 2841, 2842; R. C., c. 51, ss. 1, 2; 1810, c. 796.)

Cross References.—For full treatment of gaming, see 6 N. C. Dig. 797-818; 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 264-265. As to criminal laws regarding gambling, see secs. 4430-4437.

In General.—A gaming contract or wager is a contract by which two parties or more agree that a certain sum of money or other thing shall be paid or delivered to one of them on the happening or not happening of an uncertain event. Bouv. Law Dict.

At common law all gambling contracts were void. And generally in this country, all wagering contracts are held to be illegal and void as against public policy. Irwin v. Williar, 110 U. S. 499, 510, 28 L. Ed. 225.

Liberal Construction.—This section is construed liberally. Turner v. Peacock, 13 N. C. 303.

Gambling contracts are void, because they are so declared by this section. Morehead Banking Co. v. Tate, 122 N. C. 313, 317, 30 S. E. 341.

Judgments in Invitum Not Included.—This section does not include judgments taken in invitum, but only such as are confessed or taken by consent. Teague v. Perry, 64 N. C. 39.

No Recovery Where Game Fair.—It is settled that money, or a horse, or a judgment, won at cards and actually paid and delivered, can not be recovered back, the game being fairly played. Hudspath v. Wilson, 13 N. C. 372; Warden v. Plummer, 49 N. C. 524; Teague v. Perry, 64 N. C. 39, 41; Hodges v. Pitman, 4 N. C. 276.

Unfair Gaming Always Illegal.—Unfair gaming was not only illegal by force of the state against gaming, but was unlawful at common law, so that the money, or thing won, if it had been paid, might be recovered back in an action at law. Webb v. Fulchire, 25 N. C. 485; Warden v. Plummer, 49 N. C. 524, 526.

Same—Recovery.—Where a man is cheated out of his money, though it is in playing at a game forbidden by law, he may recover back what he has paid from the person who practiced the fraud upon him. Webb v. Fulchire, 25 N. C. 485, cited in note in 5 L. R. A., N. S., 907.

No Recovery on Bond Unfairly Won.—Where A., at a game of cards unfairly played, won a justice's judgment from B., and took from the defendants in the judgment a bond payable to himself for the amount, on which he brought suit, to which the statute against gaming was pleaded, it was held that he could not recover. Warden v. Plummer, 49 N. C. 524.

Subsequent Note Valid.—A note given subsequently, in purchase of a magistrate's judgment which had been won at cards by the payee from the maker, is not void under this section against gaming. Teague v. Perry, 64 N. C. 39.

Rights of Innocent Holder of Gambling Note.—This section applicable to a note originally given for a gambling debt, renders this and all notes and contracts in like cases void, this being true, no action thereon can be sustained. The position as stated is undoubtedly the law in this jurisdiction, and is in accord with well considered authorities elsewhere. This principle, however, is allowed to prevail only where the action is on the note to enforce its obligations, and does not affect or extend to suits by an innocent endorsee for value, and holder in due course, against the endorser on his contract of endorsement. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co. v. Crafton, 181 N. C. 404, 405, 107 S. E. 316.

Intent of Parties.—Where the transaction is legitimate on its face, one party can not avoid it by claiming that it was a gambling contract where the proof shows that the other party did not so understand it, but believed it to be a valid agreement. Bibb v. Allen, 149 U. S. 481, 492, 37 L. Ed. 817.

Money Loaned for Gaming.—Money lent to play with at gaming, or to play at the time of loss, is not recoverable. Mooring v. Stanton, 1 N. C. 70.

When Stakeholder Liable.—Where money is deposited with a stakeholder, to be delivered to the winner, and the stakeholder pays over the money, after notice from the loser not to do so, the loser may recover the money from the stakeholder. Wood v. Wood, 7 N. C. 172; Forrest v. Hart, 7 N. C. 458.

Note Given in Foreign State Unenforceable.—A note given in consideration of a bet won on a horse race can not be enforced in this State although given in a state where wagering contracts are not invalid. Gooch v. Faucett, 122 N. C. 270, 29 S. E. 362. See Burrus v. Witcover, 158 N. C. 384, 74 S. E. 11.

Cards a Game of Chance.—It is a matter of common knowledge that a game of cards is a game of chance. State v. Taylor, 111 N. C. 680, 16 S. E. 168.

The game of tenpins is not a "game of chance." State v. Gupton, 30 N. C. 271; State v. King, 113 N. C. 631, 18 S. E. 169.

"Shuffleboard."—The keeping of a gaming table called "a shuffleboard" is not indictable, as the game is not one of chance, but of skill. State v. Bishop, 30 N. C. 266.

"Shooting for Beef" and other similar trials of skill, for which the participants pays for the "chance" or privilege of shooting, is not a game of chance there being no "chance" in the sense of the acts against gambling. State v. DeBoy, 117 N. C. 702, 23 S. E. 167.

Cited in Moore v. Schwartz, 195 N. C. 549, 550, 142 S. E. 772.

For criminal statutes regarding gambling, see secs. 4430-4437.

Art. 2. Contracts for "Futures"

§ 2144. Certain contracts as to "futures" void. — Every contract, whether in writing or not, whereby any person shall agree to sell and deliver any cotton, indian corn, wheat, rye, oats, tobacco, meal, lard, bacon, salt pork, salt fish, beef, cattle, sugar, coffee, stocks, bonds, and choses in action, at a place and at a time specified and agreed upon therein, to any other person, whether the person to whom such article is so agreed to be sold and delivered shall be a party to such contract or not, when, in fact, and notwithstanding the terms expressed of such contract, it is not intended by the parties thereto that the articles or things so agreed to be sold and delivered shall be actually delivered, or the value thereof paid, but it is intended and understood by them that money or other thing of value shall be paid to the one party by the other, or to a third party, the party to whom such payment of money or other thing of value shall be made to depend, and the amount of such money or other thing of value so to be paid to depend upon whether the market price or value of the article so agreed to be sold and delivered is greater or less at the time and place so specified than the price stipulated to be paid and received for the articles so to be sold and delivered, and every contract commonly called "futures" as to the several articles and things hereinbefore specified, or any of them, by whatever other name called, and every contract as to the said several articles and things, or any of them, whereby the parties thereto contemplate and intend no real transaction as to the article or thing agreed to be delivered, but only the payment of a sum of money or other thing of value, such payment and the amount thereof and the person to whom the same is to be paid to depend on whether or not the market price or value is greater or less than the price so agreed to be paid for the said article or thing at the time and place specified in such contract, shall be utterly null and void; and no action shall be maintained in any court to enforce any such contract, whether the same was made in or out of the state, or partly in and partly out of this state, and whether made by the parties thereto by themselves or by or through their agents, immediately or mediately; nor shall any party to any such contract, or any agent of any such party, directly or remotely connected with any such contract in any way whatever, have or maintain any action or cause of action on account of any money or other thing of value paid or advanced or hypothecated by him or them in connection with or on account of such contract and agency; nor shall the courts of this state have any jurisdiction to entertain any suit or action brought upon a judgment based upon any such contract. This section shall not be construed so as to apply to any persons, firm or corporation or his or their agents, engaged in the business of manufacturing or wholesale merchandising in the purchase and/or sale of the necessary commodities required in the ordinary course of their business; nor shall this section be construed so as to apply to any contract with respect to the purchase and/or sale for future delivery of any of the articles or things mentioned and referred to in this section, where such purchase and/or sale is made on any exchange on which any such article or things are regularly bought and sold, or contracts therefor regularly entered into, and the rules and regulations of such exchange are such that either party to such contract may require delivery thereof: Provided, such contract is made in accordance with such rules and regulations. (Rev., s. 1689; 1889, c. 221, s. 1; 1905, c. 538, s. 7; 1909, c. 853, s. 1; 1931, c. 236, s. 1.)

For complete treatment of "futures" contracts, see 6 N. C. Enc. Dig. 797-818; 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 264-265.

Editor's Note.—On examination of the original statute, it appears that the Act, defining and declaring contracts in "futures" unlawful, was passed in 1889, chapter 221. In 1905, chapter 538, the Legislature enacted a law to suppress what is known, in popular phrase, as "bucket shops," and, having provided for this in sections 1 and 2, the statute contains several additional sections relating to the statute of 1889 and all of them having reference to the mode or quantum of proof which should be required in enforcement of that act. The Law of 1905 then, in its closing section, provided: "That this act shall not be construed so as to apply to any person, firm, or corporation, etc.," This is the first time these words appear in our legislation on this subject, and, so far as they had reference to the law of 1889, it is clear that the Legislature, in the original statutes, only intended that they should affect questions of proof. See Rodgers, etc., Co. v. Bell, 156 N. C. 378, 384, 72 S. E. 817.

From these considerations, it seems clear that the last sentence of this section was inserted "unnecessarily and out of abundance of caution"—and it does not confer any exclusive right or privilege upon manufacturers or wholesale merchants; nor does it authorize them to engage in any business prohibited by the section. It simply provides that the courts shall not construe the section to have the effect of preventing them from buying and selling for future delivery the necessary commodities required in their ordinary business. See State v. McGinnis, 138 N. C. 724; State v. Clayton, 138 N. C. 732; Rodgers, etc., Co. v. Bell, 156 N. C. 378, 385, 72 S. E. 817.

Same—Act of 1931.—This act amended the "Bucket Shop Act" of 1889, now this section, so as to exempt contracts with respect to the purchase or sale where they are made on and in accordance with the regulations of any exchange, and where the rules of the exchange permit either party to require delivery. It was intended to remove the ban of illegality from transactions on legitimate exchanges, as distinguished from "an establishment nominally for the transaction of a stock exchange business, or business of a similar character, but really for the registration of lots or wagers, usually for small amounts, on the rise or fall of stock, grain, etc., there being no transfer or delivery of the stocks or things dealt with." Gatewood v. North Carolina, 203 U. S. 431, 27 S. Ct. 167, 51 L. Ed. 305. The amendment of 1905, adding the last sentence to what is now this section, proved abortive. That sentence, substantially retained by the 1931 amendment, which added the rest of the last sentence, reads: "This section shall not be construed to apply to any person, firm, corporation or his or their agent engaged in the business of manufacturing or wholesale merchandising in the purchase or sale of the necessary commodities required in the ordinary course of their business." The court held, in Rodgers, McCabe & Co. v. Bell, 156 N. C. 378, 72 S. E. 817, that this sentence should not be regarded as an exemption from the prohibition against speculation in futures, but as a qualification of what was formerly § 2146, relating to the burden of proof. See State v. McGinnis, 138 N. C. 734, 51 S. E. 50; Wills v. Satterfield, 190 N. C. 89, 129 S. E. 177.

The act expressly repealed §§ 2145 and 2146. The first made non-delivery and the putting up of "margin" prima facie evidence of illegality under this section. The other shifted the burden of proof of illegality. Apparently the last case decided thereunder is Martin v. Bush, 199 N. C. 93, 154 S. E. 43. It is understood that the General Assembly acted upon evidence that the evils aimed at by the original statute, namely, those incident to the operation of "bucket shops" for gambling purposes had largely disappeared, and that its restrictions as construed and applied by the courts, had embarrassed the operation of bona-fide exchange-brokerage business. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 358, 359.

Section Constitutional.—This section is in furtherance of our declared public policy, and is constitutional and valid. Randolph v. Heath, 171 N. C. 383, 88 S. E. 731; S. v. McGinnis, 138 N. C. 724; S. v. Clayton, 138 N. C. 732; Garsed v. Sternberger, 135 N. C. 501; Rankin v. Mitchem, 141 N. C. 277.

The Legislature can, in the exercise of the police power, prescribe when and under what circumstances and as to what offenses a certain act shall be prima facie evidence. Therefore, a provision that the purchase of commodities upon margin under certain circumstances shall raise a prima facie case that such purchases were void, and other circumstances shall not constitute such prima facie evidence, is not a discrimination forbidden by the Fourteenth Amendment. State v. McGinnis, 138 N. C. 724, 51 S. E. 50. This case was decided under what formerly constituted § 2145.

Within Police Power.—This section forbidding the business of running a "bucket shop," is clearly within the police power of the State. State v. McGinnis, 138 N. C. 724, 51 S. E. 50. For several definitions of "bucket shop" see the same case at page 727.

Defines Illegal Contract.—This section clearly defines what is an illegal contract where there is no real sale, but merely an agreement for an adjustment upon the basis of the differences in the prices of the commodity at the time fixed. Ovis Bros. & Co. v. Holt-Morgan Mills, 173 N. C. 231, 233, 91 S. E. 948.

Not Contrary to Federal Constitution.—When, in an action pending in the courts of this State to recover on a judgment in a sister state, the Legislature amended this section by adding thereto: "Nor shall the courts of this State have any jurisdiction to entertain any suit or action brought upon a judgment based upon any such contract," there can be no valid objection to such legislation on the ground that it impairs the obligation of contracts, and it would seem that no such objection can be made under Art. IV, secs. 1 and 2 of the Federal Constitution, "the full faith and credit clause," etc., if it is admitted or clearly appears that the judgment sued on was rendered in a transaction expressly forbidden by our statute on gaming, and that the question was not raised, investigated or determined in the courts of the State in which the judgment was originally rendered. Mottu v. Davis, 151 N. C. 237, 65 S. E. 969.

Example of "Margin."—A payment made on account by a customer to a stockbroker, under an agreement between the customer and the stockbroker in which the stockbroker agreed either to sell or to buy from the customer a certain number of shares of stock, but under which, in fact, no delivery or transfer of shares was contemplated, is known in stockbroker's parlance as a "margin." McClain v. Fleshman, 106 Fed. 880, 882. Welles & Co. v. Satterfield, 190 N. C. 89, 94, 129 S. E. 177. This case was decided under what formerly constituted § 2145.

Contract Made in Foreign State.—An action upon a wagering or "future contract" in cotton cannot be maintained in this State, though entered into in another State where it is lawful. Burrus v. Witcover, 158 N. C. 384, 74 S. E. 11.

Bucket Shop.—A "bucket shop" has been defined as "an establishment nominally for the transaction of a stock exchange business, or business of a similar character, but really for the registration of lots or wagers, usually for small amounts, on the rise or fall of stock, grain, etc., there being no transfer or delivery of the stocks or things dealt with. Gatewood v. North Carolina, 203 U. S. 531, 51 L. Ed. 305. For other definitions, see State v. McGinnis, 138 N. C. 724, 51 S. E. 50.

Contracts for Future Delivery.—It is well settled that contracts for the future delivery of merchandise or tangible property are not void, whether such property is in existence in the hands of the seller, or to be subsequently acquired. Bibb v. Allen, 149 U. S. 481, 493, 37 L. Ed. 817.

And the fact that it is the practice of persons making sales for future delivery to settle the same by setting off one sale against another, will not render it invalid. Board v. Christie Grain, etc., Co., 198 U. S. 236, 247, 49 L. Ed. 1031.

Test of Validity under Section.—The test of the validity of a contract for "future" which this section requires is the "intention not to actually deliver" the articles bought or sold for future delivery. No matter how explicit the words in any contract which may require a delivery, if in fact there is no intention to deliver, but the real understanding is that on the stipulated date the losing party shall pay to the other the difference between the market price and the contract price, this is a gambling contract. Rodgers, etc., & Co. v. Bell, 156 N. C. 378, 383, 72 S. E. 817. State v. Clayton, 138 N. C. 732.

When there is no real transaction, no real contract for purchase or sale, but only a wager upon the rise or fall of the price of stock, or an article of merchandise in the exchange or market, one party agreeing to pay, if there is a rise, and the other party agreeing to pay if there is a fall in price, the agreement is a pure wager. No business is done—nothing is bought or sold or contracted for, there is only a bet. Ovis Bros. & Co. v. Holt-Morgan Mills, 173 N. C. 231, 233, 91 S. E. 948.

Same—Intention of Parties.—The true test of validity of a contract for future delivery is whether it can be settled only in money and in no other way, or whether the party selling can tender and compel acceptance of the particular commodity sold or the party buying can compel the delivery of the commodity purchased. The essential inquiry in every case is as to the necessary effect of the contract and the real intention of the parties, citing 20 Cyc. 930; Williams v. Carr, 80 N. C. 295; State v. McGinnis, 138 N. C. 724, State v. Clayton, 138 N. C. 732. Welles & Co. v. Satterfield, 190 N. C. 89, 95, 129 S. E. 177.

The contract, by its terms, not disclosing any gambling element, the matter is to be settled by ascertaining the true underlying purpose of the parties. Was it in the intention of both parties that the cotton should not be delivered, and did they conceal in the deceptive terms of a fair and lawful contract, a gambling agreement, by which they contemplated no real transaction as to the article contracted to be delivered? Edgerton v. Edgerton, 153 N. C. 167; Harvey v. Pettaway, 156 N. C. 375; Rodgers v. Bell, 156 N. C. 378; Burns v. Tomlinson, 147 N. C. 645; Rankin v. Mitchem, 141 N. C. 277. Hold v. Wellons, 163 N. C. 124, 129, 79 S. E. 450.

Same—Same—Parol Evidence. — This section rendering void and unenforceable in our courts a contract for the sale of futures upon margin covered by the purchaser, that does not contemplate the delivery of the thing bargained for, but only a payment to be made for the loss incurred or a profit to be received in accordance with the fall or rise of the market, looks to the substance of the contract and not to its form, and parol evidence is competent to show the intention of the parties entering therein. Welles & Co. v. Satterfield, 190 N. C. 89, 129 S. E. 177.

Contracts to Which This Section Applies.—Where the defendant has induced the plaintiff to purchase certain shares of stock, through himself, from his own broker, upon margin, the broker to carry the stock upon its hypothecation with him as collateral, and thereafter the defendant has his broker, unknown to the plaintiff, to sell the stock and place the proceeds to his own account, and uses the same and other moneys upon margin advanced from time to time by the plaintiff upon his representation that the price of this stock had decreased, it was held, that the plaintiff may recover of the defendant in his action the moneys the defendant had thus converted to his own use; and this section, relating to gambling, etc., is not available to the defendant as a defense. Gladstone v. Swain, 187 N. C. 712, 122 S. E. 755.

A note given for margins upon an illegal contract for cotton futures, without intention of delivery of the cotton, cannot be collected by suit in our courts, and the promisor's repeated promise to pay it cannot impart any validity to it. Orvis Bros. & Co. v. Holt-Morgan Mills, 173 N. C. 231, 91 S. E. 948. Cobb v. Guthrie, 160 N. C. 313; Garseed v. Sternberger, 135 N. C. 502; Burns v. Tomlison, 147 N. C. 645; Burrus v. Witcover, 158 N. C. 384.

Where there is evidence that contracts set up by certain defendants in an action by the receiver of a brokerage business were founded upon speculation and based upon "margins," and that no actual delivery of the stock was intended by the parties, the evidence is sufficient to support a finding that the contracts were void under this section and the finding is as conclusive as the verdict of a jury, and the judgment that such contracts were absolutely void will be sustained. Martin v. Bush, 199 N. C. 93, 154 S. E. 43.

Both Parties Must Have Intent.—It was never held that when an innocent party had made a contract valid in its terms, his rights acquired thereunder should be denied him by reason of an undisclosed purpose or intent of the other. To avoid the contract the vitiating purpose or understanding must be shared in by both. Rodgers, etc., Co. v. Bell, 156 N. C. 378, 383, 72 S. E. 817.

Parties Included.—The owner of a draft which he knows to have been given in the unlawful purchase of cotton futures, or in maintaining or purchasing margins in contracts of that character, is a party to the prohibited contract, the consideration is illegal and he cannot recover from the payee in his action on the draft. Burrus v. Witcover, 158 N. C. 384, 74 S. E. 11.

Subsequent Promise Void.—A subsequent promise made by one of the contracting parties to the other to repay him for loss arising from a contract for "futures" is void. Burns v. Tomlinson, 147 N. C. 645, 61 S. E. 614.

Unauthorized Act of Agent.—A bona fide wholesale dealer who sues upon a contract for the future delivery of cotton, which is resisted on the ground that the contract was a wagering one and void under the provisions of this section, is bound by the acts and statements of his agents in negotiating and closing the trade, to the effect that actual delivery was not contemplated or required; and the plaintiff may not recover on the contract merely because he was a bona fide wholesale dealer in cotton and only authorized his agent to make a contract for actual delivery, if the agent at the time entered into a contract with the vendor which was condemned by the statute as being a wagering one. Alex., etc., & Sons v. May, 156 N. C. 388, 72 S. E. 821.

Agents Right to Recover.—An agent for a principal to a contract made in violation of this section, as to "futures," cannot recover for any loss he may have sustained on account thereof, as such act of agency would be in violation of section 2147, making it a misdemeanor. Burns v. Tomlinson, 147 N. C. 645, 61 S. E. 614.

If agents have no knowledge that it was the intention of their principals to enter into a wagering or gambling contract, they are entitled to recover, not only their commissions, but any sums of money which they have advanced to carry out purposes for their principals. Embrey v. Jemison, 131 U. S. 336, 346, 33 L. Ed. 172.

Burden of Proof.—Where in an action by an assignee and trustees under §§ 1609, et seq., it is alleged that one of the defendants was a partner in the business of the assignor and liable for the debts of the firm, and the other defendants admit this allegation and set up and seek to recover of the plaintiff and the alleged partner on contract with the assignor, the alleged partner is a defendant in the action on the contracts and her answer setting up the defense that the contracts were void under this section, as gambling contracts, places the burden on the other defendants to prove that the contracts were lawful. Martin v. Bush, 199 N. C. 93, 154 S. E. 43.

Former section 2145 has been considered in several decisions, and it has been held without exception that when it is alleged that a contract sued on is a gambling contract within the provisions of section 2144 and the pleading is duly verified, that the burden is on the party seeking to recover upon the contract to prove that it is a lawful contract. (Holt v. Wellons, 163 N. C. 129.) Heath v. Heath, 175 N. C. 457, 459, 95 S. E. 916; Cobb v. Guthrie, 160 N. C. 313. These cases were decided under what formerly constituted § 2146.

When the defendant pleads in a verified answer that a contract, the subject of suit, for buying and selling cotton was void for being one for "futures," the burden of proof is upon the plaintiff to show that it was a lawful one, i. e., that actual delivery was intended by the parties, and not merely that either had the privilege of calling therefor. Burns v. Tomlinson, 147 N. C. 645, 61 S. E. 614. This case was decided under what formerly constituted § 2146.

Burden Not upon Administrator.—Where an administrator paid certain notes and it was later alleged by the legatees that the notes were given for a gambling contract which should not have been paid, it was held that former § 2146 did not apply so as to put the burden of proving that the notes were given for a valid contract upon the administrator. Overman v. Lanier, 157 N. C. 544, 73 S. E. 192. This case was decided under what formerly constituted § 2146.

Evidence Sufficient.—The purchaser makes out a prima facie case upon evidence that the contract was founded upon a gambling or wagering consideration in violation of this section. Welles & Co. v. Satterfield, 190 N. C. 89, 129 S. E. 177. This case was decided under what formerly constituted § 2145.

Where the plaintiff himself testified that he did not buy certain cotton in the ordinary course of his business as a cotton manufacturer for use in his mill, this was prima facie a "future contract." Burns v. Tomlinson, 147 N. C. 634, 636, 61 S. E. 615. This case was decided under what formerly constituted § 2145.

When Question for Jury.—Where the contract is not a gambling one on its face the underlying purpose and intent of the parties should be left to the jury. Harvey v. Pettaway, 156 N. C. 375, 377, 72 S. E. 364.

Upon conflicting evidence as to whether or not the contract is a gambling contract, it becomes a question for the jury under proper instructions from the court. Welles & Co. v. Satterfield, 190 N. C. 89, 129 S. E. 177. This case was decided under what formerly constituted § 2146.

Same—Example.—Where there was evidence offered by the plaintiffs tending to show that they were wholesale dealers in cotton as a commodity, and that they purchased certain cotton as a commodity and sold it to manufacturers and exporters, and dealt in actual spot cotton and were in no wise dealers in futures, they were entitled to have this issue submitted to a jury. Eure v. Sabiston, 195 Fed. 721, 724.

Judgment by Default Void.—A judgment rendered by default of an answer upon notes regular and valid upon their face, but growing out of transactions in cotton futures made void by our statute, which also declares that actions thereon may not be maintained in the courts of our State, will be set aside as utterly void, irrespective of whether it was obtained through excusable neglect, etc. Randolph v. Heath, 171 N. C. 383, 88 S. E. 731.

§ 2147. Entering into or aiding contract for "futures" misdemeanor.—If any person shall become a party to any contract declared void in this article; or if any person shall be the agent, directly or indirectly, of any party in making or furthering or effectuating the same; or if any agent or officer of a corporation shall in any manner knowingly aid in making or furthering any such contract to which the corporation is a party, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, and may be imprisoned in the discretion of the court.

If any person shall, while in this state, consent to become a party to any such contract made in another state, and if any person shall, as agent of any person or corporation, become a party to any such contract made in another state, or in this state do any act or in any way aid in the making or furthering of any such contract so made in another state, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be fined not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars, and may be imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (Rev., ss. 3823, 3824; 1889, c. 221, ss. 3, 4.)

This Section Is Constitutional.—State v. McGinnis, 138 N.

§ 2148. Opening office for sales of "futures" misdemeanor.—If any person, corporation or other association of persons, either as principals or agents, shall establish or open an office or place of business in this state for the purpose of carrying on or engaging in making such contracts as are forbidden in this article, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall on conviction be fined and imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3825; 1905, c. 538, ss. 1, 2.)

See generally the annotations under section 2144.

CHAPTER 40
GUARDIAN AND WARD

Art. 1. Jurisdiction in Matter of Guardianship

§ 2150. Jurisdiction in clerk of superior court.—The clerks of the superior court within their respective counties have full power, from time to time, to take cognizance of all matters concerning orphans and their estates and to appoint guardians in all cases of infants, idiots, lunatics, inebriates, and inmates of the Caswell training school: Provided that guardians may be appointed either by the clerk of the superior court in the county in which the infants, idiots, lunatics or inebriates reside, or if the guardian be the next of kin of the infant or a person designated by him or her in writing filed with the clerk, by the clerk of the superior court in any county in which is located a substantial part of the estate belonging to such infants, idiots, lunatics, or inebriates. (Rev., s. 1766; Code, s. 1566; R. C., c. 54, s. 2; 1762, c. 69, ss. 5, 7; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 4; 1917, c. 41, c. 1; 1935, c. 467.

Cross References.—For complete treatment of guardian and ward, see 6 N. C. Enc. Dig. 911-981; 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 278-281. As to guardianship of insane persons, see sections 2285 et seq.

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 added the proviso at the end of this section.

In General.—The powers which the court of equity formerly had and exercised in regard to orphans and their estates are now conferred upon the clerk of the superior court by this section and section 2155. Duffy v. Williams, 133 N. C. 195, 197, 45 S. E. 548.

Place of Appointment.—The domicile of an infant is universally held to be the fittest place for the appointment of a guardian of his person and estate, although, for the protection of either, a guardian may be appointed in any state where the person or any property of the infant may be found. Clarke v. Clarke, 178 U. S. 186, 193, 44 L. Ed. 1028.

The decision in the foregoing case seems to have formed the basis for the change effected in this section by the 1935 amendment.—Ed. Note.

Appointment by Legislature.—An act of the Legislature authorizing a certain person "to act as guardian" of another without giving bond, is constitutional, and is in itself an appointment without intervention of the clerk. Henderson v. Bowd, 116 N. C. 795, 21 S. E. 692.

Matter of Discretion.—The appointment of a guardian is a matter of discretion, the exercise of which cannot be reviewable by the Supreme Court. Battle v. Vick, 15 N. C. 294.

Same—Choice of Infant.—The county court in appointing a guardian was not bound by the choice of the minor, but could appoint the person, who, in his discretion, would best perform the duty. Wynne v. Always, 5 N. C. 38; Grant v. Whitaker, 5 N. C. 231.

Person Related to Ward.—Courts are empowered to appoint as guardians such person as they may think proper, without regard to the kinship of the guardian to the ward. Mills v. McAllister, 2 N. C. 303.

Custody of Child.—The jurisdiction of clerks of the superior court in the appointment of guardians of infants, etc., does not extend to a case where the petitioner asks for the custody of a child who had been placed by its mother under the control of another. In re Lewis, 88 N. C. 31.

Removal of Guardian.—A ward may not bring an action in the Superior Court by her next friend to remove her guardian appointed by the clerk under this section. Moses v. Moses, 204 N. C. 657, 169 S. E. 273.

Art. 2. Creation and Termination of Guardianship

§ 2151. Appointment by parents; effect; powers and duties of guardian.—Any father, though he be a minor, may, by deed executed in his lifetime and with the written consent and privy examination of the mother, if she be living, or by his last will and testament in writing, if the mother be dead, dispose of the custody and tuition of any of his infant children, being unmarried, and whether born at his death or in ventre sa mere, for such time as the children may remain under twenty-one years of age, or for any less time. Or in case the father is dead and has not exercised his said right of appointment, or has willfully abandoned his wife, then the mother, whether of full age or minor, may do so. Every such appointment shall be good and effectual against any person claiming the custody and tuition of such child or children. Every guardian by deed or will shall have the same powers and rights and be subject to the same liabilities and regulations as other guardians. (Rev., ss. 1762, 1763, 1764; Code, ss. 1562, 1563, 1564; R. C., c. 54; 1762, c. 69; 1868-9, c. 201; 1881, c. 64; 1911, c. 120; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 21.)

As to habeas corpus for custody of children, see section 2241 and notes.

Editor's Note.—In the second sentence of this section the words "or has willfully abandoned his wife" were added by Public Laws, Ex. Sess. 1920, ch. 21. As to abandonment as forfeiture of custody of child, see section 189 and notes thereto.

Rights of Both Parents Recognized.—In this section and in others, the Legislature has recognized the human as well as the relation between parent and child, the paramour and the subordinate, the present and the inchoate, rights of the father and the mother, and has wisely provided that both the parents shall have adequate opportunity to be heard and, except in rare cases, shall give their consent before the legal relation is severed or the domestic circle is broken. Truelove v. Parker, 191 N. C. 430, 436, 132 S. E. 295.

Persons Entitled to Custody.—The father is, in the first instance, entitled to the custody of his children. In re Lewis, 88 N. C. 31. Newsome v. Bunch, 144 N. C. 15, 56 S. E. 509. See also, In re Turner, 151 N. C. 474, 66 S. E. 431.

And this right is superior to the claims of every one, except those to whom he may have committed their custody and tuition by deed, or unless he is found to be unfitted for their care and custody. Latham v. Ellis, 116 N. C. 30, 20 S. E. 1012.

The parents have prima facie the right to the custody and control of their infant children as a natural and substantive right not lightly to be denied or interfered with by action of the courts; but this right is not universal and absolute, and may be modified and disregarded by the court when it is made to appear that the welfare of the children clearly requires it. Brickell v. Hines, 179 N. C. 254, 102 S. E. 309; In re Warren, 178 N. C. 43, 100 S. E. 76; Atkinson v. Downing, 175 N. C. 244, 95 S. E. 487; In re Means, 176 N. C. 307, 97 S. E. 39; State v. Burnett, 179 N. C. 735, 102 S. E. 711.

Appointment by Deed or Will.—A father can not appoint a guardian for his children, nor impose on any one the duties and obligations of that office, except, pursuant to this section, "by deed executed in his life time, or by his last will and testament, in writing." Peyton v. Smith, 22 N. C. 325.

No one has a right to the guardianship of an infant, except as testamentary guardian or as appointed by the father by deed or by the court. Long v. Rhymes, 6 N. C. 122.

Same—Interpretation.—Where it can clearly be collected from the will of a father, that certain persons are thereby appointed to have the custody of the persons and the estate of his children, until they arrive at age, such an appointment will be held to constitute them guardians, as though the appropriate term had been used. Peyton v. Smith, 22 N. C. 325.

Applies Only to Own Children.—A testator cannot appoint a testamentary guardian except to his own children. Camp v. Pittman, 90 N. C. 615.

Same—Grandchildren.—This section, allowing a father to appoint a guardian by deed or will to his children, does not authorize a grandfather so to appoint a guardian for his grandchildren. Williamson v. Jordan, 45 N. C. 46.

§ 2152. Natural guardianship on death of father.—In case of the death of the father of an infant, the mother of such child surviving such father shall immediately become the natural guardian of such child to the same extent and in the same manner, plight and condition as the father would be if living; and the mother in such case shall have all the powers, rights and privileges, and be subject to all the duties and obligations of a natural guardian. But this shall not be construed as abridging the powers of the courts over minors and their estates and to the appointment of guardians. (Rev., s. 1765; Code, s. 1565; 1883, c. 364.)

Mother Entitled to Custody.—If a child's mother is a suitable person she is entitled to its custody even though some other person may be more suitable. Ashby v. Page, 106 N. C. 328, 11 S. E. 283, citing Mitchell v. Mitchell, 67 S. E. 307.

Same—Cannot Dispose of Child.—It may be questioned, whether in this State a mother can at all make a disposition of her child, though a minor, so as to confer upon another the right to have the custody and control thereof. In re Lewis, 88 N. C. 31, 33.

§ 2153. Appointment on divorce of parents.—When parents are divorced and a child is entitled to any estate, the court granting the divorce must certify that fact to the clerk of the superior court, to the end that he may appoint a fit and proper person to take the care and management of such estate, whose powers and duties shall be the same in all respects as other guardians, except that a guardian so appointed shall not have any authority over the person of such child, unless the guardian be the father or mother. (Rev., s. 1770; Code, s. 1571; R. C., c. 54, s. 4; 1838, c. 16; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 9.)

§ 2154. Appointment when father living.—The clerk of the superior court may appoint a guardian of the estate of any minor, although the father of such minor, be living. And the guardian so appointed shall be governed in all respects by the laws relative to guardians of the estate in other cases, but shall have no authority over the person of such minor. (Rev., s. 1771; Code, s. 1572; R. C., c. 54, ss. 4, 7; 1806, c. 707; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 10.)

As to expenses and disbursements credited to guardian, see section 2189. As to commissions, see section 2190.

§ 2156. Proceedings on application for guardianship.—On application to any clerk of the superior court for the custody and guardianship of any infant, idiot, inebriate, lunatic, or inmate of the Caswell training school, it is the duty of such clerk to inform himself of the circumstances of the case on the oath of the applicant, or of any other person, and if none of the relatives of the infant, idiot, inebriate, lunatic, or inmate of the Caswell training school are present at such application, the clerk must assign, or for any other good cause he may assign, a day for the hearing; and he shall thereupon direct notice thereof to be given to such of the relatives and to such other persons, if any, as he may deem it proper to notify. On the hearing he shall ascertain, on oath, the amount of the property, real and personal, of the infant, idiot, inebriate, lunatic, or inmate of the Caswell training school, and the value of the rents and profits of the real estate, and he may grant or refuse the application, or commit the guardianship to some other person, as he may think best for the interest of the infant, idiot, inebriate, lunatic, or inmate of the Caswell training school. (Rev., s. 1772; Code, s. 1620; C. C. P., s. 474; 1917, c. 41, s. 2.)

In General.—When a guardian is appointed he must assert his right to the custody of his ward by a civil action against the persons in charge of him, while they in turn, if so advised, can take appropriate steps to set aside the guardianship. In re Parker, 144 N. C. 170, 172, 56 S. E. 878.

Habeas Corpus Not Proper.—Except as between parents, under section 2241, the right of the custody of a child cannot be determined under the writ of habeas corpus, the object of that writ is to remove an illegal restraint. In re Parker, 144 N. C. 170, 56 S. E. 878.

Application Should Be in Writing.—The interests of minors are under the care of the court, and to the end that the same may be protected in suits brought by or against them, the court should see that the next friend or guardian ad litem be appointed upon due consideration of an application in writing, and not upon a simple suggestion. Morris v. Gentry, 89 N. C. 248, 249.

Effect of Failure of Notice.—Failure to notify the relative in custody of the child of proceedings to appoint a guardian is an irregularity, under this section, which does not render the appointment of the guardian void, though not conclusive upon such relative. In re Parker, 144 N. C. 170, 56 S. E. 878.

§ 2158. Removal by clerk.—The clerks of the superior court have power, on information or complaint made, at all times to remove guardians and appoint successors, to make and establish rules for the better ordering, managing and securing infants' estates, and for the better education and maintenance of wards; and it is their duty to do so in the following cases:

1. Where the guardian wastes or converts the money or estate of the ward to his own use.

2. Where the guardian in any manner mismanages the estate.

3. Where the guardian is about or intends to marry any ward in disparagement.

4. Where the guardian neglects to educate or maintain the ward in a manner suitable to his or her degree.

5. Where the guardian is legally disqualified to act as a person would be to be appointed administrator.

6. Where the guardian or his sureties are likely to become insolvent or nonresidents of the state. (Rev., s. 1774; Code, s. 1583; R. C., c. 54, ss. 2, 13; 1762, c. 69; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 20; C. C. P., ss. 470, 476.)

Cross References.—As to disqualifications to act as administrator (referred to in par. 5, this section), see section 8. As to removal of an administrator, see section 31 and annotations.

Discretion of Clerk.—The choosing by orphans of a guardian in court does not necessarily destroy the authority of a former guardian; but the clerk may at any time, remove a guardian upon proper cause shown, and in the appointment of a successor has entire discretion. Bray v. Brumsey, 5 N. C. 227.

Removal without Cause Error.—An order by a superior court clerk in a cause pending before him for the removal of a testamentary guardian, where none of the provisions of this section are alleged nor found as a fact by the clerk is improperly made, and will be set aside upon proceedings properly instituted to that end. Sanderson v. Sanderson, 79 N. C. 369.

Personal Use of Ward's Funds.—The use by a guardian of the funds of his ward for his own use is sufficient to warrant his removal. Ury v. Brown, 129 N. C. 270, 40 S. E. 4.

Funds in Jeopardy.—A testamentary guardian ought not to be removed without a showing of such waste, insolvency, or misconduct that the ward will be unable to recover the balance due on the final settlement. Sanderson v. Sanderson, 79 N. C. 369.

Marriage "in Disparagement."—Where a guardian married his female ward to a man of slender fortune, the inequality between the fortune of herself and husband does not constitute a "disparagement" for which the guardian is liable. Shutt v. Carloss, 36 N. C. 232.

A guardian is not answerable in pecuniary damages for marrying his female ward "in disparagement." Shutt v. Carloss, 36 N. C. 232.

Inequality of fortune never constituted "disparagement." Thereby was contemplated some personal or social defect or disqualification, etc. Shutt v. Carloss, 36 N. C. 232.

A ward may not bring an action in the Superior Court by her next friend to remove her guardian and appoint another, the Superior Court in such instance being without jurisdiction. Moses v. Moses, 204 N. C. 657, 169 S. E. 273.

Removal beyond State.—Where a guardian to an infant, appointed by a county court in this State, removed to another state, taking with him a part of the property of the infant, the court which made the appointment had the right to remove him without notice, and appoint another in his place. Cooke v. Beale, 33 N. C. 36.

§ 2159. Interlocutory orders on revocation.—In all cases where the letters of a guardian are revoked, the clerk of the superior court may, from time to time, pending any controversy in respect to such removal, make such interlocutory orders and decrees as will tend to the better securing the estate of the ward, or other party seeking relief by such revocation. (Rev., s. 1775; Code, s. 1607; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 44.)

§ 2160. Resignation; effect; accounting on resignation.—Any guardian wishing to resign his trust may apply in writing to the superior court, setting forth the circumstances of his case. If, at the time of making the application, he also exhibits his final account for settlement, and if the clerk of the superior court is satisfied that the guardian has been faithful and has truly accounted, and if a competent person can be procured to succeed in the guardianship, or the clerk of the superior court may be appointed receiver of the estate of the ward, and if so appointed the clerk of the superior court may accept the resignation of the guardian and discharge him from the trust. But the guardian so discharged and his sureties are still liable in relation to all matters connected with the trust before the resignation. (Rev., s. 1776; Code, s. 1608; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 45; 1921, c. 95.)

Editor's Note.—In the second sentence of this section the words "or the clerk of the superior court may be appointed receiver of the estate of the ward and if so appointed" were added by Public Laws, 1921, ch. 95.

Liability Continues.—Where permission is given to a guardian by the judge of probate to file an ex-parte final account and turn over his guardianship to another, he is not thereby discharged from liabilities connected with his trust and arising before such resignation. He is still bound to account with the ward, or the succeeding guardian, when so required. Luton v. Wilcox, 83 N. C. 21.

Art. 3. Guardian's Bond

§ 2161. Bond to be given before receiving property.—No guardian appointed for an infant, idiot, lunatic, insane person or inebriate, shall be permitted to receive property of the infant, idiot, lunatic, insane person or inebriate until he shall have given sufficient security, approved by a judge, or the court, to account for and apply the same under the direction of the court. (Rev., s. 1777; Code, s. 1573; C. C. P., s. 355.)

As to the liability of a bank and its surety for mingling funds while acting as guardian, see § 2162 and the note thereto. As to corporation acting as guardian without giving bond, see §§ 6376 and 6377.

Presumption of Giving of Bond.—When the fact that a guardian was appointed is admitted, a presumption arises that a guardian bond was given, since such a bond is a prerequisite to the appointment. Kello v. Maget, 18 N. C. 414.

Same—No Denial Permissible.—Where there is evidence that one had been appointed and had acted as guardian, neither he nor his administrators can deny that he was guardian on the ground that he had not given bond. Latham v. Wilcox, 99 N. C. 367, 6 S. E. 711.

Omission by the clerk to take the bond required on the appointment of a guardian does not destroy the efficacy of the appointment. Howerton v. Sexton, 104 N. C. 75, 10 S. E. 148, cited in note in 33 L. R. A., N. S., 762.

Liability. — A guardian and his bondsmen are liable for all moneys due his wards which he has collected or ought to have collected. Loftin v. Cobb, 126 N. C. 58, 35 S. E. 230.

Same—Guardian's Administrator Appointed.—Where the administrator of a former guardian himself becomes guardian, he and his guardian bondsmen become liable for any balance due from the solvent estate of the former guardian. Loftin v. Cobb, 126 N. C. 58, 35 S. E. 230.

Demand for Account and Settlement.—Whether upon the wards' coming to full age, a suit might be sustained upon the guardian bond in question, before a demand made for an account and settlement, Query? Barrett v. Munroe, 20 N. C. 334.

Necessary Parties to Action on Bond.—Where an assistant clerk of the Superior Court has been appointed guardian of the estate of a minor by the clerk and has given bond and has defaulted, causing loss to the estate of the minor, upon the minor's coming of age he and the new guardian appointed may sue upon the guardianship bond and where he does so neither the clerk of the Superior Court nor his sureties on his bond is a necessary party, so far as his action is concerned. Phipps v. Royal Indemnity Co., 201 N. C. 561, 161 S. E. 69.

Editor's Note.—The proviso in regard to bonds where the value of all personal property and rents and profits exceeds one hundred thousand dollars was added by ch. 131, Laws 1925.

Chapter 385 of the Public Laws of 1935 changed the penalty as specified in the second sentence in this section and added the exception appearing at the end of the section relating to cases where bond is executed by surety company.

For an act applicable only in Craven county adding a proviso to the section, see Public Laws 1935, chapter 147.

This section contemplates that the bond shall be signed and acknowledged by the guardian as principal, as well as by the sureties. Cheshire v. Howard, 207 N. C. 566, 571, 178 S. E. 348.

Not Strictly a Record.—A guardian's bond is not strictly a record of the court, although the fact that it was made and accepted may be. An action may therefore be brought on the bond after its loss or destruction, without any previous application to the court to restore it as a record. Harrell v. Hare, 70 N. C. 658, 660.

Failure to Insert Penalty.—A guardian's bond is not binding on the sureties thereto where it did not state the amount of the penalty at the time it was signed, and they did not afterwards authorize any one to insert the amount. Rollins v. Ebbs, 137 N. C. 355, 49 S. E. 341.

Failure to Collect Money.—Where a guardian ought to receive a certain amount of money and does not, but takes something else, his own bond for instance, in place of the money, he and his sureties are liable. Avent v. Womack, 72 N. C. 397.

Bank Intermingling Trust Funds.—If a bank, as guardian, in not investing the funds of its ward, but intermingling it with other funds of its bank, it is faithless to the trust reposed in it; under the terms of this section, then its bondsman, must suffer the loss for such faithlessness. Roebuck v. National Surety Co., 200 N. C. 196, 202, 156 S. E. 531.

Responsible for Laches.—A guardian is responsible on his bond for any loss resulting from his laches in failing to sue. Cross v. Craven, 120 N. C. 331, 333, 26 S. E. 940.

Limit of Liability.—The guardian's bond is not responsible in any way for the realty beyond the rents and profits. Cross v. Craven, 120 N. C. 331, 333, 26 S. E. 940.

Same—Sureties Not Responsible.—The sureties on a guardian's bond are not responsible for the nonpayment of a note given by the guardian, and signed by him as guardian, for the board and tuition of his ward. McKinnon v. McKinnon, 81 N. C. 201.

Cited in Pierce v. Pierce, 197 N. C. 348, 349, 148 S. E. 438.

Acceptance without Guardian's Signature Is Irregularity.—The acceptance and approval of the bond by the clerk of the Superior Court without the signature of the guardian as principal is an irregularity, but such irregularity does not render the bond void either as to the principal or as to his sureties. Cheshire v. Howard, 207 N. C. 566, 571, 178 S. E. 348.

In Name of State.—An action on a guardian's bond should be in the name of the State, for the benefit of the plaintiff, and not in the name of the plaintiff. Carmichael v. Moore, 88 N. C. 29; Williams v. McNair, 98 N. C. 332, 4 S. E. 131, 133; Norman v. Walker, 101 N. C. 24, 25, 7 S. E. 468.

Jurisdiction.—The clerk has no jurisdiction of a suit on a guardian's bond. Such suit must be brought in the superior court. Rowland v. Thompson, 65 N. C. 110.

Proper Relator.—Under the old system, a trustee appointed by the court of equity was a proper relator in an action on a guardian's bond to recover a trust fund. Jones v. Brown, 67 N. C. 475, distinguishing State v. Lightfoot, 24 N. C. 306; Governor v. Deaver, 25 N. C. 56; Waugh v. Miller, 33 N. C. 235.

The share of an infant in an estate in the hands of his guardian is capable of being assigned; and, when so assigned, the assignee, and not the infant, is the proper relator in an action on the guardian's bond. Petty v. Rousseau, 94 N. C. 355.

A creditor of a guardian is not the proper relator in an action upon the guardian's bond. McKinnon v. McKinnon, 81 N. C. 201.

Condition Set Out.—In an action on a guardian's bond, it is necessary that conditions of the bond which are alleged to have been broken should be set forth in the complaint. McKinnon v. McKinnon, 81 N. C. 201.

Evidence.—Under sec. 345, evidence of a balance in the hands of a guardian as shown of his annual account was admissible against a surety. Loftin v. Cobb, 126 N. C. 58, 35 S. E. 230.

Same—Bond Must Be Proved.—A guardian's bond is not a record, and, before it can be read in evidence in any case, it must be proved like all other bonds. Butler v. Durham, 38 N. C. 589.

Defenses.—The same defense which might be made to an action at law or suit in equity, brought in the name of the ward himself against the guardian, is good in an action brought on the guardian's bond. Clark v. Cordon, 30 N. C. 179.

Same—Prior Settlement.—A full settlement of a suit brought by a ward on a guardian's bond, made after the ward becomes of age, in the presence of the ward's mother, and by the advice of her counsel, and a final judgment thereon, is a bar to a subsequent action on the bond. Dean v. Ragsdale, 80 N. C. 215.

Same—Statute of Limitations.—An action by the ward against the sureties on the bond of the guardian is barred after three years from the time the ward becomes twenty-one years old if the guardian makes no final settlement, and within six years if the guardian makes a final settlement. Self v. Shugart, 135 N. C. 185, 47 S. E. 484. See dissenting opinion.

Amount of Recovery.—In an action upon a guardian's bond, the recovery against either the principal or the surety can not exceed the penalty thereof, but should be for the penal sum of the bond, and to be discharged on payment of the damages sustained. Anthony v. Estes, 101 N. C. 541, 8 S. E. 347.

Same—Measure of Damages.—The measure of damages in an action upon a guardian's bond for a failure to perform any duty required of him is the amount of the principal received, with compound interest at six per cent until the ward arrives at full age. Topping v. Windley, 99 N. C. 4, 5 S. E. 14.

§ 2165. Renewal of bond every three years; enforcing renewal. — Every guardian shall renew his bond before the clerk of the superior court every three years, during the continuance of the guardianship. The clerk of the superior court shall issue a citation against every guardian failing to renew his bond, requiring such guardian to renew his bond within twenty days after service of the citation; and on return of the citation duly served and failure of the guardian to comply therewith, the clerk shall remove him and appoint a successor. (Rev., ss. 324, 1781, 1782; Code, ss. 1581, 1582; R. C., c. 54, s. 10; 1762, c. 69, s. 15; 1868-9, c. 201, ss. 18, 19.)

As to liability of clerk for taking an insufficient bond, see section 2167.

Editor's Note—Clerk's Liability.—The question of the clerk's liability for failure to enforce the renewal of the guardian's bond has caused some conflicting decisions. In Lee v. Watson, 29 N. C. 289, it was decided by a divided court that, "The clerk and his sureties are responsible for neglect in failing to enforce renewal of the bond, and were bound to make compensation to the orphans for any loss they sustained thereby." Later in Jones v. Biggs, 46 N. C. 364, on the same question a divided court decided that the clerk was not liable. That the clerk and his sureties are not liable was again decided in Sullivan v. Lowe, 64 N. C. 500, the opinion being per curiam, and this is the law today.

Where a guardian gives several successive bonds for the faithful discharge of his trust, the sureties on each bond stand in the relation of co-sureties to the sureties on every other bond; the only qualification to the rule being, that the sureties are bound to contribution only according to the amount of the penalty of the bond in which each class is bound. Jones v. Hays, 38 N. C. 502.

Where a guardian gives several successive bonds for the faithful discharge of his trust, the sureties on each bond stand in the relation of cosureties to the sureties on every other bond; the only qualification to the rule being, that the sureties are bound to contribution only according to the amount of the penalty of the bond, in which each class is bound. Thornton v. Barbour, 204 N. C. 583, 585, 169 S. E. 153.

§ 2166. Relief of endangered sureties. — Any surety of a guardian, who is in danger of sustaining loss by his suretyship, may file his complaint before the clerk of the superior court where the guardianship was granted, setting forth the circumstances of his case and demanding relief; and thereupon the guardian shall be required to answer the complaint within twenty days after service of the summons. If, upon the hearing, the clerk of the superior court deem the surety entitled to relief, the same may be granted by compelling the guardian to give a new bond, or to indemnify the surety against apprehended loss, or by the removal of the guardian from his trust; and in case the guardian fail to give a new bond or security to indemnify when required to do so within reasonable time, the clerk of the superior court must enter a peremptory order for his removal, and his authority as guardian shall thereupon cease. (Rev., s. 1783; Code, s. 1606; R. C., c. 54, s. 35; 1762, c. 69, ss. 21, 22; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 43.)

Giving New Bond with Other Sureties.—A surety to a guardian's bond is not discharged from his liability by the guardian giving a new bond with other sureties. Jones v. Blanton, 41 N. C. 115.

Liability of New Sureties.—When, under this section, new sureties are ordered to be given, the obligation of the bond given by the new sureties extends to the entire guardianship, retrospective as well as prospective. Such a bond is at least an additional and cumulative security for the ward. Bell v. Jasper, 37 N. C. 597.

Where Counter Security Given.—Where the sureties of a guardian obtained an order for counter security, and at such time the guardian owed his ward, and never afterwards returned an account nor made a payment, no presumption of satisfaction at that or any subsequent time arose from the fact that he was then able to pay the sum he owed: and the sureties on the first bond were liable for it, though the order for counter security expressly released them. Foye v. Bell, 18 N. C. 475.

The clerk is not empowered by any express statute to release sureties, upon bonds approved by him, certainly at a time when the principal is in default, this section provides a remedy for dissatisfied sureties upon guardian bonds, but release is not one of the remedies therein contemplated. Thornton v. Barbour, 204 N. C. 583, 587, 169 S. E. 153.

§ 2167. Liability of clerk for taking insufficient bond. — If any clerk of the superior court shall commit the estate of an infant, idiot, lunatic, insane person or inebriate to the charge or guardianship of any person without taking good and sufficient security for the same as directed by law, such clerk shall be liable, on his official bond, at the suit of the party aggrieved, for all loss and damages sustained for want of security being taken; but if the sureties were good at the time of their being accepted, the clerk of the superior court shall not be liable. (Rev., s. 1784; Code, s. 1614; R. C., c. 54, s. 2; 1762, c. 69, ss. 5, 6; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 51.)

In General.—Clerks, and the sureties on their official bonds, are now liable, as the justices were under the old system, for any loss or damages resulting from a failure to take good bonds, and the record of the appointment of the guardian is sufficient evidence of such appointment. Topping v. Windley, 99 N. C. 4, 5 S. E. 14, 17.

Effect of Failure.—The giving of the bonds required of guardians and administrators is not essential to the validity of the appointment itself; the failure to take the bond, however, subjects the officer whose duty it is to see that it is made to the consequences of such omission. Howerton v. Sexton, 104 N. C. 75, 10 S. E. 148.

When Action Lies.—No action can be maintained on the bond given by a clerk conditioned for the faithful performance of his duty, except where there has been such damages sustained as would give the party a right to maintain an action on the case for the neglect of his official duty. Jones v. Briggs, 46 N. C. 364.

§ 2168. Liability of clerk for other defaults. — If any clerk of the superior court shall willfully or negligently do, or omit to do, any other act prohibited, or other duty imposed on him by law, by which act or omission the estate of any ward suffers damage, he shall be liable therefor as directed in the preceding section. (Rev., s. 1785; Code, s. 1615; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 52.)

Editor's Note—Former Provision.—Formerly the clerk was required to make a record of and enter at large on the docket the names of the justices who were present at the granting of a guardianship; and he was also required to make the same entry on the guardian's bond. The purpose of this requirement was to furnish an easy means of proving which of the justices were on the bench in the event that they have been guilty of such negligence in respect to the sureties taken on the bond as to be liable to the action of the infant according to the provisions of the statute. State v. Koonce, 51 N. C. 379, 380.

It was not the intention of the Legislature in the statute, Revised Code, chapter 54, section 6, to make it a breach of the clerk's official bond to omit entering the names of the justices present in the court appointing a guardian, either on the docket, or on the bond, or both; but that in these particulars the act is merely directory. State v. Koonce, 51 N. C. 379.

Art. 4. Powers and Duties of Guardian

§ 2169. To take charge of estate. — Every guardian shall take possession, for the use of the ward, of all his estate, and may bring all necessary actions therefor. (Rev., s. 1786; Code, s. 1588; R. C., c. 54, s. 21; 1762, c. 69, s. 3; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 25.)

In General.—The rule of diligence established by the decided cases is, that a guardian in the management of his ward's estate must act in good faith and with that care and judgment that a man of ordinary prudence exercises in his own affairs. Covington v. Leak, 67 N. C. 363; Freeman v. Wilson, 74 N. C. 368, 369; State v. Mebane, 63 N. C. 315; Luton v. Wilcox, 83 N. C. 21, 26.

The rights and powers of guardians are considered as strictly local; and not as entitling them to exercise any authority over the person or personal property of their wards in other states. Lamar v. Micou, 112 U. S. 452, 470, 28 L. E. 751.

Payment of funds to a guardian by Veterans' Bureau under War Risk Insurance Act vests title in the ward and operates to discharge the obligation of the United States. Hence the deposit of the funds in a bank which was duly appointed guardian and which later became insolvent does not belong to the United States and, as indebtedness to the United States is essential to priority under 31 U. S. C. A., § 191, the claim of the surety on the guardian's bond is without merit. In re Home Savings Bank, 204 N. C. 454, 168 S. E. 688.

Power to Bind Ward by Contract.—A contract made by a guardian within his authority, will be binding upon his ward upon his attaining full age. United States Mortgage Co. v. Sperry, 138 U. S. 313, 34 L. Ed. 969.

Recovery of Realty.—A guardian having no title to the land of his ward, it is not his duty to sue for the recovery of realty. Cross v. Craven, 120 N. C. 331, 26 S. E. 940.

Guardian May Exchange Property. — A guardian, having personal surety for a debt due to his ward, may exchange that personal for real security; and, if he does it bona fide, he is not responsible to his ward. Christman v. Wright, 38 N. C. 549.

Compromise of Claim.—A ward is not bound by a compromise of his general guardian of the former's claim for damages for a personal injury, unless made with the sanction of the court to which the guardian should account; and in no event when the compromise is due to the gross negligence of the guardian, or in bad faith, is manifestly unfair to the ward, and for a grossly inadequate consideration; and when such are found to be the facts, legal fraud will be inferred and the compromise will be set aside without a specific finding of actual fraud. Bunch v. Foreman Blades Lumber Co., 174 N. C. 8, 93 S. E. 374.

§ 2170. To sell perishable goods on order of clerk. — Every guardian shall sell, by order of the clerk of the superior court, all such goods and chattels of his ward as may be liable to perish or be the worse for keeping. Every such order shall be entered in the order record of the superior court and must contain a descriptive list of the property to be sold, with the terms of sale. (Rev., s. 1787; Code, s. 1589; R. C., c. 54, s. 22; 1762, c. 69, s. 10; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 26.)

§ 2171. How sales and rentals made. — All sales and rentings by guardians shall be publicly made, between the hours of ten o'clock a. m. and four o'clock p. m., after twenty days notice posted at the courthouse and four other public places in the county. But, upon petition by the guardian, the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the land of the ward is situated, or of the county wherein the guardian has qualified, may make an order, on satisfactory evidence, upon the oath of at least two disinterested freeholders acquainted with the said land, that the best interests of the said ward will be subserved by a private renting of said land, allowing the guardian to rent the land privately. The terms of all such rentings shall be reported to said clerk of the superior court and be approved by him. In cases where guardians have heretofore rented their ward's land at private rentings in good faith and for the benefit of the ward's estate, they shall not be liable to the penalty heretofore prescribed by law. The proceeds of all sales of personal estate and rentings of real property, except the rentings of lands leased for agricultural purposes, when not for cash, shall be secured by bond and good security. (Rev., s. 1788; Code, s. 1590; 1891, c. 83; 1901, c. 97; R. C., c. 54, s. 26; 1793, c. 391.)

Public Renting Required.—This section impliedly declares it to be the interest of the wards to rent the lands publicly. Duffy v. Williams, 133 N. C. 195, 198, 45 S. E. 548.

Same—Not Discretionary with Guardian.—The provisions of this section that all sales or renting of personal and real property by a guardian shall be made publicly, and, upon the terms therein prescribed, are peremptory and leave no discretion to such guardians. Pate v. Kennedy, 104 N. C. 234, 10 S. E. 188.

Same—Purpose of Provision.—The purpose of these precise and stringent regulations is to give notice to the public of the time, place and terms of such "sales and rentings," and thus encourage and promote competition and obtain better prices and higher rents for the property sold or let, and, also, to prevent the exercise of possible bad judgment, imprudence, lack of caution, collusion and fraud on the part of guardians. Pate v. Kennedy, 104 N. C. 234, 236, 10 S. E. 188.

Same—Effect of Violation.—Where a lease by the guardian of his ward's lands was not publicly made, as required by this section, nor approved by the clerk of the superior court, as required by section 2172, the lessee may not hold the ward's estate liable for the false representation of the guardian's agent as to the value of the leased property for the lessee's purposes, nor for his false warranty thereof. Coxe v. Whitmire Motor Sales Co., 190 N. C. 833, 130 S. E. 841.

Same—Application.—This section, requiring sales by guardians to be publicly made, does not apply to sales made under directions of the superior court in exercise of its general jurisdiction in equity. Barcello v. Hopgood, 118 N. C. 712, 24 S. E. 124. The section restricts the guardian and not the court. Id.

Court May Order Private Renting.—It is not irregular or erroneous to order the sale of an infant's land to be made privately by the guardian. Barcello v. Hapgood, 118 N. C. 712, 24 S. E. 124.

See note of Coxe v. Whitmire Motor Sales Co., 190 N. C. 838, 130 S. E. 841, under section 2171.

§ 2173. When guardians to cultivate lands of wards. — Where any parent of a minor child qualifies as guardian of such child, and the ward owns or is entitled to the possession of any real estate used or which may be used for agricultural purposes, such guardian may make application to the clerk of the superior court of the county wherein the land is situate for permission to cultivate it, and the petition shall set forth the nature, extent and location of the same. It shall then be the duty of the clerk to appoint three disinterested resident freeholders, who shall go upon the land and, after being sworn to act impartially, assess the annual rental value thereof. The commissioners shall report their proceedings and findings to the clerk within ten days after the notification of their appointment, and if the clerk shall deem the same to be the interest of the ward he shall make an order allowing the guardian to cultivate the land for a term not exceeding three years at the annual rental value assessed by the commissioners to be paid to the ward by the guardian. The term, however, shall not extend beyond the minority of the minor. The commissioners shall receive as compensation for said services the same fees as are allowed commissioners in partition of real estate. (1909, c. 57.)

§ 2173(1). Guardians' powers enlarged to permit cultivation of ward's lands or continuation of ward's business.—In addition to the powers given to guardians under the general laws of the State, all guardians may, upon presentation of satisfactory evidence, with approval of the clerk of superior court, which approval must be concurred in by the resident judge or other regular or special judge holding courts in the district, cause lands to be cultivated and make such contracts with reference thereto as said guardian may deem to the best interest of his ward's estate, and under the direction of the clerk of superior court, with the approval of the resident judge or other regular or special judge holding courts in the district, continue to operate any business or business enterprise of his ward and make such contract, agreements, and settlements with reference thereto as the clerk of superior court, with the approval of said resident judge or other regular or special judge holding courts in the district, may determine necessary or find to be the best interest of the estate. (1935, c. 24.)

Editor's Note.—Section 1-A of Public Laws of 1935, chapter 24 provides "that this act shall not affect pending litigation."

§ 2174. When timber may be sold. — In case the land cannot be rented for enough to pay the taxes and other dues thereof, and there is not money sufficient for that purpose, the guardian, with the consent of the clerk of the superior court, may annually dispose of or use so much of the lightwood, and box or rent so many pine trees, or sell so much of the timber on the same, as may raise enough to pay the taxes and other duties thereon, and no more. (Rev., s. 1790; Code, s. 1596; R. C., c. 54, s. 27; 1762, c. 69, s. 14; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 33.)

Sale without Order of Court.—Where a guardian sold timber on the land of his ward without an order of the court, as required by this section, and took a note for the purchase money, the maker of such note cannot when sued on the same by the guardian and ward (the latter thereby ratifying the contract) set up the failure of the guardian to observe the statutory mandate. Evans v. Williamson, 79 N. C. 86.

§ 2174(1). Guardians and other fiduciaries authorized to buy real estate foreclosed under mortgages executed to them.—On application of the guardian or other fiduciary of any idiot, inebriate, lunatic, non compos mentis or any person incompetent from want of understanding to manage his own affairs for any cause or reason, or any minor or infant, or any other person for whom such guardian or fiduciary has been appointed, by petition, verified upon oath, to the superior court, showing that the purchase of real estate is necessary to avoid a loss to the said ward's estate by reason of the inadequacy of the amount bid at foreclosure sale under a mortgage or deed of trust securing the re-payment of funds previously loaned the mortgagor by said guardian or other fiduciary, and that the interest of the ward would be materially promoted by said purchase the proceeding shall be conducted as in other cases of special proceedings; and the truth of the matter alleged in the petition being ascertained by satisfactory proof, or by affidavit of three disinterested freeholders over twenty-one years of age who reside in the county in which said land lies, a decree may thereupon be made that said real estate be purchased by such person; but no purchase of real estate shall be made until approved by a judge of the superior court, nor shall the same be valid, nor any conveyance of the title made, unless confirmed and directed by a judge, and then only in compliance with the terms and conditions set out in said order and judgment. (1935, c. 156.)

plate and jewelry shall be preserved and delivered to the ward at age, in kind, according to weight and quantity. (Rev., s. 1791; Code, s. 1597; 1895, c. 74; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 34.)

§ 2176. Personal representative of guardian to pay over to clerk.—In all cases where a guardian of any minor child or of an idiot, lunatic, inebriate or insane person dies, it is competent for the executor or administrator of such deceased guardian, at any time after the grant of letters testamentary or of administration, to pay into the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county where such deceased guardian was appointed, any moneys belonging to any such minor child, idiot, lunatic, insane person or inebriate, and any such payment shall have the effect to discharge the estate of said deceased guardian and his sureties upon his guardian bond to the extent of the amount so paid. (Rev., s. 1794; Code, s. 1622; 1881, c. 301, s. 2.)

No Action between Administrators.—The administrator of a deceased ward is not entitled to recover, in an action against the administrator of the deceased guardian, moneys which came into the guardian's hands as proceeds of real estate belonging to the ward sold under a decree of court for partition. Allison v. Robinson, 78 N. C. 222.

§ 2177. Collection of claims; duty and liability.—Every guardian shall diligently endeavor to collect, by all lawful means, all bonds, notes, obligations or moneys due his ward when any debtor or his sureties are likely to become insolvent, on pain of being liable for the same. (Rev., s. 1795; Code, s. 1593; R. C., c. 54, s. 23; 1762, c. 69, s. 10; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 30.)

Cross References.—As to compound interest on obligations due to guardians, see section 2308.

General Liability.—A guardian is liable not only for what he does receive, but for what he ought to receive; and if he ought to receive a certain amount of money and does not, but takes something else, his own bond for instance, in the place of money, he and his sureties are liable. Avent v. Womack, 72 N. C. 397.

Same—Diligence and Good Faith.—A guardian is responsible, not only for what he receives, but for all he might have received by the exercise of ordinary diligence and the highest degree of good faith. Armfield v. Brown, 73 N. C. 81.

A guardian, who acted in good faith and was not guilty of culpable negligence, was held not to be responsible for omitting to collect a note during the late war, when it appeared that both of the two obligors were solvent during the war, and were made insolvent by its results. Love v. Logan, 69 N. C. 70.

Need Not Resort to Extraordinary Remedies.—Guardians are not responsible for losses to their wards attributable to their not having resorted to new and extraordinary remedies, the force and effect of which are doubtful. White v. Robinson, 64 N. C. 698.

Accepting Unsecured Note.—A guardian who accepts an unsecured note in payment of a debt due his ward is guilty of laches, and is liable to his ward for the amount of such note. Covington v. Leak, 65 N. C. 594.

Power to Collect and Compromise Debts.—It is held in the U. S. Supreme Court that a guardian, unless restricted by statute, may collect or compromise and release debts due to the ward, subject to the liability to be called to account if he has acted without due regard to the ward's interest. Maclay v. Equitable Life Assurance Society, 152 U. S. 499, 503, 38 L. Ed. 528.

Accepting Smaller Sum.—Where a guardian accepts from an administrator a smaller sum than the ward's share in the estate, the wards may, at their option, sue the guardian or the administrator for the deficiency. Alexander v. Alexander, 120 N. C. 472, 27 S. E. 121.

Failure to Ascertain Amount Due. — Where a guardian carelessly and without deliberation accepts for his wards from an insolvent debtor an amount less than they are entitled to receive from a fund, he is liable to the wards for what he failed to collect. Culp v. Stanford, 112 N. C. 664, 16 S. E. 761, distinguishing Luton v. Wilcox, 83 N. C. 21, and other decisions cited.

Failure to Sue before Insolvency.—Where a guardian fails to sue a note due his ward's estate until the parties thereto are insolvent, he is liable for his negligence. Coggins v. Flythe, 113 N. C. 102, 18 S. E. 96.

Failure to Sue Surety Knowing of Obligor's Insolvency.—Where a guardian waited six months after the principal in a note held by him as guardian died insolvent before he sued the surety, who also became insolvent before the suit was brought, the guardian having opportunity all the time of knowing the true condition of the obligors, it was held that by his laches he made himself responsible for the loss of the debt. Williamson v. Williams, 59 N. C. 62, distinguishing Deberry v. Ivey, 55 N. C. 370; Davis v. Marcum, 57 N. C. 189.

As to compound interest on obligations due guardians, see section 2308. As to owelty to be by guardian, see section 3224.

Art. 5. Sales of Ward's Estate

§ 2180. Special proceedings to sell; judge's approval required.—On application of the guardian by petition, verified upon oath, to the superior court, showing that the interest of the ward would be materially promoted by the sale or mortgage of any part of his estate, real or personal, the proceeding shall be conducted as in other cases of special proceedings; and the truth of the matter alleged in the petition being ascertained by satisfactory proof, a decree may thereupon be made that a sale or mortgage be had by such person, in such way and on such terms as may be most advantageous to the interest of the ward; but no sale or mortgage shall be made until approved by the judge of the court, nor shall the same be valid, nor any conveyance of the title made, unless confirmed and directed by the judge, and the proceeds of the sale or mortgage shall be exclusively applied and secured to such purposes and on such trusts as the judge shall specify. The guardian may not mortgage the property of his ward for a term of years in excess of the term fixed by the court in its decree. The word "mortgage" whenever used herein shall be construed to include deeds in trust. (Rev., s. 1798; Code, s. 1602; R. C., c. 54, ss. 32, 33; 1827, c. 33 1868-9, c. 201, s. 39; 1917, c. 258, s. 1; 1923, c. 67, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—In the next to the last sentence in this section a change was made by Public Laws 1923, ch. 67, section 1. The former provision was that a guardian could not mortgage his ward's property for a term of years "exceeding the minority of the ward." This limitation was stricken out and the term made dependent upon the decree of the court.

Not Applicable to Settlement or Partition.—This section does not apply either to the settlement of estates or to partition. Clark v. Carolina Homes, 189 N. C. 703, 128 S. E. 20, 26.

Jurisdiction.—The previous court of equity had authority upon the ex-parte petition of the plaintiffs, while they were infants, suing by their mother as next friend, to order and make a valid sale of their land mentioned for partition, and to pass the title thereto through its commissioner appointed for the purpose. Dodd, Ex-parte, 62 N. C. 97; Rowland v.

Thompson, 73 N. C. 504; George v. High, 85 N. C. 113; Ivey v. McKinnon, 84 N. C. 651; Morris v. Gentry, 89 N. C. 248, 252.

Under the prevailing system of judicature in this State, the superior courts have succeeded to and possess the jurisdiction and power of the late courts of equity in respect to infants and their property; and there can be no question that these courts have authority in all proper cases to direct a sale of their property, both real and personal, for their benefit and advantage. Williams v. Harrington, 33 N. C. 616; Ex parte Dodd, 62 N. C. 97; Sutton v. Schonwald, 86 N. C. 198; Morris v. Gentry, 89 N. C. 248; Tate v. Mott, 96 N. C. 19, 22 2 S. E. 176.

Same—Clerk.—By this section the clerk and court in term have concurrent jurisdiction in the manner of ordering a sale of infants' lands upon petition of their guardians. Barcello v. Hapgood, 118 N. C. 712, 24 S. E. 124.

Same—Contingent Interests.—This section does not confer jurisdiction on the clerks of courts to order the sale of contingent interests in lands, and suits to sell such interests, when the circumstances of the ward require it, should be determined in the superior court, in its equitable jurisdiction, which is required to order an investment of the funds in proper instances in accordance with the terms and conditions imposed by the conveyance, in order that the lawful intent of the donor may not be defeated. Smith v. Witter, 174 N. C. 616, 94 S. E. 402.

And a sale of such interests is void for the lack of jurisdiction, and the deed thereto of the guardian conveys nothing to his grantee. Smith v. Witter, 174 N. C. 616, 94 S. E. 402. As to procedure for the sale of contingent interests see section 1744.

Must Be Represented.—The court may sell the land of minors for better investment, when they are properly represented before the court. Hutchinson v. Hutchinson, 126 N. C. 671, 36 S. E. 149.

Appointed by Court.—The next friend of an infant ought always to be appointed by the court, and really he is an officer of the court, and under its supervision and control. Tate v. Mott, 96 N. C. 19, 2 S. E. 176.

Removal.—The court has power, for good cause shown, to remove the next friend of an infant litigant, and appoint another as often as may be necessary. Tate v. Mott, 96 N. C. 19, 2 S. E. 176.

Power of Representative.—The power of a guardian to make disposition of his ward's real estate is very carefully regulated and a sale is not allowed execept on petition filed, and the order must in all cases have the supervision and approval of the judge. Morton v. Lumber Co., 178 N. C. 163, 166, 100 S. E. 322.

Representative Not a Party.—The guardian or next friend of an infant is not, properly speaking, a party to the action, although his name appears in the record. Tate v. Mott, 96 N. C. 19, 2 S. E. 176.

Notice to Infant Unnecessary.—It is not essential that the infant should know that an action has been brought in his favor by a next friend, as his incapacity to judge for himself is presumed, but the court may inquire into the propriety of the action and take such steps as may be necessary. Tate v. Mott, 96 N. C. 19, 2 S. E. 176.

Sale May Be Private.—The sale by order of the court may be either public or private. Barcello v. Hapgood, 118 N. C. 712, 24 S. E. 124. Section 2171 does not apply when the sale is by order of court. Id.

Guardian Cannot Purchase. — It is well settled that a guardian can not purchase at his own sale, and that all such purchases may be treated as invalid, at the option of the wards, even when no unfairness in the sale and purchase has been shown. Lee v. Howell, 69 N. C. 200, 203; Patton v. Thompson, 55 N. C. 285.

When Guardian Liable.—Where a guardian obtains a decree of a court of equity for the sale of his ward's land, it must appear, in order to make him liable for any loss in consequence of such sale, that he willfully practiced a deception on the court by false allegations and false evidence, or by industriously concealing material facts. Harrison v. Bradley, 40 N. C. 136.

Where an order confirming a sale of lands for partition does not provide for the disbursement of the funds, and the sum received in cash is properly paid into court and properly disbursed to the parties, the share of the minors therein being less than one hundred dollars and being paid to their mother for their benefit, under § 962, the sale was not void. Ex parte Huffstetler, 203 N. C. 796, 167 S. E. 65.

Where Order Violated.—It is proper for the court, before intervening rights have accrued, upon affidavit of one who has been adjudged an idiot in proceedings before the clerk, and guardian appointed, to grant a temporary restraining order, with notice to show cause, and at the hearing thereof to continue the order to the final hearing, when it appears that the guardian has sold the interest in lands of his ward and made title thereto, without having received the purchase price, contrary to the provisions of the order of sale. In re Propst, 144 N. C. 562, 57 S. E. 342.

Proof Required.—This section, contemplates that, in addition to the verified petition of the guardian, the clerk shall require other satisfactory proof of the truth of the matter alleged. The judge, exercising the functions of a chancellor, where sales of this character were made pursuant to proceedings in courts of equity, always referred the petition to the clerk and master, who took evidence and reported their conclusions to the court. It is usual, since these large and important equitable functions are conferred upon the clerks, to accompany the petition with affidavits showing the necessity for the sale. The practice is to be commended, and should not, without good cause, be departed from. In re Propst, 144 N. C. 562, 567, 57 S. E. 342.

Same—Sale May Be Set Aside.—Where the court, without taking any means to ascertain the necessity for a sale, directed it to be made, and that it should be "first advertised at the court house and three other public places," and no bid be received less than $125, and that the guardian should make conveyance, it was held, that it was not error to set aside the sale and direct another. In re Dickerson, 111 N. C. 108, 15 S. E. 1025.

Judgment.—Where an infant sues by his next friend he is as much bound by the judgment as an adult, and this rule applies to nonresident as much as to resident infants. Tate v. Mott, 96 N. C. 19, 2 S. E. 176.

Same—When Voidable.—A judgment for or against an infant, when he appears by attorney, but has no guardian or next friend, is not void, but only voidable. Tate v. Mott, 96 N. C. 19, 2 S. E. 176.

Confirmation of Sale.—While a formal direction to make title is not always necessary, a confirmation of the sale cannot be dispensed with. In re Dickerson, 111 N. C. 108, 114, 15 S. E. 1025.

An emergency judge has no power to approve and confirm an order of the clerk for the sale or mortgage of lands by a guardian when such emergency judge is not holding court in the county. This result is not affected by the provisions of § 766(b). Ipock v. North Carolina Joint Stock Land Bank, 206 N. C. 791, 175 S. E. 127.

Approval Nunc Pro Tunc.—Where a guardian executed a note and deed of trust under an order made by the clerk without the approval of the judge, and the judge later approved the order nunc pro tunc, the defect was cured so as to come within this section. Powell v. Armour Fertilizer Works, 205 N. C. 311, 170 S. E. 916; Ipock v. North Carolina Joint Stock Land Bank, 206 N. C. 791, 797, 175 S. E. 127.

Title Acquired.—Where land of an infant was sold under a decree of the court upon petition of a guardian, the title acquired is not rendered invalid by the reversal of the decree on account of irregularity in the proceeding of which the purchaser had no notice. Sutton v. Schonwald, 86 N. C. 198.

Same—Unauthorized Private Sale.—A guardian, having offered at public sale the land of his wards in accordance with an order of the court, and having failed to sell for want of a bid at a fair price, subsequently sold the land at private sale upon terms approved by the court: it was held, that the purchaser at such private sale obtained a good title. Rowland v. Thompson, 73 N. C. 504.

When Foreign Guardian May Sell.—Where a foreign guardian has complied with the provisions of sections 2195, 2196, which authorize him to withdraw the estate of his wards to the place of their residence and to a court of foreign jurisdiction, he may, in the same proceedings, and incident thereto, have the real property of his wards sold and converted into money in conformity with the provisions of this section, when the wards are represented therein by their next friend, and it is made to appear that their interests will be promoted thereby, etc. Cilley v. Geitner, 183 N. C. 528, 11 S. E. 866.

§ 2181. Fund from sale has character of estate sold and subject to same trusts. — Whenever, in consequence of any sale under the preceding section, the real or personal property of the ward is saved from demands to which in the first instance it may be liable, the final decree shall declare and set apart a portion of the personal or real estate thus saved, of value equal to the real and personal estate sold, as property exchanged for that sold; and in all such cases of sale, whereby real is substituted by personal, or personal by real property, the beneficial interest in the property acquired shall be enjoyed, alienated, devised or bequeathed, and shall descend and be distributed, as by law the property sold might and would have been had it not been sold, until it be reconverted from the character thus impressed upon it by some act of the owner and restored to its character proper. (Rev., s. 1799; Code, s. 1603; R. C., c. 54, s. 33; 1827, c. 33; s. 2; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 40.)

In General.—Although it is the duty of a court, when the real estate of an infant is sold under its decree, to direct the proceeds to be held as real estate, yet a husband of such infant, who has received the proceeds from his wife's guardian, has no right to complain that such course has not been adopted. Harrison v. Bradley, 40 N. C. 136.

Application.—Where a female infant's land was sold for the benefit of the infant and she married and died before becoming of age, it was held that the money retained the character of real property. Wood v. Reeves, 58 N. C. 271.

§ 2182. Sale of ward's estate to make assets. — When a guardian has notice of a debt or demand against the estate of his ward he may apply by petition, setting forth the facts, to the clerk of the superior court wherein the guardianship was granted, for an order to sell so much of the personal or real estate as may be sufficient to discharge such debt or demand; and the order of the court shall particularly specify what property is to be sold and the terms of sale; but no real estate shall be sold under this section, in any case, without the revision and confirmation of the order therefor by the judge of the superior court. The proceeds of sale under this section shall be considered as assets in the hands of the guardian for the benefit of creditors, in like manner as assets in the hands of a personal representative; and the same proceedings may be had against the guardian with respect to such assets as might be taken against an executor, administrator or collector in similar cases. (Rev., ss. 1800, 1801; Code, ss. 1604, 1605; R. C., c. 54, s. 34; 1789, c. 311, s. 5; 1868-9, c. 201, ss. 41, 42.)

Ascertaining That Debts Are Due. — The court should first ascertain that there are debts due from the ward, which render the sale of the property expedient, and they should also select the part or parts of his property which can be disposed of with least injury to the ward. Leary v. Fletcher, 23 N. C. 259.

An order authorizing a guardian, under certain circumstances, to sell the land of his ward, must first show that it was adjudged that there were debts due from the ward, and then specify what particular land is to be sold for their payment. Spruill v. Davenport, 48 N. C. 42.

Same—Amount Need Not Be Shown.—The amount of the debts, or to whom due, need not be set forth in the order. Pendleton v. Trueblood, 48 N. C. 96; Spruill v. Davenport, 48 N. C. 42.

Same—Sale Void Where Debt Not Shown.—A sale of a ward's land on petition of the guardian to pay debts is void, where it is not made to appear that the court passed on and ascertained the fact that there was a debt against the ward's estate. Coffield v. McLean, 49 N. C. 15.

Specifying Land to Be Sold.—An order that the guardian sell the land of his ward, or so much thereof as will be sufficient to discharge his debts, is fatally defective and void, and vests no title in those who bought at the sale. Ducket v. Skinner, 33 N. C. 431; Leary v. Fletcher, 23 N. C. 259.

Where the order "to sell the land of the ward named in the petition, adjoining the lands of A., B., and others, containing about 110 acres," it not appearing that the ward had other land, this is a sufficient specification of the land under the statute. Pendleton v. Trueblood, 48 N. C. 96.

Mortgagee Not a Party.—In a petition to sell lands for assets to pay debts, a mortgagee of the interest of one of the heirs-at-law was improperly admitted a party defendant. Such claims cannot be set up in this proceeding. Battle v. Duncan, 90 N. C. 546.

Proceed's Subject to Attachment.—Money from the sale of land which belonged to wards is subject to attachment in the hands of the clerk after the confirmation of the sale. Leroy v. Jacobosky, 136 N. C. 443, 48 S. E. 796.

Priority in Payment.—When a guardian of an infant, under an order of court, sells his ward's land for payment of the debts of the ancestor, he is bound to observe the same priority in the payment of the debts as an administrator or executor in applying the personal assets. Merchant v. Sanderlin, 25 N. C. 501.

Sale of Lunatic's Property.—A guardian of a lunatic may, by order of the court, rightfully sell the personal property of his ward for the payment of his debts, provided there be no fraud in the proceeding. Howard v. Thompson, 30 N. C. 367. As to sale or renting of lunatics' estates, see sec. 2291 et seq.

Art. 6. Returns and Accounting

§ 2183. Return within three months.—Every guardian, within three months after his appointment, shall exhibit an account, upon oath, of the estate of his ward, to the clerk of the superior court; but such time may be extended by the clerk of the superior court, on good cause shown, not exceeding six months. (Rev., s. 1802; Code, s. 1577; R. C., c. 54, s. 11; 1762, c. 69, s. 9; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 14.)

In General.—It is the duty of the guardian within three months after his appointment to exhibit an account, upon oath, of the estate of his ward to the clerk of the superior court, and to make an annual return. Norman v. Walker, 101 N. C. 24, 26, 7 S. E. 468.

In the administration of the estate in behalf of the lunatic, the guardian is subject to the orders of the clerk by whom he was appointed and to whom he is required by this and following sections to account. Read v. Turner, 200 N. C. 773, 777, 158 S. E. 475.

§ 2184. Procedure to compel return.—In cases of default to exhibit the return required by the preceding section, the clerk of the superior court must issue an order requiring the guardian to file such return forthwith, or to show cause why an attachment should not issue against him. If, after due service of the order, the guardian does not, on the return day of the order, file such return, or obtain further time to file the same, the clerk of the superior court shall issue an attachment against him, and commit him to the common jail of the county till he files such return. (Rev., s. 1803; Code, s. 1578; R. C., c. 54, s. 12; 1762, c. 69, s. 15; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 15.)

§ 2185. Additional assets to be returned.—Whenever further property of any kind, not included in any previous return, comes to the hands or knowledge of any guardian, he must cause the same to be returned within three months after the possession or discovery thereof; and the making of such return of new assets, from time to time, may be enforced in the same manner as prescribed in the preceding section. (Rev., s. 1804; Code, s. 1579; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 16.)

§ 2186. Annual accounts.—Every guardian shall, within twelve months from the date of this qualification or appointment, and annually, so long as any of the estate remains in his control, file in the office of the clerk of the superior court an inventory and account, under oath, of the amount of property received by him, or invested by him, and the manner and nature of such investment, and his receipts and disbursements for the past year in the form of debit and credit. He must produce vouchers for all payments. The clerk of the superior court may examine on oath such accounting party, or any other person, concerning the receipts, disbursements or any other matter relating to the estate; and having carefully revised and audited such account, if he approve the same, he must indorse his approval thereon, which shall be deemed prima facie evidence of correctness. (Rev., s. 1805; Code, s. 1617; R. C., c. 54, ss. 11, 12; 1762, c. 69, ss. 9, 15; 1871-2, c. 46.)

Definition of "Account."—An account is defined to be "a statement in writing of debts and credits, or of receipts and payments; a list of items of debts and credits with their respective dates." Black's Dictionary, p. 17. In this section the word is used in this sense, and when not only an account, but payment or settlement is intended, additional words are used to express that idea. State v. Dunn, 134 N. C. 663, 664, 668, 46 S. E. 949.

Good Faith Essential.—There is no trust known to the law which so urgently calls for good faith as that which subsists between the guardian and his ward; and no higher evidence can be offered of that good faith than perfect candor, full information, and minute, detailed accounts. Moore v. Askew, 85 N. C. 199, 202.

What Set out.—It is the duty of a guardian in making his annual returns to set out the manner in which he has invested the ward's estate, and the nature of the securities which he holds as guardian. State v. Gooch, 97 N. C. 186, 1 S. E. 653.

Accounts Prima Facie Correct.—The ex parte settlement made by guardians, executors and administrators with the courts having jurisdiction of such matters, are, when accepted by the court, prima facie correct, and while not conclusive upon creditors or next of kin, and strict proof and specific assignment of errors are not required as in actions to surcharge a stated account, nevertheless the burden is on the party attacking them to establish, by a preponderance of testimony, their incorrectness. State v. Turner, 104 N. C. 566, 10 S. E. 606.

Ward Can Demand Annual Statement.—A ward is entitled to demand of her guardian an annual statement of the manner and nature of his investments of her estate. Moore v. Askew, 85 N. C. 199.

Account as Evidence.— The annual account of a guardian is competent evidence against him, and presumptive evidence against his sureties. Loftin v. Cobb, 126 N. C. 58, 35 S. E. 230.

§ 2187. Procedure to compel accounting.—If any guardian omit to account, as directed in the preceding section, or renders an insufficient and unsatisfactory account, the clerk of the superior court shall forthwith order such guardian to render a full and satisfactory account, as required by law, within twenty days after service of the order. Upon return of the order, duly served, if such guardian fail to appear or refuse to exhibit such account, the clerk of the superior court may issue an attachment against him for contempt and commit him till he exhibits such account, and may likewise remove him from office. And in all proceedings hereunder the defaulting guardian will be liable personally for the costs of the said proceeding, including the costs of service of all notices or writs incidental to, or thereby accruing, or the amount of the costs of such proceeding may be deducted from any commissions which may be found due said guardian on settlement of the estate. Where a corporation is guardian, the president, cashier, trust officer or the person or persons having charge of the particular estate for said corporation, or the person to whom the duty of making reports of said estate has been assigned by the officers or directors of said corporation, may be proceeded against and committed to jail as herein provided as if he or they were the guardian or guardians personally: Provided, it is found as a fact that the failure or omission to file such account or to obey the order of the court in reference thereto is willful on the part of the officer charged therewith: Provided further, the corporation itself may also be fined and/or removed as such guardian for such failure or omission. (Rev., s. 1806; Code, s. 1618; C. C. P., s. 479; 1929, c. 9, s. 2; 1933, c. 317, § 1.)

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 232.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added the third sentence to this section.

Public Laws 1933, c. 317, inserted the last sentence of this section relating to compelling corporate guardians to account.

Ground for Removal.—Under this section authorizing the clerk of the superior court to remove a guardian from office upon his failure to account, pursuant to the order of the clerk, a guardian's refusal to account for rents and profits of a ward's land, and his improper claim to the rent adverse to the ward, was ground for his removal. In re Dixon, 156 N. C. 26, 72 S. E. 71.

For this omission to make their quarterly and annual returns, it is the duty of the clerk to require them to be made, and on failure to do so attach and remove the defendants from their office. Sanderson v. Sanderson, 79 N. C. 369, 371.

§ 2188. Final account.—A guardian may be required to file such account at any time after six months from the ward's coming of full age or the cessation of the guardianship; but such account may be filed voluntarily at any time, and, whether the accounting be voluntary or compulsory, it shall be audited and recorded by the clerk of the superior court. (Rev., s. 1807; Code, s. 1619; C. C. P., s. 481.)

That a guardian in his final settlement must account for compound interest upon obligations. See section 2308.

In General.—This section is not intended to bestow upon the guardian the ward's moneys and properties for six months after he becomes of age, nor to deprive him of the right to bring an action to recover them during the period, but simply means that the guardian is presumed to have settled with his ward within such six months, and after its lapse the clerk can call on the guardian to file his final account, with the receipts of the ward, in full settlement, to complete the record in his office, for the section states that such return shall be "audited and recorded." Self v. Shugart, 135 N. C. 185, 189, 47 S. E. 484.

"Audit" Explained.—When the section directs that the clerk shall "audit" the account, it implies that he shall pursue the usual course which has been found to be just and convenient in such cases. Rowland v. Thompson, 64 N. C. 714, 717.

Jurisdiction.—The clerk of the superior court has jurisdiction of settlements between guardian and ward, and, of course, between the guardian and ward's personal representative. McLean v. Breece, 113 N. C. 390, 18 S. E. 694; McNeill v. Hodges, 105 N. C. 52, 11 S. E. 265; Rowland v. Thompson, 65 N. C. 110.

The superior court had no original jurisdiction of an action for an account by an existing guardian of infant children against their former guardian; such action should have been brought in the court of probate (now the clerk). Sudderth v. McCombs, 65 N. C. 186.

Same—Appeal.—From the judgment of the clerk an appeal will lie to the judge of the superior court, who having thus obtained jurisdiction of the cause will retain it until it is finally disposed of. Rowland v. Thompson, 65 N. C. 110.

Settlement as Defense. — Where in a suit on a guardian bond it appeared that the account between the guardian and the ward had been settled, and that the guardian gave his own bond to the ward, which was received by the latter in satisfaction of the balance due, and he then gave his guardian a receipt: Held, that this was a sufficient defense to the suit on the guardian bond. State v. Cordon, 30 N. C. 179.

Action Barred in Ten Years.—Ten years after the ward becomes of age bars an action by him against his guardian for settlement. Dunn v. Beaman, 126 N. C. 766, 36 S. E. 172.

When Action Barred as to Sureties.—An action for breach of the guardianship bond based upon this section is barred as to the sureties after three years from the date the guardian should have made payment, and the fact that the guardian continued to pay the ward interest on the amount due the ward for several years after the ward's majority does not affect the running of the statute as to the sureties. State v. Fountain, 205 N. C. 217, 171 S. E. 85.

Judgment Is an Estoppel.—The clerk of the superior court, having jurisdiction of proceedings against a guardian for a settlement, a judgment rendered therein is an estoppel to an action in the superior court between the same parties and upon the same question, and can not be attacked collaterally, but can be impeached for fraud only by a direct proceeding for that purpose. Donnelly v. Wilcox, 113 N. C. 408, 18 S. E. 339.

Distributees May Have Accounting.—The express trust existing between the guardian and ward terminates at death of the latter, and the ward's distributees may have letters of administration taken out and call for an accounting. Lowder v. Hathcock, 150 N. C. 438, 439, 64 S. E. 194.

Effect of Wrongful Settlement.—Where a guardian surrendered his office in March, to one whom he supposed to be his legal successor and made a settlement with him, though he was not regularly appointed guardian until December following, but in the meantime acted as such in good faith; it was held, that the management of the fund from March to December must be treated as an exercise of an agency of the former guardian, whose bond is responsible for any loss resulting therefrom. Jennings v. Copeland, 90 N. C. 572.

§ 2189. Expenses and disbursements credited to guardian.—Every guardian may charge in his annual account all reasonable disbursements and expenses; and if it appear that he has really and bona fide disbursed more in one year than the profits of the ward's estate, for his education and maintenance, the guardian shall be allowed and paid for the same out of the profits of the estate in any other year; but such disbursements must, in all cases, be suitable to the degree and circumstances of the estate of the ward. (Rev., s. 1808; Code, s. 1612; R. C., c. 54, s. 28; 1762; c. 69, ss. 18, 19; 1799, c. 536, s. 2; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 49.)

Cross References.—As to payments allowed in accounting, see section 2155. As to commissions, see next section.

In General.—A guardian should be charged with what he receives, and credited with what he pays out, when it does not appear that he collected anything prematurely, or kept on hand any unreasonable sum. Freeman v. Wilson, 74 N. C. 368.

Paying Debts Due. — When the guardian in good faith pays debts that ought to be paid, and by so doing the ward's estate suffers no prejudice, he will be allowed credit for disbursements of assets in his hands in such respects. McLean v. Breece, 113 N. C. 390, 392, 18 S. E. 694; Adams v. Thomas, 83 N. C. 521.

Exceeding Income of Estate.—In paying the accounts of a guardian, he can not, except under rare circumstances, be allowed disbursements beyond the income of his ward. Caffey v. McMichael, 64 N. C. 507; Johnston v. Haynes, 68 N. C. 514.

A guardian will not be permitted to use more than the accruing profits of his ward's estate in the maintenance and education of the ward, except with the sanction of the court, or in extreme cases of urgent necessity. Tharington v. Tharington, 99 N. C. 118, 5 S. E. 414.

Same—Clerk May Allow.—The clerk of the superior court may allow a guardian credit for money necessarily expended in the education of the ward, though the amount exceeded the income and was made without the permission of the clerk of the court. Duffy v. Williams, 133 N. C. 195, 45 S. E. 548.

Same—Lunatic's Debts.—Where, in the settlement of the guardian's account, the lunatic is dead and his only child is of age, and it appears that the guardian, in good faith, paid debts without prejudice to the estate, the disbursement would be allowed. McLean v. Breece, 113 N. C. 390, 18 S. E. 694.

Setting Ward up in Business.—A guardian who advances money for his ward over and above the income of his estate, in order to set him up in business, or for other purposes, without applying to the court for leave, is not entitled to charge the ward with it. Shaw v. Coble, 63 N. C. 377.

Counsel Fees.—A guardian should be allowed reasonable attorney's fees paid in good faith. Burke v. Turner, 85 N. C. 500, citing Whitford v. Foy, 65 N. C. 265.

But fees paid by a guardian to the counsel for services rendered in obtaining an unfair settlement with the ward, and in aiding the guardian to cover up the fraud, can not be allowed the latter in his settlement. Johnston v. Haynes, 68 N. C. 509.

Father as Guardian.—A father, or his trustee, in settling his accounts as guardian for his children, has no right to charge the children with the amount expended for their education. Walker v. Crowder, 37 N. C. 478.

A father, though he be the guardian of his minor child's estate, is not ordinarily permitted to charge for its maintenance, and, if able, he is himself bound to maintain his child; if not so, he must, before applying any of his ward's income to that end, procure the sanction of the proper court. Burke v. Turner, 85 N. C. 500.

Stepfather as Guardian.—Where a stepfather becomes guardian to his stepchild, he is not entitled to charge for board and other necessaries furnished to his ward antecedently to his appointment as guardian; the infant being incompetent to contract therefor. Barnes v. Ward, 45 N. C. 93.

Payments to Mother for Board of Wards after Majority.—A guardian is not chargeable with moneys paid to the mother of his wards for their board after their arrival at full age; no objection being urged against the propriety or justness of the claim, or of the price paid. McNeill v. Hodges, 83 N. C. 505.

Gift by Ward to Guardian.—In the U. S. Supreme Court it is held that if after the ward comes of age, and into possession of his estate he thinks fit, when sui juris, and at liberty, he may make any reasonable grant by way of award for care and trouble. When done with his eyes open, the court will never set it aside. Ralston v. Turpin, 129 U. S. 663, 672, 22 L. Ed. 747.

Same—Limitation to Rule. — The courts guard against gifts by a ward to his guardian if made at the very time of accounting and delivering up the estate. Ralston v. Turpin, 129 U. S. 663, 673, 32 L. Ed. 747.

§ 2190. Commissions.—The superior court shall allow commissions to the guardian for his time and trouble in the management of the ward's estate, in the same manner and under the same rules and restrictions as allowances are made to executors, administrators and collectors. (Rev., s. 1809; Code, s. 1613; R. C., c. 54, s. 28; 1762, c. 69, ss. 18, 19; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 50.)

As to commissions of executors and administrators, see section 2190.

A Compensation to Guardian. — Commissions are only a compensation to the guardian for his time and trouble in managing his ward's estate. Walton v. Erwin, 36 N. C. 136.

The time spent by a guardian in the management of his ward's estate may be considered in fixing his commissions, but cannot be separately charged. Shutt v. Carloss, 36 N. C. 232.

Securities Delivered at Majority.—Commissions should be allowed a guardian, on the amount of the notes and other securities for debt delivered to the ward upon the termination of the guardianship. Whitford v. Foy, 65 N. C. 265.

After Ward's Majority. — A guardian is not entitled to commissions upon any disbursement made after his ward arrives at full age. McNeill v. Hodges, 83 N. C. 505.

Failure to Keep Accounts. — A guardian is entitled to commissions, although he omitted to keep and render regular accounts, where no imputation is cast upon his integrity by reason of the neglect. McNeill v. Hodges, 83 N. C. 505. But where he is grossly negligent it is otherwise. Topping v. Windley, 99 N. C. 4, 5 S. E. 14.

Using Ward's Money in Own Business.—A guardian will be allowed commissions, although he uses his ward's money in his business, if he makes regular returns, so as to show at all times what amount is due his ward. Carr v. Askew, 94 N. C. 194, distinguishing Burke v. Turner, 85 N. C. 500, 504. See also, Fisher v. Brown, 135 N. C. 198, 47 S. E. 398.

Same—Gross Negligence.—A guardian is not entitled to commissions on money collected and used by him in his own business where he was guilty of gross negligence in not making his returns. Burke v. Turner, 85 N. C. 500.

When Ward Boards with Guardian.—A guardian is entitled to commissions on payments made for his ward for goods brought of a firm of which the guardian was a member, but not on charges for board while the ward lived in his family. Williamson v. Williams, 59 N. C. 62.

Rate of Commissions. — Reasonable commissions will always be allowed to a guardian unless in cases of fraud or very culpable negligence. The rate will depend upon a variety of circumstances, such as the amount of the estate, the trouble in managing it, whether fees have been paid to counsel for assisting him in the management, the last of which will lessen it. Whitford v. Foy, 65 N. C. 265.

Same—Two and One-half Per Cent.—Two and one-half per cent was ample commission to a guardian receiving most of the ward's property, without litigation or difficulty, in the shape of notes payable to himself, which he retained 6 years collecting but little interest, when he voluntarily resigned and delivered the notes to his successor. Walton v. Erwin, 36 N. C. 136.

Same—Five Per Cent.—Five per cent was not an unreasonable allowance to a guardian as commissions on his receipts and disbursements, when these were numerous, and extended over a period of fourteen years. Covington v. Leak, 65 N. C. 594.

Same—Ten Per Cent.—A commission of ten per cent, the highest allowed by the statute, will be allowed to a guardian only in a case of the greatest merit, as where his duties have been troublesome and of long continuance. Walton v. Erwin, 36 N. C. 136.

Referee's Decision Adopted. — The amount of allowance of commissions to a guardian by a referee is usually adopted by the court, unless it is shown to be excessive. Johnston v. Haynes, 68 N. C. 514; Whitford v. Foy, 71 N. C. 527.

An appellate court will not review the finding of a referee as to the commissions allowed a guardian, unless such commissions are shown to be grossly erroneous. Whitford v. Foy, 71 N. C. 527.

Art. 7. Public Guardians

§ 2191. Appointment; term; oath.—There may be in every county a public guardian, to be appointed by the clerk of the superior court for a term of eight years. The public guardian shall take and subscribe an oath (or affirmation) faithfully and honestly to discharge the duties imposed upon him; the oath so taken and subscribed shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court. (Rev., ss. 1758, 1759; Code, ss. 1556, 1560; 1874-5, c. 221, ss. 1, 5.)

§ 2193. Powers, duties, liabilities, compensation.—The powers and duties of said public guardian shall be the same as other guardians, and he shall be subject to the same liabilities as other guardians under the existing laws, and shall receive the same compensation as other guardians. (Rev., s. 1761; Code, s. 1561; 1874-5, c. 221, ss. 6, 7.)

§ 2194. When letters issue to public guardian.—The public guardian shall apply for and obtain letters of guardianship in the following cases:

1. When a period of six months has elapsed from the discovery of any property belonging to any minor, idiot, lunatic, insane person or inebriate, without guardian.

2. When any person entitled to letters of guardianship shall request in writing the clerk of the superior court to issue letters to the public guardian; but it is lawful and the duty of the clerk of the superior court to revoke said letters of guardianship at any time after issuing the same upon application in writing by any person entitled to qualify as guardian, setting forth a sufficient cause for such revocation. (Rev., s. 1760; Code, s. 1561; 1874-5, c. 221, ss. 6, 7.)

Art. 8. Foreign Guardians

§ 2195. Right to removal of ward's personalty from state.—Where any ward, idiot, lunatic or insane person, residing in another state or territory, or in the District of Columbia, or Canada, or other foreign country, is entitled to any personal estate in this state, or personal property substituted for realty by decree of court, or to any money arising from the sale of real estate, whether the same be in the hands of any guardian residing in this state, or of any executor, administrator or other person holding for the ward, idiot, lunatic or insane person, or if the same (not being adversely held and claimed) be not in the lawful possession or control of any person, the guardian of the ward, idiot, lunatic or insane person, duly appointed at the place where such ward, idiot, lunatic or insane person resides, may apply to have such estate removed to the residence of the ward, idiot, lunatic or insane person by petition filed before the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the property or some portion thereof is situated; which shall be proceeded with as in other cases of special proceedings. (Rev., s. 1816; Code, ss. 1598, 1601; R. C., c. 54, s. 29; 1820, c. 1044; 1842, c. 38; 1868-9, c. 201, ss. 35, 38; 1874-5, c. 168; 1913, c. 86, s. 1.)

In General.—Where it appeared that the property in this State of a ward residing in another state consisted of good bonds at interest in the hands of his guardian here, a part of which arose from the sale of land, and the ward was nearly of age, and there was no special necessity made to appear for making a transfer of the property, the court of equity, in the exercise of its discretion, refused to order a transfer of the estate to the hands of a guardian appointed in such other state. Douglas v. Caldwell, 59 N. C. 20.

Local Guardian Not Necessary.—Where a foreign guardian has been duly appointed in the state of his own residence and that of his wards, and has filed a certified copy of his appointment, with a bond sufficient both as to the amount and the financial ability of the sureties to protect the estate of his wards and in conformity with this section and section 2196, with his petition to the clerk of the court as required by these statutes, it is not necessary that a local guardian be appointed, but the court in this State, before which the matter is properly pending, may order that the foreign guardian be permitted to withdraw the estate of his wards to the place of foreign jurisdiction. Ciley v. Geitner, 183 N. C. 528, 111 S. E. 866.

Foreign Guardian as Next Friend.—A guardian appointed in another state has no authority to represent his wards in suits and proceedings in this State, but when he brings suit for them as guardian it will be treated as if he were their next friend. Tate v. Mott, 96 N. C. 19, 2 S. E. 176.

When Guardian Must Be Resident.—Where the infant grandchildren of the testator take upon a contingency, as directed by the will, properly probated here, it is required that the guardian appointed be a resident of this State, according to our law, unless the funds have been properly removed to another state, under this section and section 2196; and the law of this State governs the interpretation of the will when the testator died domiciled here. Ciley v. Geitiner, 182 N. C. 714, 110 S. E. 61.

A guardian in another State of nonresident wards may proceed to obtain possession of the property bequeathed to the wards and in the hands of an executor in this State under a will duly probated here under the provisions of this section; § 4021, relating to property in the hands of a trustee residing in this State, is not applicable. Fidelity Trust Co. v. Walton, 198 N. C. 790, 153 S. E. 401.

to the proceeding who may be made a party defendant in civil actions under the provisions of the chapter entitled Civil Procedure. (Rev., ss. 1817, 1818; Code, ss. 1599, 1600; R. C., c. 54, s. 30; 1820, c. 1044, s. 2; 1842, c. 38; 1868-9, c. 201, ss. 36, 37.)

Art 9. Estates Without Guardian

§ 2197. Duty of grand jury as to orphans and guardians.—The grand jury of every county is charged with and shall present to the superior court the names of all orphan children that have no guardian or are not bound out to some trade or employment. They shall further inquire of all abuses, mismanagement and neglect of all such guardians as are appointed by the clerk of the superior court. The clerk of the superior court shall, at each term of the superior court, lay before the grand jury a list of all the guardians acting in his county or appointed by him. (Rev., s. 1810; Code, s. 1609; R. C., c. 54, s. 18; 1762, c. 69, s. 17; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 46.)

Infant Not a Party.—The action required by this section to be taken by the solicitor, in the cases provided for, is properly an action brought by him for the benefit of the ward when the guardian has been removed, and the infant is not a necessary, perhaps not a proper, party to it. Becton v. Becton, 56 N. C. 419; Temple v. Williams, 91 N. C. 82, 89.

Allowance Pendente Lite.—During the pendency of an action under this section against a guardian and the sureties on his bond by his ward for an account and settlement, and while the same is under reference and before the report of the referee is complete and finally acted on, and before any of the ward's estate is in possession of the court, the superior court has no power to order the guardian and his sureties to pay a certain sum into court for the ward's maintenance and support pendente lite, and a further sum for her attorney. State v. Harrison, 75 N. C. 432.

Same—Contempt.—If it is made to appear to the court, pending an action under this section, that a fund belonging to the ward is in possession of the guardian removed, the judge may, by process of contempt, compel its payment into court, where it will be subject to such orders and disposition as the necessities of the ward may require. State v. Harrison, 75 N. C. 432, 434.

§ 2200. Judge to appoint receiver; his rights and duties.—The judge of the superior court, either residing in or presiding over the courts of the district, before whom such action is brought, shall have power to appoint the clerk of the superior court or some discreet person as a receiver to take possession of the ward's estate, to collect all moneys due to him, to secure, land, invest or apply the same for the benefit and advantage of the ward, under the direction and subject to such rules and orders in every respect as the said judge may from time to time make in regard thereto; and the accounts of such receiver shall be returned, audited and settled as the judge may direct. The receiver shall be allowed such amounts for his time, trouble and responsibility as seem to the judge reasonable and proper; and such receivership may be continued until a suitable person can be procured to take the guardianship. (Rev., s. 1813; Code, s. 1585; R. C., c. 54, s. 15; 1844, c. 41, s. 2; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 22.)

Cross References.—As to receivers, see sections 859-862 and annotations. For a full treatment of receivers, see 10 N. C. Enc. Dig. 839-877; 15 N. C. Enc. Dig. 344-349.

When Appointed.—The mere poverty of the executor does not authorize the court, against the will of the testator, to remove him by placing a receiver in his place. There must be, in addition, some maladministration, or some danger of loss from the misconduct or negligence of the executor for which he will not be able to answer by reason of his insolvency. Camp v. Pittman, 90 N. C. 615, 617; Fairbain v. Fisher, 57 N. C. 395.

The appointment of a receiver for an insane person's estate should be made only on the motion of the solicitor, after the wife and one or more adult children, if there are such, or some near relative or friend, have been brought before the judge at chambers or in term. In re Hybart, 119 N. C. 359, 25 S. E. 963.

Clerk Appointed.—Under this section the court has authority to appoint a clerk of the superior court receiver of the infants' estate. Waters v. Melson, 112 N. C. 89, 16 S. E. 918.

Same—The Order.—Where, in an order of court appointing "J. A. M., clerk of the superior court," receiver of the infants' estate, the word "as" was omitted before the words "clerk of the superior court"; it was held, that the intention of the court to appoint M. as receiver in his official capacity was sufficiently indicated. Waters v. Melson, 112 N. C. 89, 16 S. E. 918.

Does Not Have Guardian's Power.—A receiver appointed to take charge of a ward's estate when the guardian is removed, is not invested with the powers of a guardian, but acts under the control of the court until another guardian is appointed. Temple v. Williams, 91 N. C. 82.

General Liability. — As a general rule, a receiver is responsible for his own neglect only, and is protected when he acts in entire good faith. State v. Gooch, 97 N. C. 186, 1 S. E. 653.

Same—Similar to Guardian's.—When a receiver is appointed to take charge of an infant's estate who has no guardian, and is directed to lend out the money and pay the income over to the ward, he will be held to the same accountability as a guardian. State v. Gooch, 97 N. C. 186, 1 S. E. 653.

Failure of Bank.—A receiver may keep money in a bank as a safe place of deposit, or may use the bank as a means of transmitting money to distant places, and if he uses reasonable diligence, he will not be held liable if the bank fails. State v. Gooch, 97 N. C. 186, 1 S. E. 653.

Where a receiver was appointed to take charge of an infant's estate and invest the same, and report to the court annually, and he deposited a portion of the money in a bank in another state to his credit as receiver, on which deposit he was paid interest by the bank, which afterwards failed, it was held, that the receiver was liable for the loss, as he had failed to report to the court the manner in which he had invested the infant's estate, although he had acted in the best faith. State v. Gooch, 97 N. C. 186, 1 S. E. 653.

Official Bond Liable—Former Provisions.—The liability of a clerk as receiver arising under statutory provisions was not formerly embraced by his official bonds, because, his office and duties as such clerk did not embrace the receivership and the duties and liabilities incident thereto. The receivership and its incidents were outside of and beyond his official duties as clerk, and hence not embraced by his official bond and its purposes. Kerr v. Brandon, 84 N. C. 128; State v. Odom, 86 N. C. 432; Syme v. Bunting, 91 N. C. 48, 52; State v. Boone, 108 N. C. 78, 83, 12 S. E. 897.

Same—Same—Sureties.—But now when the clerk of the superior court is appointed receiver of a minor's estate under this section, he takes and holds the funds by virtue of his office as clerk, and his sureties upon his official bond as such officer are liable for any failure of duty on his part in that respect. State v. Upchurch, 110 N. C. 62, 14 S. E. 642.

The sureties on the clerk's official bond are liable for any breach of his duties as receiver. Waters v. Melson, 112 N. C. 89, 16 S. E. 918.

Action against Receiver.—It is not necessary to obtain leave of the court before commencing an action for failure of the clerk to fulfill his duty when appointed receiver under this section. State v. Upchurch, 110 N. C. 62, 14 S. E. 642.

Same—Burden of Proof.—The burden is upon a receiver and his sureties to show that he used due diligence in investing the money in his hands. Waters v. Melson, 112 N. C. 89, 16 S. E. 918.

Same—Present Law.—Where the appointment of receiver is conferred upon the clerk under the statute authorizing the court to commit the estate of an infant to "some discreet person," it was held, that the same is protected by his bond as clerk. State v. Odom, 86 N. C. 432.

§ 2201. Receiver to pay over estate to infant or guardian.—When another guardian is appointed, he may apply by motion, on notice, to the judge of the superior court for an order upon the receiver to pay over all the money, estate and effects of the ward; and if no such guardian is appointed, then the ward, on coming of age, or in case of his death, his executor, administrator or collector, and the heir or personal representative of the idiot, lunatic or insane person, shall have the like remedy against the receiver. (Rev., s. 1814; Code, s. 1587; R. C., c. 54, s. 17; 1844, c. 41, s. 4; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 24.)

Settlement Not Conclusive.—A settlement made with a receiver, even if had under direction of the court, is not conclusive against the ward, but only raises a presumption that the account and settlement are correct. Such presumption may be disproved. Temple v. Williams, 91 N. C. 82.

§ 2202. Duties and compensation of solicitor.—The solicitor shall prosecute the action and take all necessary orders therein, and for his services shall be allowed such reasonable compensation as may be just, not to exceed ten dollars; in passing on the returns of receivers, where the estate of the infant does not exceed five hundred dollars, not to exceed five dollars; and where the estate exceeds five hundred dollars, not to exceed ten dollars. The amount in each case to be fixed by the judge. (Rev., s. 1815; Code, s. 1586; 1895, c. 14; R. C., c. 54, s. 16; 1844, c. 41, s. 3; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 23.)

Art. 10. Guardians of Estates of Missing Persons

§ 2202(a). Appointment.—When it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the clerk of the superior court, or a judge of the superior court having jurisdiction of the appointment of guardians, that any person has disappeared from the community of his residence, and his whereabouts remains unknown in such community for a period of three (3) months, and cannot, after diligent inquiry, be ascertained; and that such person has property in the state and property rights within its jurisdiction which may be affected by his absence, or may need protection and administration; and that such person has made no provision for the management of his affairs; such clerk of the superior court or judge of the superior court may appoint a guardian of the estate and property of such person as may, by law be done in the case of minors and persons non compos mentis, and with the like powers and duties with respect to such estate. (1933, c. 49, s. 1.)

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 231, for discussion and review of this section.

§ 2202(b). Jurisdiction.—The clerk of the superior court of the county of the last residence of such absent person shall have prior right to jurisdiction of such appointment, but the appointment may be made by the clerk of the superior court of any county in the state where such person has property, after the expiration of six months from the time of such disappearance, if no prior appointment has been made. (1933, c. 49, s. 2.)

§ 2202(c). Powers and duties; bond. — The guardian, so appointed, shall have all the powers and duties with respect to the property and estate of such absent person as are now, or may be hereafter, conferred by law upon guardians generally; and before entering into the discharge of the duties of his guardianship, he shall be required to enter into such bond as is now required by law in such cases, for the faithful performance of his trust and for the accounting of the property, moneys and assets of the estate coming into his hands as guardian. (1933, c. 49, s. 3.)

§ 2202(d). General laws applicable.—The public laws relating to guardianships, and particularly chapter forty (40), consolidated statutes of North Carolina, entitled "guardian and ward," as far as by their terms may be applicable, and as far as they are not modified by this article shall apply to guardians so appointed. (1933, c. 49, s. 3.)

§ 2202(e). Other managerial powers conferred.—In addition to the powers given to guardians under the general laws of the state, such guardians may, by approval of the court, apply funds in his hands to the satisfaction of obligations of such absent person, renew notes and other obligations, pledge property for loans necessary in carrying on or liquidation of the affairs of such absent person; cause lands to be cultivated, where such business was previously carried on, and make such contracts with reference thereto as he may deem to the best interest of the estate, and, under the direction of the court and with its approval, continue to operate any business or business enterprise of such person, and make such contracts, agreements and settlements in reference thereto as may be necessary, or to the best interests of the estate. (1933, c. 49, s. 4.)

§ 2202(f). Discharge of guardian upon return of missing person.—Upon the return of such absent person, and within six months from the filing of the petition by such person to be restored to his property and to the management of his estate, the clerk of the superior court having jurisdiction of the said guardianship shall require a settlement of the estate by the guardian so appointed, and shall cause to be turned over to him all of the said estate then in the hands of the said guardian, after the payment of such reasonable costs and commissions as may be authorized by law, and, upon the filing of a financial account by the said guardian, he shall be discharged. (1933, c. 49, s. 5.)

§ 2202(g). Guardian not liable except for misconduct.—No action shall be maintained against such guardian, or the sureties on his bond, by reason of his appointment, taking over and managing the property of such absent person, or any of his acts with respect to the said estate, where it appears that they were done under authority of this article, but only for recovery because of the misconduct in office or bad faith of such guardian, or the waste of the assets of the estate through mismanagement, amounting to gross carelessness or in violation of the law. (1933, c. 49, s. 6.)

VETERANS' GUARDIANSHIP ACT

§ 2202 (1). Title.—This chapter shall be known as "The Veterans' Guardianship Act." (1929, c. 33, s. 1.)

§ 2202 (2). Definitions.—In this chapter:

The term "person" includes a partnership, corporation or an association.

The term "Bureau" means the United States Veterans' Bureau or its successor.

The terms "estate" and "income" shall include only moneys received by the guardian from the Bureau and all earnings, interests and profits derived therefrom.

The term "benefits" shall mean all moneys payable by the United States through the Bureau.

The term "Director" means the Director of the United States Veterans' Bureau or his successor.

The term "State Service Officer" means such appointee of the North Carolina Commissioner of Labor and Printing as provided by [Code s. 7312 (b) subsection (c)].

The term "ward" means a beneficiary of the Bureau.

The term "guardian" as used herein shall mean any person acting as a fiduciary for a ward. (1929, c. 33, s. 2.)

§ 2202 (3). Appointment of guardian for wards entitled to benefits from United States Veterans Bureau.—Whenever, pursuant to any law of the United States or regulation of the Bureau, the Director requires, prior to payment of benefits, that a guardian be appointed for a ward, such appointment shall be made in the manner hereinafter provided. (1929, c. 33, s. 3.)

§ 2202 (4). Guardian may not be named for more than five wards; exceptions; banks and trust companies, or where wards are members of same family.—Except as hereinafter provided it shall be unlawful for any person to accept appointment as guardian of any ward if such proposed guardian shall at that time be acting as guardian for five wards. If any case, upon presentation of a petition by an attorney of the Bureau under this section alleging that a guardian is acting in a fiduciary capacity for more than five wards and requesting his discharge for that reason, the court, upon proof substantiating the petition, shall require a final accounting forthwith from such guardian and shall discharge such guardian in said case.

The limitations of this section shall not apply where the guardian is a bank or trust company acting for the wards' estates only. An individual may be a guardian of more than five wards if they are all members of the same family. (1929, c. 33, s. 4.)

§ 2202 (5). Petition for appointment of guardian.—A petition for the appointment of a guardian may be filed in any court of competent jurisdiction by or on behalf of any person who under existing law is entitled to priority of appointment. If there be no person so entitled or if the person so entitled shall neglect or refuse to file such a petition within thirty days after mailing of notice by the Bureau to the last known address of such person indicating the necessity for the same, a petition for such appointment may be filed in any court of competent jurisdiction by or on behalf of any responsible person residing in this State.

The petition for appointment shall set forth the name, age, place of residence of the ward, the names and places of residence of the nearest relative, if known, and the fact that such ward is entitled to receive moneys payable by or through the Bureau and shall set forth the amount of moneys then due and the amount of probable future payments.

The petition shall also set forth the name and address of the person or institution, if any, having actual custody of the ward.

In the case of a mentally incompetent ward the petition shall show that such ward has been rated incompetent on examination by the Bureau in accordance with the laws and regulations governing the Bureau. (1929, c. 33, s. 5.)

§ 2202(6). Certificate of Director prima facie evidence of necessity for appointment.—Where a petition is filed for the appointment of a guardian of a minor ward a certificate of the Director, or his representative, setting forth the age of such minor as shown by the records of the Bureau and the fact that the appointment of a guardian is a condition precedent to the payment of any moneys due the minor by the Bureau, shall be prima facie evidence of the necessity for such appointment. (1929, c. 33, s. 6.)

§ 2202(7). Same in regard to guardianship of mentally incompetent wards.—Where a petition is filed for the appointment of a guardian of a mentally incompetent ward a certificate of the Director, or his representative, setting forth the fact that such person has been rated incompetent by the Bureau on examination in accordance with the laws and regulations governing such Bureau; and that the appointment of a guardian is a condition precedent to the payment of any moneys due such person by the Bureau, shall be prima facie evidence of the necessity for such appointment. (1929, c. 33, s. 7.)

§ 2202(8). Notice of filing of petition.—Upon the filing of a petition for the appointment of a guardian, under the provisions of this act, the court shall cause such notice to be given as provided by law. (1929, c. 33, s. 8.)

§ 2202(9). Qualifications of guardian; surety bond.—Before making an appointment under the provisions of this chapter the court shall be satisfied that the guardian whose appointment is sought is a fit and proper person to be appointed. Upon the appointment being made the guardian shall execute and file a surety bond to be approved by the court in an amount not less than the sum then due and estimated to become payable during the ensuing year. The said bond shall be in the form and be conditioned as required of guardians appointed under the guardianship laws of this state. The court shall have power from time to time to require the guardian to file an additional bond.

No bond shall be required of the banks and trust companies licensed to do trust business in North Carolina. (1929, c. 33, s. 9.)

§ 2202(10). Guardian's accounts to be filed; hearing on accounts.—Every guardian who shall receive on account of his ward any moneys from the bureau, shall file with the court annually on the anniversary date of the appointment, in addition to such other accounts as may be required by the court, a full, true, and accurate account under oath of all moneys so received by him, of all disbursements thereof, and showing the balance thereof in his hands at the date of such account and how invested. A certified copy of each of such accounts filed with the court shall be sent by the guardian to the office of the bureau having jurisdiction over the area in which such court is located.

At the time such account is filed the clerk of superior court shall require the guardian to exhibit to the court all investments and bank statements showing cash balance and the clerk of superior court shall certify on the original account and the certified copy which the guardian sends the bureau that an examination was made of all investments and cash balance and that same are correctly stated in the account. If objections are raised to such an accounting, the court shall fix a time and place for the hearing thereon not less than fifteen days nor more than thirty days from the date of filing such objections, and notice shall be given by the court to the aforesaid bureau office and state service officer by mail not less than fifteen days prior to the date fixed for the hearing. Notice of such hearing shall also be given to the guardian. (1929, c. 33, s. 10; 1933, c. 262, s. 1.)

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 232, for summary of this section.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 262, omitted the last two sentences of this section as it formerly read and inserted the last three sentences of the present section in lieu thereof. The next to the last and the last sentence as they now read are practically the same as the omitted provision. The third from the last sentence is new with the amendment.

§ 2202(11). Failure to file account cause for removal.—If any guardian shall fail to file any account of the moneys received by him from the Bureau on account of his ward within thirty days after such account is required by either the court or the Bureau, or shall fail to furnish the Bureau a copy of his accounts as required by this chapter, such failure shall be grounds for removal. (1929, c. 33, s. 11.)

§ 2202(12). Compensation at 5 per cent; additional compensation; premiums on bonds.—Compensation payable to guardians shall not exceed 5 per cent of the income of the ward during any year. In the event of extraordinary services rendered by such guardian the court may, upon petition and after hearing thereon, authorize additional compensation therefor, payable from the estate of the ward. Notice of such petition and hearing shall be given the proper office of the Bureau and the State Service Officer in the manner provided in section ten. No compensation shall be allowed on the corpus of an estate received from a preceding guardian. The guardian may be allowed from the estate of his ward reasonable premiums paid by him to any corporate surety upon his bond. (1929, c. 33, s. 12.)

§ 2202(13). Investment of funds.—Every guardian shall invest the funds of the estate in any of the following securities:

(a) United States government bonds.

(b) State of North Carolina bonds issued since the year one thousand eight hundred seventy-two.

(c) By loaning the same upon real estate securities in which the guardian has no interest, such loans not to exceed fifty per cent (50%) of the actual appraised or assessed value, whichever may be lower, and said loans when made to be evidenced by a note, or notes, or bond, or bonds, under seal of the borrower and secured by first mortgage or first deed of trust. Said guardian before making such investment on real estate mortgages shall secure a certificate of title from some reputable attorney certifying that the same is the first lien on real estate and also setting forth the tax valuation thereof for the current year: Provided, said guardian may purchase with said funds a home or farm for the sole use of said ward or his dependents upon petition and order of the clerk of superior court, said order to be approved by the resident or presiding judge of the superior court, and provided further that copy of said petition shall be forwarded to said bureau before consideration thereof by said court.

It shall be the duty of guardians who shall have funds invested other than as provided for in this section to liquidate same within one year from the passage of this law: Provided, however, that upon the approval of the judge of the superior court, either residing in or presiding over the courts of the district, the clerk of the superior court may authorize the guardian to extend from time to time, the time for sale or collection of any such investments; that no extension shall be made to cover a period of more than one year from the time the extension is made.

The clerk of the superior court of any county in the state or any guardian who shall violate any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment or both in the discretion of the court. (1929, c. 33, s. 14; 1933, c. 262, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment by Public Laws 1933, c. 262, this section merely provided that the guardian should invest the funds as allowed by the law or approved by the court.

§ 2202(14). Application of ward's estate.—A guardian shall not apply any portion of the estate of his ward for the support and maintenance of any person other than his ward, except upon order of the court after a hearing, notice of which has been given the proper officer of the Bureau and the State Service Officer in the manner provided in section 2202(10). (1929, c. 33, s. 14.)

§ 2202(15). Certified copy of record required by Bureau to be furnished without charge.—Whenever a copy of any public record is required by the Bureau or State Service Officer to be used in determining the eligibility of any person to participate in benefits made available by such Bureau, the official charged with the custody of such public record shall without charge provide the applicant for such benefits or any person acting on his behalf or the representative of such Bureau or State Service Officer with a certified copy of such record. (1929, c. 33, s. 15.)

§ 2202(16). Provision for commitment into Government hospital of any veteran needing treatment.—Whenever it appears that a veteran of any war, military occupation or expedition is eligible for treatment in a United States Veterans' Bureau Hospital and commitment to such hospital is necessary for the proper care and treatment of such veteran, the courts of this state are hereby authorized to communicate with the Director or his representative with reference to available facilities in the United States Veterans' Hospitals and the eligibility of the veteran, and upon receipt of a certificate of admission from the Director or his representative the court may then direct such veteran's commitment to such United States Veterans' Hospital in or without the State of North Carolina. Thereafter such veteran upon admission shall be subject to the rules and regulation of such hospital and the officials of such hospital shall be vested with the same powers now exercised by superintendents of state hospitals for mental diseases within this state with reference to the retention of custody of the veteran so committed. Notice of such pending proceedings shall be furnished the person to be committed and his right to appear and defend shall not be denied. (1929, c. 33, s. 16.)

§ 2202(17). Discharge of guardian.—When a minor ward for whom a guardian has been appointed under the provisions of this act or other laws of this state shall have attained his or her majority, and if incompetent shall be declared competent by the Bureau and the court, and when any incompetent ward, not a minor, shall be declared competent by said Bureau and the court, the guardian shall upon making a satisfactory accounting be discharged upon a petition filed for that purpose. (1929, c. 33, s. 17.)

§ 2202(18). Construction of chapter.—This chapter shall be construed liberally to secure the beneficial intents and purposes thereof and shall apply only to beneficiaries of the Bureau. (1929, c. 33, s. 18.)

§ 2202(19). Invalid parts of chapter not to effect valid parts.—The invalidity of any portion of this chapter shall not affect the validity of any other portion thereof which can be given effect without such invalid part. (1929, c. 33, s. 19.)

CHAPTER 41

HABEAS CORPUS

Art. 1. Constitutional Provisions

Cross References.—For a full treatment of habeas corpus, sec. 6 N. C. Enc. Dig. 982-1014; 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 281-286. As to costs in habeas corpus, see section 1244 paragraph 3.

Editor's Note.—"By the Habeas Corpus Act passed in 1679 the liberty of every Englishman was made as certain as law could make it; it being guaranteed to him that if accused of crime, he, instead of languishing in prison, as had often been the case, should be brought to a fair and speedy trial." Buckle, History of Civilization In England, Vol. I. p. 385.

Macaulay in speaking of the prorogation of the Parliament of 1679 says: "The day of that prorogation, the twenty-six of May, 1679, is a great era in our history. For on that day the Habeas Corpus Act received the royal assent. From the time of the Great Charter, the substantive law respecting the personal liberty of Englishmen had been nearly the same as at present; but it had been inefficacious for want of a stringent system of procedure. What was needed was not a new right but a prompt and searching remedy; and such a remedy the Habeas Corpus Act supplied." See Macaulay's History of England, Vol. I, Popular Edition, p. 122.

Definition. — The writ of habeas corpus is the remedy which the law gives for the enforcement of the civil right of personal liberty. In pursuance to its command, the body of the petitioner is brought before the court, that it may inquire into the legality of his detention. United States v. Ju Toy, 198 U. S. 253, 272, 49 L. Ed. 1040, 25 S. Ct. 644.

Nature.—The writ of habeas corpus is a high prerogative writ, known to the common law, similar in nature to the writs of quo warranto, mandamus, certiorari and prohibition, and the proceedings thereunder are regarded as appellate in character, but it cannot be made to perform the office of a writ of error on appeal. Ex Parte Virginia, 100 U. S. 339, 350, 25 L. Ed. 676.

The proceeding is, in its nature, civil rather than criminal, legal rather than equitable, appellate rather than original, collateral rather than direct, and summary rather than cumbersome. Perrine v. Slack, 164 U. S. 452, 41 L. Ed. 510, 17 S. Ct. 79.

Object.—The object of the proceeding by a writ of habeas corpus is to inquire into the legality of the detention of the petitioner. United States v. McBratney, 104 U. S. 621, 624, 26 L. Ed. 869.

§ 2204. Habeas corpus not to be suspended.—The privileges of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended. (Rev., s. 1820; Const., Art. I, s. 21.)

As to suspension of the remedy of habeas corpus, see 6 N. C. Enc. Dig. 1012-1014.

Can Not Be Abrogated.—This section is an express provision, and there is no rule of construction or principle of constitutional law by which an express provision can be abrogated and made of no force by an implication from any other provision of the instrument. The clauses should be construed so as to give effect to each, and prevent conflict. This is done by giving to Art. XII, sec. 3, the effect of allowing military possession of a county to be taken, and the arrest of all suspected persons to be made by military authority, but requiring, by force of Art. 1, sec. 21, the persons arrested to be surrendered for trial to the civil authorities, on habeas corpus, should they not be delivered over without the writ. Ex parte Moore, 64 N. C. appx., 802, 808.

Art. 2. Application

§ 2205. Who may prosecute writ. — Every person imprisoned or restrained of his liberty within this state, for any criminal or supposed criminal matter, or on any pretense whatsoever, except in cases specified in the succeeding section, may prosecute a writ of habeas corpus, according to the provisions of this chapter, to inquire into the cause of such imprisonment or restraint, and, if illegal, to be delivered therefrom. (Rev., s. 1821; Code, s. 1623; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 1.)

Prisoner under Illegal Sentence.—Where a defendant, charged with the crime of burglary with intent to commit murder, consented to a mistrial and pleaded "guilty of larceny," and was sentenced to imprisonment in the penitentiary, a writ of habeas corpus will issue, in order that he may be taken from the penitentiary and held to answer the charge in the court below. State v. Queen, 91 N. C. 659.

Denial of Due Process of Law.—A person convicted without due process of law may be discharged on habeas corpus. In re Frederick, 149 U. S. 70, 37 L. Ed. 653, 13 S. Ct. 793.

Voluntary Custody.—If the prisoner is in custody by his own voluntary act, the writ will not issue for his release. McElvaine v. Brush, 142 U. S. 155, 35 L. Ed. 971, 12 S. Ct. 156.

Where one is actually confined in the State prison for a longer term of imprisonment than is legal, a writ of habeas corpus will issue to the end that a proper sentence may be imposed. State v. Green, 85 N. C. 600, 601.

There must be actual confinement, or the present means of enforcing it, in order to justify the issuance of the writ of habeas corpus and granting a release therefrom. Wales v. Whitney, 114 U. S. 564, 572, 29 L. Ed. 277, 5 S. Ct. 1050.

One Imprisoned for Contempt.—Where a defendant punished for direct contempt contends that a legal right has been denied him, and it is made to appear that the court was without jurisdiction of the cause or power to impose the sentence, his remedy is by habeas corpus proceedings, taken to the Supreme Court, if necessary, by writ of certiorari. State v. Little, 175 N. C. 743, 744, 94 S. E. 680.

Relief of Soldier in Army.—A soldier actually and rightfully in the army can have no relief by the writ of habeas corpus against any abuse of military authority, and if he be wrongfully held as a soldier he is not entitled to a habeas corpus while he is undergoing punishment or awaiting trial for a military offense. Cox v. Gee, 60 N. C. Appx., 516.

§ 2206. When application denied.—Application to prosecute the writ shall be denied in the following cases:

1. Where the persons are committed or detained by virtue of process issued by a court of the United States, or a judge thereof, in cases where such courts or judges have exclusive jurisdiction under the laws of the United States, or have acquired exclusive jurisdiction by the commencement of suits in such courts.

2. Where persons are committed or detained by virtue of the final order, judgment or decree of a competent tribunal of civil or criminal jurisdiction, or by virtue of an execution issued upon such final order, judgment or decree.

3. Where any person has willfully neglected, for the space of two whole terms after his imprisonment, to apply for the writ to the superior court of the county in which he may be imprisoned, such person shall not have a habeas corpus in vacation time for his enlargement.

4. Where no probable ground for relief is shown in the application. (Rev., s. 1822; Code, s. 1624; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 2.)

In General.—In construing this term, "final judgment or decree of a competent tribunal," it has come to be well understood that the exception refers only to judgments warranted by the law applicable to the case in hand, and where it appears from an inspection of the record proper and the judgment itself that the court had no jurisdiction of the cause and was manifestly without power to enter the judgment or impose the sentence in question, in such case there would be no final sentence of a competent tribunal, and the exception established by the statute does not obtain. State v. Queen, 91 N. C. 659; In re Holley, 154 N. C. 163, 167, 69 S. E. 872.

Presumption of Validity.—Proceedings before a court of competent jurisdiction will be presumed to be regular and valid, unless upon their face they plainly appear to be void; and when they do not appear, they are not subject to review in habeas corpus proceedings. State v. Burnette, 173 N. C. 734, 91 S. E. 364.

Meaning of "Competent Jurisdiction."—The term, "competent jurisdiction," used by this section in making an exception to the power of this court to review a judgment in habeas corpus proceedings, means that where a committed criminal is detained under a sentence not authorized by law, he is entitled to be heard, and where, though authorized in kind, it extends beyond what the law expressly permits, he may be relieved from further punishment after serving the lawful portion of the sentence; and a different construction would render the statute unconstitutional. In re Holley, 154 N. C. 163, 69 S. E. 872.

Cannot Be Used as Writ of Error.—The writ of habeas corpus cannot be used in the nature of a writ of error. State v. Dunn, 159 N. C. 470, 74 S. E. 1014.

Habeas corpus is in the nature of a wirt of error to the extent of examining into the legality of a person's detention, but it is not available as a means of reviewing and correcting mere errors as distinguished from defects of jurisdiction. State v. Edwards, 192 N. C. 321, 135 S. E. 37; In re Chase, 193 N. C. 450, 452, 137 S. E. 305.

Process by United States Judge.—The petitioner in habeas corpus proceedings adjudged in contempt of court shall, under the provisions of this section, be remanded when upon the hearing it is made to appear that he is held in custody by virtue of a process issued by a court or judge of the United States where such judge or court has exclusive jurisdiction. State v. Hooker, 183 N. C. 763, 111 S. E. 351.

Remedy Denied to One Imprisoned by Final Judgment. — Where one is imprisoned under the final process of a court of competent jurisdiction the writ of habeas corpus may not successfully be sued out since this section expressly forbids it. Howie v. Spittle, 156 N. C. 180, 182, 72 S. E. 207; Ledford v. Emerson, 143 N. C. 527, 536, 55 S. E. 969; In re Holley, 154 N. C. 163, 69 S. E. 872.

Same—Where Sentence Erroneous.—The application must be refused, even where it appears that the applicant is imprisoned in the State's prison, and the sentence of the court is erroneous, and the applicant, in default of appeal, must be left to his remedy by writ of certiorari. In re Schenck, 74 N. C. 607.

Same—Reasons for Rule.—Without reference to the positive prohibition of this section, it is otherwise clear that the power cannot extend to cases where the person is confined on final process. For if so, this unseemly and discordant result would follow, that one superior court judge might try and sentence a person to death or the penitentiary, and another might issue the writ of habeas corpus and discharge the prisoner. Results so disgraceful and destructive to the orderly and harmonious administration of justice were never contemplated by the farmers of our judicial system; on the contrary, they were carefully guarded against, both by the Constitution and legislation. In re Schenck, 74 N. C. 607, 610.

Examples.—Where the petitioner in habeas corpus proceedings directed to a superior court judge has previously been convicted in that court of an offense of which it had jurisdiction, and accordingly sentenced to imprisonment under a final order, the judgment imports verity, and evidence to collaterally impeach it is incompetent, and the application to prosecute the writ will be denied. In the matter of Croom, 175 N. C. 455, 95 S. E. 903.

An indictment and judgment against the prisoner for an illegal sale of spirituous liquors alleged to have been based upon illegal evidence authorized by an uncontitutional statute, may not be passed upon in habeas corpus proceedings, for such would be to permit one superior court judge to examine into the proceedings before another judge, upon parol evidence, and review his action. State v. Dunn, 159 N. C. 470, 74 S. E. 1014.

§ 2207. By whom application is made.—Application for the writ may be made either by the party for whose relief it is intended or by any person in his behalf. (Rev., s. 1823; Code, s. 1625; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 3.)

Application May Be Withdrawn.—One who has petitioned for a writ of habeas corpus may withdraw his application whenever he choses. State v. Wiley, 64 N. C. appx., 821, 823.

§ 2208. To judge of supreme or superior court; in writing.—Application for the writ shall be made in writing, signed by the applicant—

1. To any one of the justices of the supreme court.

2. To any one of the superior court judges, either at term time or in vacation. (Rev., s. 1824; Code, s. 1626; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 4.)

In General.—The Constitution required the Legislature to furnish an adequate remedy, and when it was declared that all such persons should have the right to "prosecute a writ of habeas corpus", it followed ex vi termini, that they were entitled to demand this remedy before any judge of any court of general jurisdiction in this country. The power of all judges to grant it was conceded before the Magna Charta, and was only reaffirmed, like many other cardinal principles, in that instrument and those that followed reaffirming it. Harkins v. Cathey, 119 N. C. 649, 663, 26 S. E. 136.

Concurrent Jurisdiction in State and Federal Courts.—On habeas corpus, the state court have concurrent jurisdiction with the federal courts of all cases of imprisonment within their territorial jurisdiction, except in the case where the petitioner is in custody under the authority, or claim of authority, of the United States. Robb v. Connolly, 111 U. S. 624, 633, 28 L. Ed. 542, 4 S. Ct. 544.

The federal and state courts have concurrent jurisdiction to inquire into the legality of detention under a governor's warrant in interstate extradition cases. United States v. Jung Ah Lung, 124 U. S. 621, 626, 31 L. Ed. 591, 8 S. Ct. 663.

Source from Which Authority of State Judges Emanates.—It is to be observed that the authority of the state judges in cases of habeas corpus emanates from the several states, and not from the United States. In order to destroy their jurisdiction, therefore, it is necessary to show, not that the United States have given them jurisdiction, but that Congress possesses and has exercised the power of taking away that jurisdiction which the states have vested in their own judges. In the matter of Bryon, 60 N. C. 1.

Jurisdiction of Courts.—The courts of this State, as well as the individual judges, have jurisdiction to issue writs of habeas corpus, returnable to them in term time, and as a court. In the matter of Bryon, 60 N. C. 1.

Judges Mentioned Have Equal Powers.—A single judge of the Supreme Court has the same and no other jurisdiction to issue the writ than a judge of the superior court, and the same limitation of power to issue the writ in certain cases extends equally to the two classes of judges. In re Schenck, 74 N. C. 607, 608.

Extent of Jurisdiction.—The habeas corpus jurisdiction of every court, and of every judge, extends to every possible case of privation of liberty to the National Constitution, treaties and laws. In re Burrus, 136 U. S. 586, 592, 34 L. Ed. 500, 10 S. Ct. 850.

Obtaining Jurisdiction.—Presenting a petition to a judge for a writ of habeas corpus gives him jurisdiction of the subject. State v. Edney, 60 N. C. appx., 463.

§ 2209. Contents of application. — The application must state, in substance, as follows:

1. That the party, in whose behalf the writ is applied for, is imprisoned or restrained of his liberty, the place where, and the officer or person by whom he is imprisoned or restrained, naming both parties, if their names are known, or describing them if they are not known.

2. The cause or pretense of such imprisonment or restraint, according to the knowledge or belief of the applicant.

3. If the imprisonment is by virtue of any warrant or other process, a copy thereof shall be annexed, or it shall be made to appear that a copy thereof has been demanded and refused, or that for some sufficient reason a demand for such copy could not be made.

4. If the imprisonment or restraint is alleged to be illegal, the application must state in what the alleged illegality consists; and that the legality of the imprisonment or restraint has not been already adjudged, upon a prior writ of habeas corpus, to the knowledge or belief of the applicant.

5. The facts set forth in the application must be verified by the oath of the applicant, or by that of some other credible witness, which oath may be administered by any person authorized by law to take affidavits. (Rev., s. 1825; Code, s. 1627; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 5.)

Waiver of Errors.—The parties may waive all errors and dispense with all forms in the proceedings on the petition. State v. Edney, 60 N. C. appx., 463.

Necessary Allegation.—A petition for habeas corpus must allege that the imprisonment has not been already adjudged upon a prior writ of habeas corpus. In the matter of Brittain, 93 N. C. 587.

Where Other Remedies Exist.—The writ of habeas corpus will be refused where the prisoner can be otherwise discharged. In re Belt, 159 U. S. 95, 100, 40 L. Ed. 88, 15 S. Ct. 987.

§ 2210. Issuance of writ without application.—When the supreme or superior court, or any judge of either, has evidence from any judicial proceeding before such court or judge that any person within this state is illegally imprisoned or restrained of his liberty, it is the duty of said court or judge to issue a writ of habeas corpus for his relief, although no application be made for such writ. (Rev., s. 1826; Code, s. 1632; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 10.)

When Illegal Imprisonment Appears.—If a case comes before the Supreme Court by appeal, or by certiorari, and upon the trial it appears that the prisoner was suffering an illegal confinement in the penitentiary, it would be the duty of that court, by virtue of its supervisory power, and of this section, enacted to carry into effect this constitutional power of the Supreme Court, to issue the writ of habeas corpus, even of its own motion, and discharge the prisoner. In re Schenck, 74 N. C. 607, 610.

Art. 3. Writ

§ 2211. Writ granted without delay.—Any court or judge empowered to grant the writ, to whom such applications may be presented, shall grant the writ without delay, unless it appear from the application itself or from the documents annexed that the person applying or for whose benefit it is intended is, by this chapter, prohibited from prosecuting the writ. (Rev., s. 1827; Code, s. 1628; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 6.)

As to the hearing, see annotations under section 2234.

Duty of Court to Issue.—There can be no doubt of the duty and power of the court to issue the writ of habeas corpus when applied for in accordance with statutory provisions. In re Boyett, 136 N. C. 415, 424, 48 S. E. 789.

Writ Always Issues.—The writ of habeas corpus always issues when legally applied for, because this section subjects a judge who refuses to entertain the petition to a penalty of $2,500. In the matter of Croom, 175 N. C. 455, 456, 95 S. E. 903.

§ 2213. Sufficiency of writ; defects of form immaterial.—No writ of habeas corpus shall be disobeyed on account of any defect of form. It shall be sufficient—

1. If the person having the custody of the party imprisoned or restrained be designated either by his name of office, if he have any, or by his own name, or, if both such names be unknown or uncertain, he may be described by an assumed appellation, and any one who may be served with the writ shall be deemed the person to whom it is directed, although it maybe directed to him by a wrong name, or description, or to another person.

2. If the person who is directed to be produced be designated by name, or if his name be uncertain or unknown, he may be described by an assumed appellation or in any other way, so as to designate the person intended. (Rev., s. 1829; Code, ss. 1629, 1630; 1868-9, c. 116, ss. 7, 8.)

§ 2214. Service of writ.—The writ of habeas corpus may be served by any qualified elector of this state thereto authorized by the court or judge allowing the same. It may be served by delivering the writ, or a copy thereof, to the person to whom it is directed; or, if such person cannot be found, by leaving it, or a copy, at the jail, or other place in which the party for whose relief it is intended is confined, with some under officer or other person of proper age; or, if none such can be found, or if the person attempting to serve the writ be refused admittance, by affixing a copy thereof in some conspicuous place on the outside, either of the dwelling-house of the party to whom the writ is directed or of the place where the party is confined for whose relief it is sued out. (Rev., s. 1833; Code, s. 1657; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 32.)

To Whom Issued. — The writ should be issued to the person who has the immediate custody of the petitioner with the power to produce the body of such party before the court or judge. Wales v. Whitney, 114 U. S. 564, 574, 29 L. Ed. 277, 5 S. Ct. 1050.

Art. 4. Return

§ 2215. When writ returnable. — Writs of habeas corpus may be made returnable at a certain time, or forthwith, as the case may require. If the writ be returnable at a certain time, such return shall be made and the party shall be produced at the time and place specified therein. (Rev., s. 1830; Code, s. 1656; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 31.)

§ 2216. Contents of return; verification.— The person or officer on whom the writ is served must make a return thereto in writing, and, except where such person is a sworn public officer and makes his return in his official capacity, it must be verified by his oath. The return must state plainly and unequivocally—

1. Whether he has or has not the party in his custody or under his power or restraint.
2. If he has the party in his custody or power, or under his restraint, the authority and the cause of such imprisonment or restraint, setting forth the same at large.
3. If the party is detained by virtue of any writ, warrant, or other written authority, a copy thereof shall be annexed to the return; and the original shall be produced and exhibited on the return of the writ to the court or judge before whom the same is returnable.
4. If the person or officer upon whom such writ is served has had the party in his power or custody, or under his restraint, at any time prior or subsequent to the date of the writ, but has transferred such custody or restraint to another the return shall state particularly to whom, at what time, for what cause and by what authority such transfer took place. (Rev., s. 1831; Code, s. 1633; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 11.)

§ 2217. Production of body if required.—If the writ requires it, the officer or person on whom the same has been served shall also produce the body of the party in his custody or power, according to the command of the writ, except in the case of the sickness of such party, as hereinafter provided. (Rev., s. 1832; Code, s. 1636; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 14.)

Art. 5. Enforcement of Writ

§ 2218. Attachment for failure to obey.—If the person or officer on whom any writ of habeas corpus has been duly served refuses or neglects to obey the same, by producing the body of the party named or described therein, and by making a full and explicit return thereto, within the time required, and no sufficient excuse is shown for such refusal or neglect, it is the duty of the court or judge before whom the writ has been made returnable, upon due proof of the service thereof, forthwith to issue an attachment against such person or officer, directed to the sheriff of any county within this state, and commanding him forthwith to apprehend such person or officer and bring him immediately before such court or judge. On being so brought such person or officer shall be committed to close custody in the jail of the county where such court or judge may be, without being allowed the liberties thereof, until such person or officer make return to such writ and comply with any order that may be made by such court or judge in relation to the party for whose relief the writ has been issued. (Rev., s. 1834; Code, s. 1637; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 15.)

In General. — The attachment warranted by this section does not rest on the idea of punishing for a contempt of the judge, or court, but of compelling a return to the writ and a production of a body. It is a substitute for the provision in the old habeas corpus act, which punished the officer or person refusing or neglecting to make due return, "upon conviction by indictment," with a fine of $500 for the first offense, and of $1,000, and incapacity to hold office, for the second. Ex parte Moore, 64 N. C. appx., 802, 809. See also, Ex parte Kerr, 64 N. C. appx., 816.

No Power to Arrest Governor.—Under the habeas corpus act, a judge has no power to order the arrest of the Governor of the State. Ex parte Moore, 64 N. C. appx., 802, 813.

Excuse for Refusal to Make Return.—Where a military officer detaining persons arrested in counties declared by the Governor to be in a state of insurrection, answered to a writ of habeas corpus, that he held them under the orders of the Governor, who had also ordered him not to obey the writ: it was held, that such return was a sufficient excuse, under this section, and, therefore, that such officer was not liable to be attached. Ex parte Moore, 64 N. C. appx., 802, 815.

§ 2220. Attachment against sheriff to be directed to coroner; procedure.— If a sheriff has neglected to return the writ agreeably to the command thereof, the attachment against him may be directed to the coroner or to any other person to be designated therein, who shall have power to execute the same, and such sheriff, upon being brought up, may be committed to the jail of any county other than his own. (Rev., s. 1836; Code, s. 1639; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 16.)

§ 2221. Precept to bring up party detained.— The court or judge by whom any such attachment may be issued may also at the same time, or afterwards, direct a precept to any sheriff, coroner, or other person to be designated therein, commanding him to bring forthwith before such court or judge the party, wherever to be found, for whose benefit the writ of habeas corpus has been granted. (Rev., s. 1837, Code, s. 1640; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 17.)

§ 2223. Liability of judge conniving at insufficient return.—If any judge grants the attachment, or the precept, and gives the officer or other person charged with the execution of the same verbal or written instructions not to execute the same, or to make any evasive or insufficient return, or any return other than that provided by law, or shall connive at the failing to make any return or any evasive or insufficient return, or any return other than that provided by law, he shall be liable to impeachment, and moreover shall forfeit to the party aggrieved twenty-five hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 1839; Code, s. 1642; 1870-1, c. 221, s. 4.)

§ 2224. Power of county to aid service.—In the execution of any such attachment, precept or writ, the sheriff, coroner, or other person to whom it may be directed, may call to his aid the power of the county, as in other cases. (Rev., s. 1840; Code, s. 1643; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 18.)

Editor's Note. — The posse comitatus is discussed in Worth v. Craven County Com'rs, 118 N. C. 112, 24 S. E. 778. In the dissenting opinion to that case by Judge Clark, this section is mentioned on page 125.

Means "Men of the County."—The power of the county, or "posse comitatus," means the men of the county in which the writ is to be executed. Ex Parte Moore, 64 N. C. appx., 802, 812.

§ 2225. Obedience to order of discharge compelled.—Obedience to a judgment or order for the discharge of a prisoner or person restrained of his liberty, pursuant to the provisions of this chapter, may be enforced by the court or judge by attachment in the same manner and with the same effect as for a neglect to make return to a writ of habeas corpus; and the person found guilty of such disobedience shall forfeit to the party aggrieved two thousand five hundred dollars, besides any special damages which such party may have sustained. (Rev., s. 1841; Code, s. 1649; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 24.)

§ 2227. Recommittal after discharge; penalty.—If any person shall knowingly again imprison or detain one who has been set at large upon any writ of habeas corpus, for the same cause, other than by the legal process or order of the court wherein he is bound by recognizance to appear, or of any other court having jurisdiction in the case, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3581; Code, s. 1651; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 26.)

See also section 2240 and notes.

When Rearrest Valid.—A party, set at large by writ of habeas corpus, upon the ground that the judgment of imprisonment was void for want of jurisdiction in the court, may be again arrested for the same cause upon legal process of a court having jurisdiction. State v. Weatherspoon, 88 N. C. 19.

§ 2228. Disobedience to writ or refusing copy of process; penalty.—If any person to whom a writ of habeas corpus is directed shall neglect or refuse to make due return thereto, or to bring the body of the party detained according to the command of the writ without delay, or shall not, within six hours after demand made therefor, deliver a copy of the commitment or cause of detainer, such person shall, upon conviction on indictment, be fined one thousand dollars, or imprisoned not exceeding twelve months, and if such person be an officer, shall moreover be removed from office. (Rev., s. 3597; Code, s. 1652; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 27.)

§ 2230. Penalty for concealing party entitled to writ.—If any one having in his custody, or under his power, any party who, by law, would be entitled to a writ of habeas corpus, or for whose relief such writ shall have been issued, shall, with intent to elude the service of such writ, or to avoid the effect thereof, transfer the party to the custody, or put him under the power or control, of another, or shall conceal or change the place of his confinement, or shall knowingly aid or abet another in so doing, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3583; Code, ss. 1654, 1655; 1868-9, c. 116, ss. 29, 30.)

Art. 6. Proceedings and Judgment

§ 2231. Notice to interested parties.—When it appears from the return to the writ that the party named therein is in custody on any process, or by reason of any claim of right, under which any other person has an interest in continuing his imprisonment or restraint, no order shall be made for his discharge until it appears that the person so interested, or his attorney, if he have one, has had reasonable notice of the time and place at which such writ is returnable. (Rev., s. 1843; Code, s. 1634; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 12; 1870-1, c. 221, s. 1.)

§ 2232. Notice to solicitor.—When it appears from the return that such party is detained upon any criminal accusation, the court or judge may, if he thinks proper, make no order for the discharge of such party until sufficient notice of the time and place at which the writ has been returned, or is made returnable, is given to the solicitor of the county in which the person prosecuting the writ is detained. (Rev., s. 1844; Code, s. 1635; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 13.)

Hearing May Be Continued.—If it appear from the return on a writ of habeas corpus that the petitioner is detained on a criminal charge, the court may continue the hearing for a reasonable time to give the solicitor an opportunity to examine into the case. State v. Jones, 113 N. C. 669, 18 S. E. 249.

§ 2233. Subpœnas to witnesses.—Any party to a proceeding on a writ of habeas corpus may procure the attendance of witnesses at the hearing, by subpœna, to be issued by the clerk of any superior court, under the same rules, regulations and penalties prescribed by law in other cases. (Rev., s. 1845; Code, s. 1659; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 34.)

§ 2234. Proceedings on return; facts examined; summary hearing of issues.—The court or judge before whom the party is brought on a writ of habeas corpus shall, immediately after the return thereof, examine into the facts contained in such return, and into the cause of the confinement or restraint of such party, whether the same has been upon commitment for any criminal or supposed criminal matter or not; and if issue be taken upon the material facts in the return, or other facts are alleged to show that the imprisonment or detention is illegal, or that the party imprisoned is enitled to his discharge, the court or judge shall proceed, in a summary way, to hear the allegations and proofs on both sides, and to do what to justice appertains in delivering, bailing or remanding such party. (Rev., s. 1846; Code, s. 1644; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 19.)

Proceedings Must Be Summary.—Proceedings under the writ of habeas corpus, which have for their principal object a release of a party from illegal restraint, must necessarily be summary and prompt to be useful, and if an action could be arrested by an appeal, they would lose many of their most beneficial results. State v. Miller, 97 N. C. 451, 454, 1 S. E. 776.

Hearing Not Perfunctory.—The words "if issue be taken upon the material facts . . . the judge shall proceed in a summary way to hear the allegations and proofs of both sides," preclude the idea that such hearing shall be perfunctory and merely formal. In re Bailey, 203 N. C. 362, 365, 166 S. E. 165.

Hearing Confined to Record.—The hearing is confined to the record and judgment, and relief may be afforded only when on the record itself the judgment is one clearly and manifestly beyond the power of the court, a statement of the doctrine supported in numerous and authoritative decisions here and elsewhere. Ex parte McCown, 139 N. C. 95, 51 S. E. 957; In re Schenck, 74 N. C. 607; In re Swan, 150 U. S. 637, 37 L. Ed. 1207, 14 S. Ct. 225; In re Coy, 127 N. C. 731, 32 L. Ed. 274, 8 S. Ct. 1263; In the matter of Croom, 175 N. C. 455, 457, 95 S. E. 903.

Same—Questions Open to Inquiry.—Where the petitioner in habeas corpus proceedings is held under a final sentence of a court, a commitment of contempt or order, the only questions open to inquiry at the hearing are whether on the record the court had jurisdiction of the matter and whether on the facts disclosed in the record and under the law applicable to the case in hand, the court has exceeded its powers in imposing the sentence whereof the petitioner complains. State v. Hooker, 183 N. C. 763, 111 S. E. 351.

Evidence Not Reviewable. — As was held in Ex parte Dunn, 159 N. C. 470, the Supreme Court cannot review the evidence or other matters in a criminal case in habeas corpus proceedings, but only the jurisdiction of the court and the validity of the judgment which is attacked. State v. Burnette, 173 N. C. 734, 91 S. E. 364.

Question of Insanity Determined.—When the petitioner in habeas corpus has been adjudged insane and her detention is ordered by a court of lunacy of another state, the judge of the superior court in this State by whom the proceedings of habeas corpus are heard should determine the validity of the order of the adjudication of insanity when the same is properly presented to him, and this is the determinative question involved, and upon failure to have done so the case will be remanded. In re Chase, 193 N. C. 450, 137 S. E. 305.

Discretion of Judge.—The quantum of evidence and the number of witnesses to be examined must necessarily be left also to the sound discretion of the judge who hears the writ, and his action in that regard cannot be reviewed. State v. Herndon, 107 N. C. 934, 935, 12 S. E. 268. See also In re Bailey, 203 N. C. 362, 367, 166 S. E. 165.

Presumption of Innocence. — The presumption of innocence applies only on a trial, and does not avail to furnish a presumption that the detention of a party on regular process, when the committing officer has jurisdiction. State v. Jones, 113 N. C. 669, 18 S. E. 249.

Burden of Proof.—Where, upon the return of a sheriff to a writ of habeas corpus, it appeared that the petitioners were in custody on a mittimus, regular in every way, from a justice of the peace, for failure to give bond for their appearances at the next term of the superior court to answer a criminal charge of which the court had jurisdiction, the detention, nothing else appearing, was clearly legal, and the burden was upon the petitioner to show wherein it was illegal, and not upon the State to show that they were lawfully in custody. State v. Jones, 113 N. C. 669, 18 S. E. 249.

No Appeal Lies.—Appeal to the Supreme Court will not lie from the refusal of a superior court judge to discharge the defendant from custody in proceedings in habeas corpus, the remedy being by a petition for a writ of certiorari which is addressed to the sound discretion of the Supreme Court. In the matter of Croom, 175 N. C. 455, 95 S. E. 903; State v. Burnette, 173 N. C. 734, 91 S. E. 364.

Constitutional Provision. — In habeas corpus proceedings wherein upon the hearing are involved questions of law or legal inference, and judgment is a denial of a legal right, it may be reviewed by the Supreme Court by virtue of the Constitution, Art. IV, sec. 8, under the power given to the court "to issue any remedial writs necessary to give it general supervision and control over the proceedings of inferior courts." In re Holley, 154 N. C. 163, 69 S. E. 872.

Writ of Certiorari Proper Remedy. — Where it appears that, upon the return of the writ, the judge declined to hear evidence or investigate the charge, the writ of certiorari should issue. Walton v. Gatlin, 60 N. C. 318; Ex parte Biggs, 64 N. C. 202; State v. Jefferson, 66 N. C. 309; State v. Herndon, 107 N. C. 934, 935, 12 S. E. 268.

The remedy given under the constitutional power conferred upon the Supreme Court to review a judgment in habeas corpus proceedings in matters not involving the care and custody of children, Constitution, Art. IV, sec. 8, shall only be exercised by certiorari. In re Holley, 154 N. C. 163, 69 S. E. 872.

Same—When Denied. — A petition for certiorari in the Supreme Court will be denied in habeas corpus proceedings when it appears therefrom that the prisoner is not entitled to his discharge. In the matter of Croom, 175 N. C. 455, 95 S. E. 903.

If the judge, upon the investigation of the evidence on a petition for habeas corpus, adjudges that there is or is not probable cause, and admits or refuses to admit to bail, no appeal or certiorari lies, either in favor of the State or the petitioner. Walton v. Gatlin, 60 N. C. 310, 318; State v. Miller, 97 N. C. 451, 1 S. E. 776; State v. Herndon, 107 N. C. 934, 935, 12 S. E. 268.

In habeas corpus proceedings, where it appears from the application for certiorari in the Supreme Court, or the documents annexed thereto, that the petition is determined under a final judgment of a competent tribunal, the writ will be denied in the Supreme Court. In re Holley, 154 N. C. 163, 69 S. E. 872.

Proceeding Where Judgment Reversed.—If, upon certiorari, the court reverses and sets aside the judgment of the court below, and the proceedings are remanded, no procedendo issues to any particular judge, but the petitioner can exercise his statutory right to apply, de novo, to any judge authorized to grant the writ of habeas corpus. State v. Herndon, 107 N. C. 934, 12 S. E. 268.

Judicial Review of Questions of Law.—In deciding questions which arise under writs of habeas corpus the judiciary may review and control the action of the Governor in reguard to points of law, involving an extradition proceeding. In the matter of Hughes, 61 N. C. 56.

§ 2235. When party discharged.—If no legal cause is shown for such imprisonment or restraint, or for the continuance thereof, the court or judge shall discharge the party from the custody or restraint under which he is held. But if it appears on the return to the writ that the party is in custody by virtue of civil process from any court legally constituted, or issued by any officer in the course of judicial proceedings before him, authorized by law, such party can be discharged only in one of the following cases:

1. Where the jurisdiction of such court or officer has been exceeded, either as to matter, place, sum or person.

2. Where, though the original imprisonment was lawful, yet by some act, omission or event, which has taken place afterwards, the party has become entitled to be discharged.

3. Where the process is defective in some matter of substance required by law, rendering such process void.

4. Where the process, though in proper form, has been issued in a case not allowed by law.

5. Where the person, having the custody of the party under such process, is not the person empowered by law to detain him.

6. Where the process is not authorized by any judgment, order or decree of any court, nor by any provision of law. (Rev., s. 1847; Code, s. 1645; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 20.)

See generally notes under section 2234.

Where Imprisonment for Contempt.—It was held in Ex parte Summers, 27 N. C. 149, that in a case of imprisonment for contempt, where the court states the facts upon which it proceeds, a reviewing tribunal may, on a habeas corpus, discharge the party if it appears plainly that the facts do not amount to a contempt. State v. Queen, 91 N. C. 659, 662.

Sentence Partly Valid and Partly Void.—Where a prisoner is detained by virtue of a sentence in part valid and part otherwise, he may not be liberated on habeas corpus until he shall have served the valid portion of his sentence, and he shall be remanded when it appears that the time during which he may legally be detained has not expired. State v. Hooker, 183 N. C. 763, 111 S. E. 351.

State Cannot Appeal.—The State can not appeal from an

State Cannot Appeal.—The State cannot appeal from an order in habeas corpus proceedings discharging from imprisonment one convicted of crime. Proceedings in habeas corpus, the object of which is to release a person from illegal restraint, must necessarily be summary to be useful, and if action could be arrested by an appeal upon the part of the State, the great writ of liberty would be deprived of its most beneficial results. In the matter of Williams, 149 N. C. 436, 437, 63 S. E. 108; State v. Miller, 97 N. C. 451, 1 S. E. 776.

§ 2236. When party remanded.—It is the duty of the court or judge forthwith to remand the party, if it appears that he is detained in custody, either—

1. By virtue of process issued by any court or judge of the United States, in a case where such court or judge has exclusive jurisdiction.

2. By virtue of the final judgment or decree of any competent court of civil or criminal jurisdiction, or of any execution issued upon such judgment or decree.

3. For any contempt specially and plainly charged in the commitment by some court, officer or body having authority to commit for the contempt so charged.

4. That the time during which such party may be legally detained has not expired. (Rev., s. 1848; Code, s. 1646; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 21.)

Paragraph Three Peremptory.—The provision of paragraph three of this section is as peremptory as that in paragraph two of section 2206.

Judgment Imports Verity.—A judgment in habeas corpus imports verity, and it can not be collaterally impeached. In the matter of Croom, 175 N. C. 455, 95 S. E. 903.

§ 2237. When the party bailed or remanded.—If it appears that the party has been legally committed for any criminal offense, or if it appears by the testimony offered with the return of the writ, or upon the hearing thereof, that the party is guilty of such an offense, although the commitment is irregular, the court or judge shall proceed to let such party to bail, if the case is bailable and good bail is offered; if not, the court or judge shall forthwith remand such party to the custody or place him under the restraint from which he was taken, if the person or officer, under whose custody or restraint he was, is legally entitled thereto; if not so entitled, the court or judge shall commit such party to the custody of the officer or person legally entitled thereto. (Rev., s. 1849; Code, s. 1647; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 22.)

Judge May Admit to Bail.—Any person charged (but not convicted) of any crime whatever may be admitted to bail if the judge, upon hearing the testimony upon a writ of habeas corpus, adjudges that, upon the facts developed, the petitioner is entitled to be released on bail. State v. Herndon, 107 N. C. 934, 937, 12 S. E. 268. And although a sentence is not valid the defendant may not be unconditionally released, as the court may hold him to bail. State v. Burnette, 173 N. C. 734, 91 S. E. 364.

No Discharge After Indictment.—Of course, after indictment found, the judge cannot absolutely discharge the prisoner in any case, however clear a case of innocence may be made out, but must require his appearance at the next term of court. State v. Herndon, 107 N. C. 934, 938, 12 S. E. 268.

§ 2238. Party held in execution not to be discharged.—When a writ of habeas corpus cum causa issues and the sheriff or other officer to whom it is directed returns upon the same that the prisoner is condemned, by judgment given against him, and held in custody by virtue of an execution issued against him, the prisoner shall not be let to bail but shall be presently remanded, where he shall remain until discharged in due course of law. (Rev., s. 1850; Code, s. 937; R. C., c. 31, s. 111; 2 Hen. V, c. 2.)

§ 2240. No second committal after discharged; penalty.—No person who has been set at large upon any writ of habeas corpus shall be again imprisoned or detained for the same cause by any person whatsoever other than by the legal order or process of the court wherein he shall be bound by recognizance to appear or of any other court having jurisdiction in the case, under the penalty of two thousand five hundred dollars to the party aggrieved thereby. (Rev., s. 1852; Code, s. 1651; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 26.)

As to recommittal after discharge, see section 2227 and note.

Surrender by Sureties.—Where the defendant was not originally liable to arrest and had been discharged upon habeas corpus, he cannot be held upon a surrender by his sureties. Ledford v. Emerson, 143 N. C. 527, 55 S. E. 969.

When Rearrest Permissible. — According to the express terms of this section, a party once discharged may be again arrested and imprisoned for the same cause, provided it be done by the legal order or process of a court of competent jurisdiction. State v. Weatherspoon, 88 N. C. 19, 21.

Art. 7. Habeas Corpus for Custody of Children in Certain Cases

fore it either to the husband or to the wife, for such time, under such regulations and restrictions, and with such provisions and directions as will, in the opinion of such court or judge, best promote the interest and welfare of the children. At any time after the making of such orders the court or judge may, on good cause shown, annul, vary or modify the same; provided, that where the father is a non-resident of North Carolina and the custody of the child has been awarded, by an order of a court of this State, to the mother who is a resident of North Carolina, no motion on the part of such non-resident father may be heard or entertained by the court for a modification of the order of the court, unless such father has first shown under oath that, since the making of the original order, he has regularly contributed to the support of said child according to his means and according to the needs of the child, and, if said motion is heard and at said hearing such fact is not established to the satisfaction of the court, the motion for a modification of the order shall be denied, unless the court shall find that, at the time of said hearing the mother is not a fit and proper person to have the custody of said child. Provided, that this act shall only apply after the case has been reopened on time. (Rev., s. 1853; Code, s. 1661; 1858-9, c. 53; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 36; 1929, c. 270, s. 1.)

Cross References.—As to custody of children in divorce, see section 1664 and notes. As to persons entitled to custody of children in general, see notes under section 2151. As to restoration of parents' rights after adoption, see section 190 and note thereto.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added the two provisos to this section.

Broad Powers Conferred.—This section confers upon the court very large powers to "promote the interest and welfare of the children." Holley v. Holley, 96 N. C. 229, 1 S. E. 553; Knott v. Taylor, 96 N. C. 553, 2 S. E. 680; Jones v. Cotten, 108 N. C. 457, 458, 13 S. E. 161.

When Section Applies. — When without being divorced parents are living apart, the question concerning the disposition of their offspring must be decided under the provisions of this section. In re Habeas Corpus of Jones, 153 N. C. 312, 69 S. E. 217.

It is essential that the parents must be living in a state of separation "without being divorced" before the court has power in a habeas corpus proceeding to determine the custody of the children. In the matter of Blake, 184 N. C. 278, 280, 114 S. E. 294.

Except as between parents, the right of custody of a child can not be determined by writ of habeas corpus. In re Parker, 144 N. C. 170, 56 S. E. 878.

When Parents Divorced Section 1664 Applies.—When this section is considered in connection with section 1664, it becomes apparent that the Legislature intended that the custody of children shall be determined by the court in which the divorce was granted, and, where there is no divorce, by proceedings in habeas corpus. Jurisdiction of the court in which a divorce is granted to award the custody of a child is excluded and continuing. In the matter of Blake, 184 N. C. 278, 281, 114 S. E. 294.

But where the parties have been divorced and the decree does not award the custody of the children, the procedure to determine the right to their custody is by motion in the cause, and habeas corpus will not lie, and where in habeas corpus proceedings a decree for absolute divorce between the parties is introduced in the record without objection, but the court makes no finding as to whether the parties had been divorced, but awards the custody of the child to its mother, on appeal the case will be remanded for a finding as to whether the parties had been divorced. In re Albertson, 205 N. C. 742, 172 S. E. 411.

Jurisdiction of Juvenile Court.—In the matter of Blake, 184 N. C. 278, 114 S. E. 294, it was suggested on the argument, and the court said with some show of reason, that if jurisdiction to pass upon the divorce decree is not exclusively in the court in which the divorce decree was granted, it would appear to reside in the juvenile court under the provisions of section 5039 et seq. This point, however was not decided in the Case. And in Clegg v. Clegg, 186 N. C. 28, 118 S. E. 824, it was held that the jurisdiction of the superior court or judge thereof in habeas corpus proceedings between husband and wife, living apart without divorce, where the custody of the minor children of their marriage is claimed by each of them, is not ousted or interfered with by the jurisdiction given by statute to the juvenile court.

Where Foreign Decree Invalid.—When, under an invalid decree of divorce rendered in favor of the wife in another state, in which the custody of a child was awarded to the wife, it is sought by habeas corpus proceeding in this State to obtain the custody of the child domiciled with its father in this State, the proceeding will be regarded as one between husband and wife living in separation without being divorced. And the custody of the child rests in the sound discretion of the judge, subject to review, on appeal, upon the facts found. Harris v. Harris, 115 N. C. 587, 20 S. E. 187.

Possession by Order of Court.—Where defendant had possession of infant child under order of the court, in accordance with sections, 2235, 2236, an attempted habeas corpus proceeding was held to be irregular. Ashby v. Page, 108 N. C. 6, 8, 13 S. E. 90.

Parents Have Prima Facie Right to Custody.—In habeas corpus proceedings for the possession of a nine-year old child, the parents of the child, who are living together as lawful man and wife, have prima facie the right to its control and custody. In re Habeas Corpus of Jones, 153 N. C. 312, 69 S. E. 217.

Where the father of an infant upon the death of its mother told the grandparents of the child that the latter should always remain with them, but subsequently desired the custody of the child and upon refusal brought habeas corpus proceedings, and it appeared that the father was of good moral character, industrious and kind and in every way fitted to care for and educate the child, the custody was properly awarded to him. Latham v. Ellis, 116 N. C. 30, 20 S. E. 1012.

Same—Welfare of Child First Consideration. — In habeas corpus for the custody of a child the welfare of the child is the first consideration but the father has a natural right of such custody. To lose this right it must be shown that he is not fit to exercise it. In re Fain, 172 N. C. 790, 90 S. E. 928.

The right of the parent is not absolute and yields to the welfare of the child when so required. In re Hamilton, 182 N. C. 44, 108 S. E. 385.

Same—Same—Custody Awarded to Mother.—The mother, in habeas corpus proceedings against her husband, may be allowed the superior claim when both are equally worthy and it is shown that the welfare of their children requires it. Clegg v. Clegg, 186 N. C. 28, 118 S. E. 824. In the opinion of this case, written by Judge Clarke, there is a comprehensive and able discussion and review of the authorities relating to the custody of children. Ed. Note.

But the court will not award the custody of a child to a nonresident mother if it does not appear that the child desires to go to her or that the husband is not a proper person to have it, or that the child will be benefitted by the change. Harris v. Harris, 115 N. C. 587, 20 S. E. 187.

Same—Illegitimates.—In the care of illegitimate children, the same prima facie right of the parent to the custody of the offspring exists as in case of legitimacy, perhaps to a lesser degree, in the mother, where she evinces a capacity and disposition to properly care for her children. In re Habeas Corpus of Jones, 153 N. C. 312, 69 S. E. 217.

Action by Father against Grandmother.—Where the father of a child brings a writ of habeas corpus against the grandmother for the custody of the child but the contest is to all intents and purposes between the husband and wife for the custody of the child the writ comes within the spirit and letter of this section. In re Ten Hoopen, 202 N. C. 223, 162 S. E. 619.

Award Not Necessarily Final with Changed Conditions.—An award in habeas corpus proceedings does not finally determine the rights of the parties to the custody of the child sought in habeas corpus proceedings; and where, in our courts, the award has been in favor of a nonresident mother against the father of the child, the courts, properly established and having jurisdiction at the domicile of the mother, may further hear and determine the matter touching the care and control of the child on such changed conditions, properly established, that would require it. In re Means, 176 N. C. 307, 97 S. E. 39.

§ 2242. Appeal to supreme court. — In all cases of habeas corpus, where a contest arises in respect to the custody of minor children, either party may appeal to the supreme court from the final judgment. (Rev., s. 1854; Code, s. 1662; 1858-9, c. 53, s. 2.)

No Appeal Except under This Section.—There is no provision for appeal from a judgment in habeas corpus proceedings, except in cases concerning the care and custody of children under this section. In re Holley, 154 N. C. 163, 166, 69 S. E. 872.

It is a significant indication of the legislative intent in giving an appeal in this case only, not to recognize it in other cases. State v. Miller, 97 N. C. 451, 454, 1 S. E. 776.

Death of Party Pending Appeal. — Where in a habeas corpus proceeding brought to secure the custody of infant children, the respondent (in whose favor judgment had been rendered below) died pending appeal, it was held, that the proceeding abated, and could not be revived against the personal representative. Brown v. Rainor, 108 N. C. 204, 12 S. E. 1028.

Judgment of Superior Court Stayed Pending Appeal. — Upon appeal to the Supreme Court an order of the judge of the superior court in habeas corpus proceedings between husband and wife for the custody of the minor children of the marriage upon petition of the wife, living by mutual consent separated from her husband, without divorce, it is within the power of the Supreme Court, upon notification to the adverse party to appear before one of the Justices, and after a regular hearing, for the Justice to allow a supersedeas bond in a fixed amount, to stay the judgment of the lower court pending appeal, and by consent to set the hearing after the call of a certain district in the Supreme Court in term. Clegg v. Clegg, 186 N. C. 28, 118 S. E. 824.

Discretion in Supreme Court.—When the superior court judge has entered judgment in habeas corpus proceedings between husband and wife, and has found the facts upon which his judgment was based, and both parties appeal, the Supreme Court, in its sound legal discretion, may review the judgment, and affirm, reverse or modify it. Clegg v. Clegg, 186 N. C. 28, 118 S. E. 824; Atkinson v. Downing, 175 N. C. 244, 95 S. E. 487.

What Reviewed.—Upon an appeal from a judgment upon a writ of habeas corpus awarding the custody of a minor child, the court will not only review errors of "law or legal inference." Constitution, Art. IV, Section 8, and not the findings of fact made by the lower court upon competent evidence; and this section allowing an appeal in such cases, does not affect the matter. Stokes v. Cogdell, 153 N. C. 181, 69 S. E. 65.

Applied in In re Albertson, 205 N. C. 742, 172 S. E. 411.

Art. 8. Habeas Corpus Ad Testificandum

§ 2243. Authority to issue the writ.—Every court of record has power, upon the application of any party to any suit or proceeding, civil or criminal, pending in such court, to issue a writ of habeas corpus, for the purpose of bringing before the said court any prisoner who may be detained in any jail or prison within the state, for any cause, except a prisoner under sentence for a capital felony, to be examined as a witness in such suit or proceeding in behalf of the party making the application.

Such writ of habeas corpus may be issued by any justice of the peace or clerk of the superior court, upon application as provided in this section, to bring any person confined in the jail or prison of the same county where such justice or clerk may reside, to be examined as a witness before such justice or clerk.

In cases where the testimony of any prisoner is needed in a proceeding before a justice of the peace, or a clerk, and such person is confined in a county in which such justice or clerk does not reside, application for habeas corpus to testify may be made to any judge of the supreme or superior court. (Rev., ss. 1855, 1856; Code, ss. 1663, 1664; 1868-9, c. 116, ss. 37, 38.)

An Inherent Power.—The right to bring persons before a court, whose presence is necessary in order to the exercise of its powers, is inherent in every court of general jurisdiction, and its exercise is essential to the preservation of its power and dignity. State v. Haskins, 77 N. C. 530, 534, Harkins v. Cathey, 119 N. C. 649, 664, 26 S. E. 136.

No Application to State. — This section applies only to parties strictly so called, and not to the State. Ex parte Harris, 73 N. C. 65, citing State v. Adair, 68 N. C. 68.

Murderer Is Competent Witness.—One who has been convicted of murder, and is under sentence of death, is a competent witness; and the solicitor for the State is entitled to a habeas corpus to bring such condemned prisoner into court for the purpose of testifying before the grand jury. Ex parte Harris, 73 N. C. 65.

Same—Objection Untenable.—When the State has procured the attendance of a witness under sentence of death, the objection by the defendant that he could not be procured by writ of habeas corpus, ad testificandum under this section, is untenable, this not applying to the State; nor will objection avail that the time set for the execution had passed, and the witness, being dead, in the eye of the law, could not testify, the witness having been present and having testified. State v. Jones, 176 N. C. 702, 97 S. E. 32.

§ 2244. Contents of application.—The application for the writ shall be made by the party to the suit of proceeding in which the writ is required, or by his agent or attorney. It must be verified by the applicant, and shall state—

1. The title and nature of the suit or proceeding in regard to which the testimony of such prisoner is desired.

2. That the testimony of such prisoner is material and necessary to such party on the trial or hearing of such suit or proceeding, as he is advised by counsel and verily believes. (Rev., s. 1857; Code, s. 1665; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 39.)

§ 2245. Service of writ.—The writ of habeas corpus to testify shall be served by the same person, and in like maner in all respects, and enforced by the court or officer issuing the same as prescribed in this chapter for the service and enforcement of the writ of habeas corpus cum causa. (Rev., s. 1858; Code, s. 1666; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 40.)

§ 2246. Applicant to pay expenses and give bond to return.—The service of the writ shall not be complete, however, unless the applicant for the same tenders to the person in whose custody the prisoner may be, if such person is a sheriff, coroner, constable or marshal, the fees and expenses allowed by law for bringing such prisoner, nor unless he also gives bond, with sufficient security, to such sheriff, coroner, constable or marshal, as the case may be, conditioned that such applicant will pay the charges of carrying back such prisoner. (Rev., s. 1859; Code, s. 1667; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 41.)

§ 2247. Duty of officer to whom writ delivered or on whom served.—It is the duty of the officer to whom the writ is delivered or upon whom it is served, whether such writ is directed to him or not, upon payment or tender of the charges allowed by law, and the delivery or tender of the bond herein prescribed, to obey and return such writ according to the exigency thereof upon pain, on refusal or neglect, to forfeit to the party on whose application the same has been issued the sum of five hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 1860; Code, s. 1668; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 42.)

CHAPTER 42

INNS, HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS

Art. 1. Innkeepers

Cross References.—As to innkeepers in general, see 7 N. C. Enc. Dig. 728-735; 11 N. C. Enc. Dig. 436-437. As to innkeeper's lien on baggage, see secs. 2461-2463. As to obtaining entertainment at hotels and boarding houses without paying therefor, see sec. 4284.

What Constitutes an Inn Generally.—A public inn or hotel is a public house of entertainment for all who choose to visit it, and where all transient persons who may choose to come will be received as guests, for compensation; and it does not lose its character as such by reason of its being located at a summer resort or a watering place, or by taking some as boarders by a special contract or for a definite time. Holstein v. Phillips, 146 N. C. 366, 59 S. E. 1037.

Sleeping Car Not an Inn.—Though a "sleeping car" is a place for the reception of travelers, it is not an "inn." Garrett v. Southern R. Co., 172 N. C. 737, 90 S. E. 903.

Boarding House.—A boarding house is as well known and as distinguishable from every other house in every city, village, and the country as an inn or tavern. It is a house where the business of keeping boarders generally is carried on, and which is held out by the owner or keeper as a place where boarders are kept. State v. McRae, 170 N. C. 712, 713, 86 S. E. 1039.

Distinction Between Inn and Boarding House.—It is the publicly holding a place out, as one where all transient persons who may choose to come will be received as guests for compensation, that is the principal distinction between a hotel and a boarding house. Holstein v. Phillips, 146 N. C. 366, 370, 59 S. E. 1037. For distinctions between "boarder" and "guest," see notes of this case under the following section.

When Guest Can Be Ejected.—Guests of a hotel, and travelers or other persons entering it with the bona fide intent of becoming guests, can not be lawfully prevented from going in, or be put out, by force, after entrance, provided they are able to pay the charges and tender the money necessary for that purpose, if requested by the landlord, unless they be persons of bad or suspicious character, or of vulgar habits, or so objectionable to the patrons of the house, on account of the race to which they belong, that it would injure the business to admit them to all portions of the house, or unless they attempt to take advantage of the freedom of the hotel to injure the landlord's chances of profit derived either from his inn or any other business incidental to or connected with its management and constituting a part of the provision for the wants or pleasure of his patrons. State v. Steele, 106 N. C. 766, 782, 11 S. E. 478.

Same—Obedience to Rules.—A guest's right of occupancy of a hotel is dependent upon proper behavior and decent conduct and obedience to reasonable rules and regulations of the proprietors; for a breach of such implied conditions they may be summarily removed. Hutchins v. Durham, 118 N. C. 457, 24 S. E. 723.

Same—Remedy.—Guests at a hotel can not maintain ejectment if evicted, but can only sue for damages if wrongfully turned out. Hutchins v. Durham, 118 N. C. 457, 24 S. E. 723.

One Not a Guest Is a Licensee.—One who is in a hotel for social purposes, at the invitation of one of its guests, is a licensee, at the will of its management, and may be forbidden the premises for improper conduct. Money v. Travelers Hotel Co., 174 N. C. 508, 93 S. E. 964.

Same—Can Be Expelled.—When persons, unobjectionable on account of character or race, enter a hotel not as guests, but intent on pleasure or profit, to be derived from intercourse with its inmates, they are there not of right, but under an implied license that the landlord may revoke at any time, because barring the limitation imposed by holding out inducements to the public to seek accommodation at his inn, the proprietor occupies it as his dwelling house, from which he may expel all who have not acquired rights growing out of the relation of guests, and must drive out all who, by their bad conduct, create a nuisance and prove an annoyance to his patrons. State v. Steele, 106 N. C. 766, 782, 11 S. E. 478.

Same—Same—Force Allowable.—The broad rule laid down by Wharton (1 Cr. L., sec. 625), is that the proprietor of a public house has a right to request a person who visits it, not as a guest or on business with guests, to depart, and if he refuse, the innkeeper has a right to lay his hands gently on him and lead him out, and if resistance be made, to employ sufficient force to put him out. For so doing, he can justify his conduct on a prosecution for assault and battery. State v. Steele, 106 N. C. 766, 784, 11 S. E. 478.

Other Rights of Innkeeper.—An innkeeper has, unquestionably, the right to establish a news stand or a barber shop in his hotel, and to exclude persons who come for the purpose of vending newspapers or books, or of soliciting employment as barbers, and, in order to render his business more lucrative, he may establish a laundry or a livery stable in connection with his hotel, or an innkeeper may contract with the proprietor of a livery stable in the vicinity to secure for the latter, as far as he legitimately can, the patronage of his guests in that line for a per centum of the proceeds or profits derived by such owner of vehicles and horses from dealing with the patrons of the public house. After concluding such contracts, the innkeeper may make, and, after personal notice to violators, enforce a rule excluding from his hotel the agents and representatives of other livery stables who enter to solicit the patronage of his guests. State v. Steele, 106 N. C. 766, 783, 11 S. E. 478.

§ 2250. Liability for loss of baggage.—Innkeepers shall not be liable for loss, damage or destruction of the baggage or property of their guests except in case such loss, damage, or destruction results from the failure of the innkeeper to exercise ordinary, proper and reasonable care in the custody of such baggage and property; in case of such loss, damage or destruction resulting from the negligence and want of care of the said innkeeper he shall be liable to the owner of the said baggage and property to an amount not exceeding one hundred dollars. Any guest may, however, at any time before a loss, damage or destruction of his property, notify the innkeeper in writing that his property exceeds in value the said sum of one hundred dollars, and shall upon demand of the innkeeper furnish him a list or schedule of the same, with the value thereof, in which case the innkeeper shall be liable for the loss, damage or destruction of said property because of any negligence on his part for the full value of the same. Proof of the loss of any such baggage, except in case of damage or destruction by fire, shall be prima facie evidence of the negligence of said hotel or innkeeper. (Rev., s. 1910; 1903, c. 563, s. 2.)

What Constitutes Boarding House Keeper.—The keeper of a boarding house is one who reserves the right to select and choose his patrons and takes them in only by special arrangement, and usually for a definite time. Holstein v. Phillips, 146 N. C. 366, 370, 59 S. E. 1037.

Same—Not an Innkeeper.—One who entertains strangers only occasionally, although he receives compensation for it, is not an innkeeper. State v. Mathews, 19 N. C. 424. See notes to preceding sections.

Boarder and Guest Distinguished.—In 16 A. and E. Enc. (2 Ed.), it is said: "The essential difference between a boarder and a guest at an inn lies in the character in which the party comes, that is, whether he is a transient person or not, and, accordingly, one who stops at an inn as a transient or a guest, with all the rights, privileges, and liberties incident to that station. On the other hand, one who seeks accommodation with a view to permanency, as to make the place his home for the time being, is not a guest, but a boarder. The length of his stay, however, is not of itself ordinarily decisive, for he will continue to be a guest as long as he remains in the transitory condition of that relation." Holstein v. Phillips, 146 N. C. 366, 371, 59 S. E. 1037.

Liability Extends to Guest.—When one is received at a public inn or hotel and entered as a guest, without any prearrangement as to terms or time, but on the implied invitation held out to the public generally, he is a transient only—a guest and not a boarder—and entitled to recover of the defendant innkeeper as such. Holstein v. Phillips, 146 N. C. 366, 59 S. E. 1037.

Same—Common Law Liability.—The decisions of this State are to the effect that, in the absence of statutory regulation, the keeper of a public inn, or hotel, which is the modern and more frequently used term, is responsible to his guest for the safety of the latter's goods, chattels, and money, when placed infra hospitum and which he has with him for the purposes of his journey. The proprietor is held to be an insurer to the extent that he must make good to the guest all loss or damage arising from any cause except the act of God or the public enemy, or the fault of the guest himself or his agents or servants. Quinton v. Courtney, 2 N. C. 40; Neal v. Wilcox, 49 N. C. 146; Holstein v. Phillips, 146 N. C. 366, 369, 59 S. E. 1037.

The exacting requirement of the common law, established in a ruder time, from reasons of public policy, in many instances and under modern conditions may operate with great harshness, and the matter has been very generally made the subject of legislation by which the landlord's obligations have been limited, both in kind and amount. Holstein v. Phillips, 146 N. C. 366, 369, 59 S. E. 1037.

Ordinary Care Now Required.—Even at a public inn or hotel, one who holds the position as a regular boarder or lodger can only hold the proprietor to the exercise of ordinary care on the part of himself and his employees. Holstein v. Phillips, 146 N. C. 366, 370, 59 S. E. 1037.

Liability for Personal Injuries.—The innkeeper is not insurer of his guest's personal safety, but his liability does extend to injuries received by the guest from being placed in an unsafe room. This is a matter peculiarly within the innkeeper's knowledge and entirely beyond the control of the guest. In that particular he is peculiarly within the innkeeper's power and protection. Ten Broeck v. Wells, 47 Fed. 679; Patrick v. Springs, 154 N. C. 270, 272, 70 S. E. 395.

Same—Negligence of Guest.—The guest must use reasonable care on his part to protect himself, and if he is himself negligent and could have avoided the injury by due care, he cannot recover. Patrick v. Springs, 154 N. C. 270, 273, 70 S. E. 395.

§ 2251. Safekeeping of valuables.—It is the duty of innkeepers, upon the request of any guest, to receive from said guest and safely keep money, jewelry and valuables to an amount not exceeding five hundred dollars; and no innkeeper shall be required to receive and take care of any money, jewelry or other valuables to a greater amount than five hundred dollars: Provided, the receipt given by said innkeeper to said guest shall have plainly printed upon it a copy of this section. No innkeeper shall be liable for the loss, damage or destruction of any money or jewels not so deposited. (Rev., s. 1911; 1903, c. 563, s. 3.)

§ 2253. Negligence of guest.—Any innkeeper against whom claim is made for loss sustained by a guest may show that such loss resulted from the negligence of such guest or of his failure to comply with the reasonable and proper regulations of the inn. (Rev., s. 1914; 1903, c. 563, s. 7.)

As to liability for personal injuries and effect of negligence of guest, see notes under sec. 2250; as to innkeeper's lien on baggage, see secs. 2461-2463.

Effect of Noncompliance with Section.—Where the provision of this section is not complied with the principle of the common law obtains and the keeper is liable as at common law. Holstein v. Phillips, 146 N. C. 366, 369, 59 S. E. 1037.

§ 2254(a). Admittance of dogs to bedrooms.—It shall be unlawful for any innkeeper or guest owning, keeping, or who has in care a dog or dogs, to permit such a dog or dogs admittance to any bedroom or rooms used for sleeping purposes in any inn or hotel.

Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall pay a fine not to exceed fifty dollars or be imprisoned not more than thirty days. (1927, c. 67.)

Art. 2. Sanitary Inspection and Conduct

§§ 2255-2276. Repealed by Public Laws 1921, c. 186, s. 22.

§ 2277. Annual inspection and certificate by state board of health.—For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this article the state board of health is authorized and required to inspect, through its officers or agents, without cost to the hotels or hospitals, all hotels and restaurants, hospitals and sanitariums, public and private, in the state once a year. If upon inspection of any hotel or restaurant, hospital or sanitarium, it shall be found that this article has been fully complied with, the secretary of the state board of health shall issue a certificate to that effect to the person operating the same, and such certificate shall be kept posted in plain view in some conspicuous place in said hotel or restaurant, hospital or sanitarium. (1917, c. 66, s. 23; 1923, c. 173.)

Editor's Note.—This section originally passed in 1917 was repealed along with secs. 2255 to 2283 inclusive, by Public Laws 1921, Chapter 186, sec. 22. However in 1923 this section was amended and reinstated in the Code, Public Laws, 1923, Chapter 173. The effect of the amendment was to include hospitals and sanitariums, public and private, under the provision for inspection by the State Board of Health.

§§ 2278-2283. Repealed by Public Laws 1921, c. 186, s. 22.

§ 2283(a). Definitions; "hotel"; "transient guest"; "restaurant".—A "hotel" within the meaning of this law is any inn or public lodging-house where transient guests are lodged for pay. The term "transient guest" within the meaning of this law shall mean one who puts up for less than one week at a time at such hotel. The term "restaurant" as used in this law shall include lunch counters, cafes and all other establishments whatsoever where lunches, meals or food in any form are prepared for and/or served to the public for immediate consumption. Nothing in this law shall be construed as affecting private boarding houses where the majority of the patrons receive boarding accommodations for periods of a week or longer at a time. (1921, c. 186, s. 1; 1935, c. 169.)

Editor's Note.—This section was so changed by the amendment that a comparison of the old with the new is necessary to determine the full extent.

§ 2283(b). Charges for rooms; posting.—Every transient hotel shall keep posted in a conspicuous place in the office a list of its charges for rooms, with or without meals, in accordance with the plan or plans on which the hotel is operated, giving the exact transient rate, and shall also keep posted in each room the rate for that room, with or without meals, in accordance with its plan as stated above, giving the transient rate per day and week, and the rate for each person in the room. (1921, c. 186, s. 2.)

§ 2283(c). Water-closets, bathrooms, and wash-bowls.—In all cities, towns, or villages where a system of water-works and sewerage is maintained for public use, every hotel therein accessible to water main and sewer main shall be equipped, within six months after March 8, 1921, with suitable water closets for the accomodation of its guests, which water-closets shall be connected and tapped by proper plumbing with such water and sewerage systems, and there shall be some adequate means of flushing said water-closets with the water in such manner as to prevent sewer gas from arising therefrom. The water-closets and bathrooms must be sufficiently lighted to permit the reading of ordinary newspaper type (18) inches from the normal eye. The washbowls of the main wash-room of such hotel must be connected and tapped and equipped in similar manner, both as to method and time; all such equipment to be paid for by the owner. (1921, c. 186, s. 3.)

§ 2283(d). Receptacles holding water screened. "Standing water" defined.—The proprietor of every hotel and restaurant shall keep all cisterns, tanks, and other receptacles containing standing water screened or otherwise so covered as to prevent the entrance of flies, mosquitoes, and other disease-carrying insects. The term "standing water" as used in this law shall mean water that remains for ten days or more in a cistern, tank, or other receptacle. (1921, c. 186, s. 4.)

§ 2283(e). Water to be analyzed. Discontinuance of use.—A sample of water used in every hotel and restaurant, except in cases where the water is derived from some public water supply, shall be sent by the proprietor to the state laboratory of hygiene for analysis twice each year, with a certificate that it is the water used in such hotel or restaurant, and if the sample is found by said laboratory to be unfit for the use that is made of the water in the hotel or restaurant, the further use of such water shall be discontinued until permission is granted by the state board of health to resume the use of such water. (1921, c. 186, s. 5.)

§ 2283(f). Door and window screens. Mosquito bar for beds. Fly paper and fly traps.—The proprietor or keeper of every hotel or restaurant shall keep screened the doors, windows, and all openings of the kitchen and dining-room with suitable mesh-wire gauze from the first of April to the first of December. Every hotel shall have all bedroom windows screened, or else provide each bed with a mosquito bar for the use of its patrons for protection against flies, mosquitoes and other insects, and it shall be the duty of the proprietor or keeper of every hotel and restaurant to use such other means, as fly-paper, fly-traps, etc., as may be necessary to keep the restaurant, kitchen, and dining-room reasonably free from flies. (1921, c. 186, s. 6.)

§ 2283(g). Minimum floor and air space. Beds.—In every sleeping room the minimum floor area shall be sixty (60) square feet per bed, and under no circumstances shall there be provided less than five hundred (500) cubic feet of air space per bed. There shall always be space in each room, and the arrangement of each room shall be such that there may be a space of two feet between any beds in the room. All beds shall be so arranged that the air shall circulate freely under each. In no hotel shall beds or bunks in the same room or apartment be placed one above another: Provided, that this section shall not apply in cases of emergency. (1921, c. 186, s. 7.)

§ 2283(h). Lighting of rooms. Window space. Blinds or shades.—Each room in every hotel hereafter constructed shall be well lighted, with outside window space not less than one-eighth (⅛) the floor space. Each window in every hotel now existing or thereafter constructed shall be provided with either blinds having hinges and shutters or slats freely movable and in good working order, or with a movable shade which effectively excludes the light when drawn. (1921, c. 186, s. 8.)

§ 2283(i). Pillow-slips and sheets; clean sets.—All hotels shall hereafter provide each bed, bunk, cot, or other sleeping place for the use of guests with pillow-slips, under and top sheets to be of sufficient width to cover the mattress thereof, and to be at least ninety (90) inches long. All pillow-slips and sheets, after being used by one guest, must be washed and ironed before used by another guest, a clean set being furnished each succeeding guest. (1921, c. 186, s. 9.)

§ 2283(j). Beds and furnishings to be kept clean and free from vermin.—All beds, bedclothing, mattresses, and pillows shall always be kept clean and free from vermin. (1921, c. 186, s. 10.)

§ 2283(k). Rooms to be disinfected and aired.—Every room, after being occupied by any one known or suspected to be suffering from tuberculosis, diphtheria, or any contagious disease, must be thoroughly disinfected as prescribed by the state board of health before further occupancy; and every room, after being occupied by any one known or suspected to be suffering from measles or whooping-cough, must be thoroughly aired for twenty-four (24) hours before subsequent occupancy. (1921, c. 186, s. 11.)

§ 2283(l). Towels.—All hotels shall furnish each guest with a clean towel; and the use of the roller or other towels used in common is prohibited in all hotels and restaurants. (1921, c. 186, s. 12.)

§ 2283(m). Refrigerators, ice boxes, and cold storage rooms. Kitchens.—The refrigerator, ice boxes, and cold-storage rooms of all hotels or restaurants must be kept free from foul and unpleasant odors, mold, and slime. The kitchen must be well lighted and ventilated, the floor clean, and the side walls and ceilings free from cobwebs and accumulated dirt. (1921, c. 186, s. 13.)

§ 2283(n). Tableware and kitchen utensils. Reservice of food.—All dishes, tableware, and kitchen utensils must be thoroughly washed and rinsed with clean water after using; food served to customers when part of same has been used must not again be served to other customers. (1921, c. 186, s. 14.)

§ 2283(o). Protection and removal of garbage. —All garbage must be kept covered and protected from flies, in barrels or galvanized iron cans, and removed at least twice a week. (1921, c. 186, s. 15.)

§ 2283(p). Requirements for lodging-houses.— Every lodging-house accepting transient guests shall at all times be kept free from filth and rubbish in or on the premises belonging to or connected with the same. All water-closets, washbasins, baths, windows, fixtures, fittings, and painted surface shall at all times be kept clean and in good repair. The floors, walls, and ceilings of all rooms, passages, and stairways must at all times be clean and in good repair. (1921, c. 186, s. 16.)

§ 2283(q). Rules prescribed by state board of health. Inspections. Rating. — For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this law the state board of health is authorized and required to prepare reasonable rules and regulations, and an official score card for showing numerically the rating of hotels and restaurants that come within the meaning of this law. The state board of health, through its officers or agents, shall inspect all hotels and restaurants coming within the meaning of this law at least once a year, and give to every hotel and restaurant inspected a rating in accordance with the aforementioned score card. It shall be the duty of the inspector to leave with the management of said hotel or restaurant at the time of inspection a copy of his report. The said board shall publish at various times the ratings given to the various hotels and restaurants that have been inspected by its officers or agents, and shall furnish to each hotel and restaurant a certificate with the rating given to the hotel stated thereon. The proprietor or manager of the hotel or restaurant, upon the receipt of the aforesaid certificate, shall post it in a conspicuous place where it may be easily observed by guests, and shall remove and destroy the said certificate one year after the date written thereon, or sooner when called upon to do so by an officer or agent of the state board of health. (1921, c. 186, s. 17.)

§ 2283(r). Annual inspections. Certificates. — No inspection of any hotel or restaurant shall be required oftener than once a year, unless there is a change of proprietors, or unless it shall appear to the state board of health that additional inspections are advisable, or upon complaint from two or more persons setting forth facts indicating that such hotel or restaurant is in an unsanitary condition and not maintained in accordance with the requirements of this law: Provided, however, upon request on the part of the management or proprietor a reinspection may be had within a period of thirty (30) days. When more than one inspection of a hotel or restaurant is made within any one year, the state board of health shall issue a new certificate of inspection, and upon the receipt of the new certificate the proprietor or manager of the hotel or restaurant shall remove and destroy the certificate previously issued and replace it with the later certificate. (1921, c. 186, s. 18.)

Editor's Note.—This section would seem to supersede sec. 2277 which was repealed by this act. But see note to sec. 2277.

§ 2283(s). Authority of inspectors. Privacy of guests.—The inspectors, officers, or agents of the state board of health are empowered and authorized to enter any hotel or restaurant at all reasonable hours to make such inspection; and it is the duty of every person in the management or control of such hotel or restaurant to afford free access to every part of the hotel or restaurant and render all aid and assistance necessary to enable the inspector to make a full, thorough, and complete examination thereof; but no inspector shall violate the privacy of any guest without his or her consent. (1921, c. 186, s. 19.)

§ 2283(t). Acts and omissions constituting misdemeanor; punishment. — Any owner, manager, agent, or person in charge of a hotel or restaurant, or any other person who shall willfully obstruct, hinder, or interfere with any officer or agent of the state board of health in the proper discharge of his duty, or who shall willfully fail or neglect to comply with any of the provisions of this law, or who shall maintain or operate a hotel or restaurant which, under the requirements and provisions of this law, shall be found to have a rating of less than 70 shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction fined not less than $10 nor more than $50 for each offense, and each day that he shall fail to comply with this law or maintain his hotel or restaurant with a rating of more than 70 points shall be a separate offense. (1921, c. 186, s. 20.)

§ 2283(u). Inspector to swear out warrants.— It shall be the duty of the inspector, in case he shall have knowledge of any violation of this law, to swear out a warrant against the person offending. (1921, c. 186, s. 21.)

Art. 3. Immoral Practices of Guests of Hotels and Lodging-houses

§ 2283(v). Registration to be in true name; addresses; peace officers.—No person shall write, or cause to be written, or if in charge of a register knowingly permit to be written, in any register in any lodging-house or hotel any other or different name or designation than the true name or names in ordinary use of the person registering or causing himself to be registered therein. Any person occupying any room or rooms in any lodging-house or hotel shall register or cause himself to be registered where registration is required by such lodging-house or hotel. Any person registering or causing himself to be registered at any lodging-house or hotel, shall write, or cause to be written, in the register of such lodging-house or hotel the correct address of the person registering, or causing himself to be registered. Any person violating any provision of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine not exceeding two hundred dollars ($200). This section shall not apply to any peace officer of this state who shall privately give his true name to the clerk or proprietor of such hotel or lodging-house. (1921, c. 111.)

INSANE PERSONS AND INCOMPETENTS

Art. 1. Inebriates

§ 2284. Inebriates defined. — Any person who habitually, whether continuously or periodically, indulges in the use of intoxicating liquors, narcotics or drugs to such an extent as to stupefy his mind and to render him incompetent to transact ordinary business with safety to his estate, or who renders himself, by reason of the use of intoxicating liquors, narcotics or drugs, dangerous to person or property, or who, by the frequent use of liquor, narcotics or drugs, renders himself cruel and intolerable to his family, or fails from such cause to provide his family with reasonable necessities of life, shall be deemed an inebriate: Provided, the habit of so indulging in such use is at the time of inquisition of at least one year's standing. (Rev., s. 1892; Code, s. 1671; 1891, c. 15, s. 7; 1903, c. 543; 1879, c. 329.)

Art. 2. Guardianship and Management of Estates of Incompetents

§ 2285. Inquisition of lunacy; appointment of guardian.—Any person, in behalf of one who is deemed an idiot, inebriate, or lunatic, or incompetent from want of understanding to manage his own affairs by reason of the excessive use of intoxicating drinks, or other cause, may file a petition before the clerk of the superior court of the county where such supposed idiot, inebriate or lunatic resides, setting forth the facts, duly verified by the oath of the petitioner; whereupon such clerk shall issue an order, upon notice to the supposed idiot, inebriate or lunatic, to the sheriff of the county, commanding him to summon a jury of twelve men to inquire into the state of such supposed idiot, inebriate or lunatic. Upon the return of the sheriff summoning said jury, the clerk of the superior court shall swear and organize said jury and shall preside over said hearing, and the jury shall make return of their proceedings under their hand to the clerk, who shall file and record the same; and he shall proceed to appoint a guardian of any person so found to be an idiot, inebriate, lunatic, or incompetent person by inquisition of a jury, as in cases of orphans.

Either the applicant or the supposed idiot, inebriate, lunatic, or incompetent person may appeal from the finding of said jury to the next term of the superior court, when the matters at issue shall be regularly tried de novo before a jury, and pending such appeal, the clerk of the superior court shall not appoint a guardian for the said supposed idiot, inebriate, lunatic, or incompetent person, but the resident judge of the district, or the judge presiding in the district, may in his discretion appoint a temporary receiver for the alleged incompetent pending the appeal. The trial of said appeal in the superior court shall have precedence over all other causes.

The jury shall make return of their proceedings under their hands to the clerk, who shall file and record the same; and he shall proceed to appoint a guardian of any person so found to be an idiot, inebriate, lunatic or incompetent person by inquisition of a jury, as in cases of orphans. If the person so adjudged incompetent shall be an inebriate within the definition of section two thousand two hundred and eighty-four, the clerk shall proceed to commit said inebriate to the department for inebriates at the state hospital in Raleigh for treatment and cure. He shall forward to the superintendent of said state hospital a copy of the record required herein to be made, together with the commitment, and these shall constitute the authority to said superintendent to receive and care for and cure said inebriate. The expenses of the care and cure of said inebriate shall constitute a charge against the estate in the care of his guardian. If, however, such estate is not large enough to pay such expenses, the same shall be a valid charge against the county from which said inebriate is sent. Provided, where the person is found to be incompetent from want of understanding to manage his affairs, by reason of physical and mental weakness on account of old age and/or disease and/or other like infirmities, the clerk may appoint a trustee instead of guardian for said person. The trustee appointed shall be subject to the laws now or which hereinafter may be enacted for the control and handling of estates by guardians. The clerks of the superior courts who have heretofore appointed guardians for persons described in this proviso are hereby authorized and empowered to change said appointment from guardian to trustee. The sheriffs of the several counties to whom a process is directed under the provisions of this section shall serve the same without demanding their fees in advance. And the juries of the several counties upon whom a process is served under the provisions of this section shall serve and make their returns without demanding their fees in advance. (Rev., s. 1890; Code, s. 1670; C. C. P., s. 473; 1919, c. 54; 1921, c. 156, s. 1; 1929, c. 203, s. 1; 1933, c. 192.)

Cross References.—For a general discussion of this subject, see 7 Enc. Dig. 737 et seq., 14 Enc. Dig. 438, et seq.; as to the appointment and duties of guardians, see section 2150 et seq., 6 Enc. Dig. 911 et seq., 14 Enc. Dig. 278 et seq.

Editor's Note.—In 1784 (Laws 1784, ch. 228) the county courts were authorized and required to appoint guardians for any idiot or lunatic possessed of property, either real or personal, upon the finding of a jury of idiocy or lunacy; and later other classes of persons than idiots and lunatics were added, for whom guardians may be appointed. Those added classes are "inebriates and those who are incompetent for want of understanding to manage their own affairs by reason of the excessive use of intoxicating drinks or other cause." These additions were made originally in the Code of Civil Procedure, and have been brought forward in subsequent codes.

This section was amended in 1919, Acts 1919, ch. 54, and the right of appeal given to the parties.

In 1921, Acts 1921, ch. 156, sec. 1, this section was again amended and the latter portion, regarding the commitment of inebriates to the State hospital, was added.

The Act of 1929 added the proviso to this section.

Public Laws 1933, c. 192, added the last two sentences abolishing advanced fees of sheriffs and juries.

General Consideration.—This section clearly makes four classes of persons for whom guardians may be appointed, namely, idiots, lunatics, inebriates, and those who are incompetent from want of understanding to manage their own affairs by reason of the excessive use of intoxicating drinks or other cause.

(1) An idiot or natural fool is one that has no understanding from his nativity.

(2) A lunatic is one who has possessed reason, but through disease, grief, or other cause has lost it. The term is especially applicable to one who has lucid intervals and may yet in contemplation of the law recover his reason.

(3) An inebriate is defined in sec. 2284.

(4) The fourth class of persons mentioned in this section must really be embraced under the head of lunatics, that is, their want of understanding in order to render them incompetent to manage their own affairs must be complete. As in lunacy, there must be a total privation of understanding; mere weakness of mind will not be sufficient to place a person in the list of those described in the fourth class mentioned in the statute. In re Anderson, 132 N. C. 243, 246, 43 S. E. 649.

Distribution as to Jurisdiction.—The effect of this action has been to confer upon the clerks original and exclusive jurisdiction to issue writs from time to time, as may be necessary, for the purpose of ascertaining, by the inquisition of a jury, whether a party be an idiot or a lunatic, or, if he had been once found to be a lunatic, whether he had become of sound mind again; and to make all orders that may be necessary upon the return of the inquisition. After an idiot or lunatic has been thus found to be such, and put under guardianship, a court of equity has jurisdiction over his estate, both real and personal, and has power to direct the sale of the same, or any part thereof, and to make all needful orders for the application of the proceeds to the necessities of the idiot or lunatic and his family. Dowell v. Jacks, 58 N. C. 417, 419.

An affidavit filed in accordance with this section, confers jurisdiction upon the clerk, and although the clerk's order of commitment be without warrant of law, the Superior Court obtains jurisdiction upon appeal from the denial of the motion before the clerk to strike out the order, which motion expressly requested that the cause "be reinstated upon the docket." In re Dewey, 206 N. C. 714, 175 S. E. 161.

Presence of Party.—The alleged lunatic has a right to be present at the inquest, and if this right be denied him, it is good cause for setting aside the inquisition. But where an inquisition, taken by order of a court of competent jurisdiction, is returned to and confirmed by the court, it is to be respected like other judgments of a court, until it be reversed or superseded. Bethea v. McLennon, 23 N. C. 523, cited in note in 23 L. R. A. 742.

A finding of the jury that a person, the subject of an inquisition of lunacy, is incompetent from want of understanding to manage his own affairs is such as to require the clerk to appoint a guardian for him, whatever the cause may be. In re Denny, 150 N. C. 423, 64 S. E. 187. And this is true even where the jury finds that the defendant is not a lunatic or idiot. In re Anderson, 132 N. C. 243, 43 S. E. 649, or that defendant was not wholly deprived of reason. In re Denny, 150 N. C. 423, 64 S. W. 187; In re Anderson, 132 N. C. 243, 43 S. E. 649.

Confirmation of Finding.—The report of the jury need not be formally "confirmed" by the clerk as the statute only requires it to be "filed and recorded." Sims v. Sims, 121 N. C. 297, 28 S. E. 407.

Conclusiveness of Adjudication.—An inquisition of lunacy finding a person a lunatic, is only prima facie evidence of the fact, and may be rebutted by proof. Christmas v. Mitchell, 38 N. C. 535.

§ 2286. Guardian appointed on certificate from hospital for insane — If any person is confined in any hospital for insane persons in any State, territorial or Governmental asylum or hospital, in this State, or in any other state or territory, or in the District of Columbia, the certificate of the superintendent of such hospital declaring such person to be of insane mind and memory, which certificate shall be sworn to and subscribed before the clerk of the Superior Court or any notary public, or the clerk of any court of record in the county, in which such hospital is situated and certified under the seal of court, shall be sufficient evidence to authorize to appoint a guardian for such idiot, lunatic or insane person. Further, the clerks of the different counties of this State are also authorized to appoint guardians for any person entitled to the benefits of the War Risk Insurance Act, as amended, and the World War Veterans' Act of nineteen hundred and twenty-four as amended, where it shall appear from the certificate of the Regional Medical Officer of the United States Veterans' Bureau of North Carolina that such veterans of the World War has been declared by the United States Government as incompetent to receive the funds to be paid to him under said Acts of Congress, and such certificate shall be all the proof required as to the incapacity of said veteran to receive such funds and as to the necessity of a guardian. Guardians for such veterans shall be subject to the same provisions of law as guardians of idiots, inebriates, lunatics, and incompetent persons in this State. (Rev., ss. 1891, 4609; Code, s. 1673; 1860-1, c. 22; 1907, c. 232; 1927, c. 160, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—This section was amended in 1927, Public Laws 1927, ch. 160, and the latter part of the section, relating to appointment of guardians for World War veterans, was added.

Certificate Must Be from Superintendent of Government Hospital.—The certificates of the superintendents of hospitals for the insane, which are to be received as sufficient evidence for the clerk to appoint a guardian for an insane person, relate to the superintendents of such hospitals under governmental control, and do not include within the meaning of the statute superintendents of private institutions of this character, and the appointment by the clerk of guardians ad litem on their certificates is void. Groves v. Ware, 182 N. C. 553, 109 S. E. 568.

Cited in Somers v. Board of Commissioners, 123 N. C. 582, 585, 31 S. E. 873.

§ 2287. Restoration to sanity or sobriety; effect; how determined. — When any insane person or inebriate becomes of sound mind and memory, or becomes competent to manage his property, he is authorized to manage, sell and control all his property in as full and ample a manner as he could do before he became insane or inebriate, and a petition in behalf of such person may be filed before the clerk of the superior court of the county of his residence, setting forth the facts, duly verified by the oath of the petitioner, whereupon the clerk shall issue an order, upon notice to the person alleged to be no longer insane or inebriate, to the sheriff of the county, commanding him to summon a jury of six freeholders to inquire into the sanity of the alleged sane person, formerly a lunatic, or the sobriety of such alleged restored person, formerly an inebriate. The jury shall make return of their proceedings under their hands to the clerk, who shall file and record the same, if the jury find that the person whose mental or physical condition inquired of is sane and of sound mind and memory, or is no longer an inebriate, as the case may be, the said person is authorized to manage his affairs, make contracts and sell his property, both real and personal, as if he had never been insane or inebriate. (Rev., s. 1893; Code, s. 1672; 1901, c. 191; 1903, c. 80; 1879, c. 324, s. 4.)

Constitutionality of Section.—The constitutional provision preserving the right to a trial by jury applies only to cases in which the prerogative existed at common law or by statute at the time the Constitution was adopted, and this section, requiring that only six freeholders shall be summoned to inquire into the sanity of the person alleged to be insane, is constitutional, not requiring a jury of twelve. Groves v. Ware, 182 N. C. 553, 109 S. E. 568.

Removal of Guardian.—Ex parte proceedings to remove a guardian of an insane person, without notice to such guardian, are void. Sims v. Sims, 121 N. C. 297, 28 S. E. 407, 40 L. R. A. 737, 61 Am. St. Rep. 665.

§ 2288. Legal rights restored upon certificate of sanity by superintendent of hospital. — Any person who has been declared of unsound mind and memory under the section 2286, and for whom a guardian has been appointed, may be fully restored to his rights to manage his or her property by a certificate from the superintendent of the hospital where such person of unsound mind and memory has been confined stating that such insane person has been restored to sound mind and memory. This certificate shall be sworn to and subscribed before the clerk of the superior court or notary public for the county in which the hospital wherein such person has been confined is located, and certified under the seal of said court to the clerk of the superior court of the county wherein said person has his legal residence immediately before being declared of unsound mind and memory. The clerk of such resident county shall record the certificate and immediately issue a notice to the guardian of such person, requiring him to file his final account within sixty days from the date of service of the notice. From the date of docketing the record of such certificate the person formerly of unsound mind and memory shall be restored to all his legal rights. (1909, c. 176.)

§ 2289. Estates without guardian managed by clerk. — When any person is declared to be of non-sane mind or inebriate, and no suitable person will act as his guardian, the clerk shall secure the estate of such person according to the law relating to orphans whose guardians have been removed. (Rev., s. 1894; Code, s. 1676; R. C., c. 57, s. 6; 1846, c. 43, s. 1.)

As to prosecution of Guardian's bond, see sec. 2199; as to judge's appointment of clerk to manage ward's estate, see sec. 2200.

How Receiver Appointed.—The appointment of a receiver for an insane person's estate should be made only on the motion of the solicitor, after the wife and one or more adult children, if there are such, or some near relative or friend, have been brought before the judge at chambers or in term. In re Hybart, 119 N. C. 359, 25 S. E. 963.

Cited in Smith v. Smith, 106 N. C. 498, 11 S. E. 188.

§ 2290. Allowance to abandoned insane wife. —When any insane wife is abandoned by her husband, she may, by her guardian, or next friend, in case there be no guardian, apply to the clerk of the superior court for support and maintenance, which the clerk may decree as in cases of alimony, out of any property or estate of her husband. (Rev., s. 1895; Code, s. 1686; 1858-9, c. 52, s. 1.)

§ 2290(a). Renewal of obligations. — In all cases where an inebriate, lunatic, or incompetent, from want of understanding to manage his or her own affairs by reason of the excessive use of intoxicating drinks or other causes, and such inebriate, lunatic, or incompetent has been so judicially declared and pursuant to such judicial finding such inebriate, lunatic, or incompetent has had a guardian appointed, is the maker or one of the makers, a surety, or one of the sureties, an endorser or one of the endorsers of any note, bond or other obligation, for the payment of money which is due or past due at the time of the appointment of said guardian, or shall thereafter become due prior to the settlement of the estate of the said ward, the guardian of said ward's estate is hereby authorized and empowered to execute as such guardian a new note, bond or other obligation for the payment of money, in the same capacity as ward was obligated for the same amount or less, but not greater than the sum due on the original obligation which shall be in lieu of the original obligation of the ward, whether made payable to the original holder or another, and is authorized and empowered to renew said note, bond, or other obligation for the payment of money from time to time, and said note, bond or other obligation for the payment of money so executed by said guardian shall be binding upon the estate of said ward to the same extent and in the same manner and with the same effect that the original note, bond or other obligation for the payment of money so executed by the ward was binding upon his estate: Provided, the time for final payment of the note, bond or other obligation for the payment of money, or any renewal thereof by said guardian shall not extend beyond a period of two years from the qualification of the original guardian as such upon the estate of said ward. (1927, c. 45, s. 1.)

§ 2290(b). Guardian not liable.—The execution of any note, bond or other obligation for the payment of money mentioned in the preceding section of this act by the guardian of the inebriate, lunatic, or incompetent, shall not be held or construed to be binding upon the said guardian personally. (1927, c. 45, s. 2.)

Art. 3. Sales of Estates

§ 2291. Clerk may order sale, renting or mortgage.—When it appears to any clerk of the superior court by report of the guardian of any idiot, inebriate or lunatic, that his personal estate has been exhausted, or is insufficient for his support, and that he is likely to become chargeable on the county, the clerk may make an order for the sale, mortgage or renting of his personal or real estate, or any part thereof, in such manner and upon such terms as he may deem advisable. Such order shall specify particularly the property thus to be disposed of, with the terms of renting or sale, or mortgage, and shall be entered at length on the records of the court; and all sales and rentings and conveyances by mortgages or deeds of trust made under this section shall be valid to convey the interest and estate directed to be sold or conveyed by mortgage or deed of trust, and the title thereof shall be conveyed by such person as the clerk may appoint on confirming the sale; or the clerk may direct the guardian to file his petition for such purpose. (Rev., s. 1896; Code, s. 1674; R. C., c. 57, s. 4; 1801, c. 589; 1931, c. 184, s. 1.)

Cross References.—See annotations under the succeeding section. As to powers and duties of receivers appointed by the court, see sec. 2200 and annotations thereunder.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 amended this and § 2292 to permit the mortgaging, under order of the Clerk of the Superior Court, of the personal or real estate of any idiot, inebriate, or lunatic in order that such incompetent may be adequately supported, his debts paid, or his property disposed of if such disposal be to his best interests. Under the former law his property could only be sold or rented. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 392.

Judicial Character of Sales.—Sales of real property of a lunatic in proceedings before the proper probate judge or clerk of the superior court of North Carolina acting as a probate court are judicial sales. Rexford v. Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., 181 Fed. 462.

§ 2292. Purposes for which estate sold or mortgaged; parties; disposition of proceeds. — When it appears to the clerk, upon the petition of the guardian of any idiot, inebriate or lunatic, that a sale or mortgage of any part of his real or personal estate is necessary for his maintenance, or for the discharge of debts unavoidably incurred for his maintenance, or when the clerk is satisfied that the interest of the idiot, inebriate or lunatic would be materially and essentially promoted by the sale or mortgage of any part of such estate; or when any part of his real estate is required for public purposes, the clerk may order a sale thereof to be made by such person, in such way and on such terms as he shall adjudge. The clerk, if it be deemed proper, may direct to be made parties to such petition the next of kin or presumptive heirs of such nonsane person or inebriate. And if on the hearing the clerk orders such sale or mortgage, the same shall be made and the proceeds applied and secured, and shall descend and be distributed in like manner as is provided for the sale of infants' estates decreed in like cases to be sold on application of their guardians, as directed in the chapter entitled Guardians. The word "mortgage" whenever used herein shall be construed to include deeds in trust. (Rev., s. 1897; Code s. 1675; R. C., c. 57, s. 5; 1931, c. 184, s. 2.)

See note under § 2291.

Jurisdiction of Superior Court as to Prior Debts.—The superior courts have jurisdiction to hear and determine an action instituted by a creditor of a lunatic for the recovery of a debt contracted prior to the lunacy. Blake v. Respass, 77 N. C. 193.

Clerk Has Power to Pay Prior Debts of Lunatic.—This section confers no power upon the clerk to provide for the payment of the debts of a lunatic contracted prior to the lunacy. Blake v. Respass, 77 N. C. 193.

How Property Sold for Pre-Existing Debt.—Property of a lunatic in the hands of a committee is to be regarded as in custodia legis, and no creditor can reach it for a debt pre-existing the inquisition of lunacy, except through the order of the superior court; and that order is never made until a sufficiency for the support of the lunatic and that of his family, if minors, is first ascertained and set apart. Adams v. Thomas, 81 N. C. 296.

Sale of Lunatic's Contingent Interest.—This section does not confer jurisdiction on the clerks of courts to order the sale of contingent interests of lunatics, in lands; and suits to sell such interests, when the circumstances of the lunatic require it, should be determined in the superior court, in its equitable jurisdiction. Smith v. Witter, 174 N. C. 616, 94 S. E. 402.

Clerk's Jurisdiction Not Affected by Petition for Sale.—The probate court having jurisdiction of a petition for the allottment of a maintenance for a lunatic and his family, to discharge debts unavoidably incurred for that purpose, and to direct sales of real estate to provide a fund therefor, and also to make provision for the care and preservation of the lunatic's estate, it was not ousted of jurisdiction because the guardian's petition also prayed for a sale to provide for the payment of pre-existing debts. Rexford v. Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., 181 Fed. 462.

Title of Purchaser.—A purchaser of real property at a sale held by a lunatic's commissioner under a probate order is not chargeable with errors or irregularities in the proceedings; it is sufficient, if the court had jurisdiction of the parties and subject-matter, that the commissioner acted under a decree purporting to confer power of sale. Rexford v. Brunswick Balke-Collender Co., 181 Fed. 462.

How Judgment against Lunatic Satisfied.—If the lunatic has property which cannot be reached by execution, the court will ascertain its character and value, and then direct the guardian to apply to the clerk to ascertain and set apart a sufficiency for the support of the lunatic, out of the fund, and, in the meantime, stay further proceedings, and then apply the excess, if any, in satisfaction of the judgment. Blake v. Respass, 77 N. C. 193, 196.

§ 2293. Sale of land of wife of lunatic upon petition.—Where the wife of a lunatic owns real estate in her own right the sale of which will promote her interest, a sale of the same may be made upon the order of the clerk of the superior court of the county where the land lies, upon the petition of the wife of said lunatic and the guardian of the lunatic husband, and the proceeds of said sale shall be paid to the wife of said lunatic. (Rev., s. 1898; Code, s. 1687; 1881, c. 361.)

See sec. 2529 and annotations thereunder.

Section Not Mandatory.—The remedies given by this section and sec. 2529 are in the alternative, and optional by the wife as to which may be pursued. Lancaster v. Lancaster, 178 N. C. 22, 100 S. E. 120.

§ 2294. Wife of insane person entitled to special proceeding for sale of his property. — Every woman whose husband is a lunatic or insane and is confined in an asylum in this state, and who was living with her husband at the time he was committed to such asylum, if she be in needy circumstances, shall have the right to bring a special proceeding before the clerk of the superior court to sell the property of her insane husband, or so much thereof as is deemed expedient, and have the proceeds applied to her support: Provided, that said proceeding shall be approved by the judge of the superior court holding the courts of the judicial district where the said property is situated. When the deed of the commissioner appointed by the court, conveying the lands belonging to the insane husband is executed, probated, and registered, it conveys a good and indefeasible title to the purchaser. (1911, c. 142, ss. 1, 2.)

Art. 3A. Mortgage or Sale of Estates Held by the Entireties

§ 2294(1). Where one spouse or both incompetent; special proceeding before clerk.—In all cases where a husband and wife shall be seized of property as an estate by the entireties, and the wife or the husband or both shall be or become mentally incompetent to execute a conveyance of the estate so held, and the interest of said parties shall make it necessary or desirable that such property be mortgaged or sold, it shall be lawful for the mentally competent spouse and/or the guardian of the mentally incompetent spouse, and/or the guardians of both (where both are mentally incompetent) to file a petition with the clerk of the superior court in the county where the lands are located, setting forth all facts relative to the status of the owners, and showing the necessity or desirability of the sale or mortgage of said property, and the clerk, after first finding as a fact that either the husband or wife, or both, are mentally incompetent, shall have power to authorize the interested parties and/or their guardians to execute a mortgage, deed of trust, deed, or other conveyance of such property, provided it shall appear to said clerk's satisfaction that same is necessary or to the best advanage of the parties, and not prejudicial to the interest of the mentally incompetent spouse. (1935, c. 59, s. 1.)

§ 2294(2). General law applicable; approved by judge.—The proceedings herein provided for shall be conducted under and shall be governed by laws pertaining to special proceedings, and it shall be necessary for any sale or mortgage or other conveyance herein authorized to be approved by the resident judge or the judge holding the courts in the judicial district wherein the property is located. (1935, c. 59, s. 2.)

§ 2294(3). Proceeding valid in passing title. — Any mortgage, deed, or deed of trust executed under authority of this article by a regularly conducted special proceeding as provided shall have the force and effect of passing title to said property to the same extent as a deed executed jointly by husband and wife, where both are mentally capable of executing a conveyance. (1935, c. 59, s. 3.)

§ 2294(4). Clerk may direct application of funds; purchasers and mortgages protected. — In all cases conducted under this article it shall be competent for the court, in its discretion, to direct the application of funds arising from a sale or mortgage of such property in such manner as may appear necessary or expedient for the protection of the interest of the mentally incompetent spouse: Provided, however, this section shall not be construed as requiring a purchaser or any other party advancing money on the property to see to the proper application of such money, but such purchaser or other party shall acquire title unaffected by the provisions of this section. (1935, c. 59, s. 4.)

§ 2294(5). Prior sales and mortgages validated. — Any and all special proceedings under which estates by the entireties have been heretofore sold or mortgaged under circumstances contemplated in this article are hereby in all respects ratified and confirmed, provided that such proceeding or proceedings are otherwise regular and conformable to law. (1935, c. 59, s. 5.)

Art. 4. Surplus Income and Advancements

§ 2295. Income of insane widowed mother used for children's support.—When a father dies leaving his surviving minor children and a widow who is the mother of such children, but leaving no sufficient estate for the support and maintenance and education of such minor children, and the mother is or becomes insane and is so declared according to law, and such insanity continues for twelve months thereafter, and she has an estate which is placed in the hands of a guardian or other person, as provided by law, the estate of such insane mother shall in such cases as are provided for in the succeeding section be made liable for the support, maintenance and education of the class of persons mentioned in said section to the same extent, in the same manner and under the same rules and regulations as applies to estates of fathers thereunder. (Rev., s. 1899; 1905, c. 546.)

§ 2295(a). Advancement to adult child or grandchild.—When such non-sane person is possessed of a real or personal estate in excess of an amount more than sufficient to abundantly and amply support himself with all the necessaries and suitable comforts of life and has no minor children nor immediate family dependent upon him for support, education or maintenance, such advancements may be made out of such excess of the principal of his estate to such child or grandchild of age for the better promotion or advancement in life or in business of such child or grandchild: Provided, that the order for such advancement shall be approved by the resident or presiding judge of the district who shall find the facts in said order of approval. (Rev., s. 1899, 1905, c. 546; 1925, c. 136, s. 1.)

§ 2296. Advancement of surplus income to next of kin.—When any non-sane person, of full age, and not having made a valid will, has children or grandchildren (such grandchildren being the issue of a deceased child), and is possessed of an estate, real or personal, whose annual income is more than sufficient abundantly and amply to support himself, and to support, maintain and educate the members of his family, with all the necessaries and suitable comforts of life, it is lawful for the clerk of the superior court for the county in which such person has his residence to order from time to time, and so often as may be judged expedient, that fit and proper advancements be made, out of the surplus of such income, to any such child, or grandchild, not being a member of his family and entitled to be supported, educated and maintained out of the estate of such person. Whenever any non-sane person of full age, not being married and not having issue, be possessed, or his guardian be possessed for him, of any estate, real or personal, or of an income which is more than sufficient amply to provide for such person, it shall be lawful for the clerk of the Superior Court for the county in which such person resided prior to insanity to order from time to time, and so often as he may deem expedient, that fit and proper advancements be made, out of the surplus of such estate or income, to his or her parents, brothers and sisters, or grandparents to whose support, prior to his insanity, he contributed in whole or in part. (Rev., s. 1900; Code, s. 1677; R. C., c. 57, s. 9; 1924, c. 93.)

§ 2297. For what purpose and to whom advanced. — Such advancements shall be ordered only for the better promotion in life of such as are of age, or married, and for the maintenance, support and education of such as are under the age of twenty-one years and unmarried; and in all cases the sums ordered shall be paid to such persons as, in the opinion of the clerk, will most effectually execute the purpose of the advancement. (Rev., s. 1901; Code, s. 1678; R. C., c. 57, s. 10.)

§ 2299. Advancements to be equal; accounted for on death.—The clerk, in ordering such advancements, shall, as far as practicable, so order the same as that, on the death of the non-sane person, his estate shall be distributed among his distributees in the same equal manner as if the advancements had been made by the person himself; and on his death every sum advanced to a child or grandchild shall be an advancement, and shall bear interest from the time it may be received. (Rev., s. 1903; Code, s. 1680; R. C., c. 57, s. 12.)

§ 2300. Clerk may select those to advance.—When the surplus aforesaid or advancement from the principal estate is not sufficient to make distribution among all the parties, the clerk may select and decree advancement to such of them as may most need the same, and may apportion the sum decreed in such amounts as are expedient and proper. (Rev., s. 1904; Code, s. 1681; R. C., c. 57, s. 13; 1925, c. 136, s. 2.)

§ 2301. Advancements to be secured against waste.—It is the duty of the clerk to withhold advancements from such persons as will probably waste them, or so to secure the same, when they may have families, that it may be applied to their support and comfort; but any sum so advanced shall be regarded as an advancement to such persons. (Rev., s. 1905; Code, s. 1682; R. C., c. 57, s. 14.)

§ 2302. Appeal: removal to superior court.—Any person made a party may appeal from any order of the clerk; or may, when the pleadings are finished, require that all further proceedings shall be had in the superior court. (Rev., s. 1906; Code, s. 1683; R. C., c. 57, s. 15.)

§ 2303. Advancements only when insanity permanent. — No such application shall be allowed under this chapter but in cases of such permanent and continued insanity as that the nonsane person shall be judged by the clerk to be incapable, not withstanding any lucid intervals, to make advancements with prudence and discretion. (Rev., s. 1907; Code, s. 1684; R. C., c. 57, s. 16.)

§ 2304. Decrees suspended upon restoration of sanity.—Upon such insane person being restored to sanity, every order made for advancements shall cease to be further executed, and his estate shall be discharged of the same. (Rev., s. 1908; Code, s. 1685; R. C., c. 57, s. 17.)

Art. 5. Detention, Treatment, and Cure of Inebriates

§ 2304(a). "Inebriate" defined.—For the purposes of this law, the word "inebriate" is defined to be a person habitually so addicted to alcoholic drinks or narcotic drugs as to be a proper subject for restraint, care, and treatment. (1921, c. 156, s. 2.)

§ 2304(b). Petition for examination. Warrant for hearing. Action without petition. Evidence.—Upon petition of two citizens, who shall be either the wife, husband, parent, child, committee of the estate of an inebriate, or next friends of such person, the clerk of the superior court of the county in which said alleged inebriate resides shall issue his warrant requiring the inebriate, on a day fixed, to be brought into court for hearing. The petition shall not be considered unless it sets forth that the person named therein is an inebriate within the scope of this law, and unless it be accompanied by the affidavit or affidavits of at least two reputable physicians, stating that they have examined the alleged inebriate, and that he is a proper subject for restraint, care, and treatment, or the clerk may, on his own initiative, where he has information and reasonable grounds to believe that a particular person is an inebriate and is a fit subject for restraint, care, and treatment, cause such person to be brought before him and proceed to hear and try the question of whether or not he is an inebriate within the definition of the preceding section. If two reputable physicians shall certify before him that such person is an inebriate, he may commit such an inebriate as herein provided to the department of the state hospital at Raleigh provided for the care and treatment of such inebriate. (1921, c. 156, s. 3.)

§ 2304(c). Commitment for treatment; discharge.—If after such hearing the clerk is satisfied that the alleged inebriate is a proper subject for restraint, care, and treatment, he shall commit the inebriate to the department for inebriates at the state hospital in Raleigh, where he shall be treated, subject to the same rules and regulations as provided for the treatment and cure of curable insane persons, and he shall be discharged therefrom under the same rules and regulations. (1921, c. 156, s. 4.)

§ 2304(d). Inquiry as to estate of inebriate. Minors. Costs. Expenses.—After the clerk shall determine that an inebriate is a fit subject to be committed to the department for inebriates as aforesaid, he shall go further and inquire as to whether said inebriate is indigent or not in such way that he has not in his own right sufficient estate or property to bear the cost and expense of his restraint, care, and treatment while in the institution. If he is so indigent, then he shall inquire further whether or not the petitioning wife or husband has sufficient estate to pay such costs. If the inebriate is a minor he shall determine whether his particular guardian or parent has sufficient estate of the inebriate or his own, if a parent, to pay such costs. In any of these instances, if sufficient estate or property is found to pay such costs, the clerk shall adjudge the payment from such estate, and in all cases, if the petitioning parent has property sufficient to pay, he shall be adjudged to pay costs of the treatment of his minor child. But if in none of these cases sufficient property is found to pay such costs and expenses, the inebriate shall be declared indigent and the actual cost and expense of restraint, care, and treatment of indigent inebriates as herein defined shall be borne and paid by the county from which the inebriate is committed: Provided, that there shall not be included in such costs and expense any charge except for board and clothing. (1921, c. 156, s. 5.)

§ 2304(e). Inebriate submitting himself for treatment.—Any inebriate within the definition of section 2304(a) who wishes to submit himself for care and treatment in the department for inebriates at the state hospital in Raleigh, may be received therein as a patient upon his presentation of himself personally at the institution and making arrangements with the superintendent for the actual cost of his detention and treatment. He shall signify his desire in writing, and promise therein to submit himself to the rules and regulations for the government of the institution. When this is done he shall be detained therein and given adequate care and attention. After he has been so detained for thirty days he may secure his release and discharge by ten days notice in writing to the superintendent, or to any one of the assistant physicians in charge of such institution: Provided, said physician or physicians are satisfied that said inebriate has sufficiently recovered to return to his home and not become a menace or charge to society. (1921, c. 156, s. 6.)

§ 2304(f). Department for inebriates.—It shall be the duty of trustees and superintendent of the state hospital at Raleigh to prepare and set apart a department for such inebriates on or before the first day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-two: Provided that, if in the course of care and treatment of said inebriates it developes that they have criminal, mental, or other symptoms indicating they can not be properly taken care of in this department, the superintendent of the hospital is hereby authorized to transfer such patients to any other department under his care, that, in his opinion, the circumstances may justify. (1921, c. 156, s. 7; 1933, c. 341.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 341, added the proviso relating to inebriates in the state hospital at Raleigh.

§ 2304(g). Law effective, when. — This law shall be in force and effect on and after March 8, 1921, but as the state hospital at Raleigh is not prepared with a department for the care and treatment of inebriates, the provisions of this law shall not be made mandatory until after the first day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-two. Constitutionality.—The Act of 1929, c. 34, appearing in the Code of 1931 as §§ 2304(h) to 2304(l), was held unconstitutional, being in violation of the provisions of the Fourteenth Amendment, § 1, of the Constitution of the United States, and of the State Constitution, Art. I, § 17, there being no provision in the statute giving a person ordered to be sterilized notice and a hearing or affording him the right to appeal to the courts. Brewer v. Valk, 204 N. C. 186, 167 S. E. 638. The defect does not exist in the present statute. See § 2304(y).

§ 2304(n). Operations on mental defectives not in institutions.—It shall be the duty of the board of commissioners of any county of North Carolina, at the public cost and expense, to have one of the operations described in section 2304(m), performed upon any mentally diseased, feebleminded or epileptic resident of the county, not an inmate of any public institution, upon the request and petition of the superintendent of public welfare or other similar public official performing in whole or in part the functions of such superintendent, or of the next of kin, or the legal guardian of such mentally defective person: Provided, however, that no operation described in this section shall be lawful unless and until the provisions of this article shall be first complied with. (1933, c. 224, s. 2.)

§ 2304(o). Restrictions on such operations.—No operation under this article shall be performed by other than a duly qualified and registered North Carolina physician or surgeon, and by him only upon a written order signed after complete compliance with the procedure outlined in this act by the responsible executive head of the institution or board, or the superintendent of public welfare, or other similar official performing in whole or in part the functions of such superintendent, or the next of kin or legal guardian having custody or charge of the feebleminded, mentally defective or epileptic inmate, patient or non-institutional individual. (1933, c. 224, s. 3.)

§ 2304(p). Prosecutors designated; duties. — If the person upon whom the operation is to be performed is an inmate or patient of one of the institutions mentioned in section 2304(m), the executive head of such institution or his duly authorized agent shall act as prosecutor of the case. If the person upon whom the operation is to be performed is an inmate, or patient of a charitable or penal institution supported by the county, the executive head of such institution or his duly authorized agent, or the county superintendent of welfare or such other official performing in whole or in part the functions of such superintendent of the county in which such county institution is situated, shall act as petitioner in instituting proceedings before the eugenics board. If the person to be operated upon is not an inmate of any such public institution, then the superintendent of welfare or such other official performing in whole or in part the functions of such superintendent of the county of which said inmate, patient, or non-institutional individual to be sterilized is a resident, shall be the prosecutor. It shall be the duty of such prosecutor promptly to institute proceedings as provided by this article in any or all of the following circumstances:

1. When in his opinion it is for the best interest of the mental, moral or physical improvement of the patient, inmate, or non-institutional individual, that he or she be operated upon.

2. When in his opinion it is for the public good that such patient, inmate or non-institutional individual be operated upon.

3. When in his opinion such patient, inmate, or non-institutional individual would be likely, unless operated upon, to procreate a child or children who would have a tendency to serious physical, mental, or nervous disease or deficiency.

4. When requested to do so in writing by the next of kin or legal guardian of such patient, inmate or non-institutional individual.

5. In all cases as provided for in section 2304(ff). (1933, c. 224, s. 4; 1935, c. 463, s. 1.)

(1933, c. 224, s. 8; 1935, c. 463, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—This section was so changed by the amendment that a comparison is necessary to determine the full extent.

§ 2304(u). Copy of petition served on patient.—A copy of said petition, duly certified by the secretary of the said board to be correct, must be served upon the inmate, patient or individual resident, together with a notice in writing signed by the secretary of the said board designating the time and place not less than fifteen days before the presentation of such petition to said board when and where said board will hear and act upon such petition. It shall be sufficient service if the copy of said petition and notice in writing be delivered to said inmate, patient or individual resident, and it shall not be necessary to read the above mentioned document to said patient, inmate or individual resident.

A copy of said petition, duly certified to be correct, and the said notice must also be served upon the legal or natural guardian and next of kin of the inmate, patient or individual resident. If no near relative is known, the copy and notice shall be sent to the solicitor of the county in which the inmate, patient or individual resident resides, and it shall be his duty to protect the rights and best interests of the said inmate, patient or individual resident.

If there is no next of kin and no solicitor in said county, or if there is no known guardian of said inmate, patient, or individual resident and the said inmate, patient or individual resident is of such mental condition as not to be competent reasonably to conduct his own affairs, then the said prosecutor shall apply to the superior court of the county in which the inmate, patient or individual resident resides or to the judge thereof in vacation, who shall appoint some suitable person to act as guardian of the said inmate during and for the purposes of proceedings under this act, to defend the rights and interests of the said inmate, patient or individual resident. And such guardian shall be served likewise with a copy of the aforesaid petition and notice, and shall under all circumstances be given at least fifteen days' notice of said hearing. Such guardian may be removed or discharged at any time by the said court or the judge thereof in vacation and a new guardian appointed and substituted in his place.

If the said inmate or patient be under twenty-one years of age and have a living parent or parents whose names and addresses are known or can by reasonable investigation be learned by said prosecutor, they or either of them, as the case may be, shall be served likewise with a copy of said petition and notice and shall be entitled to at least fifteen days' notice of the said hearing: Provided, that the procedure described in this section shall not be necessary in the case of any operation for sterilization or asexualization provided for in this law if the parent, legal or natural guardian, or spouse or next of kin of the inmate, patient or non-institutional individual shall submit to the superintendent of the institution of which the subject is a patient or inmate or to the superintendent of public welfare of the county in which the subject is residing regardless of whether the subject is a legal resident of such county, a duly witnessed petition requesting that sterilization or asexualization be performed upon said inmate, patient or non-institutional individual, provided the other provisions of this law are complied with. Any operation authorized in accordance with this proviso may be performed immediately upon receipt of the authorization from the eugenics board. (1933, c. 224, s. 9; 1935, c. 463, ss. 3, 6.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1935, chapter 463, section 6 added the proviso at the end of this section. Section 3 of the same act added the last sentence to the first paragraph.

§ 2304(v). Consideration of matter by board.—The said board at the time and place named in said notice, with such reasonable continuances from time to time and from place to place as the said board may determine, shall proceed to hear and consider the said petition and evidence offered in support of and against the same: Provided, that the said board shall give opportunity to said inmate, patient or individual resident to attend the said hearings in person if desired by him or if requested by his guardian or next of kin, or the solicitor.

The said board may receive and consider as evidence at the said hearings the commitment papers and other records of the said inmate or patient with or in any of the aforesaid institutions as certified by the superintendent or executive official, together with such other evidence as may be offered by any party to the proceedings.

Any member of the said board shall have power for the purposes of this article to administer oaths to any witnesses at such hearing.

Depositions may be taken, as in other civil cases, by any party after due notice and read in evidence, if otherwise pertinent.

Any party to the said proceedings shall have the right to be represented by counsel at such hearings.

A stenographic transcript of the proceedings at such hearings duly certified by the petitioner and the inmate, patient or individual resident, or his guardian or next of kin, or the solicitor, shall be made and preserved as part of the records of the case. (1933, c. 224, s. 10.)

§ 2304(w). Board may deny or approve petition.—The said board may deny the prayer of the said petition or if, in the judgment of the board, the case falls within the intent and meaning of one or more of the circumstances mentioned in section 2304(p), and an operation of asexualization or sterilization seems to said board to be for the best interest of the mental, moral or physical improvement of the said patient, inmate or individual resident or for the public good, it shall be the duty of the board to approve said recommendation in whole or in part or to make such order as under all the circumstances of the case may seem appropriate, within fifteen days after the conclusion of said hearings, and to send to the prosecutor a written order, signed by at least three members of the board, directing him to proceed with the operation as provided in this article. Said order shall contain the name of the specific operation which is to be performed and the date when said operation is to be performed.

If the board disapproves the petition, the case may not be brought up again except on the request of the inmate, patient, or individual resident, or his guardian, or one or more of his next of kin, husband, wife, father, mother, brother, or sister, until one year has elapsed.

Nothing in this act shall be construed to empower or authorize the board to interfere in any manner with the right of the patient, inmate, or individual resident, or his guardian or next of kin to select a competent physician of his own choice for consultation or operation at his own expense. (1933, c. 224, s. 11.)

§ 2304(x). Orders may be sent parties by registered mail; consenting to operation.—Any order granting the prayer of the petition, in whole or in part, may be delivered to the petitioner by registered mail, return receipt demanded, to all parties in the case, including the legal guardian, the solicitor and the next of kin of the inmate, patient, or individual resident. It shall be the duty of the said guardian, the solicitor and the next of kin to protect by such measures as may seem to them in their sole discretion sufficient and appropriate the rights and best interests of the said inmate, patient, or individual resident.

If the inmate, patient or individual resident, or the next of kin, legal guardian, solicitor of the county, and guardian appointed as herein provided, after the said hearing but not before, shall consent in writing to the operation as ordered by the board, such operation shall take place at such time as the said prosecutor petitioning shall designate. (1933, c. 224, s. 12.)

§ 2304(y). Right of appeal to superior court.—If it appears to the inmate, patient or individual resident, or to his or her representative, guardian, parent or next of kin, or to the solicitor, that the proceedings taken are not in accordance with the law, or that the reasons given for asexualization or sterilization are not adequate or well founded, or for any other reason the order is not legal, or is not legal as applied to this inmate, patient or individual resident, he or she may within fifteen days from the date of such order have an appeal of right to the superior court of the county in which said inmate or patient resided prior to admission to the institution, or the county in which the non-institutional individual resides. This appeal may be taken by giving notice in writing to any member of the board and to the other parties to the proceeding, including the doctor who is designated to perform the said operation. Upon the giving of this notice the petitioner within fifteen days thereafter shall cause a copy of the petition, notice, evidence and orders of the said board certified by any member thereof to be sent to the clerk of the said court, who shall file the same and docket the appeal to be heard and determined by the said court as soon thereafter as may be practicable.

The presiding judge of said superior court may hear the appeal upon affidavit or oral evidence and in determining such an appeal may consider the record of the proceedings before the eugenics board, including the evidence therein appearing together with such other legal evidence as may be offered to the said judge by any party to the appeal. In hearing such an appeal the general public may be excluded and only such persons admitted thereto as have direct interest in the case.

Upon such appeal the said superior court may affirm, revise, or reverse the orders of the said board appealed from and may enter such order as it deems just and right and which it shall certify to the said board.

The pendency of such appeal shall automatically, and without more, stay proceedings under the order of the said board until the appeal be completely determined. Should the decision of the superior court uphold the plaintiff's objection, such decision unless appealed from will annul the order of the board to proceed with the operation, and the matter may not be brought up again until one year has elapsed except by the consent of the plaintiff or his next of kin, or his legal representatives. Should the court affirm the order of the board, then, if no notice of appeal to the supreme court is filed within ten days after such decision, said board's recommendation as affirmed shall be put into effect at a time fixed by the original prosecutor or his successor in office and the inmate, patient or individual shall be asexualized or sterilized as provided in this article.

In this appeal the person for whom an order of asexualization or sterilization has been issued shall be designated as the plaintiff, and the prosecutor presenting the original petition shall be designated as defendant. (1933, c. 224, s. 13; 1935, c. 463, s. 4.)

See note to § 2304(m).

Editor's Note.—The second paragraph of this section was changed by the 1935 amendment. The amendment also inserted in the second sentence of the fourth paragraph the words "unless appealed from."

§ 2304(z). Appeal costs.—The cost of appeal, if any, to the superior or higher courts, shall be taxed as in civil cases. If the case is finally determined in favor of the plaintiff, the costs shall be paid by the county. (1933, c. 224, s. 14; 1935, c. 463, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 omitted the paragraph of this section which provided that the record before the board was conclusive as to facts.

§ 2304(aa). Appeal to supreme court. — Any party to such appeal to the superior court may, within ten days after the date of the final order therein, apply for an appeal to the supreme court, which shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine the same upon the record of the proceedings in the superior court and to enter such order as it may find the superior court should have entered.

The pendency of an appeal in the supreme court shall operate as a stay of proceedings under any orders of the said board and the superior court until the appeal be determined by the said supreme court. (1933, c. 224, s. 15.)

§ 2304(bb). Civil or criminal liability of parties limited. — Neither the said petitioner nor any other person legally participating in the execution of the provisions of this article shall be liable, either civilly or criminally, on account of such participation, except in case of negligence in the performance of said operation. (1933, c. 224, s. 16.)

§ 2304(cc). Necessary medical treatment unaffected by article.—Nothing contained in this article shall be construed so as to prevent the medical or surgical treatment for sound therapeutic reasons of any person in this state, by a physician or surgeon licensed in this state, which treatment may incidentally involve the nullification or destruction of the reproductive functions. (1933, c. 224, s. 17.)

§ 2304(dd). Permanent records of proceedings before board.—Records in all cases arising under this article shall be filed permanently with the secretary of the said eugenics board. Such records shall not be open to public inspection except for such purposes as the court may from time to time approve. (1933, c. 224, s. 18.)

§ 2304(ee). Valid parts of act upheld; definitions.—This article is severable in its provisions; and the validity of any part, section, or provision of the same shall not be construed to affect the validity of any other part which may be given practical operation and effect without the invalid part, section or provision.

Where the inmates, patients or non-institutional individuals are referred to in this article as of the masculine or feminine gender, the same shall be construed to include the feminine or masculine gender as well. Wherever the term individual resident appears in this article, it shall be construed to mean non-institutional individual. (1933, c. 224, s. 19.)

§ 2304(ff). Discharge of patient from institution.—Before any inmate or patient designated in sections 2304(m) and 2304(p), shall be released, paroled or discharged, it shall be the duty of the governing body or responsible head of any institution above mentioned to comply with the procedure set out in this article, whenever a written request for the asexualization or sterilization of said inmate or patient is filed with the governing body or responsible head of the institution in which such inmate or patient has been legally confined. This written request may be made by any public official or by the legal guardian or next of kin of any inmate or patient not later than thirty days prior to the date of said parole or discharge. Upon the receipt of the signed approval of the eugenics board as described in this article, it shall be the duty of said governing board or responsible head to issue an order for the performance of the operation upon said inmate or patient, and the operation must be performed before the release, parole or discharge of any such inmate or patient. (1933, c. 224, s. 20.)

§ 2304(ff1). Existing rights of surgeons unaffected.—Nothing in this law [amendatory of §§ 2304(p), 2304(t), 2304(u), 2304(y) and 2304(z)] shall, in any way, interfere with any surgeon in the removal of diseased pathological tissue from any patient. (1935, c. 463, s. 7.)

Art. 7. Temporary Care and Restraint of Inebriates, Drug Addicts and Persons Insane

§ 2304(gg). Hospitals and sanatoriums may restrain and treat alcohol and drug addicts.—The superintendent, manager, or owner of any public or private hospital, sanatorium, or institution, upon the written request of two duly licensed physicians, not connected with any hospital, public or private, and the husband, wife, guardian, or in the case of an unmarried person having no guardian, by some one of the next of kin, may receive, care for and restrain in such hospital, sanatorium, or institution, as a patient, for a period not exceeding twenty days, any insane person needing immediate care and treatment; or any person needing immediate care, restraint and treatment because such person has become addicted to the intemperate use of narcotics, hypnotic drugs or alcoholic drinks, to such an extent that he has lost the power of self control. Such request for the admission of such patient shall be in writing and filed at such hospital, sanatorium, or institution, at the time of the reception of such patient, or within twenty-four hours thereafter, and such written request shall be held and considered as a commitment of such patient or person to said hospital, sanatorium, or institution, for a period of not exceeding twenty days. The superintendent, manager, or owner of such hospital, sanatorium, or institution shall not detain or restrain any person received as above provided for more than twenty days and shall not be liable in damages to such person or his personal representative or guardian on account of such restraint: Provided, the same is exercised and administered in a humane manner, without violence or personal injury. (1933, c. 213, s. 1.)

§ 2304(hh). Use of restraining devices limited. — No restraint in the form of muffs or mitts with lock buckles, or waist straps, wristlets, anklets, or camisoles, head-straps, protection sheets or simple sheets when used for restraint or other device interfering with freedom shall be imposed upon any patient in such hospital, sanatorium, or institution, unless applied in the presence of the superintendent, or of the physician, or of an assistant physician of such hospital, sanatorium, or institution. Such device shall be applied only in cases of extreme violence, active homicidal or suicidal intent, physical exhaustion, infectious disease, or following an operation, or accident which has caused serious bodily injury, or to prevent injury to such patient or others, except that in cases if emergency restraint may be imposed without the presence of the superintendent, physician or assistant physician; that every such emergency case, after the imposition of such restraint, shall immediately be reported to the superintendent, or manager, physician, or assistant physician of such hospital, sanatorium or institution, who shall immediately investigate the case and approve or disapprove the restraint imposed. (1933, c. 213, s. 2.)

§ 2304(ii). Civil liability for corrupt admissions. —Nothing contained in this article shall be held or construed to relieve from liability in any suit or action, instituted in the courts of this state, any husband, wife, guardian, physician, or assistant physician, to such person or patient on account of collusion of such husband, wife, guardian, physician or assistant physician to unlawfully, wrongfully and corruptly commit any such person or patient to such hospital, sanatorium, or institution, under the provisions of this article: Provided, that the provisions of this article shall not apply to pending litigation. (1933, c. 213, s. 3.)

INTEREST

§ 2305. Legal rate is six per cent.—The legal rate of interest shall be six per cent per annum for such time as interest may accrue, and no more. (Rev., s. 1950; Code, s. 3385; 1895, c. 69; 1876-7, c. 91.)

Editor's Note.—The distinction between the "legal rate" of interest, and the "lawful rate" of interest, which is maintained in some states, and which appears in some of the older cases of this State, Burwell v. Burgwyn, 100 N. C. 389, 392, 6 S. E. 409, has not been preserved. Legal rate of interest implied the maximum rate at which interest could be charged upon an obligation in the absence of stipulation as to the rate; and a lawful rate of interest implied that rate of interest which could be lawfully stipulated without incurring the penalty of law. The former was six per cent, the latter eight. See Burwell v. Burgwyn, 100 N. C. 389, 392, 6 S. E. 409. This distinction is now abolished; as the maximum rate at which interest may be charged, with or without stipulation of the rate, cannot exceed six per centum per annum, under the provisions of this and the succeeding section.

Definition.—Interest is the compensation allowed by law, or fixed by the parties, for the use or forbearance of money, as damages for its detention. Brown v. Hialts, 15 Wall. 177, 185, 21 L. Ed. 128.

Interest is not costs in any sense, and, when allowed, it should be decreed as damages, and be added to the damages awarded. The "Wanata," 95 U. S. 600, 615, 24 L. Ed. 461.

Within the Province of Legislature.—It is within the exclusive province of the lawmaking power to prescribe upon what conditions and at what rate interest can be allowed or contracted for, and what shall be a forfeiture of the right to collect it. Moore v. Beaman, 112 N. C. 558, 564, 17 S. E. 676.

Where Interest Rate Not Specified.—Where the statute providing for recovery of taxes does not specify the rate of interest to be employed, it is likely that the "legal rate," six per cent per annum, applies. See 12 N. C. Law Rev., 39.

A contract will be declared usurious when it appears that it was the purpose and intent of the lender to charge and receive a greater rate of interest than that allowed by law under this section. Polikoff v. Finance Service Co., 205 N. C. 631, 172 S. E. 356.

Applied in Hackney v. Hood, 203 N. C. 486, 166 S. E. 323.

§ 2306. Penalty for usury; corporate bonds may be sold below par.—The taking, receiving, reserving or charging a greater rate of interest than six per centum per annum, either before or after the interest may accrue, when knowingly done, shall be a forfeiture of the entire interest which the note or other evidence of debt carries with it, or which has been agreed to be paid thereon. And in case a greater rate of interest has been paid, the person or his legal representatives or corporation by whom it has been paid, may recover back twice the amount of interest paid, in an action in the nature of action for debt. In any action brought in any court of competent jurisdiction to recover upon any such note or other evidence of debt, it is lawful for the party against whom the action is brought to plead as a counterclaim the penalty above provided for, to wit, twice the amount of interest paid as aforesaid, and also the forfeiture of the entire interest. Nothing contained in the foregoing section, however, shall be held or construed to prohibit private corporations from paying a commission on or for the sale of their coupon bonds, nor from selling such bonds for less than the par value thereof. This section shall not apply to contracts executed prior to February twenty-first, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-five. (Rev., s. 1951; Code, s. 3836; 1895, c. 69; 1903, c. 154; 1876-7, c. 91.)

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

At Common Law and in This Country.—At common law the taking of any interest was an indictable offense (11 Am. & Eng. Enc., 379); hence, interest is now purely statutory, being chargeable in such cases and to such extent only as is expressly allowed by statute. The penalties for usury were formerly much severer in this State, and are still so in some other jurisdictions, notably in New York, where in certain cases the charging of interest above six per cent has been recently made indictable. The entire subject of the rate of interest and penalties for usury rests in legislative discretion, and the courts have no power other than to interpret and execute the legislative will. Smith v. Building, etc., Association, 119 N. C. 249, 255, 26 S. E. 41.

Effect of Usury Formerly and Now.—By the former law, the taint of usury made the contract void both as to principal and interest into whose hands it might come, and so likewise any appearance, shift or device whereupon or whereby an illegal rate of interest was received or taken was declared to be void. By the preceding section six per cent. is fixed as the legal rate of interest, and in case more than the rate allowed is taken, received, or reserved or charged, the contract is not invalidated as to the principal, but the entire interest carried by the note or other evidence of debt, or otherwise agreed to be paid thereon, is, under this section, forfeited; and in case such greater rate has been paid, a remedy is given to the party paying the same to recover by action of debt twice the amount of the interest paid. Moore v. Woodward, 83 N. C. 531, 532.

The forfeiture provided by this section will be enforced against the usurer, when he seeks to recover upon the usurious contract or transaction. His debt will be stripped of all its interest-bearing quality, and he will be permitted to recover only the principal sum loaned. If a sum in excess of interest at the legal rate has not only been charged by the lender, but has also been paid by the borrower for the use of money, then the person, or his legal representative, or the corporation by whom the same has been paid, may recover twice the amount paid in an action in the nature of action for debt. C. S. 2306. Sloan v. Ins. Co., 189 N. C. 690, 128 S. E. 2; Waters v. Garris, 188 N. C. 305, 124 S. E. 334; Ripple v. Mortgage, etc., Corp., 193 N. C. 422, 425, 137 S. E. 156.

In Moore v. Beaman, 111 N. C. 328, 332, 16 S. E. 177, it was said the provisions of the law forbidding usury are very clear and explicit. No one can possibly misunderstand them. If moved by avarice a party deliberately violates this law, he has no ground to complain that his punishment has been in the very respect which caused him to sin, and that in grasping after illegitimate interest he has lost also the legitimate interest which the law would have given a law-abiding citizen.

Contrary to Public Policy.—An agreement by the parties for the payment of interest in excess of the legal rate, made in this State and to be performed therein, is unlawful; such an agreement is in violation of the statute and is contrary to the public policy of this State. No cause of action founded upon such an agreement can be maintained in the courts of this state. Ripple v. Mortgage, etc., Corp., 193 N. C. 422, 424, 137 S. E. 156.

The usury statute will be strictly construed, and usury must be pleaded. Dixon v. Smith, 204 N. C. 480, 168 S. E. 683.

Purpose of Statute—Distinction between the New and the Old Statute.—Both the former and the present statutes were enacted in restraint of excessive interest for the same general policy, and especially on the idea of protecting the borrower against the oppression of the lender, the chief difference being that a violation under the old statute invalidated the contract, working a forfeiture of the sum lent as well as of the interest, whereas the present law leaves the contract valid for the principal, but makes the interest forfeitable. Moore v. Woodward, 83 N. C. 531, 533.

Created for the Benefit of Borrower.—Statutes prohibiting charging usury or an illegal rate of interest are enacted for the benefit of the borrower. Ector v. Osborne, 179 N. C. 667, 103 S. E. 388.

Duty of Court to Carry out Legislative Intent.—The forfeiture of the entire unpaid interest and recovery back of twice the interest paid is in the nature of a penalty intended to induce an observance of the statute, and it is the duty of the courts so to expound and apply the law as to carry out the legislative intent. Moore v. Woodward, 83 N. C. 531, 533.

Enforceability in the Absence of Penalty.—Even in the absence of a penalty on charging usurious interest, such as contained in this section, a rate of interest above the one prescribed by law would not be enforceable. Hughes v. Boones, 102 N. C. 137, 9 S. E. 286.

Four Requisites of Usurious Transaction.—In order to constitute a usurious transaction, four requisites must appear: (1) there must be a loan, express or implied; (2) there must be an understanding between the parties that the money lent shall be returned; (3) that for such loan a greater rate of interest than is allowed by law shall be paid or agreed to be paid, as the case may be; and (4) there must exist a corrupt intent to take more than the legal rate for the use of the money loaned. * * * A profit greater than the lawful rate of interest, intentionally exacted as a bonus for the loan of money, imposed upon the necessities of the borrower in a transaction where the treaty is for a loan and the money is to be returned at all events, is a violation of the usury laws, it matters not what form or disguise it may may assume. Doster v. English, 152 N. C. 339, 341, 67 S. E. 754, approved in Monk v. Goldstein, 172 N. C. 516, 519, 90 S. E. 519; Loan, etc., Co. v. Yokley, 174 N. C. 573, 575, 94 S. E. 102; Ector v. Osborne, 179 N. C. 667, 103 S. E. 388.

Forbearance of Indebtedness or Loan of Money Essential.—It is universally held that in order that a transaction shall fall within the prohibition of the statutes against usury it is essential that there should be a contract for the forbearance of an existing indebtedness or a loan of money. Struthers v. Drexel, 122 U. S. 487. See 29 Am. and Eng. Enc., p. 464, sec. 4, and note 5, where a large number of cases are cited in support of the text. There is no exception to this universal rule, that there must be an extension of credit and an illegal compensation for it, knowingly taken, in order to constitute usury. This is recognized in the earliest cases on the subject up to the present time. Smithwick v. Whitley, 152 N. C. 366, 367, 67 S. E. 914.

Intent to Charge Usurious Interest.—When the lender of money intentionally charges the borrower a greater rate of interest than the law allows, and his purpose stands clearly revealed on the face of the instrument, a corrupt intent to violate the usury law on the part of the lender is shown. Riley v. Sears, 154 N. C. 509, 70 S. E. 997.

Effect of Charging and Collecting Usury.—Where an usurious rate of interest on money has been paid by the borrower of money, the statutory penalty is double the amount of the usury, but where it is only charged, and not collected, the statute eliminates the usury and forfeits the interest on the amount of the loan. Ragan v. Stephens, 178 N. C. 101, 100 S. E. 196.

Payment Necessary for Recovery.—It is well settled that the penalty is not incurred by the charging of usurious interest; it is by the taking the usury that the party incurs the penalty, and that no action lies therefor until it is paid. Godfrey v. Leigh, 28 N. C. 390; Stedman v. Bland, 26 N. C. 296; Rushing v. Bivens, 132 N. C. 273, 275, 43 S. E. 798.

Same—Payment by Renewal of Note.—Before the plaintiff can maintain the action he must pay the usury in money or money's worth. It is well settled that the penalty is not incurred by the charging of usurious interest; it is by taking the usury that the party incurs the penalty, and no action lies therefor until it is paid. Godfrey v. Leigh, 28 N. C. 390; Stedman v. Bland, 26 N. C. 296. A renewal of the note does not constitute such payment of the original debt. Ragan v. Stephens, 178 N. C. 101, 100 S. E. 196.

Recovery after Payment—Former Rule.—Formerly, the debtor although he could defeat the claim of the creditor to recover usurious interest, he could not, after having paid it, recover it back. Merchant Bank v. Lutterloh, 81 N. C. 143, 149. But this doctrine is now changed by the express terms of this section. Ed. Note.

See also, Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 495, 18 S. E. 717.

Recovery of Double the Entire Interest.—Under the clear terms of this section the plaintiff is entitled to recover back double the entire interest paid, not merely double the usurious excess. Tayloe v. Parker, 137 N. C. 418, 419, 49 S. E. 921.

Waiver.—The borrower may waive his rights under this section. Ector v. Osborne, 179 N. C. 667, 103 S. E. 388.

Same—Consent Judgment.—By consent judgment entered in an action upon a note, wherein usury was set up by the defendant, and the parties have agreed upon a compromise in a certain sum, signed and entered by the court, the defendant waives his right under our usury law, and may not thereafter maintain the defense that a note he had given the plaintiff, in the amount of the judgment, was tainted with the usury of the first transaction. Ector v. Osborne, 179 N. C. 667, 103 S. E. 388.

Entire Interest Declared a Forfeiture.—The statute makes the "taking, receiving, reserving or charging usury," when knowingly done, i. e., intentionally done, and not by a mere error of calculation, a forfeiture (not merely forfeitable) of the entire interest which the note carries with it, or which has been agreed to be paid thereon. Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 494, 18 S. E. 717.

Mere Entry Does Not Constitute Charging.—The mere entry on account and subsequent presentation of an usurious claim is not a "charging" within the meaning of that statute. Grant v. Morris & Sons, 81 N. C. 150.

Recovery of Penalty Where Plaintiff in Pari Delicto.—A borrower who has paid usurious interest may, under this section recover of the lender twice the amount of usurious interest so paid, notwithstanding that he is in pari delicto in the transaction. Hollowell v. Building, etc., Association, 120 N. C. 286, 26 S. E. 781.

Overpayment by Mistake.—In an action to recover for overpayment of interest, made by mistake, recovery can not be had for the forfeiture of double the interest as a penalty for usury, since, upon the allegation of such overpayment by mistake, no legal implications arise that the plaintiff is suing for the forfeiture. Gillam v. Life Insurance Company, 121 N. C. 369, 28 S. E. 470.

Usurious Interest Accrued upon Bonds Other Than the One Sued upon.—In an action of claim and delivery for certain property conveyed by a chattel mortgage, the defendant can set up the defense of usury upon the allegation that the sole consideration of the bond secured by the mortgage was usurious interest, which had accrued upon certain other bonds executed by the defendant to the plaintiff. Moore v. Woodward, 83 N. C. 531.

Promise of Interest Void—Note Valid.—A note executed and delivered as evidence of the promise of the maker to pay to the payee or his order a sum of money which has been loaned by the payee to the maker, is not void, although the payee has, knowingly, taken, received, reserved, or charged interest on the note at a greater rate than six per cent per annum, which is the legal rate in this State; only the promise, in such case, to pay interest is void. Federal Reserve Bank v. Jones, 205 N. C. 648, 650, 172 S. E. 185.

Identity with Provisions of National Bank Act.—Our penalties for usury are identical with those prescribed in the National Bank Act, U. S. Rev. St., sec. 5198. Smith v. Building and Loan Association, 119 N. C. 249, 255, 26 S. E. 41.

Effect of Repeal of Old Law.—A contract absolutely void under the old law for being usurious, is not validated by the repeal of that law and the enactment of this section which does not invalidate the principal of a usurious contract. Pond v. Horne, 65 N. C. 84.

Cited in Bundy v. Commercial Credit Company, 198 N. C. 339, 341, 151 S. E. 626; McNeill v. Suggs, 199 N. C. 477, 154 S. E. 729; Fletcher v. Parlier, 206 N. C. 904, 905, 173 S. E. 343.

II. SUBSTANCE CONTROLS NATURE OF TRANSACTION.

A. The General Doctrine.

Form of Transaction Can Not Conceal Its Usurious Nature.—An express or implied loan, upon the understanding that the money shall be returned at a greater interest rate than the statute allows, whatever the form of the transaction, and with corrupt intent on the part of the lender, is usury under this section, the corrupt intent consisting in "taking, receiving, reserving, or charging" a greater rate than that allowed by law. Revisal, sec. 1951. Loan & Trust Co. v. Yokley, 174 N. C. 573, 94 S. E. 102.

Where a transaction is in reality a loan of money, whatever may be its form, and the lender charges for the use of his money a sum in excess of interest at the legal rate, by whatever name the charge may be called, the transaction will be held to be usurious. The law considers the substance and not the mere form or outward appearance of the transaction in order to determine what it in reality is. If this were not so, the usury laws of the State would easily be evaded by lenders of money who would exact from borrowers with impunity compensation for money loaned in excess of interest at the legal rate. Ripple v. Mortgage, etc., Corp., 193 N. C. 422, 424, 137 S. E. 156.

The courts do not hesitate to look beneath the forms of transactions alleged to be usurious in order to determine whether or not such transactions are in truth and in reality usurious. In Bank v. Wysong, 177 N. C. 380, 99 S. E. 199, Justice Walker, speaking of a transaction alleged to be usurious, says: "This kind of usurious agreement has been cast in various forms, but the courts have invariably stripped it of its flimsy disguises, and decided according to its substance, and its tendency and effect, when the purpose and intent of the lender is unmistakable." Ripple v. Mortgage, etc., Corp., 193 N. C. 422, 424, 137 S. E. 156.

Where there is negotiation for a loan of money, and the borrower agrees to return the amount advanced at all events, it is a contract of lending; and however the transaction may be shaped or disguised, if a profit or return beyond the legal rate of interest is intended to be made out of the necessities or improvidence of the borrower, or otherwise, the contract is usurious. McRackan v. Bank, 164 N. C. 24, 26, 80 S. E. 184; Loan Co. v. Yokley, 174 N. C. 573, 576, 94 S. E. 102.

The nature and terms of the contract determine its character and purpose, and if usurious in itself it must be so understood to have been intended by the parties, and they can not be heard to the contrary. So the parties to a contract usurious upon its face, understandingly entered into, must be deemed to have intended to provide for the payment of a rate of interest in excess of that allowed by law, and that is itself a usurious contract. Burwell v. Burgwyn, 100 N. C. 389, 392, 6 S. E. 409.

In construing a transaction with regard to our usury statutes the courts will look to its substance and not to its form. Pratt v. Mortgage Company, 196 N. C. 294, 145 S. E. 396.

B. Specific Instances.

Between Bank and Its Customer.—Where the bank has followed an arrangement made by its depositor that the latter keep a certain per cent. of the money borrowed upon his own paper and paper of its customers upon which he remains responsible, and which is good and collectible by the bank without trouble to it, and thus collects on the series of transactions a rate of interest in excess of the legal rate, the interest thus received is usurious and comes within the intent and meaning of the statute forbidding it. English Lumber Co. v. Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., 179 N. C. 211, 102 S. E. 205.

Where an association charges a stockholder certain fines under § 5178, such fines cannot be alleged as interest paid on the loan from the corporation. Moore v. Mutual Building, etc., Ass'n, 203 N. C. 592, 166 S. E. 597.

Sum Deducted Must Be Reserved as Interest.—Where the borrower executed notes for the principal sum borrowed and notes for the interest on the principal notes from the time of their execution until their respective maturities, and the lender paid the borrower the principal sum borrowed less an amount deducted and retained by the lender, in the absence of an agreed fact or a finding by the court that the sum deducted was reserved by the lender as interest, the transaction did not constitute usury, and therefore the notes were not tainted with usury in the hands of the purchaser. Ray v. Atlantic Life Ins. Co., 207 N. C. 654, 178 S. E. 89.

Loan by Finance Corporation for Purchase of Automobiles.—Where a finance corporation loans money for the purchase of automobiles sold in this State to be paid for herein at a greater rate of interest than six per cent., the transaction is an usurious one coming within the inhibition of our statute and the penalty it imposes, though the contract is couched in the language of bargain and sale in order to evade our usury law. Ripple v. Mortgage, etc., Corp., 193 N. C. 422, 137 S. E. 156.

Name of Charge Immaterial.—Any charges made by a building and loan association against a borrowing member, in excess of the legal rate of interest, whether such charges are called "fines," "dues" or "interest," are usurious. Hollowell v. Building, etc., Association, 120 N. C. 286, 26 S. E. 781.

Stipulation That Laws of Another State Should Apply.—Where the court finds that the stipulation in a contract that the laws of another state should apply was made in bad faith for the purpose of evading the usury laws of this State, and that defendant charged and received payment of usurious interest, the findings are sufficient to support a judgment in plaintiff's favor that he recover of defendant twice the amount of usurious interest paid as determined by this section. Polikoff v. Finance Service Co., 205 N. C. 631, 172 S. E. 356.

Usury in Fact Made Payable in This State.—Where in fact a contract for the payment of usurious interest in violation of section 2305 was made payable in this State, the fact that it appeared from the face of the contract that it was payable in another state, does not relieve it of its usurious charge of interest contrary to the statute of this State. Ripple v. Mortgage, etc., Corp., 193 N. C. 422, 137 S. E. 156.

Building and Loan Associations.—See section 5183 and notes thereto.

III. EQUITABLE DOCTRINES AS AFFECTING RIGHTS OF PARTIES.

A. Summary of Law and Conclusions.

Editor's Note.—The operation of the equitable doctrines whose primary purpose is to attenuate the hardships of technical rules of law, among which doctrines the relief granted by the equity courts against the enforcements of forfeitures occupies a foremost ground, and the effect upon the prevailing usury laws of the changes made in the essence of this section, have created no little diversity of opinion as to the determination of the rights of parties to a usurious transaction in proceedings of equitable nature.

The legal situation may be presented from two different angles: (a) where the lender seeks to enforce the usurious contract in an equitable proceeding, as where he seeks to foreclose a mortgage, (1) under the former law which made both the principal and the interest of a usurious transaction absolutely void, (2) under the present law, which declares only the interest void; (b) where the borrower seeks the aid of the court in the nature of an equitable interposition, as where he seeks to prevent the foreclosure of a usurious mortgage, (1) under the former law, (2) under the present law.

Under situation (a), (1) the cases are uniform that the lender can enforce neither the principal nor the interest of his usurious claim. McBrayer v. Roberts, 17 N. C. 75. This it is believed, on the ground that the law invalidating the principal and the interest of a usurious transaction is a positive statutory law which takes precedence over the equitable doctrine of relief against forfeitures, and also on the ground that a court of equity will not give its aid to a person who has exacted an unconscionable usurious bargain.

Situation (a), (2), also presents no difficulty. Here, as in the preceding situation, the court in equitable proceedings follows the exact terms of the statute, and allows the lender the recovery of his principal and disallows that of his interest.

Situation (b) is the one which presents the most difficulty. Under situation (b), (1), the court affected by the established equitable maxim that "he who seeks equity must do equity" declared that a borrower as a condition to the grant to him of equitable relief, must pay not only the principal but also the legal rate of interest thus saving harmless the lender from the terms of a positive statutory penalty. This conclusion has also been reached by many cases under the present law, with the result of abrogating a statutory rule which in no ambiguous terms declares the entire interest void and forfeited, by the operation of a mere equitable maxim. And this is the law in this state at the present. Miller v. Dunn, 188 N. C. 397, 124 S. E. 746, being the latest judicial utterance upon the subject. The justification of the holding seems to lie in the fact that the remedy to recover under this section is an independent action at law. It is submitted, (1) that the whole spirit of code procedure is to prevent unnecessary delays, and a circuity of action to which the doctrine of the case would lead would frustrate that spirit; (2) that an equitable maxim can not supersede a statutory rule which, in unequivocal terms, declares that the debtor shall not be compelled to pay any interest when usury has been exacted. These conclusions are supported by adjudicated cases, see Moore v. Beaman, 112 N. C. 558, 564, 17 S. E. 676; Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 18 S. E. 717; and seem sound upon principle and policy.

Under the following headline will appear the state of authorities upon the subject, which will exemplify the classification of situations presented above, and will indicate the diversity of opinions which the court has entertained upon the point at different times.

B. Exposition of Authorities.

Lender Precluded Even in Equity.—A court of equity is bound by the statute of usury, and, although upon the bill of the borrower, aid will be extended only upon the terms of his repaying the sum lent with interest, yet the lender can have no relief whatever, and his bill to foreclose an usurious mortgage will be dismissed. McBrayer v. Roberts, 17 N. C. 75.

Same—Borrower in Equity.—When the borrower comes in equity, he will be made to do equity, by paying the sum borrowed and the lawful interest, as the price of assistance. But when the lender asks aid of equity, he must ask it on a contract not tainted by an unlawful and corrupt ingredient. McBrayer v. Roberts, 17 N. C. 75, 77.

One who goes into a court of equity to seek relief from a usurious contract, will be required to pay legal interest. Cook v. Patterson, 103 N. C. 127, 9 S. E. 402.

It is well settled that the penalty for usury, provided for in this section, is not applicable in injunction proceedings—equitable in nature, the principle being that he who seeks equity must do equity. Jonas v. Home Mtg. Co., 205 N. C. 89, 92, 170 S. E. 127, citing Waters v. Garris, 188 N. C. 305, 308, 124 S. E. 334.

Where in a legal action the defendant, a borrower of money, seeks an equitable relief and alleges usury, it is required that he pay the principal sum due with the legal rate of interest, the only forfeiture which he can enforce being the interest in excess of the legal interest rate. North Carolina Mtg. Corp. v. Wilson, 205 N. C. 493, 171 S. E. 783.

Equitable Principle Not Applicable in Legal Proceedings.—The principle that a court of equity will eliminate an usurious rate of interest from the debt when the suit is brought by the debtor for the penalty, upon his paying the principal sum and the legal rate of interest, does not apply to an action at law involving no equitable principle. Cuthbertson v. Bank, 170 N. C. 531, 87 S. E. 333; Cheek v. Iron Belt Building, etc., Association, 127 N. C. 121, 37 S. E. 150.

The principle of equity that a debtor, seeking the aid of a court of equity, will have the usurious element eliminated from his debt only upon his paying the principal and legal rate of interest, the only forfeiture enforced against the creditor being the excess of the legal rate (Churchill v. Turnage, 122 N. C. 426, 30 S. E. 122; Owens v. Wright, 161 N. C. 127, 76 S. E. 735; Simonton v. Lanier, 71 N. C. 498,) such as in a case to enjoin the foreclosure of a mortgage or to grant other equitable relief, does not apply when the plaintiff is seeking legal relief. Cuthbertson v. Peoples Bank, 170 N. C. 531, 532, 87 S. E. 333.

Tender and Payment of Correct Interest.—Upon the principle that "he who seeks equity must do equity," the plaintiff in his suit to enjoin the foreclosure of a mortgage upon the ground of usury, must tender the correct amount of the mortgage debt with the legal rate of interest thereon, the remedy to recover under the usury statute being an independent action at law. Miller v. Dunn, 188 N. C. 397, 124 S. E. 746.

Where the plaintiff seeks an injunction relief from the foreclosure of a mortgage on his lands on the ground of usury, his remedy being by an action at law under this section, he must, under the rules of equity, offer to repay the principal sum due and the legal rate of interest thereon, under the equitable principle that "he who asks equity must do equity," and he may not resist the foreclosure of the mortgage on the sole ground that he has been charged a usurious rate of interest, contrary to the provisions of the statute on the subject. Waters v. Garris, 188 N. C. 305, 124 S. E. 334.

Equitable Maxim Can Not Change the Statutory Rule.—It is entirely immaterial whether the plaintiff creditor has sought his relief by a proceeding which formerly would have been termed a suit in equity or an action at law. The distinction between these modes of procedure is expressly abolished. The plaintiff can not, by skillfully selecting one prayer for relief instead of another, avoid the penalty which the law imposes upon the transaction, which is the basis of his action. Moore v. Beaman, 112 N. C. 558, 560, 17 S. E. 676.

There are some authorities to the effect that when the debtor brings the action and invokes the equitable jurisdiction of the court, as by an injunction to prevent a sale under a mortgage, the court will only grant relief upon payment of the principal with legal interest. This is put upon the principle "who asks equity must do equity," but the principle "he who asks equity must do equity," has no application to a case where the right is conferred by statute, that the debtor shall be compelled to pay no interest when usury has been contracted for. Moore v. Beaman, 112 N. C. 558, 565, 17 S. E. 676.

Under the usury act in force up to 1866 whenever usury was reserved the entire contract was void, and neither principal nor interest could be recovered. Ehringhaus v. Ford, 25 N. C. 522. In Ballinger v. Edwards, 39 N. C. 449, this was construed to apply only on the law side of the docket, and when the debtor had to seek the aid of a court of equity he was compelled to pay the principal with legal interest. This section, while reducing the penalty to the loss of interest, seems to have expressly intended to change the doctrine laid down in Ballinger v. Edwards. Moore v. Beaman, 112 N. C. 558, 565, 17 S. E. 676.

An usurious contract is regarded by the settled law of every court as an oppression, practiced or attempted by the lender upon the borrower. A court of equity can not therefore be invoked to aid such a contract in whole or in part, or to redress the oppressor, because the meditated injury has, by the artifice of the intended victim, been made to recoil upon himself. Oppression can not demand help even against fraud. The court is not at liberty to array its imagined wisdom against the legislative will, or to defeat public policy by a recourse to the code of honor or morality. Moore v. Beaman, 112 N. C. 558, 565, 17 S. E. 676.

That this section may work a hardship in any case gives the courts no authority to disregard the statute or explain it away. When, the Legislature has constitutional authority to make the statute and its meaning is plain, with no limitation making it apply only when the action is brought by the creditor, the courts have not the power to restrict it. Moore v. Beaman, 112 N. C. 558, 565, 17 S. E. 676.

There is no exception in the statute, and, equity as a separate jurisdiction being abolished, there is no ground upon which the court can interpolate any exception. Indeed, it will be a virtual repeal of the usury law if a creditor, by dexterously securing himself by a mortgage with power of sale, can secure himself against the "forfeiture of all interest" which the statute law visits, without exception, upon every "note or other evidence of debt" which is in any way tainted with usury. Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 18 S. E. 717; Smith v. Bldg., etc., Asso., 119 N. C. 249, 255, 26 S. E. 41. It would be an anomaly under this statute for the court to rule that the debtor must pay the principal debt, "with interest," when the statute provides that, if he does, the debtor can immediately sue to "recover back double the interest so paid." Roberts v. Ins. Co., 118 N. C. 429, 24 S. E. 780. Churchill v. Turnage, 122 N. C. 426, 432, 30 S. E. 122.

Where the payee withholds from the borrower a part of the face amount of the note, the same being a device to evade the usury laws, the borrower is entitled in equity to have the note credited with the amount so withheld upon the maturity of the note as against the payee under this section. Federal Reserve Bank v. Jones, 205 N. C. 648, 172 S. E. 185.

IV. RIGHTS OF SUBSEQUENT PURCHASERS.

A. Summary of Law

Editor's Note.—In this connection two important principles of law clash in the determination of the rights of the bona fide subsequent purchasers for value without notice of a negotiable instrument. The criterion of negotiability of an instrument presupposes that it shall be transferable free from all defenses which may exist between the original parties to the instrument, and is adhered to upon the consideration of promoting mediums of credit, commerce and industry. On the other hand public policy demands that debtors should enjoy full immunity from the imposition of usurious transactions. Should the doctrine of negotiability prevail, that policy and the statute by which it is given expression would be frustrated by a transfer of the obligation to a holder in due course. To this end the impregnability of the incidents of negotiability have been lenified by an exception to the effect that where the evidence of obligation is void in itself or is made so by statute, the defenses which are available against the payee are also available against the holder. And since both the principal and the interest of a usurious obligation were rendered void in this State by the express terms of this section, the case presented no difficulty, and the judicial decisions invariably declared that the holder in due course was in no better position than the payee of the obligation, and that his recourse was against the usurious lender. See Faison v. Grandy & Sons, 126 N. C. 827, 829, 36 S. E. 276; Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 492, 18 S. E. 717.

Since the establishment of the rule that usury does not render void the principal of the obligation but merely avoids the interest, there has been some question as to the applicability of the old rule to the new situation. See the dissenting opinion of Mr. Justice Burwell, in Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 496, 18 S. E. 717. But the holding of the cases, as will be illustrated by the succeeding citations, have been decidedly uniform in declaring that the statute makes void the entire interest, and hence the transferee of the instrument can recover only that which his transferor (the lender) could have recovered, viz., the principal without the interest.

B. Exposition of Authorities.

Holder in Due Course Occupies No Better Position than the Lender.—As to usurious contracts, the law regards the maker, not as in pari delicto, but as acting "in chains" (1 Story Eq. Juris., sec. 302), and to permit his contract, which is deemed exacted under duress, to come under the general rule in favor of innocent holders for value of commercial paper, would be to nullify the protecting statute. The recourse of the holder is against the payee and endorser, who is more likely by far to be able to respond than the maker. Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 494, 18 S. E. 717.

Prior to this section, a usurious contract worked a forfeiture of both the interest and the debt, and it was stated in Coor v. Spicer, 65 N. C. 401, that under the operation of such a statute, innocent and meritorious holders were obliged to suffer. Faison v. Grandy & Sons, 126 N. C. 827, 829, 36 S. E. 276. Same rule applies now. Ed. Note.

A note tainted with usury retains the taint in the hands of a subsequent holder. The forfeiture of interest is the decree of the law. Faison v. Grandy, 126 N. C. 827, 36 S. E. 276.

In Glenn v. Farmer's Bank, 70 N. C. 191, 205, Rodman, J., says: "It is admitted law that notes vitiated by an usurious or gaming consideration can not be enforced in the most innocent hands, but are always and under all circumstances void." Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 492, 18 S. E. 717.

Same—Contrary Rule Would Render Statute Nugatory—Remedy of Holder against Lender.—If, by passing the note off before maturity and for value, the endorsee may recover on it, the statute is useless, as the protection intended and the penalty and prohibition are alike rendered nugatory. The victim would have no recourse but to suffer in silence. The usury would be collected in spite of the law which had declared the "entire interest forfeited" ab initio, by the fact of "charging or reserving" it. On the other hand, the innocent endorsee has his recourse against the payee who has endorsed the note to him (Daniel on Neg. Inst., sec. 807), a recourse which would more surely protect him, being against the party who has money to loan, instead of borrowing. Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 493, 18 S. E. 717.

Same—Principle as Applied to Mortgage Obligations.—The only case that seems to mitigate against the otherwise uniform tenor of the decisions on this subject is Coor v. Spicer, 65 N. C. 401, which holds that a mortgage given to secure a usurious bond might be enforced in the hands of an innocent purchaser for value. The case recognizes the general rule, but takes mortgages out of it upon the supposed wording of sec. 1010. Aside from the fact that this is held expressly otherwise in the latter case of Moore v. Woodward, 83 N. C. 531, an examination of sec. 1010 will show that Coor v. Spicer, was a palpable inadvertence. The statute cited (the Code, sec. 1549) in fact does not purport to protect the innocent holder of a mortgage note which is tainted with usury but the "purchaser of the estate or property" at sale under the mortgage, who buys without notice of the usurious taint in the debt secured. It would be a fraud for the mortgagor to stand by and let him purchase without giving him notice, but the maker can give no notice usually to the assignee of the note. Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 493, 18 S. E. 717.

"Shall Be a Forfeiture" Construed.—In two cases the Supreme Court has expressly held that the words, "shall be a forfeiture," in this section make void the agreement as to interest. Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 491, 18 S. E. 717.

But see the dissenting opinion of Judge Burwell, in Ward v. Sugg, 113 N. C. 489, 496, 18 S. E. 717, to the effect that the statute does not render the usurious interest void as to prevent an innocent purchaser of the obligation from recovering from the obligor the interest at the legal rate.

V. USURY LAWS AS AFFECTING CORPORATIONS.

Corporation Embraced within Usury Laws.—In the absence of special legislation, corporations are embraced in the usury laws just as natural persons are, and there is no special legislation affecting this point. Commissioners v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 77 N. C. 289, 292.

Same—Conflict of Laws.—The statute of the State of New York, forbidding corporations to plead usury as a defense, can not govern a corporation of this State sued in this State, although the bonds in question were delivered in New York and made payable there. Commissioners v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 77 N. C. 289.

Where such bonds express a rate of interest illegal in this State, and also in New York, and were issued in payment of a precedent debt and secured by a mortgage on the corporation's property, they could legally bear no greater rate of interest than that allowed in this State. Commissioners v. Atlantic and N. C. R. R. Co., 77 N. C. 289.

Same—Exception.—In Commissioners v. Atlantic, etc., Co., 77 N. C. 289, it was held that a corporation can not legally sell its bonds, bearing the highest legal rate of interest, at a discount for the purpose of borrowing money. Such a sale is in effect a loan, and is usurious. But the doctrine of this case is abrogated by the latter part of this section which allows such a course. Ed. Note.

Provisions of Corporate Charter Construed.—In Simonton v. Lanier, 71 N. C. 498, 502, the plaintiff contended that the following language in his alleged act of incorporation, to-wit, "May discount notes and other evidences of debt, and lend money upon such terms and rates of interest as may be agreed upon," confers the right to exact the rate of interest here agreed upon, although greater than the legal rate. It was held that the statute nowhere confers an express power to exceed the legal rate of interest and that the operative words, "any rate of interest that may be agreed on," mean any rate of interest not greater than the legal rate.

Building and Loan Associations.—See section 5183 and notes thereto.

VI. PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

Reference.—See 12 N. C. Enc. Dig. 169, 15 N. C. Enc. Dig. 697, where an exhaustive treatment of the rules of pleading as affecting usury is given.

As to what law governs, whether a contract is usurious or not, see 12 N. C. Enc. Dig. 139 et seq.

Definiteness of Allegations.—In an action brought to recover money alleged to be due on a contract entered into between the parties, wherein the plea of usury is set up in the answer and a recovery is sought under this section double the amount of the interest paid, the recovery sought is in the nature of a penalty; and when the facts are known or readily obtainable the law requires a definite statement in the pleading as to the time and amount, before allegations in such action are held to be sufficient, and when such statement is not made no amendment to the pleadings should be allowed. Riley v. Sears, 154 N. C. 509, 70 S. E. 997.

Borrower May Use Lender as Witness.—To the end that the defense may be ample and complete, if the borrower in his discretion should resort to his remedy under this section he is authorized to examine the lender as a witness. Merchants Bank of Fayetteville v. Lutterloh, 81 N. C. 143, 148.

Statute of Limitations.—The statute of limitations to recover the penalty provided by this section is two years, by the clause 2 of sec. 442.—Ed. Note.

An action to recover the penalty for usury, under this section, is barred after the lapse of two years from the accrual of the cause of action in the absence of disability or nonresidence affecting the running of the statute. Smith v. Finance Co., 207 N. C. 367, 177 S. E. 183.

Same—Nonresident Creditor.—An action against a nonresident creditor for the statutory penalty for charging usury, who has no agent here upon whom process may be served, is not barred by the statute of limitations, nor does the fact in this case that one of the plaintiffs is a nonresident and the other has changed his residence affect the matter. Cuthberton v. Peoples Bank, 170 N. C. 531, 87 S. E. 333.

Statute of Limitations a Part of Plaintiff's Case.—Under sec. 442, a period of two years is allowed for the exercise of the right of the plaintiff to recover usurious interest paid by him; and under that provision it was held that it was a part of the plaintiff's right to allege and prove that the usury was paid within two years, and that the defendant need not specially plead the limitations as in the case of the ordinary statute of limitation. See Roberts v. Insurance Co., 118 N. C. 429, 24 S. E. 780; Rogers v. Bank, 108 N. C. 574, 13 S. E. 245.

When Counterclaim Available.—While a counterclaim for usury may be set up in an action on a note under this section, such counterclaim may not be set up in an action in ejectment based on title to the property under foreclosure of the deed of trust securing the note. North Carolina Mtg. Corp. v. Wilson, 205 N. C. 493, 171 S. E. 783.

Usury Question of Law When Facts Not in Dispute.—What constitutes usury is a question of law to be determined by the court when the facts are not in dispute. Grant v. Morris & Sons, 81 N. C. 150.

When Question for Jury.—Where, in an action upon a note, the defendant pleads the usury statute, and the evidence is sufficient to sustain a verdict that the excess of interest was a proper charge made for negotiating the loan, the question should be submitted to the jury. Loan, etc., Co. v. Yokley, 174 N. C. 573, 574, 94 S. E. 102.

Where the plea of the usury under this section is made by the plaintiff in the action to enjoin the defendant from the sale of land securing a mortgage note, and there is a dispute as to whether the charge made was usurious, and as to the amount due under the mortgage, it is reversible error for the trial judge to assume the correctness of the plaintiff's contentions as a fact, and take the case from the jury accordingly. Miller v. Dunn, 188 N. C. 397, 124 S. E. 746.

The fact that a sum borrowed was made payable to the borrowers and an attorney with allegations and evidence that the attorney under instructions from the lender deducted a certain sum therefrom before the borrowers could obtain the money, together with the "item of expense" set out in the deed of trust securing the loan, is held sufficient to have been submitted to the jury on the question of usury. Jonas v. Home Mtg. Co., 205 N. C. 89, 170 S. E. 127.

By Whom May Be Pleaded.—The plea of usury is open to the parties and their privies, and may be made when by the transaction the debtor's estate is wrongfully depleted, and ordinarily by one having the legal right to protect the estate, as a receiver of an insolvent corporation against which a usurious contract is sought to be enforced. Riley v. Sears, 154 N. C. 509, 70 S. E. 997.

Same—Rights of Trustee in Bankruptcy.—A right of action to recover the penalty for a usury charge is in the nature of an action for debt, and is a wrongful detention of, or injury to the estate of the bankrupt which passes to his trustee in bankruptcy. Ripple v. Mortgage, etc., Corp., 193 N. C. 422, 137 S. E. 156.

As a Defense.—Where the payee of a promissory note or bond brings action thereon and the defendant sets up a deduction on account of usury, within the plain intent and meaning of this section the plaintiff will not be entitled to recover the usurious charge. Pugh v. Scarboro, 200 N. C. 59, 156 S. E. 149.

Restraining Foreclosure.—The holder of a second mortgage, able and willing to pay the amount of the debt secured by the first mortgage, but alleging usury, under this section, is entitled to have a restraining order against foreclosure continued until determination of the issue of usury. Wilson v. Union Trust Co., 200 N. C. 788, 158 S. E. 479.

Effect of Consent Judgment.—Where a controversy between the parties as to the amount of the debt has been settled by a consent judgment such judgment is conclusive and final as to any matter determined and cannot be impeached collaterally in another proceeding under this section. Rector v. Suncrest Lbr. Co., 52 F. (2d) 946.

Failure to Instruct as to Double Recovery Is Prejudicial.—The plaintiff in his action to recover for usurious rate of interest paid and received by the lender is entitled under this section to recover double the amount of the interest so paid and received, and an instruction to the jury that fails to give him this right is prejudicial to him and is reversible error. Bundy v. Commercial Credit Co., 200 N. C. 511, 512, 157 S. E. 860.

§ 2307. Time from which interest runs.—Interest is due and payable on instruments, as follows:

1. All bonds, bills, notes, bills of exchange, liquidated and settled accounts shall bear interest from the time they become due, provided such liquidated and settled accounts be signed by the debtor, unless it is specially expressed that interest is not to accrue until a time mentioned in the said writings or securities.

2. All bills, bonds, or notes payable on demand shall be held and deemed to be due when demandable by the creditor, and shall bear interest from the time they are demandable, unless otherwise expressed.

3. All securities for the payment or delivery of specific articles shall bear interest as moneyed contracts; and the articles shall be rated by the jury at the time they become due.

4. Bills of exchange drawn or indorsed in the state, and which have been protested, shall carry interest, not from the date thereof, but from the time of payment therein mentioned. (Rev., s. 1952; Code, ss. 44, 45, 46, 47; R. C., c. 13; 1786, c. 248; 1828, c.. 2.)

See 7 N. C. Enc. Dig. 912; 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 492. See sec. 2998, ch. 2, as to rules of construction where the instrument is ambiguous as to payment of interest.

Debts Payable on Demand.—Where money is payable on demand, interest does not accrue until a demand is made; but, when no time is appointed, the money is payable immediately without a demand, and hence interest accrues immediately. Freeland v. Edwards, 3 N. C. 49, 2 Am. Dec. 620; Lewis v. Lewis, 3 N. C. 32.

Same—Interest Payable from Time Principal Demanded.—In the absence of a special agreement as to interest or as to time of payment, interest is payable on a debt from the time the principal is demanded. Crawford v. Bank, 61 N. C. 136; Bank v. Hart, 67 N. C. 264; McRae v. Malloy, 87 N. C. 196.

Same—Necessity of Demand.—A person holding money belonging to another is not liable for interest thereon, except from the date of demand. Hyman v. Gray, 49 N. C. 155; Neal v. Freeman, 85 N. C. 441.

Same—Coupons or Installments of Interest Demand.—Coupons or installments of interest bear interest from the time of a demand of payment made after their maturity. Burroughs v. Commissioners, 65 N. C. 234.

Same—Commencement of Action.—Where interest runs from the date of demand, and no demand has been made, interest will be allowed from the date of commencement of suit. Porter v. Grimsley, 98 N. C. 550, 4 S. E. 529.

Bond Payable without Interest.—Where a note or bond is made payable without interest at a certain date, interest does not run thereon except from the time when it should have been paid. Dowd v. Railroad, 70 N. C. 468.

Coupons, when detached from the bond to which they were annexed, bear interest from the time when they were due and payable. Burroughs v. Commissioners, 65 N. C. 234.

A premium note for life insurance at six per cent. interest draws that rate from its date unless otherwise specified. Owens v. Insurance Co., 173 N. C. 373, 92 S. E. 168.

Order of County Treasurer for Payment of Money.—Where A brought an action upon an order of a county treasurer, signed by the chairman of the board of county commissioners, it was held under this section that he was entitled to recover interest upon the amount of the order from the time of the demand of payment. Yellowly v. Commissioners, 73 N. C. 164.

Unliquidated Demands.—Unliquidated damages as a general rule, and in the absence of special circumstances, do not bear interest until after their amount has been judicially ascertained. Tilghman v. Proctor, 125 U. S. 136, 160, 31 L. Ed. 664.

When interest is recoverable on amount of verdict, it will run from the date of the verdict, unless it can be legally determined before then. Ludford v. Combs, 195 N. C. 851, 141 S. E. 541.

§ 2308. Obligations due guardians to bear compound interest.—Guardians shall have power to lend any portion of the estate of their wards upon bond with sufficient security, to be repaid with interest annually, and all the bonds, notes or other obligations which he shall take as guardian shall bear compound interest, for which he must account, and he may assign the same to the ward on settlement with him. (Rev., s. 1953; Code, s. 1592; R. C., c. 54, s. 23; 1762, c. 69; 1816, c. 925; 1868-9, c. 201, s. 29.)

References.—For an exhaustive treatment of the law regulating the relation of guardian and ward, see 6 N. C. Enc. Dig. 911, 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 278.

Security in Addition to That of Borrower.—The policy of this section is to require an investment by a guardian to be secured by the bond or note of some person in addition to the borrower. Watson v. Holton, 115 N. C. 36, 20 S. E. 183.

This in Boyett v. Hurst, 54 N. C. 167, where the guardian lends the money of his ward to a trading firm composed of two partners, who both became insolvent at the same time, and from the same causes, no security having been taken besides the names of the two partners, it was held, that the guardian was accountable for the money thus loaned, notwithstanding at the time of this loan the partners were considered as entirely solvent and their failure was sudden and unexpected.

A guardian will be held liable for any loss resulting from a loan made without taking any security, however solvent the debtor may have been when the loan was made. Bane v. Nicholson, 203 N. C. 104, 106, 164 S. E. 750.

A guardian's primary duty is to invest the trust fund, and he will be chargeable with interest in the absence of proof that it remained in his hands unemployed without his fault. Wilson v. Lineberger, 88 N. C. 416.

Guardian Accountable for Loss.—A guardian will be held liable for any loss resulting from a loan made without taking any security, however solvent the debtor may have been when the loan was made. Collins v. Gooch, 97 N. C. 186, 1 S. E. 653.

Compound Interest Defined.—Compound interest is interest upon interest, where accrued interest is added to the principal sum, and that whole treated as a new principal, for the calculation of the interest for the next period. Black Law Dict., p. 636.

Calculation of Compound Interest.—The rule for compounding interest on notes due guardians is to make annual rests, making the aggregate of principal and interest due at the end of a particular year a new principal, bearing interest thenceforward for another year. Little v. Anderson, 71 N. C. 190; Ford v. Vandyke, 33 N. C. 227.

Bonds in Settlement with the Ward.—The bonds, upon which the guardian has lent the ward's money, may by him be transferred to the ward in settlement with him, and the guardian does not have to pay the ward in money. Cobb v. Fountain, 187 N. C. 335, 337, 121 S. E. 614.

§ 2309. Contracts, except penal bonds, and judgments to bear interest; jury to distinguish principal.—All sums of money due by contract of any kind, excepting money due on penal bonds, shall bear interest, and when a jury shall render a verdict therefor they shall distinguish the principal from the sum allowed as interest; and the principal sum due on all such contracts shall bear interest from the time of rendering judgment thereon until it is paid and satisfied. In like manner, the amount of any judgment or decree, except the costs, rendered or adjudged in any kind of action, though not on contract, shall bear interest till paid, and the judgment and decree of the court shall be rendered according to this section. (Rev., s. 1954; Code, s. 530; R. C., c. 31, s. 90; 1786, c. 253; 1789, c. 157, s. 4; 1807, c. 721.

Correction of Punctuation in the Caption.—The caption of this section was incorrectly punctuated prior to the Consolidated Statutes, and gave rise to at least one litigation. The comma which now appears after the word "bonds" did not then exist, consequently, the excepting clause embraced "judgments" as, well as parol bonds. But the court in In re Chisholm's Will, 176 N. C. 211, 96 S. E. 1031, disregarded the error and held that though the caption of a statute may be called in aid of construction, it can not control the text when it is clear, and gave expression to the contents of the section. This error was subsequently corrected in the Consolidated Statutes.—Ed. Note.

At common law a judgment did not carry interest when an execution of sci. fa. was issued upon it. In an action upon the judgment the plaintiff could recover interest by way of damages for the detention of the money. The statute was passed for the purpose of amending the law in this respect. Collais v. McLeod, 30 N. C. 221. The intent was that the principal should bear interest because it was just and right that it should, and that the technical rule of the common law should not longer stand in the way. McNeill v. Railroad, 138 N. C. 1, 4, 50 S. E. 458.

Application to Liquidated Demands Only.—The rule that all moneys due by contract except due on penal bonds shall bear interest applies whenever a recovery is had for the breach of a contract, and the amount is ascertained from the terms of the contract itself or from evidence relative to the inquiry and due by one party to the contract to another; and it does not obtain as a matter of law where the interest sought does not come within the provisions of the statute and is by way of unliquidated damages, and there has been no adequate default on the part of the debtor in reference to withholding the principal sum, or a part of it. Bond v. Pickett Cotton Mills, 166 N. C. 20, 81 S. E. 936.

Interest from the Time Money Should Have Been Paid.—In an action equitable in its character and founded upon the theory that in good conscience the defendant should repay the money wrongfully received from the plaintiff. The law implied a promise to repay; and it will allow interest thereon from the time it should have been paid. This differs from an action of tort wherein the jury may or may not allow interest as they see proper; in this lies the distinction. Lumber Co. v. Railroad, 141 N. C. 171, 192, 53 S. E. 823.

From Time Due.—When a real estate man is entitled to recover a reasonable amount for his services rendered in securing a tenant for a building, the sum fixed by the verdict will, as a matter of law, draw interest from the time the same was due and payable. Thomas v. Piedmont Realty, etc., Co., 195 N. C. 591, 143 S. E. 144.

After demand by a depositor or creditor of a bank for the payment of the amount due and refusal of the bank to make payment, the bank is liable for the amount of the claim plus interest at the rate of six per centum per annum. Hackney v. Hood, 203 N. C. 486, 166 S. E. 323.

Purpose of Requiring Jury to Distinguish Principal and Interest.—The evident design of this section is to allow the plaintiff interest on the principal sum recovered in a judgment from the time of its rendition; and the direction to the jury to distinguish between the principal and interest was intended to provide for those cases in which the whole sum is assessed in damages, so as to enable the clerk or the sheriff to compute the interest on the principal sum. But where the principal and interest are discriminated on the record, or it can be collected from an inspection of it what the principal sum was, it is equally within the spirit of the act that interest should be calculated on that. Deloach v. Worke, 10 N. C. 36, 40.

Judgment Bears Interest from First Day of Term.—Where a consent judgment for a recovery of a certain sum is made a lien on lands, and by its terms payable ninety days from its rendition, it bears interest from the first day of the term, the time given being merely for the purpose of raising the money for its payment; and where the only question submitted to the court is whether interest is chargeable from the date it was payable to a further period beyond, interest for such extended period at the rate of 6 per cent should be allowed. In re Chisholm's Will, 176 N. C. 211, 96 S. E. 1031.

Verdict or Contract—Judgment Should Include Interest.—Where the controversy is made to depend upon whether a written agreement of a certain date to subscribe to plaintiff's enterprise in a sum certain was binding upon the defendant corporation, the affirmative answer of the jury to the issue carries with it interest on the subscription from the date it was due, as a matter of law, and judgment should be rendered accordingly, and not from the date of its rendition as in tort. Chatham v. Mecklenburg Realty Co., 174 N. C. 671, 94 S. E. 447.

Interest on Value of Permanent Improvements on Land.—Where it has been ascertained by the verdict of the jury, upon a trial free from error, that the plaintiff is entitled to recover of the defendant the value of permanent improvements he has put upon the defendant's land under a parol agreement that the latter would convey a part of the lands in consideration thereof, void under the statute of frauds, to the extent that the improvements have enhanced the value of the land, interest is properly allowed in the judgment from the time of the defendant's breach, on the amount ascertained to be due at that time; and objection that the jury may have included the interest in their verdict is untenable when it appears that nothing was said by counsel or court in respect to it, the presumption being to the contrary. Perry v. Norton, 182 N. C. 585, 586, 109 S. E. 641.

Interest on Contracts and Torts Distinguished.—Where a verdict is given in an action on contract in plaintiff's favor for moneys due by the defendant to his intestate, interest is also given the plaintiff on the amount of the recovery as a matter of law, when not incorporated in the verdict. When in tort the matter of interest is awarded or not according as the jury may find. Thomas v. Watkins, 193 N. C. 630, 137 S. E. 818.

In Tort Actions Judgment for Damages Bears Interest.—Although the allowance of interest, in an action for damages for conversion of property, is discretionary with the jury, yet, after the verdict, the judgment for the damages assessed bears interest by virtue of this section, and this is so, although the verdict is for a certain sum "without interest." Stephens v. Koonce, 103 N. C. 266, 9 S. E. 315.

Interest is not allowable as a matter of law in case of tort. Its allowance as damages rests in the discretion of the jury. Lincoln v. Claflin, 7 Wall, 132, 19 L. Ed. 106.

Conversion of Funds.—In an action for damages for conversion, the verdict being for the value of the property at the time of the conversion, interest can only begin from the time of the judgment. Lance v. Butler, 135 N. C. 419, 47 S. E. 488.

Although the jury may allow interest on the amount of the damages from the time of the conversion. Lance v. Butler, 135 N. C. 419, 47 S. E. 488.

The rule in this State is that interest, as interest, is allowed only when expressly given by statute, or by the express or implied agreement of the parties. Devereux v. Burgwin, 33 N. C. 490; Lewis v. Rountree, 79 N. C. 122. The only statute upon the subject is that contained in this section, which provides that all sums of money due by contract of any kind whatsoever, excepting such as may be due on penal bonds, shall bear interest, etc., but there is no provision made for actions of trover or trespass de bonis asportatis. In such cases, in order to compel the wrongdoer to make full compensation to the injured party, the jury may, in their discretion, and as damages, allow interest upon the value of the property from the time of its conversion or seizure, and it has been usual for them to do so. But there is no rule which gives it as a matter of law and right. Patapsco v. Magee, 86 N. C. 350, 355.

Judgment Bears Interest Though Nothing Is Said.—By virtue of this section a judgment bears interest from the time of its rendition until paid, though nothing is said therein about interest. McNeill v. Railroad, 138 N. C. 1, 50 S. E. 458.

Statement in Judgment That It Shall Bear Interest.—It is best always that the court in its judgment should state fully the amount to be raised by the execution, both principal and interest; but the plaintiff will not forfeit his right to interest by the failure to do this, when enough appears on the face of the judgment to enable the officer to compute the amount justly due. All he is required to know is the amount of the principal, and then the statute makes that amount bear interest to the time of payment. McNeill v. Railroad, 138 N. C. 1, 3, 50 S. E. 458.

This section was held directory so far as it formerly provided that the judgment must itself state that it shall bear interest from the date of rendition until it is paid. It is perfectly clear that such a statement in the judgment is not essential to effectuate the intent of the Legislature, which is to allow interest on judgments. McNeill v. Railroad, 138 N. C. 1, 3, 50 S. E. 458.

Compromise Judgment in a Will Contest Case.—Where, in a will contest, a compromise judgment was entered whereby legatees named in the will were to receive certain amounts in settlement of their legacies which were ordered to be paid by the administrator cum testamento thereafter to be appointed, the judgment was not such a judgment as, under this section would draw interest from its date. Moore v. Pullen, 116 N. C. 284, 21 S. E. 195.

Interest on Damages in Condemnation Proceedings.—Interest is not allowed on a judgment rendered in the superior court for damages awarded by the jury to the owner for taking his lands in condemnation; for while the jury may award interest in their verdict, the owner may not complain when such has not been done, in the absence of a special request for instructions with relation to it, and the absence of evidence tending to show he is entitled to it. Raleigh, etc., R. Co. v. Mecklenburg Mfg. Co., 166 N. C. 168, 82 S. E. 5.

On Declared Dividend.—Where a receiver declares a dividend which he wrongfully withholds, interest should run from the time the dividend is declared. Armstrong v. American Exchange Nat. Bank, 133 U. S. 433, 470, 33 L. Ed. 747.

Interest on Surety Bond.—The surety bond of a clerk of the Superior Court is fixed as to amount in the sum of five thousand dollars, and to that extent a surety is responsible for the defalcation of his principal, including 6 per cent interest from the time of notice given it, except from judgment thereon, when a different principal applies and the surety is liable for 6 per cent interest on the judgment until it is paid. Lee v. Martin, 188 N. C. 119, 123 S. E. 631.

Where a bank gives a bond to an agency of the State to protect such agency's deposit, upon the insolvency of the bank with assets insufficient to pay depositors in full, the State agency may not hold the surety liable for interest from the time action on the bond is instituted, since in such circumstances the bank is not liable for interest, but the surety is liable for interest only from date of judgment against it on the bond on the amount for which the bank is liable to the State agency as of that date. State v. United States Guarantee Co., 207 N. C. 725, 178 S. E. 550.

Cited in Bell v. Danzer, 187 N. C. 224, 232, 121 S. E. 448.

§ 2310. Judgment by default final, clerk ascertains.—When a suit is instituted on a single bond, a covenant for the payment of money, bill of exchange, promissory note, or a signed account, and the defendant does not plead to issue thereon, upon judgment, the clerk of the court shall ascertain the interest due by law, without a writ of inquiry, and the amount shall be included in the final judgment of the court as damages, which judgment shall be rendered therein in the manner prescribed by the preceding section. (Rev., s. 1956; Code, s. 531; R. C., c. 31, s. 91; 1797, c. 475.)

This section dispenses with a jury and directs the clerk to compute the interest preparatory to a final judgment by default in suits "instituted on a single bond, a covenant for the payment of money, bill of exchange, promissory note, or a signed account," contemplating the rendition of such judgment upon written instruments which themselves specify the precise sum to be paid, and need only an estimate of accrued interest. Rogers v. Moore, 86 N. C. 86, 87.

Courts' Power to Correct Mistake in Calculation.—A judgment by default upon a speciality, for the want of a plea, entered by the clerk in court, upon his calculation of interest, was held to be an office judgment, and that the court possessed the power to correct a mistake in the clerk's calculation of interest at any time upon motion. Griffin v. Hinson, 51 N. C. 154.

§ 2311. Interest from verdict to judgment added as costs.—When the judgment is for the recovery of money, interest from the time of the verdict or report until judgment is finally entered shall be computed by the clerk and added to the costs of the party entitled thereto (Rev., s. 1955; Code, s. 529.)

CHAPTER 45

JURORS

Art. 1. Jury List and Drawing of Original Panel

§ 2312. Jury list from taxpayers of good character. — The board of county commissioners for the several counties at their regular meeting on the first Monday in June, in the year nineteen hundred and five, and every two years thereafter, shall cause their clerks to lay before them the tax returns of the preceding year for their county, from which they shall proceed to select the names of all such persons as have paid all the taxes assessed against them for the preceding year and are of good moral character and of sufficient intelligence. A list of the names thus selected shall be made out by the clerk of the board of commissioners and shall constitute the jury list, and shall be preserved as such. (Rev., s. 1957; Code, ss. 1722, 1723; 1806, c. 694; 1889, c. 559; 1899, c. 729; 1897, cc. 117, 539; 1899, c. 729.)

Cross References.—As to the jury generally, see 8 Enc. Dig. 315 et seq.; 14 Enc. Dig. 596 et seq. For an excellent article on women as jurors in North Carolina, see 1 N. C. L. R. 194.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1929, chapters 57 and 65 amended this section by adding at the end thereof the following: "The Board of Commissioners of Yancey County shall make the jury list and revision thereof as required by this section on or before the first Monday in March, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine and every two years thereafter."

For act providing that nonpayment of taxes does not disqualify a juror in Macon County, see Public Laws, 1933, c. 62.

Section Directory.—The regulations contained in this section, relative to the revision of the jury lists, are directory only and, while they should be observed, the failure to do so does not vitiate the venire in the absence of bad faith or corruption on the part of the county commissioners. State v. Smarr, 121 N. C. 669, 28 S. E. 549; State v. Perry, 122 N. C. 1018, 29 S. E. 384; State v. Bonner, 149 N. C. 519, 63 S. E. 84.

Special Statute Allowing Other Method.—Where a statute creating a special criminal court for certain counties allows every facility to the accused of getting a fair and impartial jury, it is not unconstitutional because it does not follow the same methods of drawing the jury which are provided for by the superior courts. State v. Jones, 97 N. C. 469, 1 S. E. 680.

Alienage.—Alienage is disqualification of a juror. Hinton v. Hinton, 196 N. C. 341, 145 S. E. 615.

Omission of Negroes.—The omission of negroes from the jury list, when not excluded on account of their race, is not of itself grounds for quashing an indictment. State v. Daniels, 134 N. C. 641, 46 S. E. 743.

Names of Qualified Persons Not on Jury List.—Where the county commissioners, while drawing the jurors, laid aside the names of several persons, otherwise qualified, for the reason that they did not know whether they were residents of the county, and the jury list was completed by the names of other duly qualified persons, if there was any irregularity it did not affect the action of the jurors so drawn and summoned. State v. Wilcox, 104 N. C. 847, 10 S. E. 453.

Merely Purging Jury List.—Merely purging the jury list of the names of those who had not paid their taxes, without adding any new names thereto, does not vitiate the venire in the absence of bad faith or corruption on the part of the county commissioners. State v. Dixon, 131 N. C. 808, 42 S. E. 944.

Section Does Not Abolish Challenge.—This section providing that good and lawful men, required by the Constitution to serve on juries, shall be men found by the county commissioners to have paid taxes for the preceding year, and of good moral character and of sufficient intelligence, did not abolish challenges to jurors, in particular actions, for bias, interest, kinship, etc. State v. Vick, 132 N. C. 995, 43 S. E. 626.

Juror Having Served within Two Years.—A juror of the original panel is not subject to be challenged upon the ground that he had served upon a jury in the same court within two years; only tales-jurors who have thus served are disqualified by the statute. State v. Brittain, 89 N. C. 481.

Payment of Taxes—Motion to Quash Indictments.—Under this section only such person as have paid all of their taxes for the preceding year are competent to serve as jurors or grand jurors. Breese v. United States, 143 Fed. 250. But there are many defenses to the failure to pay. For example nonpayment of taxes due to failure to put name on list of taxpayers does not of itself disqualify the juror. Breese v. United States, 203 Fed. 824. Nor does this section disqualify where the juror owned no taxable property above the exemption. U. S. v. Breese, 172 Fed. 761. To disqualify the failure to pay must be for the fiscal year preceding the annual revision at which the juror's name was drawn. State v. Davis, 109 N. C. 780, 14 S. E. 780; State v. Hargrove, 100 N. C. 484, 6 S. E. 185; Sellers v. Sellers, 98 N. C. 13, 3 S. E. 917; State v. Carland, 90 N. C. 668. And a juror is not disqualified when the sheriff has been enjoined from collecting his taxes. State v. Heaton, 77 N. C. 505.

The findings of the judge in the trial court as to whether a juror has paid his taxes is not reviewable on appeal. State v. Carland, 90 N. C. 668.

Formerly it was held that an indictment could be quashed if one of the members of the grand jury had not paid his taxes but this was changed by legislative enactment. See sec. 2335 and note thereto.

Cited in Haney v. Lincolnton, 207 N. C. 282, 292, 176 S. E. 573.

§ 2313. Names on list put in box.—The commissioners at their regular meeting on the first Monday in July in the year nineteen hundred and five, and every two years thereafter, shall cause the names on their jury list to be copied on small scrolls of paper of equal size and put into a box procured for that purpose, which must have two divisions marked No. 1 and No. 2, respectively, and two locks, the key of one to be kept by the sheriff of the county, the other by the chairman of the board of commissioners, and the box by the clerk of the board. (Rev., s. 1958; Code, s. 1726; 1868-9, c. 9, s. 5.)

Boxes Improperly Marked.—Where the partitions of the jury box, instead of being marked "No. 1" and "No. 2," were marked "Jurors Drawn" and "Jurors Not Drawn"; there was a lock on each partition, but one key unlocked both; there was but one key and that was placed in the custody of the register and ex officio clerk to the board of county commissioners by the chairman of the board, it was held that a special venire drawn under the directions of the presiding judge from such boxes was legal. State v. Potts, 100 N. C. 457, 6 S. E. 657.

Middle Letter Entered Erroneously.—The entering on the scroll of the name J. L. B. summoned as a juror, as J. S. B. is immaterial, since the use of a middle letter forms no part of the name. State v. Mills, 91 N. C. 581.

§ 2314. Manner of drawing panel for term from box.—At least twenty days before each regular or special term of the superior court, the board of commissioners of the county shall cause to be drawn from the jury box out of the partition marked No. 1, by a child not more than ten years of age, thirty-six scrolls except when the term of court is for the trial of civil cases exclusively, when they need not draw more than twenty-four scrolls. The persons whose names are inscribed on said scrolls shall serve as jurors at the term of the superior court to be held for the county ensuing such drawing, and for which they are drawn. The scrolls so drawn to make the jury shall be put into the partition marked No. 2. The said commissioners shall at the same time and in the same manner draw the names of eighteen persons who shall be summoned to appear and serve during the second week, and a like number for each succeeding week of the term of said court, unless the judge thereof shall sooner discharge all jurors from further service. The said commissioners may, at the same time and in the same manner, draw the names of eighteen other persons, who shall serve as petit jurors for the week for which they are drawn and summoned. The trial jury which has served during each week shall be discharged by the judge at the close of said week, unless the said jury shall be then actually engaged in the trial of a case, and then they shall not be discharged until the trial is determined: Provided, that regular jurors drawn, summoned, and the attendance upon any term of a superior court, regular or special, in any county, or upon any terms of a general county court or civil county court when not serving upon the trial of any case in the court to which he was summoned, may be ordered by the judge presiding in such court to attend and serve as a juror in the trial of any case pending in any other of said courts in such county, and shall be competent to serve as a regular juror in such other court under the law applicable to trials by jury.

This proviso shall only apply to the counties of Guilford, Wake, Forsyth, Buncombe, Catawba, Cabarrus, Iredell and Haywood. (Rev., s. 1959; Code, ss. 1727, 1731; 1889, c. 559; 1897, c. 117; 1868-9, c. 175; 1868-9, c. 9, s. 6; 1806, c. 694; 1901, c. 636; 1901, c. 28, s. 3; 1903, c. 11; 1905, cc. 38, 76, s. 4; 1905, c. 285; 1933, c. 89.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1933, c. 89, added the proviso, applicable in the eight counties enumerated, relating to service in the courts of another county.

Section Partly Mandatory.—The portion of this section, requiring persons named on the scrolls drawn from the jury box to constitute the jury, is mandatory. Moore v. Navassa Guano Co., 130 N. C. 229, 41 S. E. 293.

But the section is directory merely so far as it relates to the action of the commissioners as to the time and place of drawing the jury. State v. Banner, 149 N. C. 519, 521, 63 S. E. 84; State v. Perry, 122 N. C. 1018, 29 S. E. 384.

While the provisions of the statutes fixing the number of jurors to be drawn by the county commissioners is directory, yet they are very essential to the impartial administration of justice, and their non-observance is the subject of censure, if not punishment. State v. Watson, 104 N. C. 735, 10 S. E. 705.

Findings That Section Complied with Conclusive.—The findings of the trial court, after hearing evidence, that the jurors were drawn, sworn and empanelled in accordance with this section, and that there was no discrimination against persons of the negro race in making up the jury lists, are conclusive on appeal when supported by sufficient evidence, in the absence of gross abuse. State v. Cooper, 205 N. C. 657, 172 S. E. 199.

Cited in State v. Barkley, 198 N. C. 349, 151 S. E. 733; State v. Dalton, 206 N. C. 507, 174 S. E. 422.

§ 2315. Local modifications as to drawing panel.—In Buncombe county forty-eight jurors shall be drawn to serve the first week and twenty-four to serve the second week.

In Cumberland county the commissioners may, in their discretion, cause an additional twelve scrolls to be drawn, to serve as the jury for the first week.

In Forsyth county the board of county commissioners is authorized and empowered to draw as jurors from the box, as provided in the preceding section, an additional number of jurors to those now provided by law. At all civil terms, regular and special, for the first week thirty jurors shall be drawn and summoned, and likewise for the second week. At all criminal terms, regular and special, for the first week forty-two jurors shall be drawn and summoned.

For the second week thirty jurors shall be drawn and summoned.

In Hertford county fifteen extra jurors shall be drawn and summoned for the second week.

In Iredell county twenty-four jurors shall be drawn and summoned for the second week.

In McDowell county the board of county commissioners is authorized and empowered to draw as jurors from the box an additional number of jurors to those now provided by law. At each term when grand jury is to be selected, for the first week, forty-eight jurors shall be drawn and summoned, and for each subsequent week of such terms and at all other terms, both civil and criminal, or mixed, regular or special, for each week, thirty jurors shall be drawn and summoned.

In Randolph county forty-two scrolls shall be drawn for the first week and twenty-four for the second week. The commissioners may at the same time and in the same manner draw the names of twenty-four other persons who shall serve as petit jurors for the week for which they are drawn and summoned.

In Rockingham county the board of county commissioners is authorized and empowered to draw as jurors from the box, as provided in the preceding section, an additional number of jurors to those now provided by law. At all civil terms, regular and special, for the first week thirty jurors shall be drawn and summoned; for the second week twenty-four jurors shall be drawn and summoned. At all criminal terms, regular and special, for the first week forty-two jurors shall be drawn and summoned, for the second week twenty-four jurors shall be drawn and summoned.

In Rowan county twenty-four jurors shall be drawn and summoned for the second week.

In Stokes county the commissioners shall draw for each term of the superior court, in accordance with law, twenty-four jurors, to be summoned by the sheriff of Stokes county.

In Wayne, Robeson and Granville counties the board of commissioners for the first week of each term of the superior court of said counties for the trial of civil and criminal causes shall cause to be drawn from the jury box forty-two scrolls, and for each additional week or for any court for the trial of civil causes only, said board of commissioners shall draw twenty-four scrolls. (Rev., s. 1959; 1907, c. 239; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 4; P. L. 1915, cc. 233, 744, 764; 1921, c. 142; 1923, c. 107, s. 2; 1923, c. 117.)

Editor's Note.—By Public Laws 1921, ch. 142, the paragraph relating to Stokes County was added. In 1923 the paragraphs relating to Wayne, Robeson, Granville and McDowell Counties were added.

§ 2316. Jurors having suits pending.—If any of the jurors drawn have a suit pending and at issue in the superior court, the scrolls with their names must be returned into partition No. 1 of the jury box. (Rev., s. 1960; Code, s. 1728; 1868-9, c. 9, s. 7; 1806, c. 694.)

Fundamental Objection.—The circumstances described by this section is a fundamental objection to the juror, whenever it is made to appear, and is a cause of challenge, although the county commissioners may have allowed his name to go upon the venire. Hodges Bros. v. Lassiter, 96 N. C. 351, 2 S. E. 923.

Such juror is incompetent, and the defendant in a criminal action is not required to show affirmatively that the juror was present and participated in the deliberations of the grand jury when the bill was found. State v. Smith, 80 N. C. 410.

When Suit Not Triable at Same Term.—This section disqualifies only one who has a suit to be tried at the same term at which he is drawn to serve as a juror, and does not disqualify a party to a suit in which the summons is issued and made returnable to the term at which he is drawn to serve, but no pleadings are filed, so that it, even if thereafter brought to issue at that term, is not triable till the next term. State v. Spivey, 132 N. C. 989, 43 S. E. 475.

Suit Pending but Not at Issue.—A juror who has a suit "pending" but not "at issue" at the term of the court at which he has been drawn to serve, is not disqualified under this section. State v. Smarr, 121 N. C. 669, 28 S. E. 549.

Indictment Quashed When Section Violated.—An indictment was properly quashed where one of the grand jurors who found the bill was a party to an action pending and at issue in the superior court. State v. Liles, 77 N. C. 496; State v. Smith, 80 N. C. 410.

Applied in State v. Parish, 104 N. C. 679, 10 S. E. 457.

§ 2317. Disqualified persons drawn.—If any of the persons drawn to serve as jurors are dead, removed out of the county, or otherwise disqualified to serve as jurors, the scrolls with the names of such persons must be destroyed, and in such cases other persons shall be drawn in their stead. (Rev., s. 1961; Code, s. 1729; 1889, c. 559; 1897, c. 117, s. 5; 1806, c. 694.)

§ 2318. How drawing to continue. — The drawing out of partition marked No. 1 and putting the scrolls drawn into partition No. 2 shall continue until all the scrolls in partition No. 1 are drawn out, when all the scrolls shall be returned into partition No. 1 and drawn out again as herein directed. (Rev., s. 1962; Code, s. 1730; 1868-9, c. 9, s. 9; 1806, c. 6, s. 94.)

See sec. 2314 and notes thereto.

§ 2319. Drawing when commissioners fail to draw.—If the commissioners for any cause fail to draw a jury for any term of the superior court, regular or special, the sheriff of the county and the clerk of the commissioners, in the presence of and assisted by two justices of the peace of the county, shall draw such jury in the manner above prescribed; and if a special term continues for more than two weeks, then for the weeks exceeding two a jury or juries may be drawn as in this section provided. (Rev., s. 1963; Code, s. 1732; 1868-9, c. 9, s. 11.)

Time When Names Must Be Drawn.—This section does not require a jury to be drawn twenty days or more before the term but when considered with the preceding sections it is evident that the drawing must be done within the twenty days. Even if the twenty days were required as a time limited it would be regarded as directory only. Lanier v. Greenville, 74 N. C. 311, 93 S. E. 850.

Deputy Sheriff Included.—The provision of this section refers to sheriffs in the generic sense, including deputies within its meaning to perform a duty of a ministerial nature in the sheriff's name; and where the deputy thus acts at the request of the sheriff, a challenge to the panel on that account alone will not be sustained. Lanier v. Greenville, 174 N. C. 311, 93 S. E. 850.

Court May Order Jury Drawn.—Where, upon failure of the commissioners to draw a jury for a third week of court, the court orders the same to be drawn as prescribed by this section, such jury is legal. Leach v. Linde, 108 N. C. 547, 13 S. E. 212.

Art. 2. Petit Jurors; Attendance, Regulation and Privileges

§ 2320. Summons to jurors drawn; to attend until discharged. — The clerk of the board of county commissioners shall, within five days from the drawing, deliver the list of jurors drawn for the superior court to the sheriff of the county, who shall summon the persons therein named to attend as jurors at such court. The summons shall be served, personally, or by leaving a copy thereof at the house of the juror, at least five days before the sitting of the court to which he may be summoned. Jurors shall appear and give their attendance until duly discharged. (Rev., s. 1976; Code, s. 1733; 1868-9, c. 9, s. 12; R. C., c. 31, s. 29; 1779, c. 157, ss. 4, 6.)

As to summons and attendance of jurors generally, see 8 Enc. Dig. 338 et seq., 14 Enc. Dig. 603 et seq.

§ 2321. Summons to talesmen; their disqualifications. — That there may not be a defect of jurors, the sheriff shall by order of the court summon, from day to day, of the bystanders, other jurors, being freeholders, within the county where the court is held, or the judge may, in his discretion, at the beginning of the term direct the tales jurors to be drawn from the jury box used in drawing the petit jury for the term, in the presence of the court; such tales jurors so drawn to be summoned by the sheriff and to serve on the petit jury, and on any day the court may discharge those who have served the preceding day. The judge may, upon his own motion, or upon the request of counsel for either plaintiff or defendant, instruct the sheriff to summon such jurors outside of the courthouse. It is a disqualification and ground of challenge to any tales juror that such juror has acted in the same court as grand, petit or tales juror within two years next preceding such term of court. (Rev., s. 1967; Code, s. 1733; R. C., c. 31, s. 29; 1779, c. 156, s. 69; 1911, c. 15; 1915, c. 210.)

As to tales jurors in general, see 8 Enc. Dig. 343 et seq., 14 Enc. Dig. 603 et seq.

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 218.

Tales Jurors Defined.—A tales is a supply of such men as are summoned on the first panel in order to make up the deficiency. Boyer v. Teague, 106 N. C. 576, 621, 11 S. E. 665.

Qualifications of Tales Juror.—A tales juror must have the same qualification as a regular juror, with the additional one of being a freeholder. State v. Sherman, 115 N. C. 773, 20 S. E. 711. This includes the requirement as to being a taxpayer. State v. Hargrove, 100 N. C. 484, 6 S. E. 185; State v. Sherman, 115 N. C. 773, 20 S. E. 711. But it is not a disqualification of such a juror that his name does not appear on the list of the county commissioners. Lee v. Lee, 71 N. C. 139.

Duty of Selection—Notice.—The primary duty of selecting tales jurors for the trial of a cause is with sheriffs, and their deputies acting for them, under the control and supervision of the court; permitting these exclusive officers so acting to go outside for the purpose, or notify them in advance when such course is best promotive of the ends of justice. Lupton v. Spencer, 173 N. C. 126, 91 S. E. 718.

None of Original Panel Necessary.—The trial judge, in his discretion, may discharge any jurors or jury, and is not required to reserve one juror of the original panel to "build to," before directing the sheriff to summons tales jurors as authorized by this section. State v. Manship, 174 N. C. 798, 94 S. E. 2.

"Freeholders".—A freeholder is one who owns land in fee, or for life, or for some indeterminate period. As there are legal and equitable estates, so there are legal and equitable freeholds. State v. Ragland, 75 N. C. 12. The realty must be situated in the county where the court is held. State v. Cooper, 83 N. C. 671. A mortgagor in possession is a freeholder, within the meaning of this section. State v. Ragland, 75 N. C. 12. But not so with the holder of a license to lay off an oyster bed. State v. Young, 138 N. C. 571, 50 S. E. 213.

A finding by the trial judge that persons drawn were not freeholders is conclusive on appeal. State v. Register, 133 N. C. 746, 46 S. E. 21.

Regular Jurors Discharged.—Where the regular jurors have been discharged by the trial judge for the term, evidently under the impression that the business of the court was over, and on the following day there remains a criminal case regularly coming up for trial on a defect of jurors, the judge, within his discretion, is authorized to direct the sheriff to summons "other jurors, being freeholders within the county," whether within or without the courthouse. State v. Manship, 174 N. C. 798, 94 S. E. 2.

§ 2322. How talesmen summoned when sheriff interested.—When, in the trial of any action before a jury, the sheriff of the county in which the case is to be tried is a party to or has any interest in the action, or when the presiding judge finds upon investigation that the sheriff of the county is not a suitable person, on account of indirect interest in or relative to the cause of action, to be entrusted with the summoning of the tales jurors in any particular case pending, such judge shall appoint some suitable person to summon the jurors in place of the sheriff. (Rev., s. 1968; 1889, c. 441.)

Stated and applied in Boyer v. Teague, 106 N. C. 577, 11 S. E. 665; Lupton v. Spencer, 173 N. C. 126, 91 S. E. 718.

§ 2323. Penalty for disobeying summons.—Every person on the original venire summoned to appear as a juror who fails to give his attendance until duly discharged shall forfeit and pay for the use of the county the sum of twenty dollars, to be imposed by the court; but each delinquent juryman shall have until the next succeeding term to make his excuse for his nonattendance, and, if he renders an excuse deemed sufficient by the court, he shall be discharged without costs. Every person summoned of the bystanders who shall not appear and serve during the day as a juror shall be fined in the sum of two dollars, unless he can show sufficient cause to the court; and the clerk shall forthwith issue an execution against the estate of the delinquent tales juror for such amercement and costs. (Rev., s. 1977; Code, ss. 1734, 405; R. C., c. 31, s. 30; 1779, c. 157, s. 4; 1783, c. 189; 1806, c. 694.)

§ 2324. Jury sworn; judge decides competency.—The clerk shall, at the beginning of the court, swear such of the petit jury as are of the original panel, to try all civil cases; and if there should not be enough of the original panel, the talesmen shall be sworn. The petit jurors of the original panel, as well as talesmen, shall be sworn as prescribed in the chapter entitled Oaths. Nothing herein shall be construed to disallow the usual challenges in law to the whole jury so sworn or to any of them; and if by reason of such challenge, any juror is withdrawn, his place on the jury shall be supplied by any of the original venire, or from the bystanders qualified to serve as jurors. The judge or other presiding officer of the court shall decide all questions as to the competency of jurors in both civil and criminal actions. (Rev., s. 1966; Code, s. 405; R. C., c. 31, s. 34; 1790, c. 321; 1822, c. 1133, s. 1.)

Cross References.—As to competency of jurors generally, see 8 Enc. Dig. 347 et seq., 14 Enc. Dig. 604. As to oaths, see secs. 3188 et seq. of the code.

Challenges to the Array.—See 8 N. C. Enc. Dig. 356, 357, 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 605.

Challenges for Cause.—The cause of challenge to the favor are so numerous as to be described by Lord Coke as "infinite." It has been held in many cases that the right is given to afford a litigant fair opportunity to remove objectionable jurors, and was not intended to enable them to select a jury of his own choosing. See Blevins v. Mills, 150 N. C. 493, 64 S. E. 428. A few of the most common grounds for challenge will be set out. Chief of these, perhaps, is expression of opinion. This is sometimes ground for challenge, but not if the juror states that the opinion could be eliminated and a fair and impartial verdict rendered. State v. Bailey, 179 N. C. 724, 102 S. E. 406; State v. Winder, 183 N. C. 776, 111 S. E. 530. The challenge for this cause can be made only by that party against whom the opinion was formed and expressed. State v. Benton, 19 N. C. 196.

A juror may be examined as to opinions honestly formed, and honestly expressed, manifesting a bias of judgment, not referable to personal partiality, or malevolence; but if the opinion has been made up and expressed under circumstances which involve dishonor and guilt, and where such expression may be visited with punishment, he ought not to be required to testify so as to criminate himself. State v. Benton, 19 N. C. 196; State v. Mills, 91 N. C. 581.

Other grounds for challenge, briefly enumerated, are relation within the ninth degree of affinity (State v. Potts, 100 N. C. 457, 6 S. E. 657); opposition to capital punishment (State v. Vick, 132 N. C. 995, 43 S. E. 626); nonresidence (State v. Bullock, 63 N. C. 570; State v. Upton, 170 N. C. 769, 87 S. E. 328); employment by party (Oliphant v. Ry. Co., 171 N. C. 303, 88 S. E. 425.) But in an indictment for illegal sale of liquor, challenges for cause, in that the jurors belonged to the Anti-Saloon League, were properly disallowed, where the jurors had taken no part in prosecuting or aiding in the prosecution of the defendant. State v. Sultan, 142 N. C. 569, 54 S. E. 84.

Time of Challenge. — The court may, in its discretion, permit a juror to be challenged by the State for cause, after he has been tendered to the defendant and before the jury is impaneled. State v. Green, 95 N. C. 611.

Excusing Unchallenged Juror.—The trial judge may excuse a juror, before the jury is impaneled, although the solicitor has passed him to the prisoner and has not challenged him for cause. State v. Vick, 132 N. C. 995, 43 S. E. 626.

Method of Taking Advantage of Error.—The action of a trial judge in determining the qualifications of a juryman, if erroneous, is ground for a challenge to the array by a motion to quash and set aside the entire panel, and in the absence of such challenge a defendant can not be allowed to take advantage of the alleged error after trial and judgment. State v. Moore, 120 N. C. 570, 26 S. E. 697.

Peremptory Challenges.—See secs. 2331, 4633, 4634, and the notes thereto.

§ 2325. Questioning jurors without challenge.—The court, or any party to an action, civil or criminal, shall be allowed, in selecting the jury to make inquiry as to the fitness and competency of any person to serve as a juror, without having such inquiry treated as a challenge of such person, and it shall not be considered by the court that any person is challenged as a juror until the party shall formally state that such person is so challenged. (1913, c. 31, s. 6.)

§ 2326. Causes of challenge to juror drawn from box.—It shall not be a valid cause of challenge that a juror called from those whose names are drawn from the box is not a freeholder or has served upon the jury within two years prior to the court at which the case is tried, or has not paid the taxes assessed against him during the preceding two years. In other respects the cause of challenge shall be the same as now provided by law, and nothing herein shall modify any law authorizing jurors to be summoned from counties other than the county trial. (1913, c. 31, ss. 5, 7; 1933, c. 130.)

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 218, for discussion as to effect of the 1933 amendment to this section.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1933, c. 130, inserted, at the end of the first sentence of this section, the clause "or has not paid the taxes assessed against him during the preceding two years."

§ 2327. Jurors impaneled to try case furnished with accommodations.—When a jury, impaneled to try any cause, is put in charge of an officer of the court, the said officer shall furnish said jury with such accommodation as the court may order, and the same shall be paid for by the party cast or by the county, under the order and in the discretion of the judge of the court. (Rev., s. 1978; Code, s. 1736; 1876-7, c. 173; 1889, c. 44.)

Effect on Verdict of Refusal to Furnish Refreshments.—Where a jury retired at 11 a. m., to consider their verdict, which was returned at 3 p. m. such verdict can not be impeached because the sheriff declined to give them refreshments, except water, until they agreed on a verdict, or until the judge should tell him to take them to dinner. Gaither v. Generator Co., 121 N. C. 384, 28 S. E. 546.

§ 2328. Exemption from civil arrest.—No sheriff or other officer shall arrest under civil process any juror during his attendance on or going to and returning from any court of record. All such service shall be void, and the defendant on motion shall be discharged. (Rev., s. 1979; Code, s. 1735; R. C., c. 31, s. 31; 1779, c. 157, s. 10.)

Section Does Not Repeal Common Law Exemption.—This section does not by implication repeal the common-law exemption of nonresidents from service of process while in the State in attendance in court either as witnesses or as suitors. Cooper v. Wyman, 122 N. C. 784, 29 S. E. 947. See, also, Greenlief v. Peoples Bank, 133 N. C. 292, 45 S. E. 638.

§ 2329. Exemptions from jury duty.—1. All practicing physicians, licensed druggists, telegraph operators who are in the regular employ of any telegraph company or railroad company, train dispatchers who have the actual handling of either freight or passenger trains, regularly licensed pilots, regular ministers of the gospel, officers or employees of a state hospital for the insane, active members of a fire company, funeral directors and embalmers, printers and linotype operators, all millers of grist mills, all United States railway postal clerks and rural free delivery mail carriers, locomotive engineers, brakemen and railroad conductors in active service, and all members of the National guard of North Carolina who comply with and perform all duties required of them as members of said national guard, shall be exempt from service as jurors. (Rev., s. 1980; Code ss. 1723, 2269; 1885, c. 289; 1889, c. 255; 1897, c. 32; 1901, c. 118; 1909, cc. 333, 868; 1913, c. 38, s. 1; 1915, c. 260; 1931, c. 410.)

2. On the first day of January and July of each year the commanding officer of each company, troop, battery or division of the national guard of North Carolina shall file with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which said company, troop, battery or division is located a statement giving the names and rank of each member of his organization who has performed all military duties required of such member during the preceding six months, and any member of such military organization whose name shall not appear upon the statement shall not receive the benefit of the exemption provided above during the six months immediately following the filing of said statement. (1913, c. 38, s. 2.)

3. The board of county commissioners of any county in North Carolina may, in their discretion, exempt any ex-confederate soldier in their county from jury duty who shall apply to them for exemption. (1915, c. 229.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 added "brakemen" to the first paragraph of this section.

Exemption Not a Contract.—Exemption from jury duty is not a contract, but a mere privilege, and may be revoked by the Legislature at any time. State v. Cantwell, 142 N. C. 604, 55 S. E. 820.

§ 2330. Clerk to keep record of jurors.—The clerk of the superior court shall record alphabetically in a book kept for the purpose the names of all grand and petit jurors and talesmen who serve in his court, with the term at which they serve. (Rev., s. 1981; 1893, c. 52, s. 3.)

§ 2330(a). Extra or alternate juror; challenges; compensation and duties. — In the trial in the Superior Court of any case, civil or criminal, when it appears to the judge presiding that the trial is likely to be protracted, upon direction of the judge after the jury has been duly impaneled and sworn, an additional or alternate juror shall be selected in the same manner as the regular jurors in said case were selected, but each party shall be entitled to two peremptory challenges as to such alternate juror; such additional or alternate juror shall likewise be sworn and seated near the jury, with equal opportunity for seeing and hearing the proceedings and shall attend at all times upon the trial with the jury and shall obey all orders and admonitions of the court to the jury and, when the jurors are ordered kept together in any case, said alternate juror shall be kept with them. Such additional or alternate juror shall be liable as a regular juror for failure to attend the trial or to obey any order or admonition of the court to the jury, shall receive the same compensation as other jurors, and except as hereinafter provided shall be discharged upon the final submission of the case to the jury. If before the final submission of the case to the jury a juror becomes incapacitated or disqualified he may be discharged by the judge, in which case, or if a juror dies, upon the order of the judge said additional or alternate juror shall become one of the jury and serve in all respects as though selected as an original juror. (1931, c. 103.)

Editor's Note.—In 9 N. C. Law Rev. 378, in referring to this section, it is said that the obvious remedy would be a statute which should provide that if any juror should die or become incapacitated during the trial, the remaining members of the jury should be empowered to render the verdict.

Constitutional. — The essential attributes of trial by jury guaranteed by Art. I, sec. 13, are the number of jurors, their impartiality and a unanimous verdict, and this section does not infringe upon same, the alternate not being technically a juror until a member of the jury has died or been discharged and the alternate is made a juror by order of the court, and the verdict being finally returned by the unanimous verdict of twelve good and lawful men. State v. Dalton, 206 N. C. 507, 174 S. E. 422.

Art. 3. Peremptory Challenges in Civil Cases

§ 2331. Six peremptory challenges on each side.—The clerk, before a jury is impaneled to try the issues in any civil suit, shall read over the names of the jury upon the panel in the presence and hearing of the parties or their counsel; and the parties, or their counsel for them, may challenge peremptorily six jurors upon the said panel, without showing any cause therefor, which shall be allowed by the court. (Rev., s. 1964; Code, s. 406; R. C., c. 31, s. 35; 1796, c. 452, s. 2; 1812, c. 833; 1935, c. 475, s .1.)

As to challenge of alternate juror, see § 2330(a).

Editor's Note.—In prior codes it has been the custom to cite state cases in the annotations to this section. While many of the same principles apply in both civil and criminal cases, secs. 4633 and 4634 prescribe specifically for the latter class—the editors have consequently deemed it expedient to place all state causes under the sections mentioned, to which reference should be made.

By the amendment of 1935 the number of peremptory challenges was increased from four to six.

In General.—As in the case of challenges for cause, the the right is given to challenge but such right does not constitute the right to select jurors. Ives v. Railroad, 142 N. C. 131, 137, 55 S. E. 74; Medlin v. Simpson, 144 N. C. 397, 57 S. E. 24.

Reasons for Challenge Need Not Be Given.—A party's reason for peremptorily challenging can not be inquired into. Dupree v. Ins. Co., 92 N. C. 418.

More Parties than One.—Whether there are one or more plaintiffs or defendants, only four peremptory challenges to the jury on either side are allowable. Bryan v. Harrison, 76 N. C. 360.

After Acceptance.—Where a juror has been accepted it is error to permit a peremptory challenge. Dunn v. Railroad, 141 N. C. 446, 42 S. E. 862.

Cited in Ramsey v. Carolina-Tennessee Power Co., 195 N. C. 788, 143 S. E. 861.

§ 2332. Where several defendants; challenges apportioned; discretion of judge.—When there are two or more defendants in a civil action the judge presiding at the trial, if it appears to the court that there are divers and antagonistic interests between the defendants, may in his discretion apportion among the defendants the challenges now allowed by law to defendants, or he may increase the number of challenges to not exceeding four to each defendant or class of defendants representing the same interest. In either event, the same number of challenges shall be allowed each defendant or class of defendants representing the same interest. The decision of the judge as to the nature of the interests and number of challenges shall be final. (Rev., s. 1965; 1905, c. 357.)

Cited in Ramsey v. Carolina-Tennessee Power Co., 195 N. C. 788, 143 S. E. 861.

Art. 4. Grand Jurors

§ 2333. How grand jury drawn.—The judges of the superior court, at the terms of their courts, except those terms which are for the trial of civil cases exclusively, and special terms for which no grand jury has been ordered, shall direct the names of all persons returned as jurors to be written on scrolls of paper and put into a box or hat and drawn out by a child under ten years of age; whereof the first eighteen drawn shall be a grand jury for the court; and the residue shall serve as petit jurors for the court. (Rev., s. 1969; Code, s. 404; R. C., c. 31, s. 33; 1779, c. 157, s. 11.)

As to grand jury generally, see 6 Enc. Dig. 864 et seq., 14 Enc. Dig. 273 et seq.

Twelve Jurors Sufficient.—Eighteen jurors are not necessary to the finding of an indictment, but twelve are sufficient in North Carolina as at common law. State v. Stewart, 189 N. C. 340, 127 S. E. 260.

Cited in State v. Barkley, 198 N. C. 349, 351, 151 S. E. 733.

§ 2334. Grand juries in certain counties.—At the first fall and spring terms of the criminal courts held for the counties of Gaston, Guilford, Mecklenburg, Moore, Pitt, Richmond, New Hanover, McDowell, Durham, Cumberland, Columbus, Nash, Johnston, Vance, Wayne, Iredell, and Wake, grand juries shall be drawn, the presiding judge shall charge them as provided by law, and they shall serve during the remaining fall and spring terms, respectively. In the event of vacancies occurring in the grand jury of Pitt county, the judge holding the court of said county, may, in his discretion, order a new juror drawn to take the oaths prescribed and to fill any vacancy occurring therein.

At any time the judge of the superior court presiding over either the criminal or civil court of New Hanover, McDowell, Durham, and Cumberland counties may call said grand jury to assemble and may deliver unto said grand jury an additional charge. The said judge presiding over either the criminal or civil court of New Hanover, McDowell, Durham, or Cumberland counties may at any time discharge said grand jury from further service, in which event he shall cause a new grand jury to be drawn which shall serve during the remainder of the said fall or spring term. The first nine members of the grand jury chosen at the first term of the superior court of Cumberland county for the trial of criminal cases in the year of one thousand nine hundred twenty-two shall serve during the spring and fall terms, and at the first of such courts of the fall and spring terms thereafter, nine additional jurors shall be chosen to serve for one year.

At any time the judge of the superior court presiding over the criminal court of Columbus county may call said grand jury to assemble and may deliver unto said jury an additional charge. The said judge presiding over the criminal court of Columbus county may at any time discharge said grand jury from further service, and may cause a new grand jury to be drawn, which shall serve during the remainder of the said fall and spring term.

Every grand juror drawn and summoned in Robeson county shall serve for a period of twelve months.

At the spring term of the criminal court held for the county of Gates, and for the county of Henderson, grand jury shall be drawn, the presiding judge shall charge them as provided by law, and they shall serve for twelve (12) months: Provided, that at any time the judge of the superior court presiding over the criminal courts of Gates county or Henderson county may call said jury to assemble and may deliver unto said grand jury an additional charge: Provided further, that the judge of the superior court presiding over the criminal courts of Gates county and of Henderson county may at any time discharge said grand jury from further service, and may cause a new grand jury to be drawn, which shall serve during the remainder of the said twelve (12) months.

At the April term of superior court held for the county of Hoke a grand jury shall be drawn, the presiding judge shall charge it as provided by law, and it shall serve until the following April term, Hoke superior court: Provided, that at any time the judge of the superior court presiding over either criminal or civil court in said county may call said grand jury to assemble and may deliver unto said grand jury an additional charge: Provided further, that the judge of the superior court presiding over either criminal or civil court in said county may at any time discharge said grand jury from further service, in which event he shall cause a new grand jury to be drawn, which shall serve out the unfinished year.

If it should appear to the board of commissioners of Union county, thirty days before the beginning of the term of superior court that begins on the third Monday after the first Monday in March, that the condition of the criminal docket, and the number of prisoners in jail, make it necessary that said March term should be used as a criminal term, the said board of commissioners are authorized and empowered within their discretion to draw a grand jury for said term, and to give thirty days' notice in some local paper that criminal cases would be tried at said term, and all criminal process and undertakings returnable to a subsequent term shall be returnable to said March term. A grand jury for Union county shall be selected at each January term of the superior court in the usual manner by the presiding judge, which said grand jury shall serve for a period of one year from the time of their selection. (1913, c. 196; 1917, cc. 116, 118; 1919, cc. 113, 187; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 39; 1921, cc. 18, 55, 69, 72; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 15; 1923, cc. 11, 15, 104, 115; 1925, c. 24; 1929, c. 52, ss. 1, 2; 1931, cc. 43, 97, 130, 131, 237; 1933, cc. 29, 92.)

Editor's Note.—From time to time the legislature has amended this section (the citations of the amendments are given above) by adding other counties to which its provisions are applicable.

The Act of 1929 added Pitt County to the first paragraph of this section, and the Acts of 1931 added Henderson, Johnston, Iredell, Vance and Wayne Counties. See §§ 2334(a) and 2334(b).

Public Laws of 1933, cc. 29, 92, made the fourth paragraph of this section, formerly applicable in Gates county only, applicable to Henderson county. The provision, at the end of this section, relating to the grand jury and Union county, was also inserted. For act relating to fees of grand jurors applicable in Scotland county only, see Public Laws 1924, Ex. Sess., c. 28 as amended by Public Laws 1933, c. 138.

For an act providing for the selection of grand jury for the January term of superior court and providing for service of such jury for one year in Cabarrus county, see Public Laws 1935, chapter 5. The act also provides for selection at the April term of the year 1935.

For an act providing for the selection of a grand jury of Macon county at each April term, see Public Laws 1935, chapter 4.

For an act providing for the selection of a grand jury at each July term for Montgomery county, see Public Laws 1935, chapter 41.

When 1933 Amendment Effective.—The 1933 amendment went into effect subsequent to the first spring term of Henderson county, and the "spring term" referred to in the act meaning the first spring term, the amendment is not effective for the year 1933. State v. Dalton, 206 N. C. 507, 174 S. E. 422.

§ 2334(a). Same—In Bertie County.—In the selection of a grand jury for Bertie County for the fall term of one thousand nine hundred and twenty-seven and annually thereafter, there shall be drawn and summoned forty men, in the same manner as now provided by law, from which a grand jury of eighteen shall be selected by the presiding judge of the Superior Court, which said grand jury shall serve for a period of one year from the time of their selection.

The persons drawn for service in the grand jury at the term at which said grand jury is selected, and who are not selected to serve on the grand jury, shall serve on the petit jury for the week of the term at which the grand jury is selected: Provided, that at other terms of the Superior Court of Bertie County, both civil and criminal, there shall be drawn and summoned, in the manner now provided by law, twenty persons from which the jury for the term of court for which they are drawn shall be selected. (1927, c. 78.)

§ 2334(b). Same—In Durham County.—At the first term of court for the trial of criminal cases in Durham County after the first day of July, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine, there shall be chosen a grand jury as now provided by law, and the first nine members of said grand jury chosen at said term shall serve for a term of one year, and the second nine members of said grand jury so chosen shall serve for a term of six months, and thereafter at the first term of criminal court after the first days of January and July of each year there shall be chosen nine members of said grand jury to serve for a term of one year. (1929, c. 122, s. 1.)

§ 2334(c). Same—In Davidson County.—The grand jurors for Davidson County shall be drawn at the first fall and spring terms of the criminal courts held in the County of Davidson, and the judge shall charge them as provided by law, and the jurors so drawn shall serve during the remaining fall and spring terms respectively; provided that the grand jurors drawn at the next criminal term in said County, following the ratification of this act shall serve during the remaining spring term. (1929, c. 133, s. 1.)

§ 2334(d). Same — In Johnston, Wayne and Iredell Counties. — In the event of any vacancy occurring in the grand jury of Johnston, Wayne or Iredell County by death, removal from the county, sickness, or otherwise, the presiding judge may in his discretion, order such vacancy, or vacancies, filled by drawing sufficient jurors to fill said vacancy or vacancies from the jury box, and said juror or jurors so drawn shall take the oath prescribed by law and shall fill out the unexpired term of the juror or jurors whose places they were drawn to fill. The presiding judge shall have the power, in his discretion, to appoint an assistant-foreman of the grand jury in the counties of Johnston, Wayne and Iredell and said assistant-foreman so appointed shall, in the absence or disqualification of the foreman, discharge the duties of the foreman of said grand jury. (1931, c. 43, s. 2, c. 130, s. 2.)

§ 2335. Exceptions for disqualifications.—All exceptions to grand jurors for and on account of their disqualifications shall be taken before the jury is sworn and impaneled to try the issue, by motion to quash the indictment, and if not so taken, the same shall be deemed to be waived. But no indictment shall be quashed, nor shall judgment thereon be arrested, by reason of fact that any member of the grand jury finding such bills of indictment had not paid his taxes for the preceding year, or was a party to any suit pending and at issue. (Rev., s. 1970; Code, s. 1741; 1907, c. 36, s. 1.)

For full treatment of grand jurors, see 6 Enc. Dig. 880 et seq., 14 Enc. Dig. 274.

Grand Jury of Twelve Men.—An indictment found by a grand jury of twelve men is good, provided all of the twelve concur in finding the bill. State v. Perry, 122 N. C. 1018, 29 S. E. 384.

Duty of Grand Jurors.—It is not only the right but it is the duty of grand jurors, of their own motion, to originate prosecutions by making presentments of all violations of law which have come under the personal observation or knowledge of each juror, or of which they have credible information. State v. Wilcox, 104 N. C. 847, 10 S. E. 453.

Grand Juror also Member of Petit Jury.—The fact that a member of the grand jury which returned a true bill for perjury was one of the petit jury that tries the issues, in an action wherein it was charged the perjury was committed, is not good ground for abating or quashing the indictment. He was bound by his oath as a grand juror to communicate to his fellows the information he had acquired as a petit juror. State v. Wilcox, 104 N. C. 847, 19 S. E. 433.

Grand Juror Having Suit Pending.—The fact that one of the grand jurors who found a true bill had at that time a suit pending and at issue in the same court is sufficient ground to support a motion to quash the indictment, if the motion is made in apt time. State v. Gardner, 104 N. C. 739, 10 S. E. 146.

Son of Prosecutor Member of Grand Jury.—The fact that the son of the prosecutor, in an indictment for larceny, was a member of the grand jury, and actively participated in finding the bill, did not vitiate the indictment, and it was error to quash it on that ground. State v. Sharp, 110 N. C. 604, 14 S. E. 504.

Absence of Negroes from Grand Jury.—It is no ground to quash an indictment because it was found by a grand jury drawn from a venire in which there were no colored freeholders. The jury list, as constituted by the county court in accordance with the law in force at the time of its constitution, did not contain the names of such colored freeholders. State v. Taylor, 61 N. C. 508. See also State v. Daniels, 134 N. C. 641, 46 S. E. 743.

The exclusion of all persons of the negro race from a grand jury, which finds an indictment against a negro, where they are excluded solely because of their race or color, denies him the equal protection of the laws in violation of the Constitution of the United States. State v. Peoples, 131 N. C. 784, 42 S. E. 814.

Indictment Not Quashed for Failure to Pay Taxes.—Formerly, it was discretionary with the trial judge to allow or refuse a motion to quash because a grand juryman had not paid his taxes after entry of plea until the petit jury was sworn and impaneled, and a motion to quash after entry of plea was made too late as a matter of right. This is changed by the amendment of 1907 adding the last sentence of this section. State v. Banner, 149 N. C. 519, 63 S. E. 84.

The passage of this section, immediately following the decision of this court in Breese v. United States, 143 F. 250, was evidently for the purpose of removing the disqualification of grand jurors, based upon failure to pay taxes for the preceding year, in case where they actually serve upon the grand jury and pass upon bills of indictment; and there is no reason why it should not be given this interpretation. Davis v. United States, 49 F. (2d) 269, 270.

Members of Grand Jury Summoned by Mistake. — While, generally, the provisions of the statute for drawing and summoning jurors are directory, the grand jury is illegally constituted when one whose name was not drawn from the boxes was summoned by mistake, and served by mistake. State v. Paramore, 146 N. C. 604, 60 S. E. 502.

When Competency of Grand Jury Excepted to.—Matters which go to the incompetency of a grand jury may be excepted to after the bill is found, if it is done at the earliest opportunity afterwards, which clearly is upon the arraignment, when the defendant is first called upon to answer. State v. Griffice, 74 N. C. 316.

A motion to quash an indictment, made upon arraignment and before pleading, for that the grand jury was improperly constituted, is in apt time. State v. Paramore, 146 N. C. 604, 60 S. E. 502.

Qualifications Judged at Time of Service.—The fact that a grand juror was a minor when his name was put on the the jury list is immaterial if he was of age at the time he served. State v. Perry, 122 N. C. 1018, 29 S. E. 384.

Cited in State v. Barkley, 198 N. C. 349, 151 S. E. 733.

§ 2336. Foreman may administer oaths to witnesses.—The foreman of every grand jury duly sworn and impaneled in any of the courts has power to administer oaths and affirmations to persons to be examined before it as witnesses: Provided, that the said foreman shall not administer such oath or affirmation to any person except those whose names are endorsed on the bill of indictment by the officer prosecuting in behalf of the state, or by direction of the court. The foreman of the grand jury shall mark on the bill the names of the witnesses sworn and examined before the jury. In case of the absence of the foreman, or in case of his inability to serve, the presiding Judge shall appoint an acting foreman, who shall have all powers vested by law in the foreman. (Rev., s. 1971; Code, s. 1742; 1879, c. 12; 1929, c. 228.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added the last sentence to this section.

Section Not Exclusive.—This section, authorizing the foreman of the grand jury to swear witnesses to be examined before the jury, is directory merely, and the omisclerk of the court. State v. Allen, 83 N. C. 680; State v. White, 88 N. C. 698.

Section Directory Merely.—The provision of the section, providing that the foreman of the grand jury shall mark on the indictment the names of the witnesses sworn and examined before the jury, is directory merely, and the omission of the foreman to comply therewith is no ground for quashing the bill, where the proof is that the witnesses were sworn. State v. Hines, 84 N. C. 810. See State v. Avant, 202 N. C. 680, 163 S. E. 806.

This section is directory, and the fact that it does not appear by indorsement on a bill and that the only witness had been sworn and examined is no ground for quashing the indictment or arresting the judgment. State v. Hollingsworth, 100 N. C. 535, 6 S. E. 417.

No Indorsement Necessary.—No indorsement on a bill of indictment by the grand jury is necessary. The record that it was presented by the grand jury is sufficient in the absence of evidence to impeach it. State v. Sultan, 142 N, C. 569, 54 S. E. 841, overruling State v. McBroom, 127 N. C. 528, 37 S. E. 193.

Witnesses Not Re-Examined.—Where an indictment upon which witnesses had been examined was returned by the grand jury "a true bill," and quashed because it did not sufficiently charge the offense intended, and thereupon a new bill for the offense was sent and returned into court, "a true bill," without a re-examination of the witnesses upon this bill should be quashed. State v. Ivey, 100 N. C. 539, 5 S. E. 407.

§ 2337. Grand jury to visit jail and county home.—Every grand jury, while the court is in session, shall visit the county home for the aged and infirm, the workhouse, if there is one, and the jail, examine the same, and especially the apartments in which inmates and prisoners shall be confined; and they shall report to the court the condition thereof and of the inmates and prisoners confined therein, and also the manner in which the jailer or superintendent has discharged his duties. (Rev., s. 1972; Code, s. 785; R. C., c. 30, s. 3; 1816, c. 911, s. 3.)

Art. 5. Special Venire

§ 2338. Special venire to sheriff in capital cases.—When a judge of the superior court deems it necessary to a fair and impartial trial of any person charged with a capital offense, he may issue to the sheriff of the county in which the trial may be a special writ of venire facias, commanding him to summon such number of persons qualified to act as jurors in said county as the judge may deem sufficient (such number being designated in the writ), to appear on some specified day of the term as jurors of said court; and the sheriff shall forthwith execute the writ and return it to the clerk of the court on the day when it is returnable, with the names of the jurors summoned. (Rev., s. 1973; Code, s. 1738; R. C., c. 35, s. 30; 1830, c. 27; 1913, c. 31, s. 1.)

Discretion of Judge.—It is in the discretion of the trial judge to order a special venire in capital cases and determine its number, which he may likewise change by another order. State v. Brodgen, 111 N. C. 656, 16 S. E. 170.

An objection by a prisoner charged with capital offense, that the special venire was summoned by the sheriff as prescribed by this section instead of being drawn from the jury box as prescribed by section 2339, is untenable since the latter method is purely discretionary. State v. Smarr, 121 N. C. 669, 28 S. E. 549.

The ordering of a special venire where the prisoner is charged with a capital offense, and the manner in which it shall be summoned or drawn, when so ordered, whether selected by the sheriff under this section, or drawn from the box under section 2339, are both discretionary with the judge of the superior court, and unless an objection goes to the whole panel of jurors, it may not be taken advantage of by a challange to the array, unless there is partiality or misconduct of the sheriff shown, or some irregularity in making out the list. State v. Levy, 187 N. C. 581, 122 S. E. 386.

Juror May Have Served Within Two Years.—A juror summoned on a special venire is not rendered incompetent because he has served on the jury in the same court within two years. Only tales jurors come within the proviso of sec. 2321 and, in order that they may be disqualified, it must appear that they have not only been summoned, but have acted as jurors within that time. State v. Whitfield, 92 N. C. 831.

Special Venire Selected without Regard to Color.—It is no ground of exception that a special venire was selected from the freeholders of the county without regard to color, no reference having been had to the jury list constituted by the county court. State v. Taylor, 61 N. C. 508.

Accessory May Be Tried by Special Venire.—Where two persons are indicted for murder, one as principal and the other as accessory before the fact, the latter may be tried by a jury selected from a special venire ordered in the case. State v. Register, 133 N. C. 746, 46 S. E. 21.

Challenge for Cause.—Under this section where a special venire has been ordered by the court for the trial of a capital felony, such venire, is selected by the sheriff in his discretion, not from the jury box, and by § 4635 are subject to the same challenges for cause as tales jurors. State v. Avant, 202 N. C. 680, 163 S. E. 806.

§ 2339. Drawn from jury box in court by judge's order.—When a judge deems a special venire necessary, he may, at his discretion, issue an order to the clerk of the board of commissioners for the county, commanding him to bring into open court forthwith the jury boxes of the county, and he shall cause the number of scrolls as designated by him to be drawn from box number one by a child under ten years of age. The names so drawn shall constitute the special venire, and the clerk of the superior court shall insert their names in the writ of venire, and deliver the same to the sheriff of the county, and the persons named in the writ and no others shall be summoned by the sheriff. If the special venire is exhausted before the jury is chosen, the judge shall order another special venire until the jury has been chosen. The scrolls containing the names of the persons drawn as jurors from box number one shall, after the jury is chosen, be placed in box number two, and if box number one is exhausted before the jury is chosen, the drawing shall be completed from box number two after the same has been well shaken. (Rev., s. 1974; Code, s. 1739; 1897, c. 364; 1913, c. 31, s. 2.)

As to qualification of jurors, see section 2312 and annotations thereunder.

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 219.

Editor's Note.—Formerly special veniremen were required to be freeholders, but in 1913, Laws 1913, ch. 31, this section was revised and this requirement omitted. The only qualification now seems to be those required for members of the original panel.

For cases decided under the former rule, see State v. Moore, 120 N. C. 565, 26 S. E. 629; State v. Kilgore, 93 N. C. 533. See, also, State v. Freeman, 100 N. C. 429, 5 S. E. 921.

Method of Drawing Directory.—The regulations as to drawing a special venire may be directory, but they should be strictly observed. However, failure to follow the directions of the statute will not invalidate the panel in the absence of bad faith or other adequate cause. State v. Parker, 132 N. C. 1014, 43 S. E. 830.

The practice of drawing the venire from the box is commended. State v. Brogden, 111 N. C. 656, 16 S. E. 170.

The drawing of the jury from the box is authorized by this section, and is favored by the courts, though the requirement is not mandatory. State v. Whitson, 111 N. C. 695, 697, 16 S. E. 332.

Discretion of Judge.—See notes to preceding section.

How Jurors Drawn.—On the trial of a capital case, the names of the jurors of the original panel should be first put into the box and drawn, before those of the tales jurors are put in and drawn; and the jurors summoned under a special venire facias are in this respect to be regarded as talesmen. State v. Benton, 19 N. C. 196.

Special Venire Exhausted.—When a special venire is exhausted without completing the jury, the court may order a further venire to be summoned at once from the bystanders. State v. Stanton, 118 N. C. 1182, 24 S. E. 536.

Matters Affecting Entire Panel.—In the absence of any allegation that the sheriff acted corruptly or with partiality in summoning the venire, or that anything had been done affecting "the integrity and fairness of the entire panel," it is not a ground of challenge to the array that the sheriff failed to summon several of the special venire, drawn from the jury box or that the jury box was not revised by the county commissioners. State v. Stanton, 118 N. C. 1182, 24 S. E. 536.

The integrity and fairness of the entire panel of jurors summoned in obedience to a writ of special venire are not affected by the fact that one man named in the writ had removed from the county and that another named therein was dead when the jury list was revised by the commissioners. Neither are they affected by the fact that one of these named on the venire was not summoned, nor by the fact that the Sheriff in copying the list of the venire furnished him omitted, by mistake, the name of one who in consequence was not summoned. State v. Whitt, 113 N. C. 716, 18 S. E. 715.

§ 2340. Penalty on sheriff not executing writ or jurors not attending.—If any sheriff fails duly to execute and return such writ of venire facias, he shall be fined by the court not exceeding one hundred dollars. All jurors so summoned shall attend until discharged by the court, under the same rules and penalties as are prescribed for other jurors. (Rev., ss. 1975, 3602; Code, s. 1740; R. C., c. 35, s. 31; 1830, c. 27, s. 2.)

Amendment of Return on Writ.—Where a sheriff, in making his return on a writ and list of special venire, endorsed thereon, "Received October 15, 1893, executed October 30, 1893, by summoning one hundred and fifty men," it was within the discretion of the court, at the term to which the writ was returnable, to permit an amendment of the return so as to show those of the list furnished him by the clerk who were actually summoned, and those not summoned, with the reasons why they were not. State v. Whitt, 113 N. C. 716, 18 S. E. 715.

LANDLORD AND TENANT

Art. 1. General Provisions

§ 2341. Lessor and lessee not partners.—No lessor of property, merely by reason that he is to receive as rent or compensation for its use a share of the proceeds or net profits of the business in which it is employed, or any other uncertain consideration, shall be held a partner of the lessee. (Rev., s. 1982; Code, s. 1744; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 3.)

For full treatment of landlord and tenant, see 8 N. C. Enc. Dig. 505-612; 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 622-637.

In General.—The lessor and lessee are not partners. State v. Keith, 126 N. C. 1114, 1115, 36 S. E. 169. Thus, where B. was to furnish land, farming implements, feed and team and W. was to do the work, and the crops were to be equally divided, it was held that this was not an agricultural partnership. Lawrence v. Week, 107 N. C. 119, 12 S. E. 120. See also Day v. Stevens, 88 N. C. 83, explaining and correcting. Curtis v. Cash, 84 N. C. 41.

Duration.—A demise may be for a day as well as for a year, and may be terminable at the will of the lessor. It is not ended until the property is returned to the owner. United States v. Shea, 152 U. S. 178, 189, 190, 38 L. Ed. 403.

The legal understanding of a lease for years is a contract for the possession and profits of land, for a determinate period, with the compensation of rent. Thomas v. Railroad Co., 101 U. S. 71, 78, 25 L. Ed. 950.

Effect of Words "Grant" and "Demise."—In a United State's Supreme Court case it was held that the words "grant" and "demise" in a lease for years create an implied warranty of title and a covenant of quiet enjoyment. See Scott v. Rutherford, 92 U. S. 107, 23 L. Ed. 486.

§ 2342. Attornment unnecessary on conveyance of reversions, etc.—Every conveyance of any rent, reversion, or remainder in lands, tenements or hereditaments, otherwise sufficient, shall be deemed complete without attornment by the holders of particular estates in said lands: Provided, no holder of a particular estate shall be prejudiced by any act done by him as holding under his grantor, without notice of such conveyance. (Rev., s. 947; Code, s. 1764; 4 Anne, c. 16, s. 9; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 17.)

§ 2343. Term forfeited for non-payment of rent.—In all verbal or written leases of real property of any kind in which is fixed a definite time for the payment of the rent reserved therein, there shall be implied a forfeiture of the term upon failure to pay the rent within ten days after a demand is made by the lessor or his agent on said lessee for all past-due rent, and the lessor may forthwith enter and dispossess the tenant without having declared such forfeiture or reserved the right of reëntry in the lease. (1919, c. 34.)

Purpose of Section.—This section was passed to protect landlords who made verbal or written leases and omitted in their contracts to make provision for reentry on nonpayment of rent when due. The consequence was that often an insolvent lessee would avoid payment of rent, refuse to vacate and stay on until his term expired. Ryan v. Reynolds, 190 N. C. 563, 565, 130 S. E. 156.

Lease or Contract of Rental.—No technical words are necessary to create a demise. It is enough that the language used shows an intent to transfer the possession, command and control. United States v. Shea, 152 U. S. 178, 189, 38 L. Ed. 403.

Written into Leases.—The section writes into a contract of a lease of lands, when the lease is silent thereon, a forfeiture of the terms of the lease upon failure of the lessee to pay the rent within ten days after a demand is made by the lessor or his agent for all past due rent, with right of the lessor to enter and dispossess the lessee. Ryan v. Reynolds, 190 N. C. 563, 130 S. E. 156.

Forfeiture for Benefit of Lessor.—The forfeiture implied by this section is for the benefit of the lessor, and to be declared only at his application. Monger v. Lutterloh, 195 N. C. 274, 142 S. E. 12, holding section not applicable to facts of the case.

Forfeiture Denied upon Tender of Rent and Costs.—See note under § 2372.

Reentry after Forfeiture.—It was held in the Supreme Court of the United States in Ewell v. Daggs, 108 U. S. 143, 149, 27 L. Ed. 682, that leases which contain a forfeiture of lessee's estate for nonpayment of rent, or breach of other conditions, declare that on the happening of the contingency the demise shall thereupon become null and void, meaning that the forfeiture may be enforced by reentry at the option of the lessor.

Construed with Section 2372.—This section and section 2372, are in pari materia, and should be construed together. Ryan v. Reynolds, 190 N. C. 563, 130 S. E. 156.

§ 2344. Recovery for use and occupation.—When any person occupies land of another by the permission of such other, without any express agreement for rent, or upon a parol lease which is void, the landlord may recover a reasonable compensation for such occupation, and if by such parol lease a certain rent was reserved, such reservation may be received as evidence of the value of the occupation (Rev., s. 1986; Code, s. 1746; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 5.)

Where Lease Void under Statute of Frauds.—Where a lease was void under the statute of frauds, the lessors could only recover for the time the premises were occupied. Harty v. Harris, 120 N. C. 408, 411, 27 S. E. 90.

§ 2345. Rent apportioned, where lease terminated by death.—If a lease of land, in which rent is reserved, payable at the end of the year or other certain period of time, is determined by the death of any person during one of the periods in which the rent was growing due, the lessor or his personal representative may recover a part of the rent which becomes due after the death proportionate to the part of the period elapsed before the death, subject to all just allowances; and if any security was given for such rent it shall be apportioned in like manner. (Rev., s. 1987; Code, s. 1747; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 6.)

§ 2346. Rents apportioned, where right to payment terminated by death.—In all cases where rents, rent charges, annuities, pensions, dividends, or any other payments of any description, are made payable at fixed periods to successive owners under any instrument, or by any will, and where the right of any owner to receive payment is terminable by a death or other uncertain event, and where such right so terminates during a period in which a payment is growing due, the payment becoming due next after such terminating event, shall be apportioned among the successive owners according to the parts of such periods elapsing before and after the terminating event. (Rev., s. 1988; Code, s. 1748; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 7.)

§ 2347. In lieu of emblements, farm lessee holds out year, with rents apportioned.—When any lease for years of any land let for farming on which a rent is reserved determines during a current year of the tenancy, by the happening of any uncertain event determining the estate of the lessor, or by a sale of said land under any mortgage or deed of trust, the tenant in lieu of emblements shall continue his occupation to the end of such current year, and shall then give up such possession to the succeeding owner of the land, and shall pay to such succeeding owner a part of the rent accrued since the last payment became due, proportionate to the part of the period of payment elapsing after the termination of the estate of the lessor to the giving up such possession; and the tenant in such case shall be entitled to a reasonable compensation for the tillage and seed of any crop not gathered at the expiration of such current year from the person succeeding to the possession. (Rev., s. 1990; Code, s. 1749; 1868-9, 156, s. 8; 1931, c. 173.)

Editor's Note.—Under the common law a tenant for an uncertain time was entitled to the annual production of his annual labor although his tenancy was terminated by the happening of some contingent event, and the remainderman might be deprived of his rent for a part of the current year. This section was passed to protect the right of the remainderman and to secure for him his rent for the part of the year which had not elapsed at the time his title vested. See Hayes v. Wrenn, 167 N. C. 229, 231, 83 S. E. 356.

The Act of 1931, which amended this section to permit an agricultural tenant for years, in case the tenancy is terminated by the sale of the land under any mortgage or deed of trust, to continue his occupation to the end of the current year and to apportion the rent, excepted pending litigation. The act became effective March 23, 1931. See 9 N. C. Law Rev. 379.

Section Reasonable and Constitutional.—This section is but a reasonable legislative regulation of the method and means whereby the remainderman, or succeeding owner, comes into possession and complete enjoyment of his estate and is constitutional. King v. Foscue, 91 N. C. 116, 120.

When No Limitation Exists.—Wherever the relation of landlord and tenant exists, without any limitation as to time, such tenancy shall be from year to year, nor shall either party be at liberty to put an end to it unless by a regular notice. Stedman v. McIntosh, 26 N. C. 291.

Lease Continued.—A lease of land made by a tenant for life terminates at his death, but by this section the lease is continued to the end of the current lease-year that the tenant's representatives may gather his crop. King v. Foscue, 91 N. C. 116.

The common law being in force in this jurisdiction and the representatives of the life tenant upon his uncertain tenure from death being entitled to the emblements, this section was passed. This was done to protect the right of the remainderman and to secure for him his rent for the part of the year which had not elapsed at the time his title vested. Under the statute the remainderman is entitled to a part of the rent proportionate to the part of the year elapsing after the termination of the life estate to the surrendering of possession to the remainderman. See King v. Foscue, 91 N. C. 116; Collins v. Bass, 198 N. C. 99, 102, 150 S. E. 706.

Lease for One Year Included.—The phrase employed in this section, "a lease for years," is used in a technical sense, like the similar phrase, "an estate for years," by which is meant, an estate for a definite period of time, and it embraces a lease for a single year. King v. Foscue, 91 N. C. 116, 119.

Amount Remainderman Entitled to.—Under this section the remainderman is entitled to a part of the rent proportionate to the part of the year elapsing after the termination of the life estate to the surrendering of possession to the remainderman. King v. Foscue, 91 N. C. 116; Hayes v. Wrenn, 167 N. C. 229, 83 S. E. 356.

§ 2348. Grantees of reversion and assigns of lease have reciprocal rights under covenants.—The grantee in every conveyance of reversion in lands, tenements or hereditaments has the like advantages and remedies by action or entry against the holders of particular estates in such real property, and their assigns, for nonpayment of rent, and for the nonperformance of other conditions and agreements contained in the instruments by the tenants of such particular estates, as the grantor or lessor or his heirs might have; and the holders of such particular estates, and their assigns, have the like advantages and remedies against the grantee of the reversion, or any part thereof, for any conditions and agreements contained in such instruments, as they might have had against the grantor or his lessors or his heirs. (Rev., s. 1989; Code, s. 1765; 32 Hen. VIII, c. 34; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 18.)

§ 2349. Agreement to rebuild, how construed in case of fire.—An agreement in a lease to repair a demised house shall not be construed to bind the contracting party to rebuild or repair in case the house shall be destroyed or damaged to more than one-half of its value, by accidental fire not occurring from the want of ordinary diligence on his part. (Rev., s. 1985; Code, s. 1752; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 11.)

Common Law Rule.—In 24 Cyc., 1089 the common law rule is stated as follows: "According to the common law rule, which has been followed generally in this country, a covenant on the part of the lessee to repair or keep in good repair imposes on him an obligation to rebuild the demised premises if they are destroyed during the term by fire or other casuality, even where he is without fault," citing a large number of cases. Chambers v. North River Line, 179 N. C. 199, 202, 102 S. E. 198.

Same—Examples.—"In Pasteur v. Jones, 1 N. C., 393, the court held that where a tenant covenanted to build and leave in repair, and did build, but the houses were destroyed by fire the court of equity would compel him either to rebuild or pay the value of the buildings." Chambers v. North River Line, 179 N. C. 199, 202, 102 S. E. 198.

The lessee's covenant to maintain the leased premises in its present condition is equivalent to a general covenant to repair and leave in repair under the common law, and unless otherwise stated in the lease or provided by statute this duty is not affected by the lessee's negligence or the fact that the property had been destroyed during the continuance of the lease by the act of God or the public enemy. Chambers v. North River Line, 179 N. C. 199, 102 S. E. 198.

Changes Made by Section.—This section was enacted to change the rule, formerly existing, but limits its application to the destruction of a house by accidental fire, and only then where it is damaged to more than half its value. It does not apply to a case where the destruction is not by fire, but by ice and flood. Chambers v. North River Line, 179 N. C. 199, 202, 102 S. E. 198.

The word "maintain" is practically the same thing as repair, which means to restore to a sound or good state, after decay, injury, dilapidation, or partial destruction. Chambers v. North River Line, 179 N. C. 199, 102 S. E. 198.

§ 2350. Tenant not liable for accidental damage.—A tenant for life, or years, or for a less term, shall not be liable for damage occurring on the demised premises accidentally, and notwithstanding reasonable diligence on his part, unless he so contract. (Rev., s. 1991; Code, s. 1751; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 10.)

Duty of Landlord and Tenant Distinguished.—I Jaggard Torts, 223, thus sums up the law: "Normally, the occupant and not the owner or landlord is liable to third persons for injuries caused by the failure to keep the premises in repair. The liability may, however, be extended to the landlord or owner; (a) when he contracts to repair; (b) where he knowingly demises the premises in a ruinous condition or in a state of nuisance; (c) where he authorizes a wrong." Knight v. Foster, 163 N. C. 329, 330, 79 S. E. 614.

Covenant against Accident from External Causes.—It was held in the United States Supreme Court that the law does not imply a warranty that no accident shall befall the tenant from external forces, such as storms, tornadoes, earthquakes or snowslides. Doyle v. Union Pac. R. Co., 147 U. S 413, 423, 37 L. Ed. 223.

When Lessor Liable for Injuries.—While ordinarily the tenant and not the landlord is liable to third persons for injuries caused to them by the failure to keep the premises in repair, the liability may be extended to the owner, where the condition existed at the time the premises were leased, and for months and years, and the owner knew of it and had promised to rectify it at the solicitation of the tenant. Knight v. Foster, 163 N. C. 329, 79 S. E. 614.

No Implied Obligation on Lessor to Make Repairs.—It was held in the United States Supreme Court that a covenant is never implied that the lessor will make any repairs. Sheets v. Selden, 7 Wall. 416, 423, 19 L. Ed. 166.

Lessor and Lessee Both Liable.—Where under the terms of his lease the landlord has assumed the responsibility of making repairs of the leased premises with diligence and has charge thereof, through his employee or janitors, and has rented an office over a store therein, with a defective or choked drain pipe, to a dentist, which he had for years failed to inspect, in an action by the lessee of the store against him and the lessee of the office, evidence that the dentist had approved an insufficient outlet for the water flowing from his cuspidor, and that he had permitted the overflow from the cuspidor to continue all night, and from this and the choked condition of the drain the water overflowed and went through the floor and injured plaintiff's stock of goods, is sufficient to sustain a verdict against both defendants jointly, the negligence of each, if established, being the proximate cause of the injury. Rucker v. Willey, 174 N. C. 42, 93 S. E. 379.

Lessee's Duty to Repair or Rebuild.—It was held in a United States Supreme Court case that in the absence of an express covenant to repair, a tenant is not answerable for accidental damages, nor is he bound to rebuild, if the buildings are accidentally destroyed by fire or otherwise. United States v. Bostwick, 94 U. S. 53, 24 L. Ed. 65.

Mismanagement of Ferry.—Where the owner of land, to which a ferry is annexed as a franchise, leases the land together with the ferry, he is not responsible for any damage sustained by a third person, from the mismanagement of the ferry while in possession of the lessee. Biggs v. Ferrell, 34 N. C. 1.

§ 2351. Willful destruction by tenant misdemeanor.—If any tenant shall, during his term or after its expiration, wilfully and unlawfully demolish, destroy, deface, injure or damage any tenement house, uninhabited house or other outhouse, belonging to his landlord or upon his premises by removing parts thereof or by burning, or in any other manner, or shall unlawfully and willfully burn, destroy, pull down, injure or remove any fence, wall or other inclosure or any part thereof, built or standing upon the premises of such landlord, or shall wilfully and unlawfully cut down or destroy any timber, fruit, shade or ornamental tree belonging to said landlord, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3686; Code, s. 1761; 1883, c. 224.)

Meaning of "Willful."—The word willful as used in this section means something more than an intention to do a thing. It implies the doing of the act purposely and deliberately, indicating a purpose to do it, without authority—careless whether he has the right or not—in violation of law, and it is this which makes the criminal intent, without which one can not be brought within the meaning of a criminal statute. State v. Whitener, 93 N. C. 590, 592.

Same—Where Acts Bona Fide.—If the defendants reasonably and bona fide believe that they have the right to remove the buildings, etc., they are not guilty of removing them "willfully" so as to bring their act within the meaning of this section. State v. Rowland Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 610, 614, 69 S. E. 58.

Right to Remove Certain Fixtures.—It is intimated that an away-going tenant has the right to remove fixtures put on the premises by himself for his own convenience. State v. Whitener, 93 N. C. 950. Approved in State v. Morgan, 136 N. C. 628, 630, 48 S. E. 670.

Houses Covered by Section.—For meaning of "tenement house," "uninhabited house" and "outhouse" as used in this section, see State v. Rowland Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 610, 612, 613, 69 S. E. 58.

Corporation Liable.—A corporation is indictable for the acts of its officers and agents under this section. State v. Rowland Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 610, 69 S. E. 58.

The Indictment.—An indictment charging the defendant with burning a dwelling house occupied by him "as lessee" falls within this section. State v. Graham, 121 N. C. 623, 28 S. E. 409.

Burden of Proof.—In an indictment under this section the burden of proof is upon the State to establish, first, that the landlord and tenant existed, and, second, that during the tenant's term or after its expiration he did willfully and unlawfully injure the tenement-house. State v. Godwin, 138 N. C. 582, 50 S. E. 277.

Evidence.—In the trial of an indictment for burning a dwelling house occupied by the defendant as lessee, evidence that the defendant at a prior time was guilty of a similar offence is inadmissible. State v. Graham, 121 N. C. 623, 28 S. E. 409.

§ 2352. Lessee may surrender, where building destroyed or damaged.—If a demised house, or other building, is destroyed during the term, or so much damaged that it cannot be made reasonably fit for the purpose for which it was hired, except at an expense exceeding one year's rent of the premises, and the damage occur without negligence on the part of the lessee or his agents or servants, and there is no agreement in the lease respecting repairs, or providing for such a case, and the use of the house damaged was the main inducement to the hiring, the lessee may surrender his estate in the demised premises by a writing to that effect delivered or tendered to the landlord within ten days from the damage, and by paying or tendering at the same time all rent in arrear, and a part of the rent growing due at the time of the damage, proportionate to the time between the last period of payment and the occurrence of the damage, and the lessee shall be thenceforth discharged from all rent accruing afterwards; but not from any other agreement in the lease. This section shall not apply if a contrary intention appear from the lease. (Rev., s. 1992; Code, s. 1753; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 12.)

In General.—An inspection of this section will show that not only is it in terms confined to a demised house or other building but that it expressly excepts from its provisions those leases in which there is an "agreement respecting repairs." Also by its express terms it requires, as a condition precedent to its application, that a lessee "surrender his estate in the demised premises by a writing to that effect, delivered or tendered to the landlord within ten days from the damages." Chambers v. North River Line, 179 N. C. 199, 202, 102 S. E. 198.

The modification of the common law liability of the lessee of a building, etc., to pay the rent, when the building was accidentally destroyed, etc., during the term of his lease, by this section, under certain conditions, is to some extent a legislative recognition that, without its provisions, the principles of the common law would prevail; and neither the statute, being for the benefit of the lessee, nor the common law principle, has application, when the lessee is insisting on certain rights arising to him under the provisions of the lease. Miles v. Walker, 179 N. C. 479, 102 S. E. 884.

When Landlord Restores Building.—Though the landlord may be under no implied obligation to restore or repair a building which had been destroyed, etc., if he does enter and make the required repairs without further agreement on the subject, the building so rebuilt or restored will come under the provisions of the lease as far as the same may be applied, and for a breach the landlord may be held responsible. Miles v. Walker, 179 N. C. 479, 102 S. E. 884.

Crack in Swimming Pool.—Where a swimming pool is leased for a year, under a written contract that the lease would terminate upon the pool becoming unfit for use, it was held, that a crack in the walls thereof by which the pool was drained of water, and repaired by the lessor at an inappreciable sum, is not sufficient to give the lessee the right to cancel the lease when repair was made under a parol agreement within a reasonable time. Archibald v. Swaringen, 192 N. C. 756, 135 S. E. 849.

Time Allowed for Repairs.—Where a monthly rental to be paid by the lessee of a building, and an obligation to make certain repairs by him, is specified as the consideration for the lease, with forfeiture of the lease upon the non-payment of the rent at stated times, the lessee's liability to repair and to pay rent are, as a rule, distinct and independent obligations, and the law will imply that the lessee be given a reasonable time in which to make the repairs if none is stated in the lease. Miles v. Walker, 179 N. C. 497, 102 S. E. 884.

Reasonable Time.—Where the controversy is made to depend upon whether the damage to the leased premises had been repaired by the lessor within a reasonable time, when the extent of the damage is insufficient to terminate the lease under its written terms, in this case the repair of walls of a dam to a swimming pool, evidence that three days had elapsed between the time the lessor and lessee had agreed upon the repairs necessary and the time the repairs were made, is sufficient to sustain an affirmative verdict that they were made in a reasonable time. Archibald v. Swaringen, 192 N. C. 756, 135 S. E. 849.

Where the terms of a lease fully provide for the rights of the parties upon destruction of the property by fire such rights will be determined in accordance with the written agreement, without reference to this section, or the common law. Grant v. Borden, 204 N. C. 415, 168 S. E. 492.

§ 2353. Wrongful surrender to other than landlord misdemeanor.—Any tenant or lessee of lands who shall willfully, wrongfully and with intent to defraud the landlord or lessor, give up the possession of the rented or leased premises to any person other than his landlord or lessor, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3682; Code, s. 1760; 1883, c. 138.)

§ 2354. Notice to quit in certain tenancies.—A tenancy from year to year may be terminated by notice to quit given one month or more before the end of the current year of tenancy; a tenancy from month to month by a like notice of seven days; a tenancy from week to week, of two days. [And any tenant or lessee terminating any such tenancy shall notify the landlord the day the premises are vacated and deliver to such landlord or his agent the keys to the buildings thereon, and any tenant or lessee violating this provision shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than fifty dollars ($50) or imprisoned not more than thirty days. Provided that the portion of this section in brackets shall apply only to Pitt, Randolph, Montgomery, Wake, Forsyth and Perquimans counties.] (Rev., 1894; Code, s. 1750; 1891, c. 227; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 9; 1925, c. 196; 1931, c. 20; 1935, cc. 119, 472.)

Editor's Note.—Previous to 1925 this section contained only the first sentence of the present section. The last two sentences were added by ch. 196. Public Laws of 1925.

The Act of 1931 added Wake County to this section.

Public Laws of 1935, chapter 472 adds Perquimans county; Public Laws of 1935, chapter 119 adds Forsyth county.

For an act increasing the notice from two to seven days in case of tenancy from week to week, applicable only in Halifax county, see Public Laws of 1935, chapter 22.

Notice Must Be Given.—A tenant from year to year is entitled to a written or verbal notice to quit, and a mere demand for possession is insufficient. Vincent v. Corbin, 85 N. C. 108, cited in note in 25 L. R. A., N. S., 103.

A landlord has no right to dispossess his tenant from year to year, without first giving the statutory notice, where the tenant acknowledges the tenancy, sets up no adverse claim or other defense, and relies upon the wants of legal notice. Fayetteville Waterworks Co. v. Tillinghast, 119 N. C. 343, 348, 25 S. E. 960.

Effect of Notice.—On May 18, 1897, a landlord gave a tenant from month to month notice "to get out within 30 days." The landlord had received the rent for May. It was held, that such notice was invalid as to May, as the rent had been paid, and as to June, because not ending with the month. Simmons v. Jarman, 122 N. C. 195, 29 S. E. 332, cited in notes in 25 L. R. A., N. S., 857, 858.

Verbal Notice Sufficient.—A verbal notice by landlord to tenant is sufficient. Section 914 applies to a different class of notices. Poindexter v. Call, 182 N. C. 366, 109 S. E. 26.

Tenancies at Will.—Where a person is put in possession of land by the owner, without any agreement for rent, and with an express provision that he shall leave it whenever the owner may require him to do so, he is not a tenant from year to year, but strictly a tenant at will, and is not entitled to notice to quit as provided in this section. Humphries v. Humphries, 25 N. C. 362, cited in notes in 35 L. R. A., N. S., 708; 41 L. R. A., N. S, 405.

Where a tenancy is from year to year, and, after the commencement of a year, there is an express lease for a certain time and an agreement to quit at the end of that time, no notice is necessary in order to terminate the tenancy after such time. Williams v. Bennett, 26 N. C. 122.

Where one occupied land claiming it as his own, and when possession was demanded refused to deliver it up, it was held that he could not afterwards insist upon the statutory notice. Head v. Head, 52 N. C. 620, cited in note in 25 L. R. A., N. S., 105.

Effect of Holding Over.—When a tenant for a year or longer time holds over and is recognized by the landlord without further agreement or other qualifying facts or circumstances, he becomes tenant from year to year, and is subject to the payment of the rent and other stipulations of the lease as far as the same may be applied to existing conditions. Murrill v. Palmer, 164 N. C. 50, 80 S. E. 55; Holton v. Andrews, 151 N. C. 340, 66 S. E. 212; Harty v. Harris, 120 N. C. 408, 27 S. E. 90; Scheelky v. Koch, 119 N. C. 80, 25 S. E. 713; Stedman v. McIntosh, 26 N. C. 291. But it is competent to rebut the presumption that he is a tenant from year to year by proof of a special agreement. Harty v. Harris, 120 N. C. 408, 27 S. E. 90.

Same Tenant Entitled to Notice. — It was not error to charge the jury that, if the tenant leased the premises at five dollars per month and had held over several months, paying the same rent without any new agreement, he was a tenant from month to month, and entitled to fourteen days' (now seven days') notice to quit. Branton v. O'Briant, 93 N. C. 99.

But the fact that a tenant, who entered into the occupation of premises under an express lease from month to month, continued the occupation for more than two years, is no reason why he should be considered a tenant from year to year, and entitled to the one month's notice to quit. Jones v. Willis, 53 N. C. 430.

Effect of Leaving Premises after Waiver of Notice.—A tenant from year to year, who waives his right to notice to quit, and goes out of possession, has no right to go back on the premises. Torrans v. Stricklin, 52 N. C. 50.

Art. 2. Agricultural Tenancies

§ 2355. Landlord's lien on crops for rents, advances, etc., enforcement. — When lands are rented or leased by agreement, written or oral, for agricultural purposes, or are cultivated by a cropper, unless otherwise agreed between the parties to the lease or agreement, any and all crops raised on said lands shall be deemed and held to be vested in possession of the lessor or his assigns at all times, until the rents for said lands are paid and until all the stipulations contained in the lease or agreement are performed, or damages in lieu thereof paid to the lessor or his assigns, and until said party or his assigns is paid for all advancements made and expenses incurred in making and saving said crops. A landlord to entitle himself to the benefit of the lien herein provided for, must conform as to the prices charged for the advance to the provisions of the article Agricultural Liens, in the chapter Liens.

This lien shall be preferred to all other liens, and the lessor or his assigns is entitled, against the lessee or cropper, or the assigns of either, who removes the crop or any part thereof from the lands without the consent of the lessor or his assigns, or against any other person who may get possession of said crop or any part thereof, to the remedies given in an action upon a claim for the delivery of personal property.

Provided, that when advances have been made by the federal government or any of its agencies, to any tenant or tenants on lands under the control of any guardian, executor and/or administrator for the purpose of enabling said tenant or tenants to plant, cultivate and harvest crops grown on said land, the said guardian, executor, and/or administrator may waive the above lien in favor of the federal government, or any of its agencies, making said advances. (Rev., s. 1993; Code, s. 1754; 1896-7, 283; 1917, c. 134; 1933, c. 219.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1933, c. 219, added the proviso now appearing at the end of this section.

A Statutory Remedy.—In Howland v. Forlaw, 108 N. C. 567, 13 S. E. 173, the court held that the common-law remedy of lessors by distress does not obtain in this State; and that, except as specifically given by statute, a landlord has no lien on the product of the leased property for rent. Reynolds v. Taylor, 144 N. C. 165, 167, 56 S. E. 871.

Applies Only to Agriculture.—This statutory lien is only given when lands are rented or leased for agricultural purposes. Reynolds v. Taylor, 144 N. C. 165, 167, 56 S. E. 871.

What "Crops" Include.—The words "crop raised" mean simply the crop grown or gathered during the year. The word "raised" appears nowhere else in the section, nor in succeeding sections, only the word "crops" is used. The Legislature had in mind no distinction between fructus industriales (products obtained by labor and cultivation) and fructus naturales (products which emanate from the power of nature alone), and there was no need of any. State v. Crook, 132 N. C. 1053, 1056, 44 S. E. 32.

The section gives the landlord a lien for his rent "on any and all crops," that is, on all that is "cropped, cut or gathered" in that season from his land. State v. Crook, 132 N. C. 1053, 1057, 44 S. E. 32.

The operations of a mortgage or agricultural lien in respect to crops are confined to crops then or about to be planted, and will not be extended further than those planted next after the execution of the instrument. Wooten v. Hill, 98 N. C. 49, 3 S. E. 846.

Same—Hay.—Hay is ordinarily embraced in the word "crop" as used in this section. But not, it seems, when it is merely a spontaneous growth, as crab-grass, which sprung up after another crop is housed. State v. Crook, 132 N. C. 1053, 44 S. E. 32.

What Constitutes One a Cropper.—An agreement by him who cultivates land that the owner who advances "guano, seed-wheat," etc., shall out of the crop be repaid in wheat for such advancements, constitutes the former a cropper, and not a tenant. State v. Burwell, 63 N. C. 661.

Cropper Has No Estate.—A cropper has no estate in the land, and his possession is that of the landlord. State v. Austin, 123 N. C. 749, 31 S. E. 731.

When Lessee Has Lien.—When a lessee sublets a part of the farm he becomes lessor to his sublessee and is entitled to the same lien on his crop which the statute gives a lessor. Moore v. Faison, 97 N. C. 322, 2 S. E. 169; Perry v. Perry, 127 N. C. 23, 37 S. E. 71; and therefore holds a prior lien to a mortgagor of the crops. Perry v. Perry, 127 N. C. 23, 37 S. E. 71. The lien of the original landlord is not, however, impaired. See note under the succeeding analysis line, catchline "Effect of Subrenting."

Agreements between Tenants.—Where A and B, tenants in common, agreed to make partition of lands and fix the boundaries, and A agreed that B should occupy the whole and pay to him a portion of the crop raised thereon, it was held, that although this was valid as an agreement for a year, it did not constitute a lease, so as to create the relation of landlord and tenant between the parties. Medlin v. Steele, 75 N. C. 154.

Cited in Jennings v. Keel, 196 N. C. 675, 679, 146 S. E. 716. Never Fail Land Co. v. Cole, 197 N. C. 452, 457, 149 S. E. 585.

II. LIEN OF LESSOR.

Landlord's Lien Superior.—The landlord's lien, where the same attaches, by the express terms of the statute is made superior to all other liens. Reynolds v. Taylor, 144 N. C. 165, 167, 56 S. E. 871; Wooten v. Hill, 98 N. C. 49, 3 S. E. 846; Ledbetter v. Quick, 90 N. C. 276; Brewer v. Chappell, 101 N. C. 251, 7 S. E. 670. Including the right of the purchaser of a crop. Burwell v. Coopers Co-op. Warehouse Co., 172 N. C. 79, 89 S. E. 1064.

The lien of a landlord takes precedence to that of a third party for advances, notwithstanding the priority of the latter in time. Spruill v. Arrington, 109 N. C. 192, 13 S. E. 779; Crinkley v. Egerton, 113 N. C. 444, 18 S. E. 669. And this precedence is to the extent of the advances made. Wooten v. Hill, 98 N. C. 49, 3 S. E. 846. See Supply Co. v. Davis, 194 N. C. 328.

A contract expressed and purporting to be a lease of lands for agricultural purposes, does not change the relationship of landlord and tenant between the parties upon the ground that if the amount of stipulated rent should be paid at a certain time it should be regarded as a credit upon the purchase of the land at a stated price, it not appearing that the transaction of the contemplated purchase had been made under option given; and the landlord or one to whom the contract has been validly assigned may enforce his lien under this section in priority to the lien, under § 2480, of one furnishing advancements for the cultivation of the crop. Wise Supply Co. v. Davis, 194 N. C. 328, 139 S. E. 599.

The landlord's lien under this section does not attach to a crop made entirely in a year subsequent to that in which the advancements are furnished to the tenant. Brooks v. Garrett, 195 N. C. 452, 142 S. E. 486.

The statutory landlord's lien under this section is superior to that of one furnishing supplies to the cropper under § 2480, but where the cropper under a separate contract with the landlord raises a certain crop, the lien for advancements attaches to such crop, and where the landlord has received the payment for the entire crop including the special crop under separate contract with the cropper and pays himself the amount due as rent, the lien for advancements attaches to the surplus and the holder of the lien may recover thereon from the landlord. Glover v. Dail, 199 N. C. 659, 155 S. E. 575.

Third Person Charged with Notice. — Every person who makes advancements to a tenant or cropper of another does so with notice of the rights of the landlord, and that any lien that he may have on the tenant's crop is preferred to all others, and the risk is his if the tenant does not satisfy the preferred lien by complying with the contract and all stipulations in regard thereto. Thigpen v. Leigh, 93 N. C. 47. Thigppen v. Maget, 107 N. C. 39, 46, 12 S. E. 272.

Same—Caveat Emptor.—This section gives a landlord the title to the crop until the rent is actually paid (whether the claim be reduced to a judgment or not), and such title is not impaired by the fact that the tenant conveys the crop to a third person, who takes without notice of the landlord's claim. The rule caveat emptor applies. Belcher v. Grimsley, 83 N. C. 88.

Liability to Other Lienholders.—A landlord is liable to account to persons who have a lien for supplies furnished for the value of the crops in excess of his lien. Crinkley v. Egerton, 113 N. C. 142, 146, 18 S. E. 341.

Liability of Landlord for Marketing of Tenant's Tobacco. —The landlord and tenant act (this section) gives the landlord only a preferred lien on his tenant's crop on his rented lands for the payment of the rent; and unless and until the landlord has acquired a part of his tenant's crop for the rent, he has acquired no tobacco from his tenant that comes within the provisions of his membership contract in the Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association, and is not liable for the penalty therein contained for failure to market the tobacco raised by his tenant. Tobacco Growers Co-op. Ass'n v. Bissett, 187 N. C. 180, 121 S. E. 446. For an article discussing the effect of the landlord's lien upon cooperative marketing in North Carolina and citing the above case, see 2 N. C. Law Rev. 188.

Effect of Subrenting.—The landlord's right to the crop to secure payment of rent is not impaired by the sub-letting of his tenant. The sub-tenant's crop may thereby be subjected to a double lien, that of the landlord and that of his immediate lessor, but the lien of the landlord is paramount. Montague v. Mial, 89 N. C. 137. Moore v. Faison, 97 N. C. 322, 324, 2 S. E. 169; State v. Crook, 132 N. C. 1053, 1054, 44 S. E. 32.

Antecedent Debts Not Included.—It was not intended to confer a lien upon the landlord for antecedent debts which the lessee might stipulate to pay, and give them a preference over the agricultural lienee, whose money and supplies materially assisted in the production of the crops. This view is assumed to be correct in Thigpen v. Maget, 107 N. C. 39, 12 S. E. 272, and is undoubtedly in harmony with the policy of the law in securing the landlord his rent, and at the same time enabling the tenant to obtain advances from third parties. Ballard Co. v. Johnson, 114 N. C. 141, 144, 19 S. E. 98.

Although under this section and section 2480 and 2488 the lien of a landlord for rent and advances is superior to that of a third party making advances to the tenant, yet such priority exists only for rent accruing or advances made during the year in which the crops are grown, and not for a balance due for an antecedent year. Ballard v. Johnson, 114 N. C. 141, 19 S. E. 98.

Assignee of Tenant's Rent Note.—The assignee of a note, given by a tenant for rent, has a landlord's lien on the crop. Avera v. McNeill, 77 N. C. 50, 52.

Where a landlord furnishes advancements for the making of crops, the lien for the rent and for advancements are in equal degree, and now attach, since the amendment of § 2480, by chapter 302, Public Laws 1925, to the crops raised by the tenant on the same lands, planted during one calendar year and harvested in the next. Brooks v. Garrett, 195 N. C. 452, 142 S. E. 486.

Conferred Upon Mortgagee.—An agreement after default, between mortgagor and mortgagee, that the mortgagor was to remain in possession as tenant, would confer a landlord's lien upon the mortgagee. Cooper v. Kimbell, 123 N. C. 120, 31 S. E. 346.

Vendor after Default.—After default by a vendee of land to pay the purchase money, the vendor may by contract become landlord of the vendee so as to avail himself of the landlord's lien given by this section. Jones v. Jones, 117 N. C. 254, 23 S. E. 214; Ford v. Green, 121 N. C. 70, 73, 28 S. E. 132.

Certain Costs Included.—The landlord's lien extends to and includes the costs of such legal proceedings as are necessary to recover his rents; and, as all the crops are his until such lien is duly discharged, the tenant has no property therein which he can claim as his constitutional exemption as against such costs. Slaughter v. Winfrey, 85 N. C. 159.

Judgment for Rent.—This section makes a judgment for rent a lien on the crop. Hargrove v. Harris, 116 N. C. 418, 21 S. E. 916.

III. POSSESSION AND TITLE TO CROP.

Common Law Provision.—Before this section was passed, the title to the whole of the crop was, in contemplation of law, vested in the tenant (even where the parties had agreed upon the payment as rent of a certain portion of the crop) until a division had been made and the share of the landlord had been set apart to him in severalty. Deaver v. Rice, 20 N. C. 567; Gordon v. Armstrong, 27 N. C. 409; Biggs v. Ferrell, 34 N. C. 1; Ross v. Swaringer, 31 N. C. 481. Howland v. Forlaw, 108 N. C. 567, 569, 13 S. E. 173.

Section Applies Only to Landlord and Tenant.—Except in the case of landlord and tenant provided for specifically by this section, the lessor has no lien upon the product of the leased property as rent; it is for all purposes, until division, deemed vested in the tenant, and his sale to third persons before the rent is ascertained and set apart conveys a good title. Howland v. Forlaw, 108 N. C. 567, 13 S. E. 173.

Where the occupant of land is a vendee or mortgagor in default, although he may for some purposes be considered a tenant at will, he is not a lessee whose crop, under the provisions of this section, is vested in the landlord. Taylor v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 27, 16 S. E. 924.

Vested in Lessor.—All crops raised on the land, whether by tenant or cropper, are by this section deemed to be vested in the landlord, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, until the rents and advancements are paid. State v. Austin, 123 N. C. 749, 31 S. E. 731; State v. Keith, 126 N. C. 1114, 1115, 36 S. E. 169; Durham v. Speeke, 82 N. C. 87; Smith v. Tindall, 107 N. C. 88, 12 S. E. 121; Batts v. Sullivan, 182 N. C. 129, 108 S. E. 511.

Same—For His Protection.—For the lessor's protection, as between him and the tenant, the possession of the crop is deemed vested in the lessor. State v. Higgins, 126 N. C. 1112, 36 S. E. 113.

Lessor May Use Force.—An attempt to appropriate and carry off the crop may be repelled by the landlord by force, provided no more force is used than is necessary to protect his possession. State v. Austin, 123 N. C. 749, 31 S. E. 731.

Actual Possession in Tenant.—Though the constructive possession of the crop is vested by statute in the landlord, yet, during the cultivation, and for all purposes of making and gathering the crop, the actual possession is in the tenant until the rent and advances become due, or a division can be had. Jordan v. Bryant, 103 N. C. 59, 9 S. E. 135.

The whole tenor of this and the following sections contemplates the right of the lessee or cropper to hold the actual possession, until such time as a division shall be made. State v. Copeland, 86 N. C. 692, 694.

Same—May Maintain Action.—As against third parties the tenant is entitled to the possession both of the land and crop while it is being cultivated, and he may maintain an action in his own name for any injury thereto. Bridgers v. Dill, 97 N. C. 222, 1 S. E. 767. And the ownership of the crop is well charged as his in the indictment. State v. Higgins, 126 N. C. 1112, 36 S. E. 113.

But in Desert Salt Co. v. Tarpy, 142 U. S. 241, 245, 35 L. Ed. 999, it was stated, as follows: "The lessee can of course, as against strangers, have no greater right of possession than his lessor."

Tenant Has Insurable Interest.—That the possession and title to the crop are deemed vested in the landlord does not divest the tenant of an insurable interest in the crops before division. "It is well settled that any person has an insurable interest in property by the existence of which he will gain an advantage, or by the destruction of which he will suffer a loss, whether he has or has not any title in, or lien upon, or possession of, the property itself." Harrison v. Fostlage, 161 U. S. 57; Batts v. Sullivan, 182 N. C. 129, 131, 108 S. E. 511.

When Crop Divided.—Unless otherwise provided by an agreement, the crop should be divided from time to time, as considerable parts thereof shall be gathered, especially where the gathering of the whole is delayed for a considerable length of time. Smith v. Tindall, 107 N. C. 88, 91, 12 S. E. 121.

Crop Left in Field.—A crop cultivated by a tenant and left standing in the field after the expiration of this term, becomes the property of the landlord. And this is so, whether or not the tenant has assigned the crop. Sanders v. Ellington, 77 N. C. 255.

IV. ADVANCEMENTS.

Purchaser Takes with Knowledge.—A purchaser or mortgagee of a crop takes with a full knowledge that if advances shall be necessary to enable the cultivator to make the crop, and without which there would perhaps be no crop, such advances shall be preferred lien upon the crop, made by reason of such advances, and that this preference shall extend to "existing" liens. Wooten v. Hill, 98 N. C. 49, 53, 3 S. E. 846.

What Included.—The "advancements" referred to in this section embraces anything of value supplied by the landlord to the tenant, or cropper, in good faith, directly or indirectly, for the purpose of making and saving the crop. Brown v. Brown, 109 N. C. 124, 13 S. E. 797.

Where a landlord either pays or becomes responsible for supplies to enable the tenant to make a crop, such supplies are advances. Powell v. Perry, 127 N. C. 22, 37 S. E. 276.

Supplies necessary to make and save a crop are such articles as are in good faith furnished to and received by the tenant for that purpose. Ledbetter v. Quick, 90 N. C. 176.

Where a landlord advanced certain cotton-seed, etc., to his tenant in 1884, and in 1885 and 1886 allowed his tenant to retain parts of the undivided cotton-seed and crops by way of advancement, it was held that the plaintiff had a landlord's lien on such seed and crops. Thigpen v. Maget, 107 N. C. 39, 12 S. E. 272.

Same—Board.—Where the landlord supplied the tenant and his family with board, to the end that he might make and save the crop, nothing to the contrary appearing, the reasonable value of such board would constitute an advancement within the meaning of this section. Brown v. Brown, 109 N. C. 124, 13 S. E. 797.

Same—Presumption.—When advancements are of such things as in their nature are appropriate and necessary to the cultivation of the crop, e. g. farming implements and work animals, they will be presumed to create the lien; but where they are of articles not in themselves so appropriate and necessary—e. g., dry goods and groceries—whether they will constitute a lien depends upon the purpose for which they were furnished, and it must affirmatively appear that they were made in aid of the crop. Brown v. Brown, 109 N. C. 124, 13 S. E. 797.

Same—Question for Jury. — It was proper in the court to leave it to the jury to find whether upon the evidence a mule and wagon, etc., were treated as advancements. Ledbetter v. Quick, 90 N. C. 276.

Where Diverted.—That the lessee diverts the advancements from the purpose contemplated cannot change their nature and the purpose of them. Womble v. Leach, 83 N. C. 84; Ledbetter v. Quick, 90 N. C. 276; Brown v. Brown, 109 N. C. 124, 127, 13 S. E. 797.

Collusion and Fraud.—Where landlord and tenants undertake by collusion and fraud to create an indebtedness to the former, under color of "advancements," to the prejudice of creditors of the tenant, such a transaction will not be sustained. Ledbetter, v. Quick, 90 N. C. 276.

Crop of Sublessee.—The original lessor, after his lessee has paid him in full, has no lien under the statute on the crop of the sublessee for advances made by him to the sublessee. Moore v. Faison, 97 N. C. 322, 2 S. E. 169.

V. REMEDY OF LESSOR TO ENFORCE LIEN.

In General.—The landlord may bring claim and delivery to recover possession of crops raised by the tenant of cropper, where his right of possession under this section is denied, or he may resort to any other appropriate remedy to enforce his lien for the rent due and the advances made. Livingston v. Farish, 89 N. C. 140.

Tenant's Liability.—If the tenant, at any time before satisfying the landlord's liens for rent and advances, removes the crop, or any part of it, he becomes liable civilly and criminally. Jordan v. Bryan, 103 N. C. 59, 9 S. E. 135.

When Action Lies.—The action will lie, not only where the crops are removed from the land leased, but also in a case where the tenant or cropper, or any other person, takes the crops into his absolute possession and denies the right of the landlord thereto. Livingston v. Farish, 89 N. C. 140.

The remedy of claim and delivery was designated for the landlord's protection, and it can not, either by the terms of the statute or by any fair construction, be resorted to before the time fixed for division, unless the tenant is about to remove or dispose of the crop, or abandon a growing crop; otherwise, the tenant might be sued for parcel of the crop as it was gathered. Neither the language nor the spirit of the statute will permit this. Jordan v. Bryan, 103 N. C. 59, 65, 9 S. E. 135.

Same—When No Time for Division Fixed.—Where, in a contract between the landlord and tenant, no time was fixed for the division of the crop, the landlord was not obliged to wait until the whole crop had been gathered, but had a right to bring his action for the possession of the crop before it was fully harvested. Rich v. Hobson, 112 N. C. 79, 16 S. E. 931; Smith v. Tindall, 107 N. C. 88, 12 S. E. 121.

Action for Undivided Portion.—The lessor can maintain an action for recovery of an undivided portion of a crop, and it is not necessary that he shall specifically designate in his complaint or, affidavit in claim and delivery, such undivided part. Boone v. Darden, 109 N. C. 74, 13 S. E. 728.

Denial of Landlord's Title.—Where in his answer in an action of claim and delivery, the defendant tenant denies that the crop, for the possession of which the action is brought, is vested in the plaintiff landlord, such denial avoids the necessity of proving a demand before the commencement of the action. Rich v. Hobson, 112 N. C. 79, 16 S. E. 931.

Not a Personal Property Exemption.—The right to enforce the landlord's lien cannot be defeated by the lessee's claiming the crop as a part of his personal property exemption. Durham v. Speeke, 82 N. C. 87.

Action against Tenant by Third Party.—In an action against a tenant to recover damages for his failure to deliver a crop under his contract of sale, the defense that the tenant had not settled with his landlord, and that the contract was therefore illegal, is not available, when it is shown that the landlord had consented to the sale and had thereafter taken possession of the crop at the tenant's request. Lee v. Melton, 173 N. C. 704, 91 S. E. 697.

§ 2356. Rights of tenant.—When the lessor or his assigns gets the actual possession of the crop or any part thereof otherwise than by the mode prescribed in the preceding section, and refuses or neglects, upon a notice, written or oral, of five days, given by the lessee or cropper or the assigns of either, to make a fair division of said crop, or to pay over to such lessee or cropper or the assigns of either, such part thereof as he may be entitled to under the lease or agreement, then and in that case the lessee or cropper or the assigns of either is entitled to the remedies against the lessor or his assigns given in an action upon a claim for the delivery of personal property to recover such part of the crop as he, in law and according to the lease or agreement, may be entitled to. The amount or quantity of such crop claimed by said lessee or cropper or the assigns of either, together with a statement of the grounds upon which it is claimed, shall be fully set forth in an affidavit at the beginning of the action. (Rev., s. 1994; Code, s. 1755; 1876-7, c. 283, s. 2.)

In General.—The action allowed to a cropper by this section is given against the lessor or employer, and, also, against any person to whom he may assign, or sell, the crop, or any interest therein as, for example, the person who might have an "agricultural lien" upon it, acquired subsequently to the making of the contract with the cropper. Rouse v. Wooten, 104 N. C. 229, 232, 10 S. E. 190.

Purpose.—This section intends to encourage and favor the laborer as to those matters and things upon which his labor has been bestowed, and that he shall certainly reap the just benefit of his toil. Rouse v. Wooten, 104 N. C. 229, 233, 10 S. E. 190.

Same—Creates a Lien.—While one who labors in the cultivation of a crop, under a contract that he shall receive his compensation from the crops when matured and gathered, has no estate or interest in the land, but is simply a laborer—at most, a cropper—his right to receive his share is protected by this section, which for certain purposes creates a lien in his favor, and which will be enforced against the employer or landlord, or his assigns, and which has precedence over agricultural liens made subsequent to his contract, but before the crop is harvested. Rouse v. Wooten, 104 N. C. 229, 10 S. E. 190.

Lessor Cannot Seize Crop.—The lessor has no right, when there is no agreement to that effect, to take the actual possession from the lessee or cropper, and can never do so, except when he obtains the same by an action of claim and delivery, upon the removal of the crop by the lessee or cropper. State v. Copeland, 86 N. C. 692, 694.

Lessee Left to Civil Remedy.—When the lessee is wrongfully deprived of the actual possession of his crop by the lessor, he is left to his civil remedy, under this section for the breach of trust, should the lessor refuse to account. State v. Keith, 126 N. C. 1114, 36 S. E. 169.

Same—Claim and Delivery.—Where a lessor gets possession of the crop by his own act, the remedy of the lessee to recover his part thereof is by claim and delivery. Wilson v. Respass, 86 N. C. 112.

Same—Trover Not Proper.—Where a landlord took the crop into his sole possession, and refused to divide when it was demanded, on the ground that the crop was not then in condition for a division, but he did not deny the tenant's right to a division, and while in his possession the crop was destroyed by fire; it was held, that this did not amount to a conversion, and an action in the nature of trover could not be maintained. Shearin v. Riggsbee, 97 N. C. 216, 1 S. E. 770.

Lessee's Right to Bring Trespass.—In the U. S. Supreme Court, Van Allen v. Assessors, 3 Wall. 573, 598, 18 L. Ed. 229, it was held, that a man who has leased a farm has no right to possession or control during the lease, and if he wrongfully enters upon the building, or land, and retains wrongful possession of it, he may be liable to the tenant in an action of trespass quare clausum fregit.

Where Lessor Seizes Too Much.—If a lessor seizes more than enough to satisfy his lien, and refuses "to make a fair division of the crop," the defendant can compel him to do so in the manner prescribed in this section. Boone v. Darden, 109 N. C. 74, 78, 13 S. E. 728.

When Cropper Dies.—Where a cropper dies before harvesting his crop, his personal representatives are entitled to recover his share of the crop. Parker v. Brown, 136 N. C. 280, 48 S. E. 657.

§ 2357. Action to settle disputes between parties. — When any controversy arises between the parties, and neither party avails himself of the provisions of this chapter, it is competent for either party to proceed at once to have the matter determined in the court of a justice of the peace, if the amount claimed is two hundred dollars or less, and in the superior court of the county where the property is situate if the amount so claimed is more than two hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 1995; Code, s. 1756; 1876-7, c. 293, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—This and the following section were formerly part of the same section and should be read together. This should be noted in considering the following annotations.

In General.—It is quite apparent that this and the following section contemplate an action to determine a dispute growing out of the agreement, and the relative rights and obligations created by its stipulations, without disturbing the possession of the lessee, cropper or assignee of either, and this intent is very clearly expressed in the terms used in the enactment. It is a method of settling a controversy without resort to the possessory actions authorized in the antecedent sections. Wilson v. Repass, 86 N. C. 112, 115.

Purpose.—The purpose of the section is to provide a summary mode for ascertaining a disputed liability, and, in case of delay, to secure the fruits of the judgment by requiring of the lessee, as a condition of his remaining in possession of the property, an adequate undertaking for the payment of what may be recovered. Deloatch v. Coman, 90 N. C. 186, 188.

No Application to Vendee.—This and the following section, like section 2355, are plainly inapplicable where the occupant of land is a vendee or mortgagor. Taylor v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 27, 31, 16 S. E. 924.

Jurisdiction of Justice.—An action by a landlord against a tenant for the recovery of rent, the sum demanded not exceeding two hundred dollars, is an action upon the contract of lease and cognizable in the court of a justice of the peace. Deloatch v. Coman, 90 N. C. 186.

In an action by a landlord to recover the rent, when neither the sum demanded nor the amount ascertained to be due exceeds two hundred dollars; it was held, that the superior court has no jurisdiction. Foster v. Penny, 76 N. C. 131.

Same—Tort Actions.—The special jurisdiction of justices of the peace under this section does not extend to torts, but is confined to actions for enforcing contracts. Montague v. Mial, 89 N. C. 137.

Action by Tenant's Widow.—The widow of a tenant cultivating land on shares, after the crop is allotted to her in her year's support, may maintain an action for conversion against the landlord. Parker v. Brown, 136 N. C. 280, 48 S. E. 657.

Same—Recovery.—And she was not compelled to resort to the remedy prescribed by this section. She may pursue her remedy by a civil action to recover the value of the crops, subject to such deductions as the lessor was entitled to by reason of advancements, costs of housing, and such damage as he may have sustained by reason of the inability of the lessee to perform his contract. Parker v. Brown, 136 N. C. 280, 287, 48 S. E. 657.

§ 2358. Tenant's undertaking on continuance or appeal.—In case there is a continuance or an appeal from the justice's decision to the superior court, the lessee or cropper, or the assigns of either, shall be allowed to retain possession of said property upon his giving an undertaking to the lessor or his assigns, or the adverse party in a sum double the amount of the claim, if such claim does not amount to more than the value of such property, otherwise to double the value of such property, with good and sufficient surety, to be approved by the justice of the peace or the clerk of the superior court, conditioned for the faithful payment to the adverse party of such damages as he shall recover in said action. (Rev., s. 1995; Code, s. 1756; 1876-7, c. 283, s. 3.)

See the notes to the preceding section.

§ 2359. Crops delivered to landlord on his undertaking. — In case the lessee or cropper, or the assigns of either, at the time of the appeal or continuance mentioned in the preceding section, fails to give the undertaking therein required, then the constable or other lawful officer shall deliver the property into the actual possession of the lessor or his assigns, upon the lessor or his assigns giving to the adverse party an undertaking in double the amount of said property, to be justified as required in the preceding section, conditioned for the forthcoming of such property, or the value thereof, in case judgment is pronounced against him. (Rev., s. 1996; Code, s. 1757; 1876-7, c. 283, s. 4.)

Court Will Not Restrain Lessor.—Where the lessor has taken possession of the crop, and is solvent and has been required to give the bond of indemnity, the court will not restrain him from selling the crop. Wilson v. Respass, 86 N. C. 112. In such a case it seems that the tenant cannot regain possession of the crop under the provisions of section 2358 since that section contemplates non-intervention on the part of the court and not a removal of possession from one party to another. Id.

The tenant could of course proceed under section 2356 to get possession of "such part as he may be entitled to." Ed. Note.

§ 2360. Crops sold, if neither party gives undertaking.—If neither party gives the undertaking described in the two preceding sections, it is the duty of the justice of the peace or the clerk of the superior court to issue an order to the constable or sheriff, or other lawful officer, directing him to take into his possession all of said property, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the claimant's demand and costs, and to sell the same under the rules and regulations prescribed by law for the sale of personal property under execution, and to hold the proceeds thereof subject to the decision of the court upon the issue or issues pending between the parties. (Rev., s. 1997; Code, s. 1758; 1876-7, c. 283, s. 5.)

As to landlord's lien covering costs, see under section 2355, analysis line "Lien of Lessor," the annotation "Certain Costs Included."

§ 2361. Tenant's crop not subject to execution against landlord.—Whenever servants and laborers in agriculture shall by their contracts orally or in writing be entitled, for wages, to a part of the crops cultivated by them, such part shall not be subject to sale under executions against their employers, or the owners of the land cultivated. (Rev., s. 1998; Code, s. 1796.)

§ 2362. Unlawful seizure by landlord or removal by tenant misdemeanor.—If any landlord shall unlawfully, willfully, knowingly and without process of law, and unjustly seize the crop of his tenant when there is nothing due him, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. If any lessee or cropper, or the assigns of either, or any other person, shall remove a crop, or any part thereof, from land without the consent of the lessor or his assigns, and without giving him or his agent five days notice of such intended removal, and before satisfying all the liens held by the lessor or his assigns, on said crop, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., ss. 3664, 3665; Code, s. 1759; 1876-7, c. 283, s. 6; 1883, c. 83.)

III. The Intent.
IV. Notice.
V. The Indictment.

I. IN GENERAL.

Purpose of Section.—The leading and material part of the purpose is to keep the crops on the land, so that they may be easily seen, known, identified and protected, and to prevent fraud and fraudulent practices that would be greatly facilitated by removing them from the land to any distance. State v. Williams, 106 N. C. 646, 648, 10 S. E. 901.

The purpose of this section is to render the statutory provisions and regulations of the preceding sections more effective, and this penal provision must be interpreted in that light and in that view. It embraces both the landlord and the tenant, and intends the more effectually to secure their respective rights as prescribed. State v. Ewing, 108 N. C. 755, 757, 13 S. E. 10.

Applies Only to Specified Liens.—It will be observed that the section does not extend to, and embrace, all liens the lessor may have on any property of the tenants, but only "all the liens held by the lessor or his assigns on the crop." State v. Turner, 106 N. C. 691, 693, 19 S. E. 1026.

Extends to Receivers.—This section extends to and protects receivers charged with the management of lands. State v. Turner, 106 N. C. 691, 693, 10 S. E. 1026.

The lessor's rights cannot be abridged by any subordinate contracts of the lessee. Montague v. Mial, 89 N. C. 137, 139.

Cited in Never Fail Land Co. v. Cole, 197 N. C. 452, 457, 149 S. E. 585.

II. THE WRONGFUL ACT.

A Misdemeanor Only.—The offense of removing crops, without payment, or giving notice of such removal, although it may have been committed secretly, or at night, is a simple misdemeanor, and cannot be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary. State v. Powell, 94 N. C. 921.

Actual Seizure Unnecessary.—To constitute the offense of an unlawful seizure of crops by the landlord, under this section, it is not essential that the landlord should take forcible or even manual possession of them; the offense will be complete if he exercises that possession or control which prevents the tenant from gathering and removing his crop in a peaceable manner. State v. Ewing, 108 N. C. 755, 13 S. E. 10.

Possession Important.—An indictment for larceny will not lie against a lessee or cropper for secretly appropriating the crop, to his own use, even if done with a felonious intent, where he is in the actual possession of the same. State v. Copeland, 86 N. C. 692.

An indictment for larceny will lie against a lessee or cropper for secretly appropriating the crop to his own use, where his actual possession thereof has terminated by a delivery to the landlord. State v. Webb, 87 N. C. 558.

If the crop is in the actual possession of the landlord, though undivided, the tenant may be convicted of larceny for feloniously taking and carrying it away; and the ownership of the property will be laid properly in the name of the landlord. State v. King, 98 N. C. 648, 4 S. E. 44.

Gathering the Crop.—How far the tenant might be justified under the statute in severing the crops from the land and storing them on it simply for the purpose of protection to them has been doubtful, but it has been held that he may do so in good faith for such purpose; he may not go beyond that. Varner v. Spencer, 72 N. C. 381; State v. Williams, 106 N. C. 646, 648, 10 S. E. 901.

The gathering and preservation of crops was not the evil intended to be remedied by this section, but the wrongful appropriation, whether by carrying them off the premises or consuming them on the premises, was the evil. Varner v. Spencer, 72 N. C. 381, 383.

Feeding Crop to Stock.—Where a lessee after putting a crop in the crib converted a portion thereof to his own use by feeding it to his stock without the consent of the landlord, this was a removal within the meaning of this section and indictable. Varner v. Spencer, 72 N. C. 381.

Removal from Premises.—Where a tenant without the consent of, or notice to, his landlord, and before satisfying the latter's lien, removed a portion of the crop from the land upon which it was produced and stored it in a building upon his (the tenant's) own land; it was held that he was guilty of unlawfully removing crops, notwithstanding he made the removal for the purpose of sheltering the crop, and kept it separate from others. State v. Williams, 106 N. C. 646, 10 S. E. 901.

Where Tenant Aids Subtenant.—If a tenant aids and abets a subtenant in removing a crop, before paying the lien of the landlord, he is guilty of a misdemeanor. State v. Crook, 132 N. C. 1053, 44 S. E. 32.

Damages by Landlord No Defense.—A tenant indicted for removal of crops without giving the landlord five days' notice cannot show in defense that he had sustained damage by the failure of the landlord to comply with the contract to the amount of the rents due. State v. Bell, 136 N. C. 674, 49 S. E. 163; State v. Neal, 129 N. C. 692, 40 S. E. 205, overruled.

III. THE INTENT.

Need Not Be Shown.—While the obvious purpose of this section is the protection of the lessor's interest against a fraudulent disposition or appropriation of the property, inconsistent with his right and tending to defeat the lien for rent, the wrongful intent is not a constituent of the criminal act described, and the offense is sufficiently charged in the substantial words of the act. State v. Pender, 83 N. C. 651, 653.

The intent in making the removal is immaterial. State v. Williams, 106 N. C. 646, 10 S. E. 901; State v. Crook, 132 N. C. 1053, 1055, 44 S. E. 32.

Implied from the Act.—The statute broadly forbids the removal of the crops, or any part of them, from the land, except in the case and in the way prescribed, and that without regard to the actual intent. The removal implies the intent to commit the offense. State v. Williams, 106 N. C. 646, 649, 10 S. E. 901.

IV. NOTICE.

Removal of Crops.—If it shall be necessary, in possible cases, to remove crops from the land for their protection, this should be done on notice, or legal steps taken as contemplated and allowed by the statute. State v. Williams, 106 N. C. 646, 649, 10 S. E. 901.

A Part of the Offense.—The offense of removing a crop by a tenant before paying the rent and discharging all liens of the landlord on it is not complete unless the crop is removed without giving the five days' notice, for if the notice is given, removing the crop is not an offense. State v. Crowder, 97 N. C. 432, 1 S. E. 690.

"Without Any Notice" Sufficient in Indictment. — An averment in an indictment for removing a crop, "without having given any notice of such intended removal" is equivalent to the averment that the removal was made without giving "five days' notice." State v. Powell, 94 N. C. 921.

Burden of Proof.—In order to convict the defendant of the offense of removing a crop without the consent of the landlord, the burden is on the State to show that the defendant had not given his landlord the statutory five days' previous notice before the crop had been removed. State v. Harris, 161 N. C. 267, 76 S. E. 683.

How Proven.—The want of such notice may be proved by any competent evidence, and it is not necessary that it should be proved by the landlord or his agent or assignee. State v. Crowder, 97 N. C. 432, 1 S. E. 690.

V. THE INDICTMENT.

Statute Must Be Followed.—An indictment under this section charging the defendant with removing the crop "without satisfying all liens on said crop," is defective. The words of the statute, "before satisfying all liens held by the lessor or his assigns on said crop," should have been followed. State v. Merritt, 89 N. C. 506; State v. Rose, 90 N. C. 712.

Sufficient Averment.—In an indictment under this section, it is sufficient to aver, in the words of the statute, that the act was done, "willfully and unlawfully," leaving it to the defendant to show in excuse, if he can, that such removal was made in good faith and for the preservation of the crop. State v. Pender, 83 N. C. 651.

Where an indictment for removing a crop alleged that the defendant did "rent from B," and subsequently, that he did "remove the crop without satisfying all liens held by said B"; it was held that this, in effect, sufficiently charged the relation of landlord and tenant, and that the "liens held by the lessor" were unpaid at the time of the alleged unlawful removal. State v. Turner, 106 N. C. 691, 10 S. E. 1026.

In this section the word "crop" includes those ungathered as well as those gathered, and an indictment that the landlord seized the "crop growing and unmatured in the field," etc., charges an indictable offense, when it is otherwise sufficient. State v. Townsend, 170 N. C. 696, 86 S. E. 718.

Lien Implied.—It is not necessary to allege, in an indictment under this section, that the lessor or landlord had a lien on the crop, where the bill contains an averment of the lease and of the relation of landlord and tenant, or cropper. By virtue of the statute the law implies a lien, and of this the courts will take notice. State v. Rose, 90 N. C. 712; State v. Merritt, 89 N. C. 506, distinguished. State v. Smith, 106 N. C. 653, 11 S. E. 166.

In an indictment for removing a crop, it is not necessary to negative the fact that, by agreement between the parties, it was stipulated that the crops should not be subjected to the statutory liens. State v. Turner, 106 N. C. 691, 10 S. E. 1026.

Variance.—Where an indictment for removal of crops without notice to the landlord charged an agreement by the defendant to raise a crop on the land of G., and on the trial the proof showed the title to be in another, who rented the land to G; it was held that there was no variance. State v. Foushee, 117 N. C. 766, 767, 23 S. E. 247.

Judgment Arrested.—When on the trial it was proved that the defendants had a license from the tenant, and such fact is not charged in the indictment, the judgment will be arrested. State v. Sears, 71 N. C. 295.

§ 2363. Turpentine and lightwood leases.—This chapter shall not apply to all leases or contracts to lease turpentine trees, or use lightwood for purposes of making tar, and the parties thereto shall be fully subject to the provisions and penalties of this chapter. (Rev., s. 1999; Code, s. 1762; 1893, c. 517; 1876-7, c. 283, s. 7.)

Extension of Preceding Section.—This section extends section 2362 to "all leases or contracts to lease turpentine trees," and thus it is made a misdemeanor for the lessee of turpentine trees to remove any part of the turpentine crop in the like case as when the removal of the crop by an agricultural tenant is made such offense. State v. Turner, 106 N. C. 691, 692, 10 S. E. 1026.

Cited in Farmville Oil, etc., Co. v. Bourne, 205 N. C. 337, 339, 171 S. E. 368.

§ 2364. Mining and timber land leases.—If in a lease of land for mining, or of timbered land for the purpose of manufacturing the timber into goods, rent is reserved, and if it is agreed in the lease that the minerals, timber or goods, or any portion thereof, shall not be removed until the payment of the rent, in such case the lessor shall have the rights and be entitled to the remedy given by this chapter. (Rev., s. 2000; Code, s. s. 1762; 1893, 517; 1876-7, c. 283, s. 7.)

Not a Lease.—Where the owner of lands conveys the timber standing and growing thereon, with provision that the time for cutting and removing it will be extended upon payment of a certain sum, this is not a leasehold interest but an estate in fee. Carolina Timber Co. v. Wells, 171 N. C. 262, 88 S. E. 327.

Art. 3. Summary Ejectment

§ 2365. Tenant holding over may be dispossessed in certain cases.—Any tenant or lessee of any house or land, and the assigns under the tenant or legal representatives of such tenant or lessee, who holds over and continues in the possession of the demised premises, or any part thereof, without the permission of the landlord, and after demand made for its surrender, may be removed from such premises in the manner hereinafter prescribed in either of the following cases:

1. When a tenant in possession of real estate holds over after his term has expired.

2. When the tenant or lessee, or other person under him, has done or omitted any act by which according to the stipulations of the lease, his estate has ceased.

3. When any tenant or lessee of lands or tenements, who is in arrear for rent, or has agreed to cultivate the demised premises and to pay a a part of the crop to be made thereon as rent, or who has given to the lessor a lien on such crop as a security for the rent, deserts the demised premises, and leaves them unoccupied and uncultivated. (Rev., s. 2001; Code, ss. 1766, 1777; 4 Geo. II, c. 28; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 19; 1905, cc. 297, 299, 820.)

I. Application and Scope.
II. Holding Over.
III. Breach of a Provision of Lease.
IV. Rights of the Parties.
V. The Action.

I. APPLICATION AND SCOPE.

For an act, applicable in Johnson county only, providing that the landlord shall pay all just set-offs and counterclaims before execution, see Public Laws 1933, c. 390.

Relation of Landlord and Tenant Necessary.—The summary remedy in ejectment provided by this section for the ousting of tenants who hold over after the expiration of the term is restricted to cases where the relation between the parties is that of landlord and tenant. Hauser v. Morrison, 146 N. C. 248, 59 S. E. 693; McCombs v. Wallace, 66 N. C. 481; Hughes v. Mason, 84 N. C. 473; McIver v Seaboard Airline R. Co., 163 N. C. 544, 545, 79 S. E. 1107.

This section applies only where the conventional relationship of landlord and tenant exists, and when title to the property is in issue, the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace is ousted, and the proceeding is properly dismissed as in case of nonsuit upon appeal to the Superior Court. Prudential Ins. Co. v. Totten, 203 N. C. 431, 166 S. E. 316.

Not Coextensive with Doctrine of Estoppel.—The remedy by summary proceedings in ejectment given by this section, is not coextensive with the doctrine of estoppel arising where one enters and holds land under another, but is restricted to the case where the relation between the parties is simply that of landlord and tenant. McLaurin v. McIntyre, 167 N. C. 350, 352, 83 S. E. 627; Hauser v. Morrison, 146 N. C. 248, 249, 59 S. E. 693.

Some Contract or Lease Required.—This section was only intended to apply to a case in which the tenant entered into possession under some contract or lease, either actual or implied, with the supposed landlord, or with some person under whom the landlord claimed in privity, or where the tenant himself is in privity with some person who had so entered. McCombs v. Wallace, 66 N. C. 481.

Where Purchase Changed to Lease.—Where one unconditionally surrenders his rights under the contract of purchase, and enters into a contract of lease, he may be evicted by summary proceeding under this section; and it is not necessary that he should actually surrender the possession of the land and receive it again at the hands of the lessor. Riley v. Jordan, 75 N. C. 180.

Two Classes Excluded.—The construction of this section excludes from the operation of the act two classes, viz.: vendees in possession under a contract for title and vendors retaining possession after a sale, though such persons are certainly tenants at will or sufferance for some purposes, and frequently so styled. McCombs v. Wallace, 66 N. C. 481.

When Section Does Not Apply. — The remedy by summary ejectment before a justice of the peace, under this section et seq., is not available when there is a relation of mortgagor and mortgagee, or vendor and vendee. McLaurin v. McIntyre, 167 N. C. 350, 83 S. E. 627.

Where a controversy involved the disputed title to real property, out of which certain equities arose, this section does not apply. McLaurin v. McIntyre, 167 N. C. 350, 83 S. E. 627.

Where the adverse contentions of the parties, supported by evidence, put the title to the property in issue, the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace is ousted, and on appeal in the Superior Court the action is properly dismissed. Home Bldg., etc., Ass'n v. Moore, 207 N. C. 515, 177 S. E. 633.

Same—Bargainor in Deed of Trust.—A bargainor in a deed of trust containing a stipulation for the retention of the possession of the land conveyed until sold under the terms of the trust, and who holds possession after a sale of the premises by a trustee, is not such a tenant as comes within the purview of this section, and hence proceedings cannot be taken under that act to evict him. McCombs v. Wallace, 66 N. C. 481.

Same—Entry as Vendee.—Where a party entered land under a contract of purchase, while so possessed a justice of the peace has no jurisdiction to oust him under this section. McCombs v. Wallace, 66 N. C. 481; McMillan v. Love, 72 N. C. 18; Riley v. Jordan, 75 N. C. 180, 183.

Consideration of Equitable Defenses. — A justice of the peace has jurisdiction of a summary action in ejectment, and may determine the questions of tenancy and holding over, and while he has no equitable jurisdiction, he may consider equitable defenses set up in summary ejectment in so far as they relate to the issue of tenancy. Farmville Oil, etc., Co. v. Bowen, 204 N. C. 375, 168 S. E. 211.

II. HOLDING OVER.

Constitutional.—Paragraph one of this section, as to a tenant holding over was declared constitutional in Credle v. Gibbs, 65 N. C. 192, 193.

In General.—It is a principle fully recognized in this State, that when a tenant for a year or a longer time holds over and is recognized as tenant by the landlord, without further agreement or other qualifying facts or circumstances, he becomes tenant from year to year, and subject to the payment of the rent and other stipulations of the lease as far as the same may be applied to existent conditions. Holton v. Andrews, 151 N. C. 340, 66 S. E. 212;

Harty v. Harris, 120 N. C. 408, 27 S. E. 90; Scheelky v. Koch, 119 N. C. 80, 25 S. E. 713; Stedman v. McIntosh, 26 N. C. 191; Murrill v. Palmer, 164 N. C. 50, 53, 80 S. E. 55.

But a mere acceptance of the rents by the landlord does not create a tenancy from year to year nor preclude the landlord from recovery of possession. In an action to recover the possession, as the plaintiff is entitled to damages for the occupation of the premises, the plaintiff can accept voluntary payments without thereby ratifying the tenant's possession. Mauney v. Norvell, 179 N. C. 628, 630, 103 S. E. 372; Vanderford v. Foreman, 129 N. C. 217, 39 S. E. 839.

Effect of Recognition.—The landlord may treat his tenant, who holds over, as a trespasser and eject him, or he may recognize him as tenant; but when such recognition has been made, a presumption arises of a tenancy from year to year, and as stated, under the terms and stipulations of the lease as far as the same may apply. Murrill v. Palmer, 164 N. C. 50, 54, 80 S. E. 55.

When Holding Over Allowed.—It seems that it is not a wrongful holding over when the tenant has been compelled to continue his occupation of necessity; for instance, when he has remained in possession solely by reason of the sickness of the tenant or some member of his family, and of such a character that removal could not be presently made without serious danger to the patient. Murrill v. Palmer, 164 N. C. 50, 54, 80 S. E. 55.

Issue as to Holding Over.—The only question the court can try under paragraph one in this proceeding is, "Was the defendant the tenant of the plaintiff, and does he hold over after the expiration of the tenancy?" McIver v. Seaboard Airline R. Co., 163 N. C. 544, 545, 79 S. E. 1107; McDonald v. Ingram, 124 N. C. 272, 274, 32 S. E. 677.

Applied in Stadiem v. Harvell, 208 N. C. 103, 179 S. E. 448.

Cited in Texas Co. v. Beaufort Oil & Fuel Co., 199 N. C. 492, 494, 154 S. E. 829.

III. BREACH OF A PROVISION OF LEASE.

Condition Must Be in Lease.—A summary proceeding in ejectment under the landlord and tenant act begun during the lessee's term can not be maintained where the contract of lease contained no condition, the breach of which would authorize a re-entry by the lessor. The mere failure to pay rent upon "a lease at ..... dollars a year, payable monthly," does not warrant such re-entry. Meroney v. Wright, 81 N. C. 390.

Suit for Rescission Cannot Be Substituted on Appeal. — Where a verbal lease does not provide for its termination or reserve the right of re-entry for breach by the tenant of stipulated conditions in regard to maintenance and operation of the property, breach of such conditions cannot be made the basis for summary ejectment, and issues of fraud in procuring the lease and wilful breach of the conditions are erroneously submitted in the Superior Court upon appeal in such action, it not being permissible for a party to substitute on appeal a suit for rescission. Dees v. Apple, 207 N. C. 763, 178 S. E. 557.

When Breach Waived.—After the breach of the tenant of his contract, acceptance of rent by the landlord which has accrued thereafter, will prevent the landlord from insisting on the forfeiture. Winder v. Martin, 183 N. C. 410, 111 S. E. 708.

Defense of Partial Eviction.—Where a defendant has been partially evicted in order for him, in a summary action of ejectment, to retain possession of the leased premises by paying relatively a reduction in the rental price fixed by his contract, he must prove that such eviction was caused by the plaintiff, or one acting under his authority, or one paramount in title, and upon failure of evidence of this character, his claim therefor is properly denied as a matter of law. Blomberg v. Evans, 194 N. C. 113, 138 S. E. 593.

IV. RIGHTS OF THE PARTIES.

Tenant May Dispute Assignment.—A tenant cannot dispute the title of his landlord but where an action of ejectment is brought by one claiming to be an assignee of the landlord, the tenant may dispute the assignment. Steadman v. Jones, 65 N. C. 388, 391.

Not Entitled to Renewal.—Tenant, in the absence of an agreement, has neither a legal nor an equitable right to a renewal of the lease. Barnes v. Saleeby, 177 N. C. 256, 98 S. E. 708.

Same—Consideration.—An option in the original lease to renew would not be without consideration, but landlord's agreement during the lease, and not constituting part of the lease, not to lease the property without first giving the tenant an opportunity to renew the lease was unenforcible, being without consideration. Barnes v. Saleeby, 177 N. C. 256, 98 S. E. 708.

Estoppel to Deny Landlord's Title.—It is an undoubted principle of law, fully recognized by the Federal Supreme Court, that a tenant cannot dispute the title of his landlord, either by setting up a title, in himself, or a third person, during the existence of the lease or tenancy. Rector v. Gibbon, 111 U. S. 276, 284, 28 L. Ed. 427, 4 S. Ct. 605. And the same rule is applied by the North Carolina courts. Lawrence v. Eller, 169 N. C. 211, 85 S. E. 291.

Neither the tenant of land nor any person claiming title by or through him can dispute the right of the landlord to recover the premises in ejectment, after the expiration of the lease, upon the ground of a defect of title in the landlord. Callender v. Sherman, 27 N. C. 711.

Where the relation of landlord and tenant is established, and the latter is in possession, the tenant will not be permitted to dispute the title of the landlord during the continuance of the lease. Hobby v. Freeman, 183 N. C. 240, 111 S. E. 1. Before disputing his landlord's title, the tenant must restore possession. Buckhorne Land, etc., Co. v. Yarbrough, 179 N. C. 335, 102 S. E. 630.

Same—Slave at Time of Entry.—See Wilson v. James, 79 N. C. 349, cited in notes in 7 L. R. A., N. S., 222, 52 L. R. A., N. S., 976, 977, 978.

Subtenant.—Not only the tenant but his sublessee is estopped to deny the title of his immediate landlord. Bonds v. Smith, 106 N. C. 553, 11 S. E. 322, cited in note in 7 L. R. A., N. S., 931.

V. THE ACTION.

Landlord Proper Party to Bring.—The landlord under whom a tenant has entered into the possession of the leased premises is the proper one to bring his summary action of ejection (authorized by this section) to dispossess the tenant holding over after the expiration of his lease, upon proper notice to vacate, and the objection of the tenant that the landlord has again leased the premises to another to begin immediately upon the expiration of his term, and that the second lessee is the only one who can maintain the proceedings in ejectment, is untenable. Shelton v. Clinard, 187 N. C. 664, 122 S. E. 477.

Third Party Let in.—When, in an action for the recovery of real estate, both the plaintiff and a third party claim to be the landlord of the defendant, the latter has a right, upon affidavit, to be let in as a party defendant to the action. Rollins v. Rollins, 76 N. C. 264.

Estoppel.—In a proceeding before a justice of the peace under this section, a defendant who does not deny having entered as the tenant of the plaintiff is estopped from setting up a superior title existing at the date of the lease or subsequently acquired from a third person. Heyer v. Beatty, 76 N. C. 28.

A suit to restrain execution on a judgment in summary ejectment by a justice of the peace, on the ground that the justice had no jurisdiction, is properly dismissed where it appears that plaintiff, formerly the mortgagor of the property, had leased the property and was estopped from attacking the foreclosure and setting up the relation of mortgagor and mortgagee. Shuford v. Greensboro Joint-Stock Land Bank, 207 N. C. 428, 177 S. E. 408.

Provision for Renewal as Defense.—While a provision of renewal of a lease is not itself a renewal so as to vest an estate, yet it gives an equity which may be set up as a defense in a summary proceeding in ejectment. While the court allows this equitable defense to the summary proceedings, the defendants must pay the accrued rent. McAdoo v. Callum Bro. & Co., 86 N. C. 419.

Burden of Proof.—In an action of ejectment, the burden of proving that the tenancy has terminated is on the plaintiff. Poindexter v. Call, 182 N. C. 366, 109 S. E. 26.

Evidence.—See Hargrove v. Cox, 180 N. C. 360, 104 S. E. 757.

§ 2366. Local: Refusal to perform contract ground for dispossession.—When any tenant or cropper who enters into a contract for the rental of land for the current or ensuing year willfully neglects or refuses to perform the terms of his contract without just cause, he shall forfeit his right of possession to the premises. This section applies only to the following counties: Alleghany, Anson, Beaufort, Bertie, Bladen, Burke, Cabarrus, Camden, Carteret, Caswell, Chatham, Chowan, Cleveland, Columbus, Craven, Cumberland, Currituck, Duplin, Edgecombe, Franklin, Gaston, Gates, Greene, Guilford, Halifax, Harnett, Hertford, Hyde, Jackson, Johnston, Jones, Lenoir, Martin, Mecklenburg, Montgomery, Nash, Northampton,

Onslow, Pender, Perquimans, Pitt, Polk, Randolph, Robeson, Rockingham, Rowan, Rutherford, Sampson, Swain, Tyrrell, Union, Wake, Wayne, Washington, Wilson, Yadkin, Moore, Surry, Stokes and Pasquotank. (Rev., s. 2001, subsec. 4; Code, ss. 1766, 1777; 4 Geo. II, c. 28; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 19; 1905, cc. 297, 299, 820; 1907, cc. 43, 153; 1909, cc. 40, 550; 1931, cc. 50, 194, 446; 1933, cc. 86, 485; 1935, c. 39.)

Editor's Note.—The Acts of 1931 added Moore, Rutherford, Stokes and Surry Counties to this section.

Public Laws 1933, cc. 86, 485, added Polk and Pasquotank counties to this section.

Public Laws 1935, chapter 39 added Guilford to the list of counties to which the section is applicable.

§ 2367. Summons issued by justice on verified complaint.—When the lessor or his assigns, or his or their agent or attorney, makes oath in writing, before any justice of the peace of the county in which the demised premises are situated, stating such facts as constitute one of the above cases described, and describing the premises and asking to be put in possession thereof, the justice shall issue a summons reciting the substance of the oath, and requiring the defendant to appear before him or some other justice of the county, at a certain place and time (not to exceed five days from the issuing of the summons, without the consent of the plaintiff or his agent or attorney), to answer the complaint. The plaintiff or his agent or attorney may in his oath claim rent in arrear, and damage for the occupation of the premises since the cessation of the estate of the lessee: Provided, the sum claimed shall not exceed two hundred dollars; but if he omits to make such claim, he shall not be thereby prejudiced in any other action for their recovery. (Rev., s. 2002; Code, s. 1767; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 20; 1869-70, c. 212.)

When Defendant Denies Tenancy.—In a proceeding before a justice of the peace under this section, where the defendant denies the alleged tenancy, it is the duty of the justice to proceed and try the issue of tenancy. Foster v. Penry, 77 N. C. 160.

Question of Jurisdiction.—The question of jurisdiction is not to be determined by matter set up in the answer, but the court should hear the evidence as to the issue of tenancy, and if the same be found for the landlord, an estoppel operates upon the tenant, and the title to the land is not drawn in controversy. Hahn v. Latham, 87 N. C. 172.

If the defense involved the title to real estate, a justice of the peace has no jurisdiction thereof, and should dismiss the proceeding. Forsythe v. Bullock, 74 N. C. 135.

Defense.—The tenant may set up in his answer any equitable defense which he may have to his landlord's claim. Forsythe v. Bullock, 74 N. C. 135.

Same—Effect of Failure to Set up Defense.—Where a defendant failed to set up the defense that he was not a tenant, but held under an agreement to purchase, and it was decided that he was a tenant he cannot be heard to question the validity of the judgment nor can he restrain its execution except in a direct proceeding to set it aside for fraud, etc. Isler v. Hart, 161 N. C. 499, 500, 77 S. E. 681.

Effect of Provision for Renewal.—A provision for renewal in a lease is not itself a renewal so as to vest an estate, yet it gives an equity which may be set up as a defense in a summary proceeding in ejectment. McAdoo v. Callum Bros. & Co., 86 N. C. 419.

§ 2368. Service of summons.—The officer receiving such summons shall immediately serve it by the delivery of a copy to the defendant or by leaving a copy at his usual last place of residence, with some adult person, if any such be found there; or, if the defendant has no usual place of residence in the county and cannot be found therein, by fixing a copy on some conspicuous part of the premises claimed. (Rev., s. 2003; Code, s. 1768; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 21.)

§ 2369. Judgment by default or confession.—The summons shall be returned according to its tenor, and if on its return it appears to have been duly served, and if the defendant fails to appear, or admits the allegations of the complaint, the justice shall give judgment, that the defendant be removed from, and the plaintiff be put in possession of, the demised premises; and if any rent or damages for the occupation of the premises after the cessation of the estate of the lessee, not exceeding two hundred dollars, be claimed in the oath of the plaintiff as due and unpaid, the justice shall inquire thereof, and give judgment as he may find the fact to be. (Rev., s. 2004; Code, s. 1769; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 22.)

Tenant May Hold after Adverse Judgment.—Where both plaintiff and an interpleading third party claim to be landlords of the defendant, if a judgment by default is taken against the tenant, no writ of possession can issue until the determination of the controversy between the plaintiff and the interpleading defendant. Rollins v. Rollins, 76 N. C. 264.

Same—When Evicted.—If in an action for the recovery of real estate in which a third person claiming as landlord of the defendant has been made a party defendant, judgment is taken against the tenant defendant and he is evicted, he is entitled to be restored to possession until the determination of the controversy between the plaintiff and the interpleading defendant. Rollins v. Bishop, 76 N. C. 268.

Same—Appeal.—Upon an appeal when the appeal is dismissed as to the tenant defendant, no writ of possession can issue from the justice's court until the determination of the controversy between the plaintiff and interpleading defendant. Rollins v. Henry, 76 N. C. 269.

§ 2370. Trial by justice; jury trial; judgment; execution.—If the defendant by his answer denies any material allegation in the oath of the plaintiff, the justice shall hear the evidence and give judgment as he shall find the facts to be. If either party demands a trial by jury, it shall be granted under the rules prescribed by law for other trials by jury before a justice; and if the jury finds that the allegation in the plaintiff's oath, which entitles him to be put in possession, is true, the justice shall give judgment that the defendant be removed from and the plaintiff put in possession of the demised premises, and also for such rent and damages as shall have been assessed by the jury, and for costs; and shall issue his execution to carry the judgment into effect. (Rev., s. 2005; Code, s. 1770; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 23.)

Where Injunction Issues.—Where a person has been enjoined from bringing actions on each installment of rent as vexatious, such person is not precluded by such injunction from issuing execution on a judgment taken in a summary action in ejectment for the recovery of the property after the expiration of the lease. Featherstone v. Carr, 134 N. C. 66, 46 S. E. 15.

Effect of Judgment.—A judgment for a tenant in summary proceedings is not an estoppel on the landlord to the extent of precluding him from showing in a subsequent action advancements made prior to eviction to which he was entitled. Burwell v. Brodie, 134 N. C. 540, 47 S. E. 47.

Same—Matter Is Res Judicata as to Tenancy.—Where in proceedings in summary ejectment on final judgment entered in the superior court it has been adjudicated that A was the tenant of B, which judgment was not appealed from, the matter is res judicata, and A cannot maintain a suit for an injunction to restrain the execution of the judgment in the former action, or that he be kept in possession, or for an accounting, his remedy being to vacate the judgment for recognized equitable reasons in direct proceedings. Isler v. Hart, 161 N. C. 499, 77 S. E. 681.

§ 2371. Damages assessed to trial.—On appeal to the superior court, the jury trying the issue joined shall assess the damages of the plaintiff for the detention of his possession to the time of the trial in that court, and judgment for the rent in arrear and for the damages assessed may, on motion, be rendered against the sureties to the appeal. (Rev., s. 2006; Code, s. 1775; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 28.)

Damages upon Appeal.—Where there is an appeal from the justice of the peace in ejectment, the jury shall assess all damages of the plaintiff which he is entitled thereto from the time of the unlawful detention to the time of the trial in the superior court, and upon the defendant's tendering the amount sued for and the costs to the time, a judgment as of nonsuit is properly allowed. Ryan v. Reynolds, 190 N. C. 563, 130 S. E. 156.

Same—Surety Liable.—The surety on a bond to stay execution on appeal from judgment of a justice of the peace rendered in summary proceedings in ejectment is liable for such rents and profits to the plaintiff as may accrue to the date of the trial in the superior court. Dunn v. Patrick, 156 N. C. 248, 72 S. E. 220.

§ 2372. Rent and costs tendered by tenant.—If, in any action brought to recover the possession of demised premises upon a forfeiture for the nonpayment of rent, the tenant, before judgment given in such action, pays or tenders the rent due and the costs of the action, all further proceedings in such action shall cease. If the plaintiff further prosecutes his action, and the defendant pays into court for the use of the plaintiff a sum equal to that which shall be found to be due, and the costs, to the time of such payment, or to the time of a tender and refusal, if one has occurred, the defendant shall recover from the plaintiff all subsequent costs; the plaintiff shall be allowed to receive the sum paid into court for his use, and the proceedings shall be stayed. (Rev., s. 2007; Code, s. 1773; 4 Geo. II, c. 28, s. 4; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 26.)

To Protect Tenant.—This section was passed in the interest of the tenant. A landlord could bring an action after demand as required by the statute, when each installment of rent was due. The tenant had to pay the rent and cost before judgment or get out. This section was to protect the tenant from hasty eviction, at the same time the landlord obtained his rent and costs. Ryan v. Reynolds, 190 N. C. 563, 566, 130 S. E. 156.

Only Rents Due Included.—Under the provisions of this section the lessee in summary ejectment is given the right to tender or pay into court the amount of rent due under the lease to the time of the beginning of the action, with interest and costs, and upon his so doing, the proceedings will be stayed; and the exception of the lessor that all rents, whether due under the terms of the contract or not, should be included to the time of the dismissal of the action, is untenable. Ryan v. Reynolds, 190 N. C. 563, 130 S. E. 156.

Same—Cannot Demand Other Debts.—Where a contract for the lease of land at a specified rent contains a provision giving to the lessee the right to take sand therefrom at a stated price, the lessor in ejectment cannot maintain the position that the lessee should tender or pay for the sand he may thus have used, under the provision of this section, as a part of the rental due by him, the contract being construed separately as to the two provisions. Ryan v. Reynolds, 190 N. C. 563, 130 S. E. 156.

Effect of Tender by Tenant.—A tender by the tenant of rent accrued after termination of the lease does not preclude the landlord from recovering possession. Vanderford v. Foreman, 129 N. C. 217, 39 S. E. 839.

Effect of Tender upon Proceedings for Forfeiture.—Where during the hearing and before judgment on a petition under § 2343 for the forfeiture of a lease held by an insolvent corporation in the hands of a receiver, the receiver tendered to the petitioner all rents due, together with all costs lawfully incurred, as provided in this section, it was held that petition was properly denied. Coleman v. Carolina Theatres, 195 N. C. 607, 143 S. E. 7.

Effect of Acceptance of Rent.—Acceptance by the landlord of rent accruing after termination of lease, after suit for possession, does not create a tenancy from year to year, and does not preclude the landlord from recovery. Vanderford v. Foreman, 129 N. C. 217, 39 S. E. 839.

§ 2373. Undertaking on appeal; when to be increased.—Either party may appeal from the judgment of the justice, as is prescribed in other cases of appeal from the judgment of a justice; except in the counties of Iredell, Mecklenburg, Craven, Granville, Watauga, Davie, and Swain, upon appeal to the superior court either plaintiff or defendant may demand that the same shall be tried at the first term of said court after said appeal is docketed in said court, and said trial shall have precedence in the trial of all other cases, except the cases of exceptions to homesteads: Provided, that said appeal shall have been docketed at least ten days prior to the convening of said court: Provided, further, that the presiding judge, in his discretion, may take up for trial in advance any pending case in which the rights of the parties or the public require it; but no execution commanding the removal of a defendant from the possession of the demised premises shall be suspended until the defendant gives an undertaking in an amount not less than one year's rent of the premises, with sufficient surety, who shall justify and be approved by the justice, to be void if the defendant pays any judgment which in that or any other action the plaintiff may recover for rent, and for damages for the detention of the land. At any term of the superior court of the county in which such appeal is docketed after the lapse of one year from the date of the filing of the undertaking above mentioned, the tenant, after legal notice to that end has been duly executed on him, may be required to show cause why said undertaking should not be increased to an amount sufficient to cover rents and damages for such period as to the court may seem proper, and if such tenant fails to show proper cause and does not file such bond for rents and damages as the court may direct, or make affidavit that he is unable so to do and show merits, his appeal shall be dismissed and the judgment of the justice of the peace shall be affirmed. (Rev., s. 2008; Code, s. 1772; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 25; 1883, c. 316; 1921, c. 90; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 17; 1933, c. 154.)

Editor's Note.—This section was amended by the Public Laws of 1921, ch. 90, and Ex. Sess. ch. 17. The exception in certain specified counties and the two following provisos were added by the chapter mentioned.

Public Laws 1933, c. 154, struck out Cabarrus county from the list of counties excepted.

Justice Has Discretion as to Surety.—On an application to a justice of the peace for a suspension of execution after a recovery by a landlord against his tenant, the justice has a discretion as to the sufficiency of the surety, which a judge will not review, in the absence of any suggestion that the justice acted dishonestly or capriciously. Steadman v. Jones, 65 N. C. 388.

Power to Increase Bond.—If the bonds should become impaired or if the litigation should become protracted to such an extent as to require additional security to protect the plaintiffs in their rents, then under this section the superior court can require additional security. Featherstone v. Carr, 132 N. C. 800, 802, 44 S. E. 592.

Not only is it within the jurisdiction and power of the superior courts to have the bonds increased or strengthened, but under their general powers in equity, outside of that statute or any other statute, they would have the right to take such action. Featherstone v. Carr, 132 N. C. 800, 802, 44 S. E. 592.

Judgment Prior to Action on Bond.—A bond, with sureties, conditioned upon the payment of any judgment given in summary proceedings in ejectment, makes the obtaining of the judgment a condition precedent to a recovery thereon against the sureties; and the obtaining of such a judgment must be shown by proper averment and proof, or an action against the sureties willl be premature. Blackmore v. Winders, 144 N. C. 212, 56 S. E. 874.

§ 2374. Restitution of tenant, if case quashed, etc., on appeal.—If the proceedings before the justice are brought before a superior court and quashed, or judgment is given against the plaintiff, the superior or other court in which final judgment is given shall, if necessary, restore the defendant to the possession, and issue such writs as are proper for that purpose. (Rev., s. 2009; Code, s. 1774; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 27.)

In General.—The writ of restitution lies to restore a party to the possession of property of which he has been deprived by some erroneous process; but it will not be employed to put one in possession where he has not been ousted by the court, nor to take possession from one who has acquired it pending litigation, but not by virtue of any order, judgment or process therein. Durham, etc., R. Co. v. North Carolina R. C., 108 N. C. 304, 12 S. E. 983.

When Writ Given.—When a party is put out of possession of land, or compelled to pay money, under a judgment which is afterwards reversed or set aside, the court will restore the party to the possession of the land, and give him a remedy for the money thus paid. Lytle v. Lytle, 94 N. C. 522.

A Part of the Judgment.—Whenever a party is put out of possession by process of law, and the proceedings are adjudged void, an order for a writ of restitution is a part of the judgment. Perry v. Tupper, 70 N. C. 538; Meroney v. Wright, 84 N. C. 336, 339.

Where on trial of summary ejectment before a justice of peace, judgment was rendered for the plaintiff, who was put into possession and on appeal, the superior court decided against the plaintiff, upon the ground that the lease had not terminated, the defendant is entitled to a writ of restitution as a part of the judgment in his favor. Meroney v. Wright, 84 N. C. 336.

§ 2375. Damages to tenant for dispossession, if proceedings quashed, etc.—If, by order of the justice, the plaintiff is put in possession, and the proceedings shall afterwards be quashed or reversed, the defendant may recover damages of the plaintiff for his removal. (Rev., s. 2010; Code, s. 1776; 1868-9, c. 156, s. 30.)

Sufficient Allegation.—A complaint in an action by a tenant for wrongful eviction by summary proceedings, alleging that by reason thereof the plaintiff was deprived of his house and garden for shelter and support of his family, and was distressed in body and mind and put to great mortification and shame and loss of employment, sufficiently alleges damages other than the loss of crops. Burwell v. Brodie, 134 N. C. 540, 47 S. E. 47.

Assessment of Damages.—Under this section a tenant who secures the reversal of summary proceedings against him may have damages for eviction assessed in the original or in a separate action. Burwell v. Brodie, 134 N. C. 540, 47 S. E. 47.

Recovery by Landlord.—Where a landlord wrongfully evicts a tenant he can recover for advancements to the tenant before the eviction but not for labor performed by himself after the eviction. Burwell v. Brodie, 134 N. C. 540, 47 S. E. 47.

Art. 4. Forms

Supposing the findings are for the plaintiff, the record would proceed:

I therefore adjudge that the defendant (and so on from the asterisk (). If either party demands a jury, the record will proceed from the asterisk () as follows:

Therefore, I adjudge, etc. (as in form No. 5, from asterisk (*).

If either party appeals, the justice will enter on his docket as follows, altering the entry according to the facts:

CHAPTER 47
LAND REGISTRATION

Art. 1. Nature of Proceeding

§ 2377. Jurisdiction in superior court.—For the purpose of enabling all persons owning real estate within this state to have the title thereto settled and registered, as prescribed by the provisions of this chapter, the superior court of the county in which the land lies in the state shall have exclusive original jurisdiction of all petitions and proceedings had thereupon, under the rules of practice and procedure prescribed for special proceedings except as herein otherwise provided. (1913, c. 90, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—This chapter is known generally as the Torren's Law. The principle of the "Torrens System" is conveyance by registration and certificate instead of by deed, and assimilates the transfer of land to the transfer of stocks in corporations. Like the Drainage Act, this Torrens system was adopted at the wish of the landowners of the State, as evidenced by the proceedings of the Farmer's Union, the Chamber of Commerce of many cities, and other organizations. See Cape Lookout Co. v. Gold, 167 N. C. 63, 83 S. E. 3.

Chapter to Be Liberally Construed.—This statute is not in derogation of common right, but is of a remedial character, and should be liberally construed according to its intent. Cape Lookout Co. v. Gold, 167 N. C. 63, 83 S. E. 3; Dillon v. Brocker, 178 N. C. 65, 100 S. E. 191.

Amendment of Pleadings and Parties.—Under the provisions of this section, the clerk as well as the judge of the superior court is given authority over the whole proceedings before the clerk, and to require reformation of the process, pleadings or decrees or entries, and therefore he has authority to allow parties defendant to be made and enlarge the time within which to file answers. Empire Mfg. Co. v. Spruill, 169 N. C. 618, 86 S. E. 522.

§ 2378. Proceedings in rem; vests title.—The proceedings under any petition for the registration of land, and all proceedings in the court in relation to registered land, shall be proceedings in rem against the land, and the decrees of the court shall operate directly on the land, and vest and establish title thereto in accordance with the provisions of this chapter. (1913, c. 90, s. 2.)

See note under § 2423.

Consolidation of Proceedings.—A proceeding for the purpose of registering title and an injunction to prevent trespass, involving the same land and the same parties may be consolidated. Blount v. Sawyer, 189 N. C. 210, 126 S. E. 512.

Cited in Brinson v. Lacy, 195 N. C. 394, 396, 142 S. E. 317.

§ 2379. Rules of practice prescribed by attorney-general.—The attorney-general, with the approval of the supreme court, shall from time to time make, change, revise and revoke rules of practice in the superior court for the administration of this chapter. He shall in like manner prescribe forms for use in such court, and in the notation of the registry of titles of memorials, claims, liens, lis pendens, and all other involuntary charges upon and to such registered lands. Whenever a question shall arise in the administration of this chapter as to the proper method of protecting or asserting any right or interest under the law, and the method of procedure is in doubt, it shall be the duty of the clerk or register of deeds to notify the attorney-general, who, with the approval of the supreme court, shall prescribe a rule covering such case. (1913, c. 90, s. 31.)

Art. 2. Officers and Fees

§ 2380. Examiners appointed by clerk.—The clerk of the superior court of each county shall appoint three or more examiners of titles, who shall be licensed attorneys at law, residing in the state of North Carolina. They shall qualify by taking oath before the clerk to faithfully discharge the duties of such office, which oath shall be filed in the office of the clerk. The term of office shall be two years. Examiners of titles shall have and exercise the jurisdiction and perform the duties hereinafter prescribed, and receive the fees herein provided. They shall not appear in or have any connection with any proceeding instituted under the provisions of this chapter, and they shall be subject to removal at will by such clerk or judge of the superior court. (1913, c. 90, s. 3; 1917, c. 63.)

§ 2381. Fees of officers.—The fees to be allowed the clerks and sheriffs in this proceeding shall be the same as now allowed by law to clerks and sheriffs in other special proceedings. The examiner hereinbefore provided for shall receive, as may be allowed by the clerk, a minimum fee of five dollars for such examination of each title of property assessed upon the tax books at the amount of five thousand dollars or less; for each additional thousand dollars of assessed value of property so examined he shall receive fifty cents; for examination outside of the county he shall receive a reasonable allowance. There shall be allowed to the register of deeds for copying the plot upon registration of titles book one dollar; for issuing the certificate and new certificates under this chapter, fifty cents for each; for noting the entries or memorandum required and for the entries noting the cancellation of mortgages and all other entries, if any, herein provided for, a total of twenty-five cents for the entry or entries connected with one transaction. The county or other surveyor employed under the provisions of this chapter shall not be allowed to charge more than forty cents per hour for his time actually employed in making the survey and the map, except by agreement with the petitioner: Provided, however, that a minimum fee of two dollars in any case may be allowed.

There shall be no other fees allowed of any nature except as herein provided, and the bond of the register, clerk and sheriff shall be liable in case of any mistake, malfeasance, or misfeasance as to the duties imposed upon them by this chapter in as full a manner as such bond is now liable by law. (1913, c. 90, s. 30.)

Art. 3. Procedure for Registration

§ 2382. Who may institute proceedings.—Any person, being in the peaceable possession of land within the state and claiming an estate of inheritance therein, may prosecute a special proceeding in rem against all the world in the superior court for the county in which such land is situate, to establish his title thereto, to determine all adverse claims and have the title registered. Any number of the separate parcels of land claimed by the petitioner may be included in the same proceeding, and any one parcel may be established in several parts, each of which shall be clearly and accurately described and registered separately, and the decree therein shall operate directly upon the land and establish and vest an indefeasible title thereto. Any person in like possession of lands within the state, claiming an interest or estate less than the fee therein, may have his title thereto established under the provisions of this chapter, without the registration and transfer features herein provided. (1913, c. 90, s. 4.)

See note under § 2423.

§ 2383. Land lying in two or more counties.—In every proceeding to register title, in which it is alleged in the petition or made to appear that the land therein described, whether in one or more parcels, is situated partly in one county and partly in another, or is situated in two or more counties, that is to say, when an entire tract, or two or more entire tracts, are situated in two or more counties (but not separate or several tracts situated in different counties) it shall be competent to institute the proceedings before the clerk of the superior court of any county in which any part of such tract lying in two or more counties is situated, and said clerk shall have jurisdiction both of the parties and of the subject-matter as fully as if said land was situated wholly in his county; but upon the entry of a final decree of registration of title, the clerk by or before whom the same was rendered shall certify a copy thereof to the register of deeds of every county in which said land or any part thereof is situated, and the same shall be there filed and recorded; and every such register of deeds, upon demand of the person entitled and payment of requisite fees therefor, shall issue and deliver a certificate of title for that part of said land situated in his county. This section shall apply and become effective in all cases or proceedings heretofore conducted before any clerk of the superior court of this state for registration of title, as in this chapter authorized, when the land described in the petition as an entire tract was situated in two or more counties, as aforesaid; and upon the filing and recording of a certified copy of the final decree or decree of registration therein, the register of deeds shall issue and deliver a certificate of title to the present owner or person entitled to the same, for that part of the land situated in his county, as aforesaid, upon payment or tender of proper fees therefor. (1919, c. 82, s. 1.)

§ 2384. Petition filed; contents.—Suit for registration of title shall be begun by a petition to the court by the persons claiming, singly or collectively, to own or have the power of appointing or disposing of an estate in fee simple in any land, whether subject to liens or not. Infants and other persons under disability may sue by guardian or trustee, as the case may be, and corporations as in other cases now provided by law; but the person in whose behalf the petition is made shall always be named as petitioner. The petition shall be signed and sworn to by each petitioner, and shall contain a full description of the land to be registered as hereinafter provided, together with a plot of same by metes and bounds, corners to be marked by permanent markers of iron, stone or cement; it shall show when, how and from whom it was acquired, and whether or not it is now occupied, and if so, by whom; and it shall give an account of all known liens, interest, equities and claims, adverse or otherwise, vested or contingent, upon such land. Full names and addresses, if known, of all persons who may be interested by marriage or otherwise, including adjoining owners and occupants, shall be given. If any person shall be unable to state the metes and bounds, the clerk may order a preliminary survey. (1913, c. 90, s. 5.)

See note under § 2423.

Attaching Proceedings under Torrens Act Because Clerk Did Not Sign Jurat.—Where the petitioner, to have his title to land registered under the provisions of the Torrens Act has signed an oath reciting that he has been duly sworn, he may not contend that the oath lacked validity under the requirement of this section upon the ground that the clerk of the court had not signed the jurat, and that in consequence the proceedings which followed were absolutely void, and thereafter, upon his own motion have them set aside. Morgan v. Beaufort, etc., R. Co., 197 N. C. 568, 150 S. E. 30.

Cited in Brinson v. Lacy, 195 N. C. 394, 396, 142 S. E. 317.

§ 2385. Summons issued and served; disclaimer.—The clerk of the court shall issue a summons directed to the sheriff of every county in which persons named as interested may reside, such persons being made defendants, and the summons shall be returnable as in other cases of special proceedings, except that the return shall be at least sixty days from the date of the summons. The summons shall be served at least ten days before the return thereof and the return recorded in the same manner as in other special proceedings; and all parties under disabilities shall be represented by guardian, either general or ad litem. If the persons named as interested are not residents of the state of North Carolina, and their residence is known, which must appear by affidavit, the summons must be served on such nonresidents as is now prescribed by law for service of summons on nonresidents.

Any party defendant to such proceeding may file a disclaimer of any claim or interest in the land described in the petition, which shall be deemed an admission of the allegations of the petition, and the decree shall bar such party and all persons thereafter claiming under him, and such party shall not be liable for any costs or expenses of the proceeding except such as may have been incurred by reason of his delay in pleading. (1913, c. 90, s. 6.)

§ 2386. Notice of petition published.—In addition to the summons issued, prescribed in the foregoing section, the clerk of the court shall, at the time of issuing such summons, publish a notice of the filing thereof containing the names of the petitioners, the names of all persons named in the petition, together with a short but accurate description of the land and the relief demanded, in some secular newspaper published in the county wherein the land is situate, and having general circulation in the county; and if there be no such paper, then in a newspaper in the county nearest thereto and having general circulation in the county wherein the land lies, once a week for eight issues of such paper. The notice shall set forth the title of the cause and in legible or conspicuous type the words "To whom it may concern," and shall give notice to all persons of the relief demanded and the return day of the summons: Provided, that no final order or judgment shall be entered in the cause until there is proof and adjudication of publication as in other cases of publication of notice of summons. The provisions of this section, in respect to the issuing and service of summons and the publication of the notice, shall be mandatory and essential to the jurisdiction of the court to proceed in the cause: Provided, that the recital of the service of summons and publication in the decree or in the final judgment in the cause, and in the certificate issued to the petitioner as hereinafter provided, shall be conclusive evidence thereof. The clerk of the court shall also record a copy of said notice in the lis pendens docket of his office and cross-index same as other notices of lis pendens and shall also certify a copy thereof to the Superior Court of each county in which any part of said land lies, and the clerk thereof shall record and cross index same in the lis pendens records of his office as other notices of lis pendens are recorded and cross-indexed. (1913, c. 90, s. 7; 1915, c. 128, s. 1; 1919, c. 82, s. 2; 1925, c. 287.)

See note under § 2423.

Editor's Note.—The last sentence of the section was added in 1925, by the Public Laws of 1925, ch. 287.

Sufficiency of Publication.—Where the summons in proceedings to register lands has been issued and served under the provisions of section 2385, it is not requisite to the validity of the proceedings that the publication of notice of filing should have been made on exactly the day the summons was issued, if the publication has been made in the designated paper once a week for four successive weeks, as directed by section thereof. Cape Lookout Co. v. Gold, 167 N. C. 63, 83 S. E. 3.

Waiver of Objection to Publication.—In proceedings to register a title to lands, a party claiming an interest in the lands waives his rights to object on the grounds of the irregularity in the publication of notice by appearing and answering the petition. Cape Lookout Co. v. Gold, 167 N. C. 63, 83 S. E. 3.

§ 2387. Hearing and decree:

1. Referred to Examiner.—Upon the return day of the summons the petition shall be set down for hearing upon the pleadings and exhibits filed. If any person claiming an interest in the land described in the petition, or any lien thereon, shall file an answer, the petition and answer, together with all exhibits filed, shall be referred to the examiner of titles, who shall proceed, after notice to the petitioner and the persons who have filed answer or answered, to hear the cause upon such parol or documentary evidence as may be offered or called for and taken by him, and in addition thereto make such independent examination of the title as may be necessary. Upon his request the clerk shall issue a commission under the seal of the court for taking such testimony as shall be beyond the jurisdiction of such examiner.

2. Examiner's Report.—The examiner shall, within thirty days after such hearing, unless for good cause the time shall be extended, file with the clerk a report of his conclusions of law and fact, setting forth the state of such title, any liens or encumbrances thereon, by whom held, amount due thereon, together with an abstract of title to the lands and any other information in regard thereto affecting its validity.

3. Exceptions to Report.—Any of the parties to the proceeding may, within twenty days after such report is filed, file exceptions, either to the conclusions of law or fact. Whereupon the clerk shall transmit the record to the judge of the superior court for his determination thereof; such judge may on his own motion certify any issue of fact arising upon any such exceptions to the superior court of the county in which the proceeding is pending for a trial of such issue by jury, and he shall so certify such issue of fact for trial by jury upon the demand of any party to the proceeding. If, upon consideration of such record, or the record and verdict of issues to be certified and tried by jury, the title be found in the petitioner, the judge shall enter a decree to that effect, ascertaining all limitations, liens, etc., declaring the land entitled to registration accordingly, and the same, together with the record, shall be docketed by the clerk of the court as in other cases, and a copy of the decree certified to the register of deeds of the county for registration as hereinafter provided. Any of the parties may appeal from such judgment to the supreme court, as in other special proceedings.

4. No Judgment by Default.—No judgment in any proceeding under this chapter shall be given by default, but the court must require an examination of the title in every instance except as respects the rights of parties who, by proper pleadings, admit the petitioner's claim. If, upon the return day of the summons and the day upon which the petition is set down for hearing, no answer be filed, the clerk shall refer the same to the examiner of titles, who shall, after notice to the petitioner, proceed to examine the title, together with all liens or encumbrances set forth or referred to in the petition and exhibits, and shall examine the registry of deeds, mortgages, wills, judgments, mechanic liens and other records of the county, and upon such examination he shall, as hereinbefore provided, report to the clerk the condition of the title, with a notice of liens or encumbrances thereon. The examiner shall have power to take and call for evidence in such case as fully as if the application were being contested. If the title shall be found to be in the petitioner, the clerk shall enter a decree to that effect and declaring the land entitled to registration, with entry of any limitations, liens, etc., and shall certify the same for registration, as hereinbefore provided, after approval by the judge of the superior court. (1913, c. 90, s. 8.)

§ 2388. Effect of decree; approval of judge.—

Every decree rendered as hereinbefore provided shall bind the land and bar all persons and corporations claiming title thereto or interest therein; quiet the title thereto, and shall be forever binding and conclusive upon and against all persons and corporations, whether mentioned by name in the order of publication, or included under the general description, "to whom it may concern;" and every such decree so rendered, or a duly certified copy thereof, as also the certificate of title issued thereon to the person or corporation therein named as owner, or to any subsequent transferee or purchaser, shall be conclusive evidence that such person or corporation is the owner of the land therein described, and no other evidence shall be required in any court of this state of his or its right or title thereto.

It shall not be an exception to such conclusiveness that the person is an infant, lunatic or is under any disability, but such person may have recourse upon the indemnity fund hereinafter provided for, for any loss he may suffer by reason of being so concluded. Such decrees shall not be binding on and include the State of North Carolina or the State of Education unless notice of said proceeding and copy of petition, etc., as provided in this chapter, are served on the Governor and on the State Board of Education severally and personally. Such decree shall, in addition to being signed by the clerk of the court, be approved by the judge of the superior court, who shall review the whole proceeding and have power to require any reformation of the process, pleading, decrees or entries. (1913, c. 90, s. 9; 1919, c. 82, s. 3; 1925, c. 263.)

See note under § 2423.

Editor's Note.—The provision of this section requiring services of notice on the Governor and the Board of Education was added by the Public Laws of 1925, ch. 263.

Art. 4. Registration and Effect

§ 2389. Manner of registration.—The county commissioners of each county shall provide for the register of deeds in the county a book, to be called Registration of Titles, in which the register shall enroll, register and index, as hereinafter provided, the decree of title before mentioned and the copy of the plot contained in the petition, and all subsequent transfers of title, and note all voluntary and involuntary transactions in any wise affecting the title to the land, authorized to be entered thereon. If the title be subject to trust condition, encumbrance or the like, the words "in trust," "upon condition," "subject to encumbrance," or like appropriate insertion shall indicate the fact and fix any person dealing with such certificate with notice of the particulars of such limitations upon the title as appears upon the registry. No erasure, alteration, or amendment shall be made upon the registry after entry and issuance of a certificate of title except by order of a court of competent jurisdiction. (1913, c. 90, s. 10; 1919, c. 236, s. 1.)

§ 2389(a). Cross-indexing of lands by registers of deeds. — Where any land is brought into the Torrens' System and under said system is registered in the public records of the register's office, said register shall cross-index the registration in the general cross-index for deeds in his office. (1931, c. 286, s. 2.)

§ 2390. Certificate issued.—Upon the registration of such decree the register of deeds shall issue an owner's certificate of title, under the seal of his office, which shall be delivered to the owner or his agent duly authorized, and shall be substantially as follows:

State of North Carolina—County of .....

The certificate of .....

I hereby certify that the title is registered in the name of ..... to and situate in said county and state, described as follows: (Here describe land as in decree.)

Estate ..... (here name the estate and any limitation or encumbrance thereon, as fee simple, upon condition, in trust, subject to incumbrance, and the like).

Under decree of the land court of ..... county, entitled ..... Registered No. ...., Book No. ....., page .....

Witness my hand and seal, at office at ....., this ..... day of ..... A. D. 19..... (Seal) ..... Register of Deeds. (1913, c. 90, s. 10.)

§ 2391. Certificates numbered; entries thereon.—All certificates of title to land in the county shall be numbered consecutively, which number shall be retained as long as the boundaries of the land remain unchanged, and a separate page or more, with appropriate space for subsequent entries, shall be devoted to each title in the registration of titles book for the county. Every entry made upon any certificate of title in such book or upon the owner's certificate, under any of the provisions of this chapter, shall be signed by the register of deeds and minutely dated in conformity with the dates shown by the entry book. (1913, c. 90, s. 11.)

§ 2392. New certificate issued, if original lost.—Whenever an owner's certificate of title is lost or destroyed, the owner or his personal representative may petition the court for the issuance of a new certificate. Notice of such petition shall be published once a week for four successive weeks, under the direction of the court, in some convenient newspaper, and noted upon the registry of titles, and upon satisfactory proof having been exhibited before it that the certificate has been lost or destroyed the court may direct the issuance of a new certificate, which shall be approximately designated and take the place of the original, but at least thirty full days shall elapse between the filing of the petition and making the decree for such new certificate. (1913, c. 90, s. 24.)

§ 2393. Registered owner's estate free from adverse claims; exceptions.—Every registered owner of any estate or interest in land bought under this chapter shall, except in cases of fraud to which he is a party or in which he is a privy, without valuable consideration paid in good faith, and except when any registration has been procured through forgery, hold the land free from any and all adverse claims, rights or encumbrances not noted on the certificate of title, except (1) liens, claims or rights arising or existing under the laws or constitution of the United States which the statutes of this state cannot require to appear of record under registry laws; (2) taxes and assessments thereon due the state or any county, city or town therein, but not delinquent; (3) any lease for a term not exceeding three years, under which the land is actually occupied. (1913, c. 90, s. 25.)

§ 2394. Adverse claims existing at initial registry; affidavit; limitation of action.—Any person making any claim to or asserting any lien or charge upon registered land, existing at the initial registry of the same and not shown upon the register or adverse to the title of the registered owner, and for which no other provision is herein made for asserting the same in the registry of titles, may make an affidavit thereof setting forth his interest, right, title, lien or demand, and how and under whom derived, and the character and nature thereof. The affidavit shall state his place of residence and designate a place at which all notices relating thereto may be served. Upon the filing of such affidavit in the office of the clerk of the superior court, the clerk shall order a note thereof as in the case of charges or encumbrances, and the same shall be entered by the register of deeds. Action shall be brought upon such claim within six months after the entry of such note, unless for cause shown the clerk shall extend the time. Upon failure to commence such action within the time prescribed therefor, the clerk shall order a cancellation of such note. If any person shall wantonly or maliciously or without reasonable cause procure such notation to be entered upon the registry of titles, having the effect of a cloud upon the registered owner's title, he shall be liable for all damages the owner may suffer thereby. (1913, c. 90, s. 25.)

§ 2395. Decree and registration run with the land.—The obtaining of a decree of registration and the entry of a certificate of title shall be construed as an agreement running with the land, and the same shall ever remain registered land, subject to the provisions of this chapter and all amendments thereof. (1913, c. 90, s. 26.)

§ 2396. No right by adverse possession.—No title to nor right or interest in registered land in derogation of that of the registered owner shall be acquired by prescription or adverse possession. (1913, c. 90, s. 27.)

§ 2397. Jurisdiction of courts; registered land affected only by registration.—Except as otherwise specially provided by this chapter, registered land and ownership therein shall be subject to the jurisdiction of the courts in the same manner as if it had not been registered; but the registration shall be the only operative act to transfer or affect the title to registered land, and shall date from the time the writing, instrument or record to be registered is duly filed in the office of the register of deeds, subject to the provisions of this chapter; no voluntary or involuntary transaction shall affect the title to registered lands until registered in accordance with the provisions of this chapter: Provided, that all mortgages, deeds, surrendered and canceled certificates, when new certificates are issued for the land so deeded, the other paper-writings, if any, pertaining to and affecting the registered estate or estates herein referred to, shall be filed by the register of deeds for reference and information, but the registration of titles book shall be and constitute sole and conclusive legal evidence of title, except in cases of mistake and fraud, which shall be corrected in the methods now provided for the correction of papers authorized to be registered. (1913, c. 90, s. 28.)

No Distinction between Original Parties and Purchasers.—The statute draws no distinction between the original parties to deeds or contracts affecting title of lands registered under its provisions and creditors or purchasers, and in respect to such registration they stand upon the same footing. Dillon v. Brooker, 178 N. C. 65, 100 S. E. 191.

§ 2398. Priority of right. — In case of conflicting claims between the registered owners the right, title or estate derived from or held under the older certificate of title shall prevail. (1913, c. 90, s. 29.)

§ 2399. Compliance with this chapter due registration. — When the provisions of this chapter have been complied with, all conveyances, deeds, contracts to convey or leases shall be considered duly registered, as against creditors and purchasers, in the same manner and as fully as if the same had been registered in the manner heretofore provided by law for the registration of conveyances. (1913, c. 90, s. 32.)

§ 2399(a). Release from registration. — Whenever the record owner of any estate in lands, the title to which has been registered or attempted to be registered in accordance with the provisions of chapter forty-seven of the Consolidated Statutes, desires to have such estate released from the provisions of said chapter in so far as said chapter relates to the form of conveyance, so that such estate may ever thereafter be conveyed, either absolutely or upon condition or trust, by the use of any desired form of conveyance other than the certificate of title prescribed by said chapter, such owner may present his owner's certificate of this title to such registered estate to the register of deeds of the county wherein such land lies, with a memorandum or statement written by him on the margin thereof in the words following, or words of similar import, to wit: "I (or we), ..., being the owner (or owners) of the registered estate evidenced by this certificate of title, do hereby release said estate from the provisions of chapter forty-seven of the Consolidated Statutes of North Carolina in so far as said chapter relates to the form of conveyance, so that hereafter the said estate may, and shall be forever until again hereafter registered in accordance with the provisions of said chapter and acts amendatory thereof, conveyed, either absolutely or upon condition or trust, by any form of conveyance other than the certificate of title prescribed by said chapter, and in the same manner as if said estate had never been registered." Which said memorandum or statement shall further state that it is made pursuant to the provisions of this act, and shall be signed by such record owner and attested by the register of deeds under his hand and official seal, and a like memorandum or statement so entered, signed and attested upon the margin of the record of the said owner's certificate of title in the registration of titles book in said register's office, with the further notation made and signed by the register of deeds on the margin of the certificate of title in the registration of titles book showing that such entry has been made upon the owner's certificate of title; and thereafter any conveyance of such registered estate, or any part thereof, by such owner, his heirs or assigns, by means of any desired form of conveyance other than such certificate of title shall be as valid and effectual to pass such estate of the owner according to the tenor and purport of such conveyance in the same manner and to the same extent as if such estate had never been so registered. (1924, c. 40.)

Editor's Note.—The effect of this section is summarized in 3 N. C. Law Rev. 19.

Art. 5. Adverse Claims and Corrections after Registration

§ 2400. Limitations. — No decree of registration heretofore entered, and no certificate of title heretofore issued pursuant thereto, shall be adjudged invalid, revoked, or set aside, unless the action or proceeding in which the validity of such decree of registration or certificate of title issued pursuant thereto is attacked or called in question be commenced or the defense alleging the invalidity thereof be interposed within twelve months from March 10, 1919.

No decree of registration hereafter entered and no certificate of title hereafter issued pursuant thereto shall be adjudged invalid or revoked or set aside, unless the action or proceeding in which the validity of such decree or of the certificate of title issued pursuant thereto is attacked or called in question be commenced or the defense alleging the invalidity thereof be interposed within twelve months from the date of such decree.

No action or proceeding for the recovery of any right, title, interest, or estate in registered land adverse to the title established and adjudicated by any decree of registration heretofore entered shall be maintained unless such action or proceeding be commenced within twelve months from the date last mentioned; and no action or proceeding for the recovery of any right, title, interest, estate in registered land, adverse to the right established by any decree of registration hereafter shall be maintained unless such action or proceeding be commenced within twelve months from the date of such decree.

No action or proceeding for the enforcement or foreclosure of any lien upon or charge against registered land which existed at the date when any decree of registration was heretofore entered, and which was not recognized or established by such decree, shall be maintained, unless such action or proceeding be commenced within twelve months from the date above mentioned; and no action or proceeding for the enforcement or foreclosure of any lien upon or charge against registered land in existence at the date of any decree of registration hereafter entered, and which is not recognized and established by such decree, shall be maintained, unless such action or proceeding be commenced within twelve months from the date of such decree. (1919, c. 236, s. 1.)

§ 2401. Adverse claim subsequent to registry; affidavit of claim prerequisite to enforcement; limitation. — Any person claiming any right, title, or interest in registered land adverse to the registered owner thereof, arising subsequent to the date of the original decree of registration, may, if no other provision is made for registering the same, file with the register of deeds of the county in which such decree was rendered or certificate of title thereon was issued, a verified statement in writing, setting forth fully the right, title, or interest so claimed, how or from whom it was acquired, and a reference to the number, book, and page of the certificate of title of the registered owner, together with a description of the land by metes and bounds, the adverse claimant's place of residence and his post-office address, and, if a nonresident, he shall designate or appoint the said register of deeds to receive all notices directed to or to be served upon such adverse claimant in connection with the claim by him made, and such statement shall be noted and filed by said register of deeds as an adverse claim; but no action or proceeding to enforce such adverse claim shall be maintained unless the same be commenced within six months of the filing of the statement thereof. (1919, c. 236, s. 1.)

§ 2402. Suit to enforce adverse claim; summons and notice necessary. — Upon the institution of any action or proceeding to enforce such adverse claim, notice thereof shall be served upon the register of deeds, who shall enter upon the registry a memorandum that suit has been brought or proceeding instituted to determine the validity of such adverse claim; and summons or notice shall be served upon the holder or claimant of the registered title or certificate or other person against whom such adverse claim is alleged, as provided by law for the institution of suits or proceedings in the courts of this state.

If no notice of the institution of an action or proceeding to enforce an adverse claim be served upon the register of deeds and upon the holder of the registered title or certificate, or other person, as aforesaid, within seven months from the date of filing the statement of adverse claim, the register of deeds shall cancel upon the registry the adverse claim so filed and make a memorandum setting out that no notice of suit or proceeding to enforce the same had been served upon him within seven months as herein required, and that such adverse claim was therefore canceled; and thereafter no action or proceeding shall be begun or maintained to enforce such adverse claim in any of the courts of this state. (1919, c. 236, s. 1.)

§ 2403. Judgment in suit to enforce adverse claim; register to file. — The court shall certify its judgment to the register of deeds; if such adverse claim be held valid, the register of deeds shall make such entry upon the registry and upon the owner's certificate of title as may be directed by the court, or he may file and record a certified copy of the judgment or order of the court thereon; if such adverse claim be held invalid the register of deeds shall cancel such adverse claim upon the registry, noting thereon that the same was done by order or judgment of the court, or he may file and record a certified copy of the judgment or order of the court thereon. (1919, c. 236, s. 1.)

§ 2404. Correction of registered title; limitation of adverse claims. — Any registered owner or other claimant under the registered title may at any time apply to the court in which the original decree was entered, by petition, setting out that registered interests of any description, whether vested, contingent, expectant or inchoate, have terminated and ceased, or that new interests have arisen or been created which do not appear upon the certificate, or that any error or omission was made in entering or issuing the certificate or any duplicate thereof, or that the name of any person on the certificate has been changed, or that the registered owner had married or, if registered as married, that the marriage has been terminated, or that a corporation which owned registered lands has been dissolved, without conveying the same or transferring its certificate within three years after the dissolution, or any other reasonable and proper ground of correction or relief; and such court may hear and determine the petition after notice to all parties in interest, and may make such order or decree as may be appropriate and lawful in the premises; but nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize any such court to open any original decree of registration which was entered more than twelve months prior to the filing of such petition, and nothing shall be done or ordered by the court to divest or impair the title or other interest of a purchaser who holds a transfer or certificate of title for value and in good faith. No action or proceeding shall be commenced or maintained to set up or establish any right, claim, interest or estate adverse to the order or decree or certificate of title issued thereon made or entered upon any petition or other proceeding authorized by this section, unless the same shall be brought and instituted within six months from the date of such order or decree authorized by this section. (1919, c. 236, s. 1.)

Art. 6. Method of Transfer

§ 2405. When whole of land conveyed. — Whenever the whole of any registered estate is transferred or conveyed the same shall be done by a transfer or conveyance upon or attached to the certificate substantially as follows:

A B and wife (giving the names of the parties owning land described in the certificate and their wives) hereby, in consideration of ..... dollars, sell and convey to C D (giving name of purchaser) the lot or tract of land, as the case may be, described in the certificate of title hereto attached.

The same shall be signed and properly acknowledged by the parties and their wives and shall have the full force and effect of a deed in fee simple: Provided, that if the sale shall be in trust, upon condition, with power to sell or other unusual form of conveyance, the same shall be set out in the deed, and shall be entered upon the registration of titles book as hereinafter provided; that upon presentation of the transfer, together with the certificate of title, to the register of deeds, the transaction shall be duly noted and registered in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, and certificate of title so presented shall be cancelled and a new certificate with the same number issued to the purchaser thereof, which new certificate shall fully refer by number and also by name of holder to former certificate just canceled. (1913, c. 90, s. 12.)

Necessity of Affidavit and Notation.—A contract to convey lands where the owner has registered it, under the Torrens Law, cannot be specifically enforced until the complainant has filed an affidavit and had notation made on the books as required by this section. Dillon v. Broeker, 178 N. C. 65, 100 S. E. 191.

§ 2406. Conveyance of part of registered land. —The transfer of any part of a registered estate, either of an undivided interest therein or of a separate lot or parcel thereof, shall be made by an instrument of the transfer or conveyance similar in form to that herein provided for the transfer of the whole of any registered estate, to which shall be attached the certificate of title of such registered estate. In case of the transfer of an undivided interest in a registered estate, such instrument or transfer or conveyance shall accurately specify and describe the extent and amount of the interest transferred and of the interest retained, respectively. In case of a transfer of a separate lot or parcel of a registered estate, such instrument of transfer or conveyance shall describe the lot or parcel transferred either by metes and bounds or by reference to the map or plat attached thereto, and shall in every case be accompanied by a map or plat having clearly indicated thereon the boundaries of the whole of the registered estate and of the lot or parcel to be transferred. (1919, c. 82, s. 4.)

§ 2407. Duty of register of deeds upon part conveyance. — Upon presentation to the register of deeds of an instrument of transfer or conveyance of an undivided interest in a registered estate, in proper form as above prescribed, it shall be his duty to cancel the certificate of title attached thereto and to issue to each owner a new certificate of title, each bearing the same number as the original certificate of title and accurately specifying and describing the extent and the amount of the interest retained or of the interest transferred, as the case may be. Upon presentation to the register of deeds of an instrument of transfer or conveyance of a separate lot or parcel of a registered estate, in proper form as above prescribed, it shall be his duty to cancel the certificate of the title attached thereto and to issue to each owner a new certificate of title bearing a new number and describing the separate lot or parcel retained or transferred, as the case may be, either by metes and bounds or by reference to a map or plat thereto attached. (1919, c. 82, s. 4.)

§ 2408. Subdivision of registered estate. — Any owner of a registered estate who may desire to subdivide the same may make application in writing to the register of deeds for the issuance of a new certificate of title for each subdivision, to which application shall be attached a map or plat having clearly indicated thereon the boundaries of the whole of the registered estate in question and of each lot or parcel for which he desires a new certificate of title. Thereupon it shall be the duty of the register of deeds, upon payment by such applicant of necessary surveyor's fees, if any are required, and of the amount herein provided for issuing the certificates of title and recording the map, to cancel the certificate of title attached to said application and to issue to such owner new certificates of title, each bearing a new number, for each lot or parcel shown upon the said map, describing such lot or parcel in such certificates either by metes and bounds or by reference to a map or plat attached thereto. (1919, c. 82, s. 4.)

§ 2409. References and cross-references entered on register. — In all cases the register of deeds shall place upon the registry of title books and upon the certificate of title of such registered estate therein, references and cross-references to the new certificates issued as above provided, in accordance with the provisions of this article, and the new certificates issued shall fully refer by number and by name of the holder to the canceled certificate in place of which they are issued. (1919, c. 82, s. 4.)

§ 2410. When land conveyed as security. — 1. Whole land conveyed. Whenever the owner of any registered estate shall desire to convey same as security for debt, it may be done in the following manner, by a short form of transfer, substantially as follows, to wit:

A B and wife (giving names of all owners or holders of certificates and their wives) hereby transfer to C. D. the tract or lot of land described as No. ..... in registration of titles book for ..... county, a certificate for the title for same being hereto attached, to secure a debt of ..... dollars, due to ....., of ..... county and state, on the day of ....., 19...., evidenced by bond (or otherwise as the case may be) dated the .... day of ....., 19..... In case of default in payment of said debt with accrued interest, ... days notice of sale required.

The same shall be signed and properly acknowledged by the parties making same, and shall be presented, together with the owner's certificate, to the register of deeds, whose duty it shall be to note upon the owner's certificate and upon the certificate of title in the registration of titles book the name of the trustee, the amount of debt, and the date of maturity of same.

2. Part of land conveyed. When a part of the registered estate shall be so conveyed, the register of deeds shall note upon the book and owner's certificate the part so conveyed, and if the same be required and the proper fee paid by the trustee, shall issue what shall be known as a partial certificate, over his hand and seal, setting out the portion so conveyed.

3. Effect of transfer. All transfers by such short form shall convey the power of sale upon due advertisement at the county courthouse and in some newspaper published in the county, or adjourning county, in the same manner and as fully as is now provided by law in the case of mortgages and deeds of trust and default therein.

4. Other encumbrances noted. All registered encumbrances, rights or adverse claims affecting the estate represented thereby shall continue to be noted, not only upon the certificate of title in the registration book, but also upon the owner's certificate, until same shall have been released or discharged. And in the event of second or other subsequent voluntary encumbrances the holder of the certificate may be required to produce such certificate for the entry thereon or attachment thereto of the note of such subsequent charge or encumbrance as provided in this article.

5. Other forms of conveyance may be used. Nothing in this section nor this chapter shall be construed to prevent the owner from conveying such land, or any part of the same, as security for a debt by deed of trust or mortgage in any form which may be agreed upon between the parties thereto, and having such deed of trust or mortgage recorded in the office of the register of deeds as other deeds of trust and mortgages are recorded: Provided, that the book and page of the record at which such deed of trust or mortgage is recorded shall be entered by the register of deeds upon the owner's certificate and also on the registration of titles book. (1913, c. 90, s. 14; 1915, c. 245.)

6. Sale under lien; new certification. Upon foreclosure of such deed of trust or mortgage, or sale under execution for taxes or other lien on the land, the fact of such foreclosure or sale shall be reported by the trustee, mortgagee or other person authorized to make the same, to the register of deeds of the county in which the land lies, and, upon satisfactory evidence thereof, it shall be his duty to call in and cancel the outstanding certificate of title for the land so sold, and to issue a new certificate in its place to the purchaser or other person entitled thereto; and the production of such outstanding certificate and its surrender by the holder thereof may be compelled, upon notice to him, by motion before and order of the clerk of the superior court in the original proceeding or the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the land lies; but the right of appeal from such order may be exercised and shall be allowed as in other special proceedings, and pending any such appeal the rights of all parties shall be preserved. (1919, c. 82, s. 5.)

§ 2411. Owner's certificate presented with transfer. — In voluntary transactions the owner's certificate of title must be presented along with the writing or instrument conveying or effecting the sale, and thereupon and not otherwise the register shall be authorized to register the conveyance or other transaction upon proof of payment of all delinquent taxes or liens, if any, or if such payment be not shown the entry and new certificate shall note such taxes or liens as having priority thereto. (1913, c. 90, s. 15.)

§ 2412. Transfers probated; partitions; contracts. — All transfers of registered land shall be duly executed and probated as required by law upon like conveyances of other lands, and in all cases of change in boundary by partition, subtraction or addition of land there shall be an accurate survey and permanent marking of boundaries and accurate plots, showing the courses, distances and markings of every portion thereof, which shall be duly proved and registered as upon the initial registration. Such transfers shall be presented to the register of deeds for entry upon the registration of titles book and upon the owner's certificate within thirty days from the date thereof, or become subject to any rights which may accrue to any other person by a prior registration. All leases or contracts affecting land for a period exceeding three years shall be in writing, duly proved before the clerk of the superior court, recorded in the register's office, and noted upon the registry and upon the owner's certificate. (1913, c. 90, ss. 15, 32.)

§ 2413. Certified copy of order of court noted. —In voluntary transactions a certificate from the proper state, county or court officer, or certified copy of the order, decree or judgment of any court of competent jurisdiction shall be authority for him to order a proper notation thereof upon the registration of titles book, and for the register of deeds to note the transaction under the direction of the court. (1913, c. 90, s. 16.)

§ 2414. Production of owner's certificate required. — Whenever owner's certificate is not presented to the register along with any writing, instrument or record filed for registration under this chapter, he shall forthwith send notice by registered mail to the owner of such certificate, requesting him to produce the same in order that a memorial of the transaction may be made thereon; and such production may be required by subpœna duces tecum or by other process of the court, if necessary. (1913, c. 90, s. 17.)

§ 2415. Registration notice to all persons. — Every voluntary or involuntary transaction, which if recorded, filed or entered in any clerk's office would affect unregistered land, shall, if duly registered in the office of the proper register as the case may be, and not otherwise, be notice to all persons from the time of such registration, and operate, in accordance with law and the provisions of this chapter, upon any registered land in the county of such registration. (1913, c. 90, s. 18.)

§ 2416. Conveyance of registered land in trust. —Whenever a writing, instrument or record is filed for the purpose of transferring registered land in trust, or upon any equitable condition or limitation expressed therein, or for the purpose of creating or declaring a trust or other equitable interest in such land, the particulars of the trust, condition, limitation or other equitable interest shall not be entered on the certificate, but it shall be sufficient to enter in the book and upon the certificates a memorial thereof by the terms "in trust" or "upon condition" or in other apt words, and to refer by number to the writing, instrument or record authorizing or creating the same. And if express power is given to sell, encumber or deal with the land in any manner, such power shall be noted upon the certificates by the term "with power to sell" or "with power to encumber," or by other apt words. (1913, c. 90, s. 19.)

§ 2417. Authorized transfer of equitable interests registered. — No writing or instrument for the purpose of transferring, encumbering or otherwise dealing with equitable interests in registered land shall be registered unless the power thereto enabling has been expressly conferred by or has been reserved in the writing or instrument creating such equitable instrument, or has been declared to exist by the decree of some court of competent jurisdiction, which decree must also be registered. (1913, c. 90, s. 20.)

§ 2417(a). Validating conveyance by entry on margin of certificate. — In all cases where the owner of any estate in lands, the title to which has been registered or attempted to be registered in accordance with the provisions of chapter forty-seven of the Consolidated Statutes, has heretofore and subsequent to such registration made any conveyance of such estate, or any portion thereof, by any form of conveyance sufficient in law to pass the title thereto if the title to said lands had not been so registered, the record owner and holder of the certificate of title covering such registered estate may enter upon the margin of his certificate of title in the registration of titles book a memorandum showing that such registered estate, or a portion thereof, has been so conveyed, and further showing the name of the grantee or grantees and the number of the book and the page thereof where such conveyance is recorded in the office of the register of deeds, and make a like entry upon the owner's certificate of title held by him, both of such entries to be signed by him and witnessed by the register of deeds, and attested by the seal of office of the register of deeds upon said owner's certificate, with the further notation made and signed by registration of titles book showing that such entry has been made upon the owner's certificate of title, and thereupon such conveyance shall become and be as valid and effectual to pass such estate of the owner according to the tenor and purport of such conveyance as if the title to said lands had never been so registered, whether such conveyance be in form absolute or upon condition of trust; and in all cases where such conveyance has heretofore been made, upon the making of the entries herein authorized by the record owner and holder of such owner's certificate of title, the grantee and his heirs and assigns shall thereafter have the same right to convey the said estate or any part of the same in all respects as if the title to said lands had never been so registered: Provided, however, that the provisions of this section shall not affect any pending action or special proceeding. (1924, c. 41.)

Editor's Note.—The effect of this section is summarized in 3 N. C. Law Rev. 19.

Art. 7. Liens upon Registered Lands

§ 2418. Docketed judgments. — Whenever any judgment of the superior court of the county in which the registered estate is situated shall be duly docketed in the office of the clerk of the superior court, it shall be the duty of the clerk to certify the same to the register of deeds. The register of deeds shall thereupon enter the certificate of title, the date, and the amount of the judgment, and the same shall be a lien upon such land as fully as such docketed judgment would be a lien upon unregistered lands of the judgment debtor. (1913, c. 90, s. 22.)

§ 2419. Notice of delinquent taxes filed. — It shall be the duty of the sheriff or other collector of taxes or assessments of each county and town, not later than the first day of March in each year, to file an exact memorandum of the delinquency, if any, of any registered land for the nonpayment of the taxes or assessments thereon, including the penalty therefor, in the office of the register of deeds for registration; and if such officer fails to perform such duty, and there shall be subsequent to such day a transfer of the land as hereinbefore provided, the grantee shall acquire a good title free from any lien for such taxes and assessments, and such sheriff or other collector of taxes and his sureties shall be liable for the payment of the taxes and assessments with the penalty and interest thereon. (1913, c. 90, s. 21.)

§ 2420. Sale of land for taxes; redemption.— Whenever any sale of registered land is made for delinquent taxes or levies, it shall be the duty of the sheriff or other officer to make such sale forthwith, to file a memorandum thereof for registration in the office of the register of deeds; and thereupon the registered owner shall be required to produce his certificate for cancellation, and a new owner's certificate shall be issued in favor of the purchaser, and the land shall be transferred on the land books to the name of such purchaser, unless such delinquent charges and all penalties and interest thereon be paid in full within ninety days after date of such sale; but a note shall be entered upon the certificate of title and also upon any such new owner's certificate, reserving the privilege of redemption in accordance with the law. In case of any redemption under this section of land sold for taxes, a note of the fact shall be duly registered, and if an owner's certificate has been issued to any purchaser, the same shall be canceled and a new one shall be issued to the person who has redeemed. (1913, c. 90, ss. 22, 23.)

§ 2421. Sale of unredeemed land; application of proceeds. — If there be no redemption of land under the preceding section, in accordance with the law, it shall be the duty of the sheriff or other collector of taxes in the county or town in which the land lies to sell the same at public auction for cash, first giving such notice of the time and place of sale as is prescribed for execution sales, and the proceeds of sale shall be applied, first, to the payment of all taxes and assessments then due to the state, county and town, with interest, penalty and costs; second, to the payment of all sums paid by any person who purchased at the former tax sale, with interest and the additional sum of five dollars; third, to the payment of a commission to the officer making the sale of five per centum on the first three hundred dollars and two per centum on the residue of the proceeds; fourth, to the satisfaction of any liens other than the taxes and assessments registered against the land in the order of their priorities; fifth, and the surplus, if any, to the person in whose name the land was previous to sale for taxes, subject to redemption as provided herein, his heirs, personal representatives or assigns. A note of the sale under this section shall be duly registered, and a certificate shall be entered and an owner's certificate issued in favor of the purchaser in whom title shall be thereby vested as registered owner, in accordance with the provisions of this chapter. Nothing in this section shall be so construed as to affect or divert the title of a tenant in reversion or remainder to any real estate which has been returned delinquent and sold on account of the default of the tenant for life in paying the taxes or assessments thereon. (1913, c. 90, s. 23.)

Art. 8. Assurance Fund

§ 2422. Assurance fund provided; investment. —Upon the original registration of land and also upon the entry of certificate showing the title as registered owners in heirs or devisees, there shall be paid to the clerk of the court one-tenth of one per cent of the assessed value of the land for taxes, as an assurance fund, which shall be paid over to the state treasurer, who shall be liable therefor upon his official bond as for other moneys received by him in his official capacity. He shall keep all the principal and interest of such fund invested, except as required for the payment of indemnities, in bonds and securities of the United States, of this state, or of counties and other municipalities within the state. Such investment shall be made upon the advice and concurrence of the governor and council of state, and he shall make report of such funds and the investment thereof to the general assembly biennially. (1913, c. 90, s. 33.)

As to investment in bonds guaranteed by United States, see section 220(a)1.

§ 2423. Action for indemnity.—Any person who, without negligence on his part, sustains loss or damage or is deprived of land, or of any estate or interest therein, through fraud or negligence or in consequence of any error, omission, mistake, misfeasance, or misdescription in any certificate of title or in any entry or memorandum in the registration book, and who, by the provisions of this chapter, is barred or in any way precluded from bringing an action for the recovery of such land or interest or estate therein or claim upon same, may bring an action in the superior court of the county in which the land is situate for the recovery of compensation for such loss or damage from the assurance fund. Such action shall be against the state treasurer and all other persons who may be liable for the fraud, negligence, omission, mistake or misfeasance; but if such claimant has the right of action or other remedy for the recovery of the land, or of the estate or interest therein, or of the claim upon same, he shall exhaust such remedy before resorting to the assurance fund. (1913, c. 90, s. 34.)

Negligence of Plaintiff Barring Recovery.—A Torrens proceedings under this chapter duly commenced prior to the enactment of Public Laws 1919, c. 31 (Code §§ 501, 502), constituted a "lis pendens." So such proceedings while pending was notice to a mortgagee of the land without the necessity of the filing of a formal lis pendens, and where the mortgagee failed to protect himself under the provisions of the statute, and the title to the land was assured by the State, and a holder thereof by proper transfer acquired the title, the negligence of the mortgagee was a complete defense in the mortgagee's action to recover damages against the State thereunder. Brinson v. Lacy, 195 N. C. 394, 142 S. E. 317.

§ 2424. Satisfaction by third person or by treasurer.—If there are defendants other than the state treasurer, and judgment is rendered in favor of the plaintiff and against the treasurer and some or all of the other defendants, execution shall first be issued against the other defendants, and if such execution is returned unsatisfied in whole or in part, and the officer returning the same shall certify that it cannot be collected from the property and effects of the other defendants, or if the judgment be against the treasurer only, the clerk of the court shall certify the amount due on the execution to the state auditor, who shall issue his warrant therefor upon the state treasurer, and the same shall be paid. In all such cases the treasurer may employ counsel who shall receive reasonable compensation for his services from the assurance fund. (1913, c. 90, s. 35.)

§ 2425. Payment by treasurer, if assurance fund insufficient.—If the assurance fund shall be insufficient at any time to meet the amount called for by any such certificate, the treasurer shall pay the same from any funds in the treasury not otherwise appropriated; and in such case any amount thereafter received by the treasurer on account of the assurance fund shall be transferred to the general funds of the treasury until the amount advanced shall have been paid. (1913, c. 90, s. 36.)

§ 2426. Treasurer subrogated to right of claimant.—In every case of payment by the treasurer from the assurance funds under the provisions of this chapter the treasurer shall be subrogated to all the rights of the plaintiff against all and every other person or property or securities to a trustee, or by the improper exercise of any power of sale in benefit of the assurance fund. (1913, c. 90, s. 37.)

§ 2427. Assurance fund not liable for breach of trust; limit of recovery. — The assurance fund shall not be liable to pay any loss, damage or deprivation occasioned by a breach of trust, whether expressed, constructive or implied, by any registered owner who is a trustee, or by the improper exercise of any power of sale in a mortgage or deed of trust. Nor shall any plaintiff recover as compensation under the provisions of this chapter more than the fair market value of the land at the time when he suffered the loss, damage or deprivation thereof. (1913, c. 90, s. 38.)

§ 2428. Statute of limitation as to assurance fund.—Action for compensation from the assurance fund shall be begun within three years from the time the cause of action accrued. In cases of infancy or other disability now recognized by law, persons under such disability shall have one year after the removal of such disability within which to begin the action. (1913, c. 90, s. 39.)

Art. 9. Removal of Land from Operation of Torrens Law

§ 2428(a). Proceedings. — Any land heretofore brought under the provisions and operation of this chapter may be removed and excluded therefrom by a motion in writing filed in the original cause wherein said land was brought under the provisions and operation of said chapter, and upon the filing of a petition therein showing the names of all persons owning an interest in said land and of all lien holders, mortgagees and trustees of record, and the description of said land. Upon the filing of said petition the Clerk of the Superior Court shall issue a citation to all parties interested and named in the petition, and upon the return date of said citation and upon the hearing of said motion, the said Clerk of the Superior Court may enter a decree in said cause removing and excluding said land from the provisions and operation of this chapter, and transfer and conveyance of said land may be made thereafter as other common law conveyances. (1931, c. 286, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—No procedure is provided for in case the petition should be contested. And while the legislature rather loosely provides that the clerk, upon rendering his decree excluding the land, also may decree that subsequent transfers of said land may be made "as other common law conveyances," it obviously means that such transfers should be effectuated by deeds duly probated and registered under our present laws. The amendment makes no specific provision for the recordation of the Clerk's decree as notice that the particular tract of land is no longer registered under the Torrens Act.

The Torrens system of land registration, though highly desirable from many points of view, has never been extensively used in North Carolina. Since 1913, when the Act was passed, scarcely five hundred titles have been registered under it. The present amendment now makes possible the "unregistering" of these titles. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 392.

§ 2428(b). Existing liens unaffected. — Nothing in § 2428(a) shall be construed to impair or remove any lien or encumbrance existing against said land. (1931, c. 286, s. 3.)

CHAPTER 48

LIBEL AND SLANDER

§ 2429. Libel against newspaper; notice before action.—Before any action, either civil or criminal, is brought for the publication, in a newspaper or periodical, of a libel, the plaintiff or prosecutor shall at least five days before instituting such action serve notice in writing on the defendant, specifying the article and the statements therein which he alleges to be false and defamatory. (Rev., s. 2012; 1901, c. 557.)

Cross References.—As to pleadings in libel and slander, see sec. 542. As to criminal libel, see sec. 4229. For general treatment of libel and slander, see 8 N. C. Enc. Dig. 651-699; 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 647-658.

Definition.—The accepted definition of a libel is expressed, in White v. Nicholls, 3 How. 266, 11 L. Ed. 591 as follows: "Every publication, either by writing, printing or pictures, which charges upon or imputes to, any person that which renders him liable to punishment, or which is calculated to make him infamous or odious, or ridiculous is prima facie a libel."

Constitutionality.—This and the two following sections providing that a newspaper publishing a libel may avoid, under certain conditions, the payment of punitive damages is not discriminatory, but a constitutional enactment. Pentuff v. Park, 194 N. C. 146.

Complaint Must Allege Notice.—Under this section a complaint in an action for libel must allege the giving of five days' notice to the defendant in writing, specifying the article and the statements therein alleged to be false. Williams v. Smith, 134 N. C. 249, 46 S. E. 502.

Same—Failure Demurrable.—In an action against a newspaper for libel, the failure of the complaint to allege the five days' notice renders it demurrable. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811.

Same—Same—Amendment.—Where a demurrer was sustained to a complaint for libel against a newspaper because it failed to appear that notice of the action had been given, the trial court may permit an amendment showing that fact. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811.

When Notice Unnecessary.—In an action for libel, where the newspaper publishes a retraction, no notice need be given. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811.

As to whether this section and the following sections of this chapter, as to notice to the defendant in an action for libel, looking to retraction and apology, applies to individuals having no connection with a newspaper publishing the libel, Query? Paul v. National Auction Co., 181 N. C. 1, 105 S. E. 881.

Failure of Notice.—In an action for libel against a newspaper the failure to give notice of the action as required only relieves the paper of punitive damages. Osborne v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811.

Compensatory Damages.—This section and the following sections in this chapter, having significance only on the question of punitive damages, do not include compensatory damages for "pecuniary loss, physical pain, mental suffering, and injury to reputation." Paul v. National Auction Co., 181 N. C. 1, 105 S. E. 881.

§ 2430. Effect of publication in good faith and retraction.— If it appears upon the trial that said article was published in good faith, that its falsity was due to an honest mistake of the facts, and that there were reasonable grounds for believing that the statements in said article were true, and that within ten days after the service of said notice a full and fair correction, apology and retraction was published in the same editions or corresponding issues of the newspaper or periodical in which said article appeared, and in as conspicuous place and type as was said original article, then the plaintiff in such case, if a civil action, shall recover only actual damages, and if, in a criminal proceeding, a verdict of "guilty" is rendered on such a state of facts, the defendant shall be fined a penny and the costs, and no more. (Rev., s. 2013; 1901, c. 557.)

Section Constitutional.—This section taking away from a person the right to recover punitive damages in case of libel is constitutional. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811.

A recovery of actual damages does not abridge the freedom of the press, as inhibited by our Constitution, Art. 1, sec. 20. Pentuff v. Park, 194 N. C. 146.

Same—Applies Equally to All.—Where a statute for libel applies equally to all newspapers and periodicals, it does not amount to unconstitutional discrimination. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811.

"Actual Damages." — The "actual damages" recoverable in a suit for libelous publication by a newspaper in the event of a retraxit, allowed by the statute, is for pecuniary loss, direct or indirect, or for physical pain and inconvenience. Pentuff v. Park, 194 N. C. 146. Actual damages also include mental suffering and injury to reputation. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811.

Damages When Defendants Do Not Comply.—Where the defendants did not avail themselves of the privilege given them under this section, the damages that may be awarded would include punitive as well as actual damages. Pentuff v. Park, 194 N. C. 146, 158.

Damages as "Property."—The right to have punitive damages assessed is not property, but the right to recover actual or compensatory damages is property. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 633, 47 S. E. 811.

Defendant's Pleading.—In an action for libel against a newspaper, the paper having pleaded a retraction of the publication, it is necessary for the defendant to show that the publication was made in good faith, and with reasonable ground to believe it to be true, in order to relieve the paper from punitive damages. Osborn v. Leach, 135 N. C. 628, 47 S. E. 811.

§ 2431. Anonymous communications.—The two preceding sections shall not apply to anonymous communications and publications. (Rev., s. 2014; 1901, c. 557, s. 3.)

An article signed "Smith" is not an anonymous publication under this section. Williams v. Smith, 134 N. C. 249, 46 S. E. 502.

§ 2432. Charging innocent woman with incontinency.—Whereas doubts have arisen whether actions of slander can be maintained against persons who may attempt, in a wanton and malicious manner, to destroy the reputation of innocent and unprotected women, whose very existence in society depends upon the unsullied purity of their character, therefore any words written or spoken of a woman, which may amount to a charge of incontinency, shall be actionable. (Rev., s. 2015; Code, s. 3763; R. C., c. 106; 1808, c. 478.)

See 12 N. C. Law Rev., 120.

Positive Terms.—This section in the operative part is explicit and positive. Bowden v. Bailes, 101 N. C. 612, 616, 8 S. E. 342.

Meaning of "Innocent Woman."—There is a manifest reason why the words "an innocent woman," in sec. 4230 and "innocent and unprotected woman" in this section, should be construed to mean innocent of illicit sexual intercourse, as affecting her reputation when the slanderous words are spoken, for the purpose of those sections is to protect women who, however imprudent they may have been in other respects, have not so far "stooped to folly" as to surrender their chastity and become incontinent, or who have regained their characters if a "slip has been made," from "the wanton and malicious slander" of persons who may attempt to destroy their reputations and blast and ruin their characters. State v. Ferguson, 107 N. C. 841, 849, 12 S. E. 574; State v. Johnson, 182 N. C. 883, 886, 109 S. E. 786.

Must Charge Adultery or Fornication.—Words which impute to a female, a wanton and lascivious disposition only, are not actionable. Lucas v. Nichols, 52 N. C. 32.

The words, which amount to a charge of incontinency, must import not merely a lascivious disposition, but the criminal act of adultery or fornication. McBrayer v. Hill, 26 N. C. 136.

Same—May Be Question for Jury.—When the words are ambiguous and admit of a slanderous interpretation, it becomes a question for the jury to determine whether they amounted to the slanderous charge of the reasonable apprehension of the hearers. State v. Howard, 169 N. C. 312, 84 S. E. 807.

Complaint.—It is not necessary that the complaint should allege that the words were "wantonly and maliciously" uttered. Bowden v. Bailes, 101 N. C. 612, 8 S. E. 342.

Action by Husband.—An action by a husband for slander of his wife, the wife not being a party and the complaint alleging no special damage to the husband, will be dismissed on motion of the defendant, or ex mero motu, for failure of the complaint to state a cause of action. Harper v. Pinkston, 112 N. C. 293, 17 S. E. 161.

Damages.—In an action by a woman for slander, for words alleged to have been spoken, amounting to a charge of incontinency, the plaintiff may, in the absence of proof of actual special damages, recover compensatory damages; and upon proof that the words were spoken with malice, or that the conduct of the defendant was marked by gross and wilful wrong, or was oppressive, vindictive damages may be awarded. Bowden v. Bailes, 101 N. C. 612, 8 S. E. 342.

As under this section the charge of incontinency made against an innocent woman, in whatever words written or spoken, conveyed to the hearer, is per se actionable, their utterance must be followed by the same consequence as to damages as the publishing of other defamatory imputations. Bowden v. Bailes, 101 N. C. 612, 616, 8 S. E. 342.

Examples.—Sec. 4230 is the criminal statute making it a misdemeanor to slander an innocent woman. The wording is similar to this section and the following expressions which were held to amount to a charge of incontinency, though decided in criminal cases, apply equally here.—Ed. Note.

Charging a woman with having had sexual intercourse with a male dog amounts to a charge of incontinency. State v. Hewlin, 128 N. C. 571, 37 S. E. 952.

The words: "If the plaintiff (an unmarried woman) did not give birth to a child, she missed a good chance of having it," themselves imply an illicit sexual intercourse. Sowers v. Sowers, 87 N. C. 303.

Calling an innocent woman "a d—d whore," in a loud and angry manner in the hearing alone of the wife of the speaker, is a charge of incontinency within the meaning of the statute. State v. Shoemaker, 101 N. C. 690, 8 S. E. 332.

To say of a woman, that "she was kept by a man" is actionable as a slander under our act of assembly. McBrayer v. Hill, 26 N. C. 136.

Same—Not Sufficient.—The words that a woman "looked like a woman who had miscarried," do not, per se imply a charge of incontinence. State v. Benton, 117 N. C. 788, 790, 23 S. E. 432.

Calling a woman a "damned bitch" held not a charge of incontinency. State v. Harwell, 129 N. C. 550, 553, 40 S. E. 48.

LIENS

Art. 1. Mechanics', Laborers' and Materialmen's Liens

§ 2433. On buildings and property, real and personal.—Every building built, rebuilt, repaired or improved, together with the necessary lots on which such building is situated, and every lot, farm or vessel, or any kind of property, real or personal, not herein enumerated, shall be subject to a lien for the payment of all debts contracted for work done on the same, or material furnished.

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS.

In General.—The Constitution requires the General Assembly to "provide by proper legislation for giving to mechanics and laborers an adequate lien on the subject-matter of their labor." Art. 14, sec. 4. And the statute gives the lien "for the payment of all debts contracted for work done on the same or material furnished." In the construction of this section it is declared, in Wilkie v. Bray, 71 N. C. 205, that "in order to create the lien, the circumstances must be such as first to create the relation of debtor and creditor; and then it is for the debt that he has the lien." The effect of this ruling, which makes the statutory lien an incident to and the offspring of the contract out of which the indebtedness springs, and confines it to the party to the contract, was followed by the enactment of article 2 of this chapter which was not intended to supersede the lien of the contractor for it in direct terms gives the lien in favor of subcontractors, laborers and materialmen a preference over "the mechanics' lien now provided by law," and provides that when notice is given, the aggregate of such liens shall not exceed the amount then due the original contractor. Lester v. Houston, 101 N. C. 605, 609, 8 S. E. 366.

The debt contracted becomes a lien, a charge upon the land, and that land may, if need be, be sold, or in some appropriate way applied to the payment of the debt secured by and constituting the ground of the lien. It makes no difference as to the ownership of the land if the debt for such considerations was lawfully contracted, because the land is benefited by the labor so done on or about it, or by the materials furnished. The intention is that the land shall be charged by a lien with the costs of the benefits so extended to it, whether the benefits arise from labor done in building or repairing houses, in cultivating the land, building fences, ditching, felling trees, or the like, or from the erection of mills of any kind on it, or from supplying machinery, fixtures or any "material furnished" for such purpose. This is a just and reasonable interpretation of the statute. McNeal Pipe, etc., Co. v. Howland, etc., Water Co., 111 N. C. 615, 619, 16 S. E. 857.

This and the following sections under the topic of liens are remedial, and their clear purpose is to give contractors, subcontractors and laborers liens upon property as therein prescribed and provided, to secure the payment of money due for labor done or material supplied on or about the same. To that end its language, phraseology, and scope are broad and comprehensive. There are few, if any, express exceptive provisions in it, and, in the absence of them, exceptions and limitations affecting such liens can not be allowed unless by necessary implication. The object is to give a lien on particular property deriving particular benefit in favor of classes of persons whose claims are supposed to have particular merit. Chadbourn v. Williams, 71 N. C. 444; Wooten v. Hill, 98 N. C. 48, 3 S. E. 846; Burr v. Maultsby, 99 N. C. 263, 6 S. E. 108; McNeal Pipe, etc., Co. v. Howland, etc., Co., 111 N. C. 615, 617, 16 S. E. 857.

A mechanic's lien may be defined to be a claim created by law for the purpose of securing a priority of payment of the price and value of work performed and materials furnished in erecting or repairing a building or other structure, and as such it attaches to the land as the buildings erected thereon. Van Stone v. Stillwell, etc., Mfg. Co., 142 U. S. 128, 136, 35 L. Ed. 961.

Origin of Lien.—Mechanics' liens were unknown in common law and equity jurisprudence both of England and of this county. They were clearly defined and regulated in the civil law. Where they exist in this country they are creatures of local legislation. Canal Co. v. Gordon, 6 Wall 561, 571, 18 L. Ed. 894.

Priority of the Lien.—The lien created by this section is preferred to every other lien or encumbrance, which attaches upon the property subsequent to the time at which the work was commenced, or the materials were furnished. Lookout Lumber Co. v. Mansion Hotel, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 658, 660, 14 S. E. 35.

"Mechanics'" and "Laborers'" Liens Distinguished.—When the contractor undertakes to put up a building and complete the same, the contract is indivisible and his "mechanic's lien" embraces the entire outlay, whether in labor or material, being for "work done on the premises," i. e., for betterments on it. The "laborer's lien" is solely for labor performed. The mechanic's lien is broader and includes the "work done," i. e., the "building built" or superstructure placed on the premises. Broyhill v. Gaither, 119 N. C. 443, 445, 26 S. E. 31.

Contractor Need Not Himself Perform the Labor.—The constitutional provision for giving to mechanics and laborers liens for their work, and the statutes enacted in pursuance thereof, and also giving liens for materials furnished, extend to and embrace contractors, who do not themselves perform the labor or furnish the materials used, but procure it to be done through the agency of others. Lester v. Houston, 101 N. C. 605, 8 S. E. 366.

Mere Knowledge Not Sufficient.—"Mere knowledge that work is being done or materials furnished on one's property does not enable the person furnishing the labor or materials to obtain a lien, since there is no privity between the owner and the person furnishing the labor or materials." 3 N. C. Law Rev. 65.

Property Subject to the Lien Must Be Sold First.—The property to which the lien attaches is specially devoted to the satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim, and hence it must be sold before other property may be resorted to. McNeal Pipe, etc., Co. v. Howland, etc., Water Co., 111 N. C. 615, 621, 16 S. E. 857.

When Itemized Statement Unnecessary.—Where a materialman's lien under this section, is for a complete contract for a gross sum, it is not necessary that the statement be itemized as required in the case of divisible contracts for goods or labor. King v. Elliott, 197 N. C. 93, 147 S. E. 701.

Sufficiency of Itemized Statement.—Where the claimant has attached and made a part of his lien an itemized statement of his account for labor and material which he has furnished the owner of the building upon which he claims his lien under this section, showing on several specific dates "money advanced for payroll," "furnace contract, etc., each in stated amounts, it is held a sufficient itemization of his claims as required by the statute. King v. Elliott, 197 N. C. 93, 147 S. E. 701.

Statement Presumed Correct.—Where a lien filed under the provisions of this section gives the date to each item of labor or material furnished in relation to the building upon which the lien is sought, it will be presumed, nothing else appearing, that the dates given in the statement are correct. King v. Elliott, 197 N. C. 93, 147 S. E. 701.

Affidavit.—An affidavit to a lien filed under this section that the "foregoing statement of account showing the goods sold, delivered, installed, and work done," etc., for a "furnace contract"; Held, sufficient to show a complete contract for the furnace at the price itemized in the statement. King v. Elliott, 197 N. C. 93, 147 S. E. 701.

Priority of the Lien.—The lien for labor and material furnished to the owner of a building under the provisions of this section and notice filed as required by § 2469, and action for its enforcement brought as required by § 2470, where furnished under an entire or complete contract for the various items as a whole, relates back to the time of the first delivery and work done under the contract, and is superior to a mortgage lien subsequently given and properly recorded. King v. Elliott, 197 N. C. 93, 147 S. E. 701.

Finding that Contract Entire.—Where it has been agreed by the parties that the trial judge find the facts upon the trial of the question of the sufficiency of a lien filed for material and labor furnished for a building his finding that the contract was "to do certain work and furnish certain materials for a stated amount" under the evidence in the case is interpreted to mean that the contract referred to was entire. King v. Elliott, 197 N. C. 93, 147 S. E. 701.

Cited in Atlas Supply Co. v. McCurry, 199 N. C. 799, 156 S. E. 91.

II. MATERIALS AND SERVICES CONTRACTED.

Meaning of "Materials Furnished."—The lien arises in favor of and to secure the payment of "any and all debts contracted for work done on the same or materials furnished." By the term "materials furnished," is meant something furnished to be appropriated, used and pertinently applied on the land, devoted to some purpose no matter what, so that the purpose be lawful. The purpose is to secure the debt contracted for materials furnished on or about or connected with the land in connection with the purpose to which it is devoted in whole or in part. McNeal Pipe, etc., Co. v. Howland, etc., Water Co., 111 N. C. 615, 619, 16 S. E. 857.

Plans and specifications of the architect are not "material" within the meaning of this section. Stephens v. Hicks, 156 N. C. 239, 72 S. E. 313.

No Lien upon the Materials as Distinct from the Building.—Several of the states have lien laws very similar in phraseology to this section, and the construction put upon them has not been uniform. In some of them it has been held that there is a lien on the building, etc., for materials furnished for the purpose or with the understanding that they were to be used in the erection or repairing of a building, whether so used or not; in others, that the materialman had a lien for the materials furnished, with the understanding that they were to be used in the construction of a building, although they were not used for such a purpose; and in others, with lien laws more resembling our own, that no lien can be acquired upon materials furnished for a building, etc., as distinct from the building, but only upon the building, etc., in the construction or repairing of which they are used. The latter is the proper construction of this section. Lanier v. Bell, 81 N. C. 337, 338.

But in the case of construction of a municipal building, in order for the subcontractor or materialman to have a claim against the bond of the contractor, it is not necessary that the materials furnished should have been actually used in such building; it is sufficient if they were contracted for that purpose. See Annotations to sec. 2445.

Under this section the "material furnished," must be such material as enters into and becomes a part of the property and adds to its value. Pocahontas Coal Co. v. Henderson Elect. Light, etc., Co., 118 N. C. 232, 235, 24 S. E. 22.

Service or Materials Must Have Bettered the Property.—This section is construed in Tedder v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 124 N. C. 342, 32 S. E. 714, as meaning that the "Legislature has provided a lien only when the service or labor is for the betterment of property on which it is bestowed, leaving the laborer in all other cases to secure himself as at common law"—i. e., by retaining in his possession same. Glazener v. Gloucester Lumber Co., 167 N. C. 676, any property on which he makes repairs until paid for the 679, 83 S. E. 696.

Meaning of Term "Contracted."—The lien is given for the amount due upon debts contracted. But in this connection it is permissible to give the term "contracted" the larger meaning—agreed to be paid—thereby giving a highly remedial statute an operation commensurate with its purpose. Ball v. Paquin, 140 N. C. 83, 95, 52 S. E. 410.

III. PERSONS ENTITLED TO LIEN.

Lien to "Laborers and Mechanics," Excusive.—In Whitaker v. Smith, 81 N. C. 340, it was held that this section gave a lien to "Mechanics and Laborers" exclusively, and that an "overseer" was not a laborer, and reference made to 8 Pa. St. 168, where it is held that an engineer is not a laborer. Tommey v. Spartanburg, etc., R. Co., 7 Fed. 429, 433.

Whatever may be the law, as declared in other jurisdictions, it is the settled principal in this State, that a mechanic or laborer, within the meaning of the lien laws, is one who performs manual labor—one regularly employed at some hard work, or one who does work that requires little skill, as distinguished from an artisan. Whitaker v. Smith, 81 N. C. 340; Stephens v. Hicks, 156 N. C. 239, 240, 72 S. E. 313.

The provision of the Constitution requiring the General Assembly to provide liens for mechanics and laborers, and the acts passed to carry it into effect, were intended to give protection to that class of persons who were totally dependent upon their manual toil for subsistence. The law was designed exclusively for mechanics and laborers. Whitaker v. Smith, 81 N. C. 340, 341. See Lester v. Houston, 101 N. C. 605, 8 S. E. 366, where it is held that the contractor or materialmen need not himself furnish the labor or the materials.

An overseer is not a mechanic or laborer under the lien law, and is not entitled to a lien on the building and premises, where his work is done or labor performed, for the price or value of his services. The case of Cook v. Ross, 117 N. C. 193, is also to the same effect. There it was held that one who, under a contract, assists the owner of a mill in purchasing machinery and superintends the installation of the same and the repairing of the mill, so as to put it in proper condition for the manufacture of yarns, was in no view justified by our statute, a mechanic or laborer. Stephens v. Hicks, 156 N. C. 239, 241, 72 S. E. 313.

Architect Not a Laborer or Mechanic.—An architect who furnishes plans and specifications for a building is not a mechanic or laborer within the meaning of this article and he has no lien thereon for the same. Stephens v. Hicks, 156 N. C. 239, 72 S. E. 313.

IV. PROPERTY COVERED.

Any Real Property.—The phraseology of this section and the purpose of it are comprehensive. The lien prescribed attaches, in the case provided for, to any real property, whether it be denominated "a lot or farm," or a storehouse site, a mill site, a water reservoir site, or the like. McNeal Pipe, etc., Co. v. Howland, etc., Water Co., 111 N. C. 615, 619, 16 S. E. 857.

House and Lot.—Where a house is built by a contractor for the owner upon an undivided tract of 80 acres in the country, the mechanic's lien attaches to the whole tract, especially where it appears that the house alone, apart from the tract of land, would be of comparatively little value. The fact that a house and improvements, built by a contractor upon a tract of 80 acres belonging to the owner, are enclosed by a fence including about three acres is not a segregation or division of the house from the tract so as to confine the mechanic's lien to the enclosure. In such case, though the lien is upon the whole tract, it should be divided, if practicable and desired by the defendant, in making the sale, and the parts sold in such order as he may elect, so that, if possible, the lien may be discharged without exhausting the entire tract. Broyhill v. Gaither, 119 N. C. 443, 26 S. E. 31.

V. APPLICATION TO PUBLIC CONSTRUCTIONS.

Not Applicable to Public Buildings, etc.—The lien laws were not intended to be so construed as to embarrass property devoted, by the very terms of the contract, to a public purpose, and to be used by the sovereign State of any public or quasi public corporation in the exercise of its delegated sovereign powers. McNeal Pipe, etc., Co. v. Howland, etc., Water Co., 111 N. C. 615, 627, 16 S. E. 857.

The rights of laborers and materialmen to acquire liens against the property of the owner for work done upon, and material furnished to the contractor in the erection of his building, etc., do not rest by common law but strictly by statute, and the provisions of the statute must be followed for its enforcement; and where the property is not subject to this lien, such as public buildings, etc., no duty or obligation is imposed upon the owner in respect to such claimants. Noland Co. v. Board, 190 N. C. 250, 129 S. E. 577.

Same—Courthouse.—A courthouse can not be made subject to any lien for labor materials. Snow v. Board, 112 N. C. 335, 17 S. E. 176; Pratt Lumber Co. v. Gill Co., 278 Fed. 783, 787.

Same—Schools.—A building used for graded school purposes is a public building upon which no lien can be acquired, except with legislative sanction. Gastonia v. McEntie-Peterson, etc., Co., 131 N. C. 363, 42 S. E. 858; Snow v. Board, 112 N. C. 335, 17 S. E. 176; Morgantown Hardware Co. v. Morgantown Graded Schools, 151 N. C. 507, 66 S. E. 583.

Same—Highways.—One contracting to construct a highway has, under this section, no lien on the highway; nor have the subcontractors, laborers or materialmen. Pratt Lumber Co. v. Gill Co., 278 Fed. 783.

Same—Reason of the Rule.—The reason upon which the courts hold that the statutory lien given contractors, subcontractors, materialmen, and laborers upon buildings or other improvements upon real property for work, material, and labor does not extend or apply to public buildings is that such buildings, being held for public governmental purposes, can not be sold under execution or other final process, and applies with peculiar force to materials furnished or labor performed in the construction or repair of public highways. Pratt Lumber Co. v. Gill Co., 278 Fed. 783, 788.

VI. APPLICATION TO RAILROADS.

Not Applicable to Railroads.—This section does not apply to railroads. Tommey v. Spartanburg, etc., R. Co., 7 Fed. 429, 433. This conclusion is supported by the intimation of the Supreme Court in Whitaker v. Smith, 81 N. C. 340. Id. But see Dunavant v. Caldwell, etc., R. Co., 122 N. C. 999, 29 S. E. 837, where it was held that where a contractor, who does work or furnishes materials for the construction of a railroad, is entitled to file a lien on the property of the company. See also sec. 2444 as to the remedy of a laborer for a railroad contractor.

The Supreme Court of Iowa in Nelson v. R. R. Co. * * * construing a statute which resembles this section held that a railway was not a building within the meaning of their mechanic's lien law. Tommey v. Spartanburg, etc., R. Co., 7 Fed. 429, 433.

VII. WAIVER OF LIEN, HOMESTEAD, AND MISCELLANEOUS MATTERS.

Waiver of the Lien.—In an action brought to subject a vessel to a lien for materials furnished in its construction, it was found that, at or before the filing of the notice of lien, the plaintiff assented to a sale which was made to third parties and agreed to accept three notes secured by a second mortgage on the vessel as security, it was held that such agreement was a waiver of the lien, and the lienor was estopped to enforce his demand against the purchaser. Kornegay v. Styron, 105 N. C. 14, 11 S. E. 153.

As to whether one furnishing coal to a corporation used in the manufacture of its cotton products can claim his lien on the facts of this case, under the provisions of this section is a quere. But his failure to enforce his asserted lien under the provisions of sec. 2474, deprives him of whatever right thereto he may have had. Norfleet v. Tarboro Cotton Factory, 172 N. C. 833, 89 S. E. 785.

The homestead right is not affected by a lien for materials furnished and used in improvements upon land covered by homestead, and a statute which gives such lien is unconstitutional. Cumming v. Bloodworth, 87 N. C. 83. See also, Broyhill v. Gaither, 119 N. C. 443, 26 S. E. 31.

Priority of Homestead over Material Lien.—The "material lien" is by virtue of the statute only, and does not come under the constitutional priority given to the "mechanic's lien for work done on the premises" over the homestead exemption. Cumming v. Bloodworth, 87 N. C. 83; Broyhill v. Gaither, 119 N. C. 443, 445, 26 S. E. 31.

Contractor Agent of Owner—Rights of Materialman.—Where one has furnished the owner at the request of the contractor, materials to be used in his building, and by the terms of the written contract, the contractor is the agent of the owner for that purpose, the one so furnishing the material may acquire and enforce his lien upon the building, under the provisions of this section and secs. 2469, 2470. North Carolina Lumber Co. v. Spear Motor Co., 192 N. C. 377, 135 S. E. 115.

Supervision by an architect of work done upon a building is not the character of work which falls within the intent of this section. Stephens v. Hicks, 156 N. C. 239, 72 S. E. 313.

Work Done, Materials Furnished under the Same Contract.—Where the work done on a house and furnishing the material were all in the same contract, which was entire and indivisible, the contractor is entitled to a lien for the whole amount. Isler v. Dixon, 140 N. C. 529, 53 S. E. 348.

Claim of Contractor to Proceeds of Insurance Policy.—The holder of a mechanic's lien has no claim on the proceeds of insurance policies taken out by the owner and payable to himself or to a mortgagee. Healey Ice Mach. Co. v. Green, 181 Fed. 890.

§ 2434. Buildings on married woman's land.—The preceding section applies to the property of a married woman when it appears that such building was built or repaired on her land with her consent or procurement. In such case she shall be deemed to have contracted for such improvements. (Rev., s. 2016; Code, s. 1781; 1868-70, c. 206; 1901, c. 617.)

Editor's Note.—Formerly, a married woman could not be bound by any contract affecting her real or personal estate, unless it was executed in the manner prescribed by law. The requirements for such a contract, with certain exceptions, were the written consent of the husband and privy examination of the wife. If these formalites were lacking, the contract, as affecting her estate, was invalid. Flaum v. Wallace Bros. (1889), 103 N. C. 296, 9 S. E. 567; Farthing v. Shields (1890), 106 N. C. 289, 10 S. E. 998; Loan Ass'n v. Black (1896), 119 N. C. 323, 24 S. E. 481; Ball v. Paquin (1905), 140 N. C. 83, 52 S. E. 410. Consequently there was no valid debt upon which a lien could be based. The court in numerous cases emphasized the language of the lien statute, which provides for a "lien for the payment of all debts contracted for work done or materials furnished." Section 2433. Since the married woman was incapable of contracting in such cases, there could be no debt to support a lien. In Farthing v. Shields, 106 N. C. 289, 10 S. E. 998, the court held that the power of a married woman to charge her real estate is measured by her power to dispose of the same; hence, if she had expressly charged the debt on her lands with the written assent of her husband, it would be of no avail without her privy examination. A thorough discussion of this may be found in Ball v. Paquin, 140 N. C. 83, 52 S. E. 410, and the cases there cited by Judge Connor.

The law was changed, and these cases were overruled, by the adoption of this section. The section was held to be constitutional in Finger v. Hunter, 130 N. C. 529, 41 S. E. 890, thus making it possible to charge a married woman's property with a lien for labor or materials furnished for improvements to her real estate without any of the formalities previously required. The law was further changed by the Martin Act (sec. 2507) in 1911, which conferred upon married women a complete capacity to contract with third persons. Since then, she is as free to deal with third persons for improvements to her land, as if she were unmarried. Further, it is no longer necessary for a husband to join with his wife in contracting for such improvements. The fact that the owner of land is a married woman does not make any difference, when she is dealing with third parties, as far as the imposition of mechanics' or materialmen's liens is concerned.

But in order for a husband to subject the separate property of his wife to a lien for improvements placed thereon by him, there must be a contract executed according to the formalities of sec. 2515. While the Martin Act and this section abrogated the above formalities in the cases when a married woman contracts with persons other than her husband, they did not change the law with respect to the requirements of section 2515, in the case where a married woman contracts with her husband for improvements to her separate property, and the husband seeks a lien for himself.

From the reasoning of Kearney v. Vann, 154 N. C. 311, 70 S. E. 747, it would seem to follow that the husband might obtain a lien on his wife's land in the situation where the wife has contracted with a third party for the improvement of her land, and such third party has secured materials or labor from the husband. The husband, as a subcontractor, would be in a better position than the husband, as a principal contractor. Although no case involving these identical facts has been found, it would seem that section 2515 applies only to contracts entered into directly between husband and wife, and that the husband, as a subcontractor, is entitled to a lien under the provisions of the lien statutes.

Conversely where the husband contracts with the wife, but not in compliance with the requirements of section 2515, as a result of which he acquires no lien upon the wife's property, the question arises whether a subcontractor or materialman, who furnishes labor or material to the husband as contractor, has a lien upon the wife's property. Looking at the statutes and the cases in North Carolina, the conclusion in answer to this question seems to be that section 2515 has nothing to do with the case where a third party is seeking to impose a lien on the wife's land, but embraces only contracts between husband and wife. Payne, etc., Bros. v. Flack, 152 N. C. 600, 68 S. E. 16; Rose v. Davis, 188 N. C. 355, 124 S. E. 576; C. S. sections 2433, 2434. As already discussed, no formal contract is necessary between a land owner and contractor, to make improvements on the land, in order that a subcontractor may get a lien. The essential thing is that the land owner and contractor be in a principal-agent relation.

The reason why the subcontractor is put in a better position than the husband, in the above instance, is due to the fact that the wife may consent or procure improvements on her property through her husband as her agent with or without a formal contract. From article in 3 N. C. L. Rev. 65.

Prior to the enactment of this section the court in Thompson v. Taylor, 110 N. C. 70, 14 S. E. 513, said that the lien, given by the Constitution and statute for work and labor done and material furnished, was predicted upon a valid contract, and, as a married woman had no capacity to make such a contract, her property could not be subjected to such lien. Ball v. Paquin, 140 N. C. 83, 95, 52 S. E. 410.

Presumption of Gift between Husband and Wife.—The construction that the husband can acquire a lien upon his wife's property under this section is not in accordance with the relationship existing between husband and wife, as recognized by law, and would convert every gift of money used in improving her property into a liability. The presumption of law arising from the relationship of the parties is that improvements placed on the land of the wife by the husband are a gift. Arrington v. Arrington, 114 N. C. 116, 119, 19 S. E. 278. This view is further strengthened by the language, "she shall be deemed to have contracted for such improvements." The Legislature inserted this language because of the decisions of the court, "that there must be a debt due from the owner of the property before there can be a lien." Baker v. Robbins, 119 N. C. 289, 25 S. E. 876; Weathers v. Borders, 124 N. C. 610, 32 S. E. 881, and in order to sustain the position of the plaintiff it must be held, not only that the husband has a lien, but that the relation of creditor and debtor exists between him and his wife. Kearney v. Vann, 154 N. C. 311, 315, 70 S. E. 747.

Not Applicable to Lien Filed by Husband.—This section giving a lien on the property of a married woman for work done on her land, does not include a lien on the wife's land filed by her husband for work done, etc.; and that the husband having no lien, his heirs can acquire none after his death. Kearney v. Vann, 154 N. C. 311, 70 S. E. 747.

Implied Contract Arising by Estoppel.—In a case of a married woman standing silent when improvements are being placed upon her house, receiving the benefit, and then defying the contractor because she had made no valid express contract; this section now makes her property subject to lien, upon the implied contract arising upon her conduct, as it would in regard to any one else under the same circumstances. Payne, etc., Bros. v. Flack, 152 N. C. 600, 601, 68 S. E. 16.

Payment by W to H, before Notice from Subcontractor.—In an action to enforce a lien for material furnished for the house of feme covert, being repaired on her land with her assent, it may be shown in defense that she had contracted with her husband for the repairs; and when there is evidence tending to show that plaintiff furnished the husband with the materials, the plaintiff is a subcontractor, and her payments to the husband in full before notice given by the materialmen frees her from liability to them, under section 2438. Payne, etc., Bros. v. Flack, 152 N. C. 600, 68 S. E. 16.

Lien against Tenants by Entireties.—Under the decisions of the Supreme Court of this State which establish a rule of property controlling in the federal courts in that state, a conveyance of land to a husband and wife vests them with an estate by entireties, which cannot be aliened, burdened, or otherwise affected except by their joint action, and a mechanic's lien cannot be acquired thereon through a contract with the husband alone. Healey Ice Mach. Co. v. Green, 181 Fed. 890.

Where the wife and her husband held the title to lands by entireties and they contract for materials used in a building thereon, those furnishing the material may acquire a lien on the property by complying with the provisions of this chapter. Finch v. Cecil, 170 N. C. 72, 86 S. E. 992.

More than Mere Knowledge by Wife Is Necessary As to Husband.—Under this section by which the lands of a wife become subject to a mechanic's lien only for improvements made with her "consent or procurement," something more than mere knowledge that her husband is making the improvement is required. Healey Ice Mach. Co. v. Green, 181 Fed. 890.

No Express Contract Necessary.—This section does not even require an express contract by her, but provides that when she "consents or procures" the building to be erected or material furnished she shall be deemed to have contracted for such improvement, and her property thereupon becomes subject to liens if filed. Finch v. Cecil, 170 N. C. 72, 73, 86 S. E. 992.

§ 2435. On personal property repaired.—Any mechanic or artisan who makes, alters or repairs any article of personal property at the request of the owner or legal possessor of such property has a lien on such property so made, altered or repaired for his just and reasonable charge for his work done and material furnished, and may hold and retain possession of the same until such just and reasonable charges are paid; and if not paid for within thirty days, if it does not exceed fifty dollars, or within ninety days if over fifty dollars, after the work was done, such mechanic or artisan may proceed to sell the property so made, altered or repaired at public auction, by giving two weeks public notice of such sale by advertising in some newspaper in the county in which the work may have been done, or if there is no such newspaper, then by posting up notice of such sale in three of the most public places in the county, town or city in which the work was done, and the proceeds of the said sale shall be applied first to the discharge of the said lien and the expenses and costs of keeping and selling such property, and the remainder, if any, shall be paid over to the owner thereof. (Rev., s. 2017; Code, s. 1783; 1869-70, c. 206, s. 3.)

In General.—This section, is within the police power of the State and in addition to the common-law lien given artisans on personal property repaired by them, while in their possession, for the reasonable value of the repairs, provides for its enforcement by foreclosure in accordance with its stated terms. Johnson v. Yates, 183 N. C. 24, 110 S. E. 603.

To Whom Section Applies.—The requirement of this section, that the lien in favor of the artisan making repairs on personal property shall attach under the provisions of the statute, only where made at the instance of the owner "or the legal possessor of the property," includes within its terms all persons whose authorized possession is of such character as to make reasonable repairs necessary to the proper use of the property, and which were evidently in the contemplation of the parties. Johnson v. Yates, 183 N. C. 24, 110 S. E. 603.

Same—Vendee of Car with Mortgage to Vendor.—Where the vendor of an automobile takes a purchase-money mortgage and transfers the possession to the vendee for an indefinite period, it is with the implied authority in the vendee that he may use the machine and keep it in such reasonable and just repair as the use will require; and where, at his instance, a mechanic has repaired the same, his reasonable charge for such repairs creates a lien on the automobile, retained in his possession, superior to that of the vendor's mortgage. Johnson v. Yates, 183 N. C. 24, 110 S. E. 630.

Retention of Possession Essential—At Common Law.—At common law where a laborer repaired a wagon and surrendered it to the owner before payment, the laborer has no lien. Possession is absolutely necessary to the existence of the lien. McDougall v. Crapon, 95 N. C. 292. Tedder v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 124 N. C. 342, 32 S. E. 714; McDougall v. Crapon, 95 N. C. 292.

Same—Under this Section.—The lien on personal property given by this section applies when possession is retained by the mechanic. Glazener v. Gloucester Lumber Co., 167 N. C. 676, 83 S. E. 696. If the mechanic or artisan surrenders possession of the property, he loses his lien. Tedder v. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., 124 N. C. 342, 344, 32 S. E. 714; Block v. Dowd, 120 N. C. 402, 27 S. E. 129; McDougall v. Crapon, 95 N. C. 292. Glazener v. Gloucester Lumber Co., 167 N. C. 676, 678, 83 S. E. 696.

Thus where a wagon was repaired by a laborer, who surrendered it to the owner before payment was made, it was held that the laborer had no lien on the wagon, either at common law or under the statute for his work done and materials furnished in making the repairs. McDougall v. Crapon, 95 N. C. 292.

The mechanic or artisan may exercise his common law right to retain the property, and this section, recognizing the right, authorizes him to advertise and sell and pay himself, after the specified period of possession. It is a necessary consequence that the lien is lost when possession is given up to the owner, as well as the statutory method of enforcing it, since these rights are incident to and dependent on possession, both at common law and under the provisions of this section. "The pledgee," in the words of a recent author, "certainly loses the benefit of his security, whenever, by a complete out and out delivering back to the pledgor, he voluntarily places the property beyond his own reach." Schou. Pers. Prop., 515; McDougall v. Crapon, 95 N. C. 292, 296.

Where a mechanic repairs certain personal property at the request of the lessee, and without request or knowledge on the part of the owner, and the mechanic never has possession of the property, but possession is returned to the owner by the lessee upon the termination of the lease, the mechanic may not hold the owner liable for the reasonable value of the repairs, this section being applicable only where the mechanic retains possession of the property. Broadfoot Iron Works v. Bugg, 208 N. C. 284, 180 S. E. 62.

Where the purchaser of an automobile gives the seller a title-retaining contract to secure the balance of the purchase price, and thereafter gives a second lien on the car to another, and later the second lienor takes possession from the purchaser without legal process and has the car repaired, the second lienor is not the owner or legal possessor of the car within the intent and meaning of this section, and the one making the repairs obtains no lien therefor under the statute and is not entitled to possession as against the first lienor. Willis v. Taylor, 201 N. C. 467, 160 S. E. 487.

Possession of Automobile Obtained from Mechanic by Fraudulent Representations.—Under the common law and the provisions of this section, one who repairs personal property loses his lien thereon by voluntarily surrendering possession to the owner, but where an automobile has been repaired and the artisan or mechanic is induced to part with possession upon false and fraudulent representations made by the owner that his check for the payment of the repairs was good and that he had sufficient funds in the bank for its payment, and the mechanic relies thereon and surrenders possession of the car, he does not do so voluntarily and unconditionally within the intent and meaning of the statute, and the mechanic does not lose his lien for the value of the repairs done by him. Reich v. Triplett, 199 N. C. 678, 155 S. E. 573.

Filing Notice Not Required.—This section is a self-executing enactment, conferring upon the mechanic artisan the means of making his debt out of the property by his own act, in selling after thirty days' retention without the intervention of judicial proceeding, either in the superior court or that of a justice of the peace; and section 2470, which, for the preservation of the lien, requires notice of it to be filed within six months after completing the labor, cannot have been intended for a case in which as under this section a resort to any court is unnecessary, and a complete and efficient measure of relief is committed to, and may be obtained by, the party's own act. McDougall v. Crapon, 95 N. C. 292, 295.

The enactments as to filing notice must have been intended for cases where possession is not in the mechanic or artisan, and where an action is necessary for his relief. Id.

Lien on Timber Manufactured into Lumber, etc.—Under this section, one who cuts timber and manufactures it into lumber for a corporation before a receiver is appointed therefor has the right to retain the possession of such lumber until his lien is discharged by payment. Huntsman Bros. & Co. v. Linville River Lumber Co., 122 N. C. 583, 29 S. E. 838. See next section.

One who enters into a contract to cut, haul and raft logs after the standing timber upon lands has been felled for the purpose, has, while the logs are in his possession, a lien thereon for the services thus performed, under the provisions of this section, the timber after its severance from the land being regarded as personalty. Thomas v. Merrill, 169 N. C. 623, 86 S. E. 593. See next section.

Sale Restrained Where Mechanic's Claim Controverted.—Where one, who has the right under this section of the Code to retain possession of and to sell personal property for the purpose of defraying his charges, is made a party to an action in the nature of a creditor's bill against the owner in which the nature and amount of claimant's debt are in dispute, he will be restrained from making a sale of the property until such contentions are settled. Huntsman Bros. & Co. v. Linville River Lumber Co., 122 N. C. 583, 29 S. E. 838.

Priority of Lien.—The lien created by this section is superior to a vendor's lien, or to a mortgage lien. Johnson v. Yates, 183 N. C. 24, 110 S. E. 603.

A mechanic's lien is given preference under this section to a mortgage lien though the latter be prior in point of time. Johnson v. Yates, 183 N. C. 24, 110 S. E. 603. For a note upon this case, see 1 N. C. Law Rev. 127 where the reasons of holding are discussed.

This conclusion arrived at by the court is analogous to liens in admiralty where every hypothecation of the vessel which is effected to preserve it from deterioration or loss is held to be superior to other liens prior in point of time, on the theory that except for such preservation the prior lien would be worthless. Ed. Note.

§ 2436. Laborer's lien on lumber and its products.—Every person doing the work of logging, or of cutting, or sawing logs into lumber, getting out wood pulp, acid wood or tan bark, has a lien upon the said logs or lumber for the amount of wages due them, and the said lien shall have priority over all other claims or liens upon said lumber, except as against a purchaser for full value and without notice thereof: Provided, any such laborer whose wages for thirty or less number of days performed are due and unpaid shall file notice of such claim before the nearest justice of the peace in the county in which said work has been done, stating the number of days of labor performed, the price per day, and the place where the lumber is situate, and the person for whom said labor was performed, which said statement shall be signed by the said laborer or his attorney, and the said laborer shall also give to the owner thereof, within five days after the lien has been filed with the justice of the peace, as aforesaid, a copy of said notice as filed with the said justice of the peace. If the owner cannot be located, then notice shall be given by attaching said notice on the logs or lumber, wood pulp, acid wood or tan bark upon which the labor sued for was performed, and any person buying said lumber or logs, wood pulp, acid wood or tan bark after such notice has been filed with the nearest justice of the peace, shall be deemed to have bought the same with notice thereof, but no action shall be maintained against the owner of said logs or lumber, wood pulp, acid wood or tan bark or the purchaser thereof under the provisions of this section unless same is commenced within thirty days after notice is filed with the justice of the peace by such laborer, as above provided. (1913, c. 150, s. 6; 1929, c. 69.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added the word "logging" in the second line and "logs" in the third line of this section.

Under the provision of this section, prior to the amendment of 1929, persons who cut and log timber to a mill under a contract to do so at a fixed price are not entitled to a lien for such services, this interpretation of this section being strengthened by the fact that the amendment of 1929 included within the meaning of the statute those who were engaged in logging to the mill. Graves v. Dockery, 200 N. C. 317, 156 S. E. 506.

Work Done Directly by Claimant and in Betterment of Property.—Under this section the work must have been done directly by the claimant in betterment of the property upon which the lien is alleged to rest, thus one who aided in making the lumber by taking the boards from the saw as they were cut, is entitled to a lien, but one who is employed in the blacksmith shop as repairer of cars used as part of the plant, and one, who worked on the car track and repaired the bridges are not so entitled. Thomas v. Merrill, 169 N. C. 623, 627, 86 S. E. 593.

Compliance with Statutory Requirements Necessary. — In an action to establish a laborers lien upon manufactured lumber, under the provisions of this section, the plaintiff must show compliance with the various statutory requisites; and a charge as to notice that the jury should return a verdict for the plaintiff should they find that he attached "the notice to the lumber" on the defendant's yard, is deficient and erroneous in leaving out the question as to whether the defendant had been served with a copy of the claim within five days after filing the lien with the justice of the peace, or that he could not be found. Bryson v. Gennett Lumber Co., 171 N. C. 700, 89 S. E. 26.

Right of Employee of Contractor against the Owner. — Where a laborer in the manufacture of lumber employs another laborer to assist him in his work, and the latter seeks to enforce the lien given by this section, for the value of the work he has done, it must be made to appear that the owner owed his own contractor, for the lien claimed can only be enforced to that extent, the object of the statute being to protect the laborer against any transfer of the lumber by the owner, who while indebted to his contractor, and insolvent, might otherwise pass the title to a bona fide purchaser for value, without notice of the lien. Bryson v. Gennett Lumber Co., 171 N. C. 700, 89 S. E. 26.

Repairing Railroad Track or Equipment. — Under contract, one of the defendants agreed to operate a large lumber plant, including a railroad equipment for handling the logs owned by the other defendant, and assumed the payment of all employees, several of whom filed liens against logs and lumber sawed, in a justice's court, for the nonpayment of wages. It was held that work done in repairing the track, equipment, etc., was not in contemplation of this section, so as to give those preforming these services a lien on the logs and lumber used or manufactured by the plant; nor was a lien upon the plant held, for the material had not been used in its construction as betterments. Glazener v. Gloucester Lumber Co., 167 N. C. 676, 83 S. E. 696.

Priority of Lien.—The lien given to the person "doing the work of cutting or sawing logs into lumber," etc., by this section is superior to the lien given to the contractor therefor, or any other person. Glazener v. Gloucester Lumber Co., 167 N. C. 676, 83 S. E. 696.

§ 2436(a). Lien for processing certain goods. —All persons, firms, partnerships and corporations engaged in the business of finishing, bleaching, mercerizing, manufacturing, dyeing, weighing and printing or otherwise processing cotton, wool, silk, artificial silk or goods of which cotton, wool, silk, artificial silk forms a component part, shall be entitled to a lien upon the property and goods of others, which may come into their possession for work, labor, and materials furnished in any of said processing and said lien shall extend to any unpaid balance on account for work, labor and materials furnished in the course of any of said processing in respect to any of said goods of the same owner whereof the lienor's possession is terminated. The word "owner," as used in this and the following section shall include a factor, consignee or other agent intrusted with the possession of the goods held under said lien or the bill of lading consigning the same to him with authority to sell the same, to deliver to said factor, agent or consignee to the lienor for the purposes processed. (1931, c. 48, s. 1.)

§ 2436(b). Sale of goods at public auction. — If any part of the amount for which goods are held under said lien remains unpaid for a period of sixty days after the earliest item of said amount became due and payable the lienor may sell such goods at public auction first publishing a notice of the time and place of said sale once in each of two successive weeks in a newspaper published in the town, if any, otherwise in the county, in which the said goods are situated and at the court house door, the last publication not to be less than five days prior to the sale, and also giving five days' notice of said sale by posting in five or more public places in said county, one whereof shall be in the town or city ward in which said goods are situated, and, if the residence or past address of owner of said goods is known or can be established, sending by registered mail a copy of said notice to said owner at said address at least five days before the date of sale: Now, provided, that if said goods are readily divisible no more therefor shall be so sold than is necessary to discharge the underlying indebtedness to cover the expenses of the sale. The proceeds of sale shall be applied to payment of said indebtedness and said expenses, and the balance, if any, shall be paid to the owner or person entitled thereto. The remedy herein provided to enforce said lien shall be in addition to any other provided by law. (1931, c. 48, s. 2.)

Art. 2. Subcontractors', etc., Liens and Rights against Owners

§ 2437. Lien given subcontractors, etc., on real estate.—All subcontractors and laborers who are employed to furnish or who do furnish labor or material for the building, repairing or altering any house or other improvement on real estate, have a lien on said house and real estate for the amount of such labor done or material furnished, which lien shall be preferred to the mechanics' lien now provided by law, when notice thereof shall be given as hereinafter provided, which may be enforced as other liens in this chapter, except where it is otherwise provided; but the sum total of all the liens due subcontractors and material men shall not exceed the amount due the original contractor at the time of notice given. (Rev., s. 2019; Code, ss. 1801, 1803; 1880, c. 44, ss. 1, 3.)

In General.—Soon after the enactment of section 2433 et seq., it was held by the Supreme Court that no right to a lien was conferred by the statute unless there was a contract, express or implied, with the owner, creating the relation of creditor and debtor (Wilkie v. Bray, 71 N. C. 205), and as a result, subcontractors were excluded from its benefits, because they had no express contract with the owner, and none could be implied from the use of the materials as they were furnished to the contractor, and under the express contract between him and the owner. This led to the enactment of this and the following sections relative to the subcontractor's lien. Morganton Mfg. etc., Co. v. Andrews, 165 N. C. 285, 292, 81 S. E. 418.

The injustice of permitting the labor and material of one man to be used to enhance the value of the property of another without compensation, and also that the owner ought not to be required to pay the contractor and then have to pay for labor and material when he had not agreed to do so, led to the enactment of this and the following sections in an effort to adjust the rights of the parties along lines that would be just to both. Charlotte Pipe, etc., Co. v. Southern Aluminum Co., 172 N. C. 704, 706, 90 S. E. 923.

Definition of Subcontractor. — Mr. Phillips in his book on Mechanics' Liens, sec. 44, describes a subcontractor: "One who has entered into a contract, express or implied, for the performance of an act with the person who has already contracted for its performance." And Mr. Kalland in his book on the same subject, sec. 3, uses language of similar import, and says: "Although the original contractor may sub-let his entire contract, and neither himself performs labor or furnishes materials in a literal sense, yet he will be entitled to a lien, for each subcontractor is an agent for the performance of a portion of the entire contract, and the act of the agent is in law the act of his principal." Lester v. Houston, 101 N. C. 605, 611, 8 S. E. 366.

Persons employed by an agent of the principal contractor to perform certain work on the premises may not under this section recover of the owner for the value of such labor merely upon a showing that they performed the work and that the owner received the benefit thereof. Price v. Asheville Gas Co., 207 N. C. 796, 178 S. E. 567.

Contractor's Lien Though Subordinated, Not Lost. — It is quite manifest that our statute gives to the contractor, under whom his employees and agents work, the lien provided in section 2433 and though subordinated to the lien of the latter under this section, and only displaced when its enforcement would be prejudicial to them, when these are paid the contractor's lien becomes absolute and unconditional. Lester v. Houston, 101 N. C. 605, 610, 8 S. E. 366.

Contractor's Lien Not Superseded.—The lien given by this section was not intended to supersede the lien of the contractor, for it in direct terms gives the lien in favor of subcontractors, laborers, and materialmen a preference, "the mechanic's lien now provided by law," and provides that when notice is given, the aggregate of such liens shall not exceed the amount then due the original contractor. The legislation is intended to extend the remedy to those who work or furnish materials from which the owner derives a benefit in the improvement of his property, even where there are no contract relations between them and the owner, and enables them to secure the payment of what is due them, indebtedness due from the debtor to the contractor. Morganton Mfg., etc., Co. v. Andrews, 165 N. C. 285, 293, 81 S. E. 418; Lester v. Houston, 101 N. C. 605, 8 S. E. 366.

Relation of Debtor and Creditor between the Owner and the Subcontractor.—It is declared in many cases that the basis for mechanics' liens is the relation of creditor and debtor between the owner and sub-contractor and materialmen, Boone v. Chatfield, 118 N. C. 916, 24 S. E. 745; Weathers v. Borders, 124 N. C. 610, 32 S. E. 881; Charlotte Pipe, etc., Co. v. Southern Aluminum Co., 172 N. C. 704, 90 S. E. 923, and that the general principle of the lien laws is that the relation of debtor and creditor must exist and that there can be no lien without a debt.

It is evident that the statute does not in express terms create this relation between these parties and that such a relation must be inferred by implication. The basis of such implication may be traced to the fact that the contractor is obliged or intended to deal with the subcontractor and materialmen in doing work and securing materials, and that the principal contractor is an agent of the owner for the purpose of creating valid debts. 3 N. C. Law Rev. 64.

Whatever may be the basis of the inference that there exists the relation of debtor and creditor between the owner and the subcontractor, it is apparent that this section does not, even by implication, create a relationship of debtor and creditor except as to the extent of liens acquired in accordance with its provisions. Morganton Hdw. Co. v. Morganton Graded Schools, 151 N. C. 507, 66 S. E. 583. Ed. Note.

No privity of contract between the owner and the subcontractor is established by this section, so as to enable the former to sue the latter for a debt; but it merely confers upon the materialman a lien upon the property, if the property is subject to lien, but not if he fails to acquire a lien by the laches of himself or of the contractor, whose negligence will be imputed to him when he fails to protect his own interests in the way prescribed by the statute. Morganton Hdw. Co. v. Morganton Graded Schools, 151 N. C. 507, 511, 66 S. E. 583.

Statute Furnishes Double Security. — The statute (this section and section 2442) furnishes a double security to those furnishing material, etc., to the contractor and who give the statutory notice to the owner in giving them a lien upon the property if enforced by suit within six months, and, also, an interest in the trust funds in the hands of the owner and due to the contractor, which funds are to be distributed pro rata among the claimants thereto entitled, the latter security not being in strictness a lien, but a right to have an accounting in an ordinary civil action and judgment for the amount due by the owner to the contractor. Charlotte Pipe, etc., Co. v. Southern Aluminum Co., 172 N. C. 704, 90 S. E. 923.

Subcontractor Substituted to the Rights of Contractor. — Where the lien arises under the provisions of this section, it does so by substituting the claimant to the rights of the contractor, enforcible, as stated, against any and all sums which may be due from the owner at the time of notice given or which are subsequently earned under the terms and stipulations of the contract. In well-considered cases it is said to amount to an assignment pro tanto of the amount due or to become due from the owner to the principal contractor, and this regardless of the state of the account between the principal contractor and the subcontractor, who may be the debtor of the claimant. Atlas Powder Co. v. Denton, 176 N. C. 426, 432, 97 S. E. 372.

Lien Enforceable though Principal Contractors' Contract Not Completed.—A subcontractor may enforce his lien for labor or materials, as prescribed by this and the following sections, against the owner of the property though the contract with the principal contractor has not been completed, or even if it has been abandoned. Lookout Lumber Co. v. Mansion Hotel, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 658, 14 S. E. 35.

Where the furnisher of material to a subcontractor has notified the owner and perfected his lien as required by this section and section 2438 and it appears by admission in the pleadings in an action to enforce the lien that the owner of the building is still indebted, to the principal contractor in a sufficient sum, this sum is applicable to the plaintiff's demand regardless of the state of accounts between the contractor and the subcontractor. Borden Brick, etc., Co. v. Pulley, 168 N. C. 371, 84 S. E. 513; Powell v. King Lumber Co., 168 N. C. 632, 84 S. E. 1032.

Time and How Subcontractors' Right Determined.—The right of one, who furnishes materials to a subcontractor, to a lien upon the building does not depend upon the state of the account between the contractor and the subcontractor, but upon the amount due the contractor by the owner at the time of the proper filing of the notice in the manner and form required. Atlas Powder Co. v. Denton, 176 N. C. 426, 97 S. E. 372.

Amount Due from Owner a Trust Fund for Subcontractor. —The amount due the contractor and subject to the claims of materialmen who have filed their statutory notice is not a debt due by the owner to the material men in the ordinary sense, but a fund held in trust for them strictly arising from the operation of the statute, in conformity with its terms; and the statute imposes no duty upon the owner when the materialmen have not filed the required notice or acquired their lien accordingly. Charlotte Pipe, etc., Co. v. Southern Aluminum Co., 172 N. C. 704, 90 S. E. 923.

Priority over Subsequent Liens.—The lien of the subcontractor, when duly filed, has precedence over all other liens attaching to the property subsequent to the time the work was commenced or the material furnished. Lookout Lumber Co. v. Mansion Hotel, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 658, 14 S. E. 35.

The principal contractor is a necessary party to an action to enforce the lien of a subcontractor, but a trustee in a conveyance subject to the lien, is not an essential party. Lookout Lumber Co. v. Mansion Hotel, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 658, 14 S. E. 35.

No Lien on Public Buildings.—Neither by the enforcement of a lien, nor by anything in the nature of an equitable proceeding, nor directly by sale under execution, was it the intent of this section to subject one of its public corporations, organized as necessary to the administration of its governmental affairs, to the privation or loss of its buildings for public school purposes. Morgantown Hdw. Co. v. Morgantown Graded Schools, 151 N. C. 507, 66 S. E. 583.

No Lien on Highway.—Under this section subcontractors and materialmen have no lien upon a highway they have constructed. Pratt Lumber Co. v. Gill Co., 278 Fed. 783.

Liability of Municipality—No Lien against It.—Though no lien can be filed against a municipality, yet it will be liable to laborers and materialmen, and, for labor done and material furnished to the extent of any balance due the contractor and unpaid at the time of the notice. Scheflow v. Pierce, 176 N. C. 91, 93, 97 S. E. 167. See section 2445.

§ 2438. Notice to owner; liability. — Any subcontractor, laborer or material man, who claims a lien as provided in the preceding section, may give notice to the owner or lessee of the real estate who makes the contract for such building or improvement at any time before the settlement with the contractor, and if the said owner or lessee refuses or neglects to retain out of the amount due the said contractor under the contract as much as is due or claimed by the subcontractor, laborer or material man may proceed to enforce his lien, and after such notice is given, no payment to the contractor shall be a credit on or discharge of the lien herein provided. (Rev., s. 2020; Code, s. 1802; 1880, c. 44, s. 2.)

Notice to Be Given before Settlement with Contractor.— It is necessary, to enforce a lien on a building for materials furnished the contractor, that he file with the owner an itemized statement of the amounts due for materials, or that the materialman give notice to the owner of the amount due him before the owner settled with the contractor, and then only to the extent of the amount then due. Orinoco Supply Co. v. Masonic, etc., Home, 163 N. C. 513, 79 S. E. 964.

Same—Rule Not Affected by § 2439. — This rule is not affected by section 2439. That section is directed against the contractor, and is intended to compel him to furnish to the owner of the premises the statement necessary to give notice of claims of subcontractors and others. But if the contractor shall furnish the itemized statement, the laborer's lien will arise and be affectual. Pinkston v. Young, 104 N. C. 102, 106, 10 S. E. 133.

Same—Otherwise No Lien Attaches.—When the required notice has not been given before the last payment has been made to the contractor, who fails to complete the building, and the owner in completing the building has paid out the balance of the contract price, no lien attaches. Orinoco Supply Co. v. Masonic, etc., Home, 163 N. C. 513, 79 S. E. 964. And the owner is justified in making payment to the contractor. Clark v. Edwards, 119 N. C. 115, 25 S. E. 794.

Same—Even Though Payment in Full Is Made in Advance. —In Rose v. Davis, 188 N. C. 355, 124 S. E. 576, it was held that a furnisher of material, used in the building by a contractor, acquired no lien on the building, under this section, by notice to the owner filed after the owner had paid to the contractor the full contract price; and that it was immaterial that payment in full had been made in advance, in accordance with the contract between the owner and contractor. North Carolina Lumber Co. v. Spear Motor Co., 192 N. C. 377, 383, 135 S. E. 115.

Same—Right Statutory and Dependent upon Notice. — To share in the fund due by the owner to the contractor and to have that fund distributed pro rata among the claimants is a statutory right, and is dependent upon acquiring a lien on the property by giving the notice to the owner. Charlotte Pipe, etc., Co. v. Southern Aluminum Co., 172 N. C. 704, 707, 90 S. E. 923.

The liens given the furnisher of material on the building of the owner to the contractor, etc., are strictly statutory and no lien can be acquired therefor unless notice has been given nor is it contemplated or provided by the statute that this will be altered by reason of the owner paying the contractor by agreement in advance of his work. Rose v. Davis, 188 N. C. 355, 124 S. E. 576.

Purpose of Notice—Liability of Owner for Disregarding It.—The notice required by this section is intended to charge the owner or lessee of the land to withhold so much of the money due to the contractor as will pay the subcontractor's claim. If he fails to do so, he cannot avoid his liability of paying the contractor. Lookout Lumber Co. v. Mansion Hotel, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 658, 661, 14 S. E. 35.

Where the owner of a building being erected pays according to the contract his contractor a sum of money in excess of the amount due a materialman after he has received notice, and later the contractor abandons his contract and the owner finishes the building at his loss, the materialman's lien attaches to thte building as an obligation of the owner under the provisions of this section. Blue Pearl Granite Co. v. Merchants' Bank, 172 N. C. 354, 90 S. E. 312, cited and applied; Piedmont Electric Co. v. Vance, etc., Electric Co., 197 N. C. 495, 149 S. E. 858, cited and distinguished. Beeson Hardware Co. v. Burtner, 199 N. C. 743, 155 S. E. 733.

That Laborers Are Working on Building Is Not of Itself Notice.—The mere fact that laborers and subcontractors are working on a building is not notice to the owner not to pay out to the contractor until it is ascertained how much is due by the latter to each and every subcontractor, laborer, materialman, etc. Clark v. Edwards, 119 N. C. 115, 25 S. E. 794.

Mere knowledge of the owner that certain laborers are at work on his building, or that certain persons or firms have supplied materials, is insufficient as notice to him, under this section, of any claim of lien thereon. Norfolk Bldg., etc., Co. v. Elizabeth City Hospital Co., 176 N. C. 87, 97 S. E. 146.

Unpaid Balance at Time of Notice Subject to Lien.—Where the owner of the building has paid his contractor to the time of filing the statutory claim for material furnished, the moneys thereafter becoming due the contractor, under the same contract, are subject to the lien. Blue Pearl Granite Co. v. Merchants' Bank, 172 N. C. 354, 90 S. E. 312.

Lien Only to the Extent of Unpaid Balance at Date of Notice. — A subcontractor can enforce his right of lien against the owner of property only to the extent of any unpaid sums due the contractor at the date of giving notice to the owner of his, the subscontractor's, claim. Clark v. Edwards, 119 N. C. 115, 25 S. E. 794.

Notice of Lien to Justice or Clerk Not Necessary. — The lien of the subcontractor is acquired by notice to the owner, and a filing of the notice of the lien with a justice or a clerk is not necessary, this being expressly provided by section 2441. Morganton Mfg., etc., Co. v. Andrews, 165 N. C. 285, 294, 81 S. E. 418; Porter v. Case, 187 N. C. 629, 639, 122 S. E. 483; Charlotte Pipe, etc., Co. v. Southern Aluminum Co., 172 N. C. 704, 706, 90 S. E. 823.

Notice to Owner's Architects Not Notice to the Owner.—The object of the notice required by the statute to be given the owner, and upon which the statutory lien for labor, material, etc., depends, is to apprize the owner of the amounts then due to those who have done labor upon or furnished materials for the building; and a statement of the materials used in the building, given by the contractor to the architect upon which the former is to be allowed a payment of a certain per cent. under the terms of the contract as the building progresses, does not meet the statutory requirements, and is insufficient to create the lien. Norfolk Bldg., etc., Co. v. Elizabeth City Hospital Co., 176 N. C. 87, 97 S. E. 146.

Owner Entitled to Deduct Damages Caused by Contractor.—Where there is an agreement for damages to the owner for delay by the contractor in the completion of the building, the owner is entitled to his damages before the distribution of the funds to the subcontractor, etc., who may not successfully contend that his damage was a personal charge against the contractor, and that it should not be allowed in preference to their claims. West v. Laughinghouse, 174 N. C. 214, 93 S. E. 719.

Remedy of Subcontractors.—The subcontractor and material furnisher having given the owner an itemized statement of material furnished by them, acquire a lien for the payment of their claims and may maintain a civil action thereon against the owner under the provisions of this section and §§ 2440, 2441, without being required to file their liens within six months, etc., under the provisions of C. S., 2469, or bring suit within six months thereafter, under those of C. S., 2474. Campbell v. Hall, 187 N. C. 464, 121 S. E. 761.

Applied in Brown v. Burlington Hotel Corp., 202 N. C. 82, 161 S. E. 735.

§ 2439. Statement of contractor's indebtedness to be furnished to owner; effect. — When any contractor, architect or other person makes a contract for building, altering or repairing any building or vessel, or for the construction or repair to a railroad, with the owner thereof, it is his duty to furnish to the owner or his agent before receiving any part of the contract price, as it may become due, an itemized statement of the amount owing to any laborer, mechanic or artisan employed by such contractor, architect or other person, or to any person for materials furnished, and upon delivery to the owner or his agent of the itemized statement aforesaid, it is the duty of the owner to retain from the money then due the contractor a sum not exceeding the price contracted for, which will be sufficient to pay such laborer, artisan or mechanic for labor done, or such person for material furnished, which said amount the owner shall pay directly to the laborer, mechanic, artisan or person furnishing materials. The owner may retain in his hands until the contract is completed such sum as may have been agreed on between him and the contractor, architect or other person employing laborers, as a guaranty for the faithful performance of the contract by such contractor. When such contract has been performed by the contractor such fund reserved as a guaranty shall be liable to the payment of the sum due the laborer, mechanic or artisan for labor done, or the person furnishing the materials as hereinbefore provided. (Rev., s. 2021; 1887, c. 67; 1891, c. 203; 1899, c. 335; 1903, c. 478.)

Purpose of Section—Owner Cannot Force Contractor to Supply Statement.—The purpose of the section is to compel the contractor to supply the itemized statement, so that the laborer may be benefited, have his right faciliated, and the owner of the property may be reasonably protected. There is no liability created on the part of the owner if the itemized statement is not supplied to him; he cannot compel the contractor to furnish him with it, nor is he presumed to know that he has not paid the laborer or mechanic, or that he owes him any particular sum. Pinkston v. Young, 104 N. C. 102, 106, 10 S. E. 133.

For Whose Benefit Section Enacted.—This section while enacted primarily for the benefit or protection of the workmen and materialmen, is also for the protection of the owner and the surety on the contractor's bond. Guilford Lumber Mfg. Co. v. Holladay, 178 N. C. 417, 100 S. E. 597.

Statement of Contractor Issues to Benefit of Materialmen, etc.—When the contractor furnishes the owner with statements of the amounts due the materialmen, according to this section, a direct obligation of the owner to the materialmen may be created, upon which the latter may sue in their own names. Perry v. Swanner, 150 N. C. 141, 63 S. E. 611. See annotations to the next section.

Owner Liable for Paying Contractor after Receipt of Latter's Statement.—Where the owner voluntarily pays to the contractor, after the completion and acceptance of his building, the full balance of the contract price, having received the contractor's statement of persons and materials still owed by him thereon, his conduct in so doing is wrongful to the materialmen, of which he will not be permitted to take advantage to the loss of the surety on the contractor's indemnifying bond, in his action to recover thereon. Guilford Lumber Mfg. Co. v. Holladay 178 N. C. 417, 100 S. E. 597.

Personal Action by Materialmen against Owner.—A personal action against the debtor for not retaining a sum to pay the subcontractor, when the contractor has furnished him a statement of indebtedness, can be maintained against the owner, where the lien acquired has been lost by delay to enforce it. Charlotte Pipe, etc., Co. v. Southern Aluminum Co., 172 N. C. 704, 707, 90 S. E. 923.

Duty of Owner to Reserve Funds to Pay Materialmen, etc.—The requirement of this section that the contractor furnish the owner of the building a statement of the persons and amounts he owes for materials, when complied with, makes it the duty of the owner to retain from the amount then due the contractor, so far as it extends, the amounts due by the latter to the materialmen, and pay it to them, and under section 2440, no payment to the contractor after such notice shall be a credit on or discharge of the lien provided for the materialmen. Guilford Lumber Mfg. Co. v. Holladay, 178 N. C. 417, 100 S. E. 597.

Section Not Repealed by Later Act Nor in Conflict with § 2444.—This and the following two sections are not repealed by c. 150, Laws 1913, the later act expressly purporting to be an amendment, and there is no conflict between the two acts that will fall within the repealing clause of that act; nor is there conflict between this section, and section 2444 as amended, it is the legislative intent to extend their provisions to those who furnish materials to the subcontractors of railroads; and, construing the above sections in connection with section 2028 as amended, the furnisher of materials to the contractor on an entire contract may file his itemized statement with the railroad company within six months after its completion, and maintain his action to enforce his lien, when commenced within six months thereafter. Atlas Powder Co. v. Denton, 176 N. C. 426, 97 S. E. 372.

Effect of Mortgages Subsequent to Notice.—Where the owner has been given the statutory notice of the subcontractor's claim upon the building, or the contractor filed his lien in accordance with the statute before the justice of the peace or clerk, as the case may be, the right to the money still due by the owner to the contractor relates back to the time of the furnishing of the material and the work under his contract; and where he has established this right by his action, those who have acquired liens by mortgage, etc., subsequent to the time of the notice take cum onore, and subject to the contractor's or subcontractor's lien so acquired. Porter v. Case, 187 N. C. 629, 122 S. E. 483.

§ 2440. Laborer, etc., may furnish statement of claim to owner; effect. — Any laborer, mechanic, artisan or person furnishing materials may furnish to such owner or his agents before he shall have paid the contractor an itemized statement of the amount owing to such laborer, mechanic or artisan employed by said contractor, architect or other person for work or labor on such building, vessel or railroad, and any person may furnish to such owner or his agents an itemized statement of the amount due him for materials furnished for such purposes. Upon the delivery of such notice to such owner or his agent the person giving such notice is entitled to all the liens and benefits conferred by law in as full and ample a manner as though the statement was furnished by the contractor, architect or such other person. And after the notice herein provided is given, no payment to the contractor shall be a credit or a discharge of the lien herein provided. (Rev., s. 2021; 1887, c. 67; 1891, c. 203; 1899, c. 335; 1903, c. 478; 1913, c. 150, s. 4.)

Construction with Other Sections.—A letter to the owner setting forth the amount of the account for materials furnished the contractor and stating that other items were being purchased on the account, and offering to furnish an itemized statement upon request is not a sufficient notice upon which to base a materialman's lien, under this section, requiring that an itemized statement be furnished the owner manifestly, §§ 2438, 2439, 2440, 2441, and 2442 must be construed together. Huske Hardware House v. Percival, 203 N. C. 6, 164 S. E. 334.

Contractor's Statement without Laborer's Statement.—In regard to the lien arising from the contractor's giving the proper notice, it was said, in Pinkston v. Young, 104 N. C. 102, 10 S. E. 133. That if the contractor shall furnish the itemized statement under the preceding section the laborer's lien will arise and be effectual as prescribed even though the laborer or materialman has not himself furnished the statement under this section. Norfolk Bldg. Supplies Co. v. Elizabeth City Hospital Co., 176 N. C. 87, 89, S. E. 146. And to the same effect is Butler etc. v. Gain, 128 Ill., 23.

For Whose Benefit Section Enacted.—This section while enacted primarily for the benefit or protection of the workmen and materialmen, it is also for the protection of the owner and the surety on the contractor's bond. Guilford Lumber Mfg. Co. v. Holladay, 178 N. C. 417, 100 S. E. 597.

Assignment of Lien.—The statutory lien of a laborer or materialman under the provisions of this section, is assignable as in case of ordinary business contracts. Horne-Wilson v. Wiggins Bros., 203 N. C. 85, 164 S. E. 365.

§ 2441. Sums due by statement to constitute lien. — The sums due to the laborer, mechanic or artisan for labor done, or due the person furnishing materials, as shown in the itemized statement rendered to the owner, shall be a lien on the building, vessel or railroad built, altered or repaired, without any lien being filed before a justice of the peace or the superior court. (Rev., s. 2022; 1887, c. 67, s. 2.)

Acquisition of Lien without Filing Notice.—By virtue of section 2470, the lien of a contractor must be filed in six months, but by this section, the lien of the laborer, mechanic or artisan can be acquired without filing if a statement of the amount due is rendered the owner. See annotations to § 2438. However acquired, the lien is lost under section 2474 if action thereon is not begun in six months. Hildebrand v. Vanderbilt, 147 N. C. 639, 641, 61 S. E. 620.

Same—Personal Action When Lien Lost.—But when the lien acquired is lost by not bringing suit within six months, an action can be maintained against the owner personally for his failure in his "duty to retain from the money due the contractor a sum not exceeding the price contracted for," etc. Hildebrand v. Vanderbilt, 147 N. C. 639, 61 S. E. 620.

§ 2442. Where sums due contractor from owner insufficient; payment pro rata. — If the amount due the contractor by the owner is insufficient to pay in full the laborer, mechanic or artisan, for his labor, and the person furnishing materials, for materials furnished, it is the duty of the owner to distribute the amount pro rata among the several claimants, as shown by the itemized statement furnished the owner, or of which notice has been given the owner by the claimant. (Rev., s. 2023; 1887, c. 67, s. 3; 1913, c. 150, s. 5.)

Provisions of Section 2471 Does Not Affect Distribution under This Section.—Where the owner of a building erected under contract has not sufficient funds in his hands to pay all the lienors thereon for material furnished, the amount due the contractor, subject to the liens, shall be distributed by the owner among the several claimants under the provisions of this section; and construing this section with other relevant sections of the code, it is held that it does not conflict with section 2471 requiring that liens shall be paid and settled according to priority of the notice of the lien filed with the justices or the clerk, for this latter section relates to liens filed with the proper officers, and does not affect the provisions as to subcontractors who acquire a lien by notice to the owner. Morganton Mfg., etc., Co. v. Andrews, 165 N. C. 285, 81 S. E. 418.

Remedy by Accounting.—A right to have an accounting in an ordinary civil action and judgment for the amount due by the owner to the contractor, are incidents of the rights given the subcontractor by the provisions of this section. Charlotte Pipe, etc., Co. v. Southern Aluminum Co., 172 N. C. 706, 90 S. E. 923.

Priority of Claims.—One who has furnished material to a contractor, and who, with others, has given the statutory notice to the owner by enforcing his lien by action within the six months, acquires no superior right in the pro rata distribution of the trust funds, but only the additional security of his lien. Charlotte Pipe, etc., Co. v. Southern Aluminum Co., 172 N. C. 704, 90 S. E. 923.

Preceding Three Sections Not Repealed.—This section does not repeal the three preceding section. Atlas Powder Co. v. Denton, 176 N. C. 426, 97 S. E. 372.

Cited in Piedmont Electric Co. v. Vance, etc., Electric Co., 197 N. C. 495, 149 S. E. 858.

§ 2443. Contractor failing to furnish statement, or not applying owner's payments to laborer's claims, misdemeanor. — If any contractor or architect shall fail to furnish to the owner an itemized statement of the sums due to every one of the laborers, mechanics or artisans employed by him, or the amount due for materials, before receiving any part of the contract price, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. If any contractor shall fail to apply the contract price paid him by the owner or his agent to the payment of bills for labor and material, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3663; 1887, c. 67, s. 4; 1913, c. 150, s. 8.)

§ 2444. Laborer for railroad contractor may sue company; conditions of action. — As often as any contractor for the construction of any part of a railroad which is in progress of construction is indebted to any laborer for thirty or less number of days labor performed in constructing said road, or is indebted for more than thirty days to any person furnishing material for the construction of said road, such laborer or material man may give notice of such indebtedness to said company in a manner herein provided, and said company shall thereupon become liable to pay such laborer or material man the amount so due for labor or material, and action may be maintained against said company therefor. Such notice shall be given by said laborer to said company within twenty days after the performance of the number of days labor for which the claim is made, and such notice shall be given by the material man to said company within thirty days after the materials have been furnished. Such notice to be given by the laborer shall be in writing and shall state the amount and the number of days labor and the time when the labor was performed for which the claim is made, and the name of the contractor from whom due, and shall be signed by such laborer or his attorney; and such notice of the material man shall be in writing and shall state the amount of material furnished and when furnished, and the name of the contractor to whom furnished and by whom due, and shall be signed by such material man or his attorney. The notice shall be served on an engineer, agent or superintendent employed by said company having charge of the section of road on which such labor was performed or material furnished, personally or by leaving the same at the office or usual place of business of said engineer, agent, or superintendent, with some person of suitable age. But no action shall be maintained against any company under the provisions of this section unless the same is commenced within ninety days after notice is given to the company by such laborer or material man as above provided. (Rev., s. 2018; Code, s. 1942; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 12; 1913, c. 150, s. 1.)

No Conflict between This and Section 2439.—There is no conflict between section 2439 and this section as amended; it is the legislative intent to extend the provisions of law relative to materialmen and subcontractors of railroads Atlas Powder Co. v. Denton, 176 N. C. 426, 97 S. E. 372.

Application to Laborers Constructing Railroads. — This section applies only to laborers "constructing railroads." Glazener v. Gloucester Lumber Co., 167 N. C. 676, 678, 83 S. E. 696.

A Logging Railroad within This Section.—A logging road operated by the use of steam is a railroad within the meaning of this section, and by following the requirements of that section a lien may be obtained for work done in its construction, though under an independent contractor. Carter v. Coharie Lumber Co., 160 N. C. 8, 75 S. E. 1074.

Substantial Compliance with Statute Necessary. — The right to look beyond the contract of employment to an artificial responsibility that may be thrust upon the company under the provisions of this section is a creature of the statute, and one who claims the benefit of it must, like a mechanic seeking to enforce a lien, and upon the same principle, show a substantial compliance with the requirements of this section. Wray v. Harris, 77 N. C. 77; Cook v. Cobb, 101 N. C. 68, 7 S. E. 700; Moore v. Cape Fear, etc., R. Co., 112 N. C. 236, 17 S. E. 152.

Where, in an action by the assignee of a number of claims due laborers by the contractors, the complaint and exhibits failed to show affirmatively that each of the laborers not only claimed a specific sum, but had substantially complied with the statute in respect to notice, etc., previous to the assignment of his account, it was held that a demurrer to the complaint was properly sustained. Moore v. Cape Fear, etc., R. Co., 112 N. C. 236, 17 S. E. 152.

Assignment of Claim after Compliance with Statute. — After complying with the requirements of this section a laborer can assign his claim as a debt either against his employer or the railroad company dealing with him under a direct agreement or as subcontractor, and the assignee can sue upon such claim and other similar ones in one action, and recover the sum total of all such claims due for labor. Moore v. Cape Fear, etc., R. Co., 112 N. C. 236, 17 S. E. 152.

Time of Filing Lien and Its Precedence.—A contractor or subcontractor who does work or furnishes material for the construction of a railroad is entitled to file a lien on the property of the company within six months from the time of doing such work or furnishing materials, and when filed the lien has precedence over a mortgage registered after the work has been commenced. Dunavant v. Caldwell, etc., R. Co., 122 N. C. 999, 29 S. E. 837.

Misjoinder of Parties Not Fatal.—Where there were intermediate contractors for the construction of a railroad, and the assignee of claims due by the last of such contractors to laborers brought his action against the railroad company and the first contractor, it was held, that conceding that the plaintiff could in no event recover from any but the railroad company itself, under this section, yet the addition of the first contractor as a party would not be a fatal misjoinder. Moore v. Cape Fear, etc., R. Co., 112 N. C. 236, 17 S. E. 152.

§ 2445. Contractor on municipal building to give bond; action on bond. — Every county, city, town or other municipal corporation which lets a contract for the building, repairing or altering any building, public road, or street, shall require the contractor for such work (when the contract price exceeds five hundred dollars) to execute bond with one or more solvent sureties before beginning any work under said contract, payable to said county, city, town or other municipal corporation, and conditioned for the payment of all labor done on and material and supplies furnished for the said work, under a contract or agreement made directly with the principal contractor or subcontractor. The amount of the said bond to be given by said contractor shall be equal to the contract price up to two thousand dollars, and when the contract price is between two and ten thousand dollars the amount of said bond shall be two thousand dollars plus thirty-five per cent of the excess of the contract price over two thousand dollars and under ten thousand; when the contract is over ten thousand dollars the amount of the said bond shall be two thousand dollars plus twenty-five per cent of the excess of the contract price over the sum of two thousand dollars. If the official of the said county, city, town or other municipal corporation, whose duty it is to take said bond, fails to require the said bond herein provided to be given he is guilty of a misdemeanor. Any laborer doing work on said building and material man furnishing material therefor and used therein, under a contract or agreement between said laborer or material man and the principal contractor or subcontractor, has the right to sue on said bond, the principal and sureties thereof, in the courts of this state having jurisdiction of the amount of said bond, and any number or laborers or material men whose claims are unpaid for work done and material furnished in said building have the right to join in one suit upon said bond for the recovery of the amounts due them respectively. [Every bond given by any contractor to any county, city, town or other municipal corporation for the building, repairing or altering of any building, public road or street, as required by this section, shall be conclusively presumed to have been given in accordance therewith, whether such bond be so drawn as to conform to the statute or not, and this statute shall be conclusively presumed to have been written into every such bond so given. Only one action or suit may be brought upon such bond, which said suit or action shall be brought in the county in which the building, road, or street is located, and not elsewhere. In all suits instituted under the provisions of this statute, the plaintiff or plaintiffs shall give notice to all persons, informing them of the pendency of the suit, the name of the parties, with a brief recital of the purposes of the action, which said notice shall be published at least once a week for four successive weeks in some newspaper published and circulating in the county in which the action is brought, and if there be no newspaper, then by posting at the courthouse door and three other public places in such county for thirty days. Proof of such service shall be made by affidavit as provided in case of the service of summons by publication. All persons entitled to bring and prosecute an action upon the bond shall have the right to intervene in said action, set up their respective claims, provided that such intervention shall be made within six months from the bringing of the action, and not later. If the recovery on the bond shall be inadequate to pay the amounts found due to all of the claimants, judgment shall be given to each claimant pro rata of the amount of the recovery. The surety on such bond may pay into court for distribution among the claimants the full amount of his liability, to wit, the penalty named in the bond, and upon so doing, such surety shall be relieved from further liability.] (1913, c. 150, s. 2; 1915, c. 191, s. 1; 1923, c. 100; 1927, c. 151; 1935, c. 55.)

See 13 N. C. Law Rev., 100, for relation of this section to the law of contracts.

Editor's Note.—The policy underlying this section is the manifestation of that settled principle of law which aims to protect governmental agencies from undue interferences which tend to mitigate the efficient operation of the governmental mechanism. Should such agencies be subject to the general provision of law relating to mechanics' liens, public purposes would be defeated for private claims. But as the remuneration of those who bestow their labor and money upon public buildings is also an important consideration, this section adopts a middle ground by requiring that a bond be taken of the contractor conditioned for the payment of subcontractors', materialmen's and laborers' claims.

The part of this section which appears in brackets was added by the Act of 1923, c. 100. The phrase "under a contract or agreement made directly with the principal contractor or sub-contractor," at the end of the first sentence, and the phrase "under a contract or agreement between said laborer or materialman and the principal contractor or subcontractor," about the middle of the fourth sentence, were inserted by the Laws of 1927, c. 151. As to the effect of the first amendment, see 1 N. C. Law Rev. 270.

In the third from the last sentence the time for intervening was decreased from twelve to six months. Section two of the amendatory act provides that it shall not affect pending litigation. Section three of the amendatory act provides that it shall be in effect from and after November 1, 1935.

No Lien on Public School—Bond in Lieu of Lien.—Laborers and material furnishers can acquire no liens upon a public school building erected by a municipal corporation, and the contractor's bond, given under the provisions of this section is given for their benefit in lieu of the right to acquire a lien thereon. Robinson Mfg. Co. v. Blaylock, 192 N. C. 407, 135 S. E. 136.

A material furnisher to a subcontractor, who has used the material in the construction of a public school building, can acquire no lien on the building, and where the contractor has been found by the verdict of the jury not to be liable, the materialman cannot recover the amount withheld by the schoolboard in settlement with the contractor on account of the pendency of the litigation, on the ground that the material was so used. Griffin Mfg. Co. v. Bray, 193 N. C. 350, 137 S. E. 151.

Section for Protection of Counties.—This section, requiring municipal corporations to take a bond from contractors for county buildings, is for the protection of the counties, and subcontractors and materialmen acquire no rights thereunder. Fore v. Feimster, 171 N. C. 551, 88 S. E. 977.

Not Applicable to Highway Commission.—This section does not apply to the State Highway Commission. John L. Roper Lumber Co. v. Lawson, 195 N. C. 840, 844, 143 S. E. 847.

Not Applicable to East Carolina Teachers' College. — While the board of trustees of the East Carolina Teachers' College is made a body corporate, it is not a municipal corporation within the meaning of this section. Hunt Mfg. Co. v. Hudson, 200 N. C. 541, 542, 157 S. E. 799.

Section Not Applicable to Bonds Given to State Highway Commission.—This section providing that only one action shall be brought on bonds required by said statute, and that such action shall be brought in the county in which the building, road or street is located and not elsewhere, does not apply to a bond given by a contractor to the State Highway Commission. It applies only to bonds given to a county, city, town or other municipal corporation, as required therein. Independence Trust Co. v. Porter, 190 N. C. 680, 683, 130 S. E. 547.

Purpose of 1923 Amendment.—The amendment of this section by the act of 1923 was enacted so as to protect laborers and materialmen, where the bond does not make provisions to pay them. Standard Supply Co. v. Vance Plumbing, etc., Co., 195 N. C. 629, 635, 143 S. E. 248.

Civil Liability of Municipal Officers. — No civil liability will attach to municipal and county officers in their capacity for failure to take the bond required by this section. Warner v. Talyburton, 187 N. C. 414, 416, 121 S. E. 756. Whether they individually would be held liable civilly was left undecided in the case just cited.

Same—In Their Official or Individual Capacity.—A civil action for damages will not lie against special road supervisors of a county, either as an obligation of the county or against the supervisors individually, for failing to take the bond required for material furnishers or laborers under this section, the remedy prescribed being by indictment of the latter in their individual capacity. Hunter v. Allman, 192 N. C. 483, 135 S. E. 291; Noland Co. v. Board, 190 N. C. 250, 129 S. E. 577.

Liability of Municipality to the Extent of Unpaid Balance. —Though no lien can be filed against a municipality, yet, it will be liable to laborers and materialmen, and for labor done and material furnished, to the extent of any balance due the contractor and unpaid at the time of the notice. Scheflow v. Pierce, 176 N. C. 91, 93, 97 S. E. 167. But this holding was disapproved in Noland Co. v. Board, 190 N. C. 250, 129 S. E. 577; See Robinson Mfg. v. Blaylock, 192 N. C. 407, 412, 135 S. E. 136. Ed. Note.

Whether Materials Were Actually Used or Not Immaterial.—The materialmen have a claim against the surety on the bond required by this section, whether the materials were actually used in the building or not; for otherwise the materialmen would be compelled to stand over and compel the contractor to incorporate them in the work, and the result of such a ruling would destroy business confidence and security. Standard Land, etc., Co. v. Fidelity, etc., Co., 191 N. C. 313, 131 S. E. 754. See Moore v. Builders Material Co., 192 N. C. 418, 420, 135 S. E. 113.

Municipality May Not Withhold Funds of Contractor.— Unlike the provisions of law governing the subcontractors' and materialmen's liens on private buildings, etc., this section passed as a partial substitute for the lien statutes in an effort to place public construction somewhat on a parity with private work of a similar kind, does not contain any provision whereby the owner may withhold funds belonging to the contractor upon notice from a laborer or materialman that the work done or material furnished by him to the contractor has not been paid for; nor would the owner be justified in withholding funds due the contractor upon receipt of such notice. The contract of the laborer or materialman is with the contractor, and in the absence of agreement or statutory provision allowing it, the owner would not be relieved, even pro tanto, of its obligation to the contractor by paying one or more of those who work for or furnish materials to the contractor. An obiter suggestion to the contrary, made in Scheflow v. Pierce, 176 N. C. 91, 97 S. E. 167, was disapproved in Noland Co. v. Board, 190 N. C. 250, 253, 129 S. E. 577; Robinson Mfg. Co. v. Blaylock, 192 N. C. 407, 412, 135 S. E. 136.

Bond Held Void.—In Maryland Casualty Co. v. Fowler, 31 Fed. (2d) 881, affirming 27 Fed. (2d) 421 it was held that under this section a school building contractor's bond, which provided that no right of action thereon should accrue to any person other than the obligee, was void in so far is affected the claims of laborers and materialmen protected by the bond.

Liability of Sureties.—Under this section the sureties on a contractor's bond for the erection of a municipal building are liable for the payment of those who furnish material used in the construction, and those doing labor therein, irrespective of the terms of the contract of indemnity, except the surety is not liable for an amount in excess of the penalty of the bond, and a judgment against the surety for an amount in excess of the penalty of the bond given is erroneous, and the surety may relieve himself from liability by paying the amount for which he is legally liable into the court for distribution. Standard Supply Co. v. Vance Plumbing, etc., Co., 195 N. C. 629, 143 S. E. 248.

Right of Surety as to Application of Payments.—See Standard Supply Co. v. Vance Plumbing, etc., Co., 195 N. C. 629, 143 S. E. 248.

Money Loaned to Contractors.—A bank loaning money to a contractor to build a public highway may not recover against the surety on the contractor's bond on the ground that the money was used for the payment of laborers and materialmen furnishing labor and materials used upon the highway, without having thereupon procured assignments to it of their claims, nothing appearing in the note given the bank by the contractor showing that the loan was for this purpose. Snelson v. Hill, 196 N. C. 494, 146 S. E. 135.

And money advanced by a foreman to the "petty cash account" of the contractor to build a public highway, and used in making repairs to the machinery from time to time, purchasing materials, and paying freight thereon, where the foreman took no assignments for the purchase made from said account, were held not covered by the contractor's bond. Snelson v. Hill, 196 N. C. 494, 146 S. E. 135.

The compensation for the services of a foreman necessary to the construction of a county highway is recoverable by him against the surety of the contractor's bond where the bond is given in conformity with the statute. Snelton v. Hill, 196 N. C. 494, 146 S. E. 135.

Extent of Surety's Liability.—The surety on the contractor's bond for the erection of a public building is only liable for the amount of the penalty of the bond, and upon notification of the contractor's default or demand of payment by special contract, this amount so fixed may inure to the benefit of the surety, though the amount of the penalty may be inadequate to pay the claims of laborers and material furnishers for the building. Robinson Mfg. Co. v. Blaylock, 192 N. C. 407, 135 S. E. 136.

Same—Determined in the Light of Contract and Bond.—To determine the liability of the surety upon its bond given to a municipality for the contractor's performance of his contract to erect a public school building, the contract and the bond for which it is given must be construed together to effectuate its intent and purpose. Robinson Mfg. Co. v. Blaylock, 192 N. C. 407, 135 S. E. 136.

Bond Covers Claims of Materialmen under Subcontractor.—When according to the terms of its undertaking the surety on a contractor's bond for the erection of a municipal building is liable to those doing labor thereon or furnishing material therefor, this liability not only extends to such as may have furnished the material directly to the original contractor, but to those who have done so to his subcontractors. Standard Elect. Time Co. v. Fidelity, etc., Co., 191 N. C. 653, 132 S. E. 808.

Construction of Bond and Contract Together, to Determine Liability on Bond.—The indemnity bond given by a contractor for the erection of a municipal building and the contract itself, are to be construed together upon the question as to whether provision is made for the nonpayment by the original contractor of the laborers on and material furnished for the erection of the building, the subject of the contract. Ideal Brick Co. v. Gentry, 191 N. C. 636, 132 S. E. 800; Standard Elect. Time Co. v. Fidelity, etc., Co., 191 N. C. 653, 132 S. E. 808. But this holding now loses much of its significance in view of the amendment which renders the bond self executory, viz., its provisions are to be construed so as to indemnify the laborers and materialmen, etc., even though there is no specific and express provision to that effect in the bond. Ed. Note.

Liability of Bond to Materialmen, etc., Conclusive Regardless of Its Express Conditions.—A surety bond given under this section since the amendment of 1923 is liable to those doing labor thereon or furnishing material therefor, whether such condition is written into the obligation of the bond itself or otherwise. Standard Elect. Time Co. v. Fidelity, etc., Co., 191 N. C. 653, 132 S. E. 808.

Same—Prior to the Amendment Contrary Rule Prevailed.—Where the contractor's bond for the erection of a public building used in connection with the contract does not create a liability on the surety to pay for the materials furnished for the erection of the building, but only the municipality against loss, there is no presumption prior to the amendment of this section by Acts of 1923, chapter 100, that the bond incorporated this provision, and no liability to the surety will be thereunder created. Page Trust Co. v. Carolina Const. Co., 191 N. C. 664, 132 S. E. 804.

This section does not expressly or by implication provide that a bond taken omitting this provision shall be available to the materialmen; and where the bond fails in this respect, no liability attaches to the sureties thereon. McCausland & Co. v. Brown Const. Co., 172 N. C. 708, 90 S. E. 1010.

This section before its amendment by Laws of 1923, imposed no liability upon the surety in favor of those furnishing material, etc., unless that could be construed from the terms expressed in the bond, and in the building contract to which the bond referred. Ideal Brick Co. v. Gentry, 191 N. C. 636, 132 S. E. 800.

Conditions Taking Away Right of Indemnification Void as Contrary to Public Policy.—The policy of law with respect to mechanics' and laborers' liens, as evidenced by this section and decisions thereon, is to give protection to creditors of this class by expressly providing for laborers and materialmen a right of action against the surety on the contractor's bond for the erection of a municipal building; and hence any provision incorporated in bonds of this character that takes away this right is contrary to our public policy and the express provisions of this section and void. Ingold v. Hickory, 178 N. C. 614, 101 S. E. 525. "A person may lawfully waive by agreement the benefit of a statutory provision. But there is an imputed exception to this general rule in the case of a statutory provision, whose waiver would violate public policy expressed therein, or where rights of third parties, which the statute was intended to protect, are involved." 9 Cyc., 480, quoted with approval in Guilford Lumber Mfg. Co. v. Johnson, 177 N. C. 44, 49, 97 S. E. 732.

Application of Section to Existing Suits.—The provisions of this section that its requirements as to the liability of the contractor's bond for the construction of a county highway shall not affect existing suits, applies to the remedy, and does not relate to those who have furnished material for the constructing of the highway before the enactment of the statute but have no action pending at that time. Chappell v. National Surety Co., 191 N. C. 703, 133 S. E. 21.

Effect of Taking Note of Contractor.—The bond required by this section insures to the benefit of a materialman, even though he took the note of the contractor for the materials he furnished. Moore v. Builders Material Co., 192 N. C. 418, 135 S. E. 113; Standard Elec. Time Co. v. Fidelity, etc., Co., 191 N. C. 653, 132 S. E. 808.

Sureties Right of Subrogation to Moneys Reserved by Municipality.—Where the municipality has in hand a certain per cent. reserve of the cost of construction, and the surety bond, given in accordance with this section construed together with the contract, provides that the principal surety will be subrogated to the rights of the principal in the event of the contractor's default, the surety is entitled to the money thus reserved as against the laborers and materialmen, whose claims remain unpaid after the pro rata distribution of the money to the extent of the penalty of the bond which the surety has paid into court under the statutory provision. Robinson Mfg. Co. v. Blaylock, 192 N. C. 407, 135 S. E. 136.

Limitation of Action upon the Bond.—Under this section the legislative intent was not to bar the rights of materialmen after three years from the time the materials were furnished, but from the time of the completion of the entire contract, and the principle, that suit upon the surety bond (under seal) is limited as to its commencement by the limitation of the right of action against the principal, does not apply. Chappell v. National Surety Co., 191 N. C. 703, 133 S. E. 21.

Provision That Action Must Be within Reasonable Time.—Under this section the provision in a bond for public construction that action thereon should be brought within reasonable time is valid. Horne-Wilson v. National Surety Co., 202 N. C. 73, 161 S. E. 726.

Feed for Teams as Materials Furnished.—Feed for teams working on a public highway come within the contemplation of this section as material furnished, making a surety upon the contractor's bond for the building of a county highway liable. Chappell v. National Surety Co., 191 N. C. 703, 133 S. E. 21.

Payments for Machinery Parts Used to Replace Borrowed Parts.—Where certain parts of a steam shovel used in connection with the construction of a county highway are replaced by other parts borrowed for the purpose, and are necessary in the construction, the surety on the contractor's bond is not liable under the statute for the payment of other like parts purchased to replace the borrowed parts which have thus been paid for. Snelson v. Hill, 196 N. C. 494, 146 S. E. 135.

Misdemeanor Provision Still Applicable.—The provision of this section that any of the public agencies mentioned that fails to require the bond as fixed by the statute, is still applicable notwithstanding the amendment of 1923. Standard Supply Co. v. Vance Plumbing, etc., Co., 195 N. C. 629, 143 S. E. 248.

Local Law Requiring Provision of Section Be Read in Bonds.—A local statute providing that the provisions of this section should be read into private construction bonds is invalid. Plott Co. v. Ferguson Co., 202 N. C. 446, 163 S. E. 688.

Not Applicable When Surety Takes over Contract.—A surety company on a contractor's bond for the erection of municipal buildings in taking over for its own protection the completion thereof, and dealing directly with the materialmen upon its own credit changes its liability as a surety on the bond, and this section is not applicable. Hunt Mfg. Co. v. Hudson, 200 N. C. 541, 157 S. E. 799.

Cited in Asheville Supply & Foundry Co. v. Catawba Construction Co., 198 N. C. 177, 178, 151 S. E. 93; Becker, etc., Supply Co. v. Board of Education, 199 N. C. 575, 155 S. E. 252.

Art. 3. Liens on Vessels

§ 2446. For towage and for supplies at home port. — Every vessel, boat, scow, lighter, flat, raft or other water craft is subject to a lien for the payment of towage done by any steamboat or tugboat; and every vessel and boat is subject to a lien for debts due for materials and supplies furnished to such vessel or boat in her home port. These liens shall be filed and enforced as is provided for other liens. (Rev., s. 2040; 1893, c. 357; 1909, c. 147.)

Engine as "Material Furnished." — Under this section, which gives a lien on a vessel for all debts contracted for work done on the same or material furnished, one who furnished an engine to be installed in a gas boat, relying on the credit of the vessel, is entitled to a lien therefor as "material," on compliance with the statute as to recording; and it is immaterial that by the contract it reserved title to the engine until paid for. The Pearl, 189 Fed. 540.

§ 2447. For labor in loading and unloading. — Every vessel, her tackle, apparel and furniture, is subject to a lien for all labor done by contractors or others in loading or discharging the cargo of such vessel, and also for all labor done by any subcontractor or laborer employed in discharging or loading any such vessel, when such labor is done under contract with a contractor or stevedore who may be employed by the master, agent or owner of such vessel. (Rev., s. 2041; Code, s. 1804; 1881, c. 356, s. 1.)

§ 2448. Filing lien; laborer's notice to master. —The liens provided for in the preceding sections shall be filed as is provided for other liens. The subcontractor or laborer may give notice to the master, agent or owner of such vessel, that the contractor or stevedore is or will become indebted to him. It shall then be the duty of such master, agent or owner of such vessel to retain out of the amount due to such contractor or stevedore under his contract as much as is due or claimed by the person giving the notice, and after such notice is given no payment to the contractor or stevedore shall be a credit on or a discharge of the lien herein provided. (Rev., s. 2042; Code, s. 1805; 1881, c. 356, s. 2.)

§ 2449. Enforcement of lien. — The enforcement of such lien shall be by summons against the contractor or stevedore, and also against the master, agent or owner of such vessel, who made the contract with such contractor or stevedore, if over two hundred dollars, to be issued by the clerk of the superior court, and if under two hundred dollars, by a justice of the peace. (Rev., s. 1043; Code, s. 1806; 1881, c. 356, s. 3.)

Enforcement of Lien in Court of Admiralty.—A lien given by a state statute for materials or supplies furnished to a vessel in her home port in the state is enforceable by suit in rem in a court of admiralty. The Pearle, 189 Fed. 540.

§ 2450. Judgment against contractor binds master and vessel. — The judgment against the contractor or stevedore shall also be a judgment against the master, agent or owner of such vessel, and also against such vessel itself, her tackle, apparel and furniture, which shall be seized, held and sold under execution for the satisfaction of such judgment. (Rev., s. 2044; Code, s. 1807; 1881, c. 356, s. 4.)

§ 2451. Liens not to exceed amount due contractor. — The sum total of all the liens due to different subcontractors and laborers, performed for any contractor or stevedore under any contract with any master, agent or owner of any vessel, shall not exceed the amount due to the contractor or stevedore at the time of notice given to the owner, agent or master, or the amount due to the contractor or stevedore at the time of the service of summons upon the master, agent or owner, when no notice has been given. (Rev., s. 2045; Code, s. 1808; 1881, c. 356, s. 5.)

§ 2452. Owner to see laborers paid. — In all cases where steamships or vessels of any kind are loaded or unloaded or where any work is done in or about the same by the contractors to do the same known as stevedores or "boss stevedores," who in doing the same employ laborers to assist or do the work by the hour, day, week or month, it is the duty of the owner or agent of the vessel to see that the laborers employed in or about the same by the stevedore, contractor or "boss stevedore" are fully paid the wages that may be due such laborer before he makes final settlement with the contractor, stevedore or "boss stevedore." (Rev., s. 2046; 1887, c. 145, s. 1.)

§ 2453. Owner may refuse to settle with contractor till laborers paid.—Any owner or agent referred to in the preceding section may refuse final settlement with the "boss stevedore" or contractor until he or they satisfy the said owner or agent, by written oath if necessary, that the same has been done. (Rev., s. 2047; 1887, c. 145, s. 2.)

§ 2454. Owner may pay orders for wages.—It is lawful for the owner or agent of such vessel to pay off from time to time such orders for wages as may be due and given therefor in favor of the laborers by the contractor or stevedore, which on final settlement may be deducted from the contract price. (Rev., s. 2048; 1887, c. 145, s. 3.)

§ 2455. Laborer's right of action against owner. —Any owner or agent of such vessel who neglects or refuses to comply with the preceding provisions is liable to such laborer in a civil action for the amount of the wages so due him by the contractor, stevedore or "boss stevedore." (Rev., s. 2049; 1887, c. 145, s. 4.)

§ 2456. Stevedore's false oath punishable as perjury.—If any contractor, stevedore or boss stevedore shall make any false oath or false representation with intent to wrong, cheat or defraud any laborer in violation of the four preceding sections, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished as is now prescribed by law for perjury. (Rev., s. 3613; 1887, c. 145, s. 5.)

§ 2457. Stevedores to be licensed; ommission misdemeanor.—No person shall engage in the business of loading or unloading vessels upon contract, nor shall any person solicit or make any contract for himself or for any other person to load or unload any vessel either by day's work or by the job, without having previously obtained a license therefor, in the manner provided by law for other licenses for trades and occupations. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., ss. 2050, 3791; 1891, c. 450; 1899, c. 595.)

§ 2458. Tax and bond on procuring license.—Before the sheriff shall issue the said license the applicant shall pay to the sheriff an annual tax of fifty dollars, and shall execute a bond with two or more approved sureties in the sum of two thousand dollars, payable to the state of North Carolina, and conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties and the due and lawful payment of all sums due to laborers assisting in the work of loading or unloading any vessels upon which the applicant may be engaged. And every bond so taken shall be renewed annually, and shall be filed with and preserved by the register of deeds in trust for every person that shall be injured by the breach of his contracts, who may severally bring suit thereon for the damages by each one sustained. (Rev., s. 2051; 1891, c. 450.)

Art. 4. Warehouse Storage Liens

§ 2459. Liens on goods stored for charges.—Every person, firm or corporation who furnishes storage room for furniture, tobacco, goods, wares or merchandise and makes a charge for storing the same, has the right to retain possession of and a lien upon all furniture, tobacco, goods, wares or merchandise until such storage charges are paid. (1913, c. 192, s. 1; 1915, c. 190, s. 1.)

Application of Section.—Under this section the persons, firms or corporations entitled to the possession and lien on property stored in warehouses applies to such as operate warehouses as a business for compensation, and not to an isolated instance in which goods or chattels are left in a store or building of the claimant. Champion Shoe Machinery Co. v. Sellers, 197 N. C. 30, 147 S. E. 674.

This section applies to such persons, firms or corporations as operate warehouses as a business for compensation, and not to an isolated instance in which goods or chattels are left in a store or building of the claimant. Champion Shoe Machinery Co. v. Sellers, 197 N. C. 30, 147 S. E. 674.

§ 2460. Enforcement by public sale.—If such charges are not paid within ten days after they become due, then such person, firm or corporation is authorized to sell said furniture, tobacco, goods, wares or merchandise at the county courthouse door, after first advertising such sale for ten days at said courthouse door and three other public places in said county, or in some newspaper published in said county where the goods or tobacco are stored, and out of the proceeds of such sale to pay the costs and expenses of sale and all costs and charges due for storage, and the surplus, if any, pay to the owner of such furniture, tobacco, goods, wares or merchandise. (1913, c. 192, s. 2; 1915, c. 190, s. 2.)

Art. 5. Liens of Hotel, Boarding and Lodging-House Keeper

§ 2461. Lien on baggage.—Every hotel, boarding-house keeper and lodging-house keeper who furnishes board, bed or room to any person has the right to retain possession of and a lien upon all baggage or other property of such person that may have been brought to such hotel, boarding-house or lodging-house, until all reasonable charges for such room, bed and board are paid. (Rev., s. 2037; 1899, c. 645, s. 1; 1917, c. 26, s. 1.)

Upon Property of a Third Party Stranger.—An innkeeper has a lien even upon the goods of a third person held by the guest and brought to the inn, with the qualification however, that if he knew that they belonged to such third person he has no lien upon them. Covington v. Newberger, 99 N. C. 523, 6 S. E. 205.

A hotel keeper's lien for charges, under this section, will not attach to a chattel belonging to a third person which is brought to the hotel by the guest under given circumstances. Pate Hotel Co. v. Blair, 207 N. C. 464, 177 S. E. 330.

Occasional Entertainment of Strangers Not Innkeeping.—One who entertains strangers only occasionally, although he receives compensation for it, is not an innkeeper. State v. Mathews, 19 N. C. 424.

§ 2462. Baggage may be sold.—If such charges are not paid within ten days after they become due, then the hotel, boarding-house or lodging-house keeper is authorized to sell said baggage or other property at the courthouse door, or in front of any public building in the town in which the lien attaches, after first advertising such sale for ten days at said courthouse door and three other public places in the county, and out of the proceeds of sale to pay the costs and expenses of sale and all costs and charges due for said board, bed or room, and the surplus, if any, pay to the owner of said baggage or other property. (Rev., s. 2038; 1899, c. 645, s. 2; 1917, c. 26, s. 2; 1935, c. 364.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 adds the provision permitting sale in the front of any public building.

§ 2463. Notice of sale.—Written notice of such sale shall be served on the owner of such baggage or other property ten days before such sale, if he is a resident of the state; but if he is a nonresident of the state, or if his residence is unknown, the publication of such notice for ten days at the courthouse door and three other public places in the county shall be sufficient service of the same. (Rev., s. 2039; 1887, c. 645, s. 3.)

Art. 6. Liens of Livery-Stable Keepers

§ 2464. Lien for ninety days keep on animals in possession. — Every keeper of livery, sale, or boarding stables has a lien upon and the right to retain the possession of every horse, mule, or other animal belonging to the owner or person contracting for the board and keep of any horse, mule, or other animal, for any and all unpaid amounts due for board of any horse, mule, or other animal. This lien shall not attach for amounts accruing for a longer period than ninety days from the reception of such property or from the last full settlement; nor does this lien apply if the property is removed from the possession of said keeper of said livery, sale, or boarding stable. (1911, c. 141, s. 1.)

§ 2465. Enforcement by public sale.—If such charges are not paid within fifteen days after they become due and demand is made for the same, then the keeper of such livery, sale or boarding stable is authorized to sell the property at the county courthouse door, after first advertising said sale for ten days at the county courthouse door and three other public places in said county, and out of the proceeds of such sale to pay the costs and charges due for the board and keep of said horse, mule, or other animal, including the charges for keeping said animal until said sale, and the surplus, if any, pay to the owner of said animal. (1911, c. 141, s. 2.)

§ 2466. Notice of sale to owner.—Written notice of such sale shall be served on the owner of such horse, mule, or other animal ten days before such sale, if he is a resident of the state; but if he be a nonresident of the state; or if his residence is unknown, the publication of such notice for ten days at the county courthouse door and three other public places in the county shall be sufficient service of the same. (1911, c. 141, s. 3.)

Art. 7. Liens on Colts, Calves and Pigs

§ 2467. Season of sire a lien.—In all cases where the owner, or any agent for or employee of the owner, of any mare, jennet, cow or sow, turns the same to a studhorse, jack, bull, or boar, for the purpose of raising colts, calves, or pigs, the price charged for the season of the studhorse, jack, bull, or boar constitutes a lien on the colt, calf, or pigs until the price so charged for the season is paid. (Rev., s. 2024; Code, s. 1797; 1885, c. 72; 1887, c. 14; 1872-3, c. 94, s. 1915, c. 18, s. 1.)

§ 2468. Colts, etc., not exempt from execution for season price.—The colt, calf, or pigs shall not be exempt from execution for the payment of said season price by reason of the operation of the personal property exemption: Provided, the person claiming such lien institutes action to enforce the same within twelve months from the foaling of the colt, dropping the calf, or farrowing of the pigs. (Rev., s. 2025; Code, s. 1798; 1885, c. 72; 1872-3, c. 94, s. 2; 1879, c. 47; 1915, c. 18; 1917, c. 229.)

Art. 8. Perfecting, Enforcing and Discharging Liens

§ 2469. Claim of lien to be filed; place of filing.—All claims against personal property, of two hundred dollars and under, may be filed in the office of the nearest justice of the peace; if over two hundred dollars or against any real estate or interest therein, in the office of the superior court clerk in any county where the labor has been performed or the materials furnished; but all claims shall be filed in detail, specifying the materials furnished or labor performed, and the time thereof. If the parties interested make a special contract for such labor performed, or if such material and labor are specified in writing, in such cases it shall be decided agreeably to the terms of the contract, provided the terms of such contract do not affect the lien for such labor performed or materials furnished. (Rev., s. 2026; Code, s. 1784; 1869-70, c. 206, s. 4; 1876-7, c. 53, s. 1.)

See note under § 2433.

The purpose of filing mechanics', etc., claims for liens under this section, is to give public notice of the claims, the amount, the material supplied or the labor done, and when done, on what property, specified with such details as will give reasonable notice to all persons of the character of the claims and the property on which the lien attached. Fulp v. Kernersville Light, etc., Co., 157 N. C. 157, 72 S. E. 867.

Where to Be Filed.—The notice of a lien required to be filed, since the Act of 1869-70, chap. 206, sec. 4, should be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court, although the materials began to be furnished before that Act went into effect when the law of 1868-69 was in force. Chadbourn v. Williams, 71 N. C. 444.

Same.—Prior to the Act of 1869-70, the notice required by this section was to be filed with the register of deeds. Chadbourn v. Williams, 71 N. C. 444, 448.

Particularity of Claim Filed.—A claim of lien, filed under the provisions of the section must comply with the requirements of the statute. Therefore, when the plaintiff's claim failed to specify in detail the material furnished and labor performed, or the time when the material was furnished and the labor performed, it was irregular and void. Wray v. Harris, 77 N. C. 77.

The obvious purpose of this requirement is to give public notice, in the offices designated, of the plaintiff's "claim," his debt, the amount of it, the materials supplied or the labor done, and when done, on what property, on what farm or crop, and when, specified with such detail and certainty as will give reasonable notice to all persons of the character of the "claim," and the property to which the lien, on account of the same, attaches, and of the lien thereby established. It is to give the laborer an important advantage as to his debt due on account of his labor done on the property to which the lien attaches over the ordinary creditor, but to obtain that advantage, he must comply strictly, certainly substantially, in all material respects, with the requirement of the statute, and it is but reasonable and just that he should do so. Cook v. Cobb, 101 N. C. 68, 70, 7 S. E. 700.

While a substantial compliance with this section is necessary to the validity of a lien filed for material, etc., furnished in the erection of a building, it is not required that the claimant file his itemized statement of the material used in a building which he had contracted to complete for the owner for one sum; but the time of the completion of the work must be stated. Jefferson & Bros. v. Bryant, 161 N. C. 404, 77 S. E. 341.

Where suit is brought by a contractor to enforce a lien on a building which was to have been paid for in a single sum, and when the claim as filed is defective, as filed with the clerk, in not stating the time the house was completed, as required by this section, it cannot be cured by amendment allowed in the superior court at the trial. Jefferson & Bros. v. Bryant, 161 N. C. 404, 77 S. E. 341.

Same—Instances of Sufficiency.—When a lienor's schedule for material contains a full itemized statement in detail of the material furnished, and the clerk has entered on his docket the names of the lienor and lienee, the amount claimed by each lienor, a description of the property by metes and bounds, the dates between which the materials were furnished, referring to the schedule of prices and materials attached to the notice, asking that it "be taken as a part of the notice of lien," it is a sufficient compliance with this section. Fulp v. Kernersville Light, etc., Co., 157 N. C. 157, 72 S. E. 867.

Under this section requiring the claim for a laborer's lien to be filed in detail, specifying the labor performed and the time thereof, the plaintiff filed his claim as follows before a justice of the peace: "J. S. C., owner and possessor, to D. A. C., 22 October, 1894. To 122½ days of labor as sawyer at his sawmill, on Jumping Run Creek, from 1 October, 1893, to 31 August, 1894, $127.24. (Signed) D. A. C., claimant," which was sworn to; it was held that the claim as filed was a reasonable and substantial compliance with the statute. Cameron v. Consolidated Lumber Co., 118 N. C. 266, 24 S. E. 7.

The lien of a plaintiff who furnished materials for a building is not avoided because in the notice thereof filed with the clerk it is made to attach on two distinct lots separated by a street. Chadbourn v. Williams, 71 N. C. 444.

In this case claim, or notice of lien, was not made out in sufficient detail, "specifying the . . . labor performed, and the time thereof," the wages he was to receive, how and when payable, etc. And further, it was not made to appear that said purported notice of claim was filed "in the office of the nearest justice of peace" as required by this section. Gainey v. Gainey, 203 N. C. 190, 191, 165 S. E. 547.

When Necessity of Filing Lien Dispensed.—With sums due to the laborer, mechanic or artisan for labor done, or due to a person furnishing materials, as shown in the itemized statement rendered to the owner, constitute a lien on the building, etc., without any lien being filed. Section 2441.

As to the duty of clerk to record, see section 952, subsection 23.

§ 2470. Time of filing notice.—Notice of lien shall be filed as hereinbefore provided, except in those cases where a shorter time is prescribed, at any time within six months after the completion of the labor or the final furnishing of the materials, or the gathering of the crops. (Rev., s. 2028; Code, s. 1789; 1868-9, c. 117, s. 4; 1876-7, c. 53, s. 2; 1881, c. 65; 1883, c. 101; 1909, c. 32; 1913, c. 150, s. 7.)

Lien Relates Back.—When the notice is filed the lien is at once established, and relates back to and is effective from the time at which the work was commenced, or the materials were furnished. Lookout Lumber Co. v. Mansion Hotel, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 658, 661, 14 S. E. 35.

Where the material furnisher for a building files notice of claim under this section, the lien against the building of the owner relates back to the time the delivery was completed, and action must be commenced within six months after the filing of the above notice, and in that event the lien is preserved from the furnishing of the material and is superior to a deed of trust registered since that time, and where the evidence is conflicting the question is for the jury under proper instructions from the court. Atlas Supply Co. v. McCurry, 199 N. C. 799, 156 S. E. 91. See also note under § 2433.

Same—Otherwise Statutes Would Be Defeated.—It must be clear that unless the claim when filed has relation back to the commencement of the furnishing of the materials, the object of the act would be liable to be defeated at the pleasure of the vendee of the materials, by his selling or mortgaging his estate. The act would be idle and inefficacious against the very mischief it was intended to (cause) prevent. By allowing the notice to be filed after the whole has been delivered, it has put on a purchaser while the delivery is in progress the duty of informing himself whether the materials have been delivered or not, and under what sort of contract. This is in conformity to the construction which has been put on similar statutes in other states. Phillips Mechanics' Liens, sec. 215. Nibble v. Brawhn, 24 Ill. 268; Chadbourn v. Williams, 71 N. C. 444, 449.

Same—But Lien Good Only for the Amount Due.—While, under this section, a mechanic's or laborer's lien, or lien for material, when filed, relates back and takes priority over all liens attaching, or purchases for value made subsequent to the beginning of the work or of furnishing the first material, yet it is good only for the amount due the contractor, laborer or materialman. Clark v. Edwards, 119 N. C. 115, 25 S. E. 794.

Lien Attaches from What Time.—A lien attaches from the time the materials began to be furnished, and the notice relates back to that time. Chadbourn v. Williams, 71 N. C. 444.

The certain purposes is to protect the subcontractor or laborer as to his claim against the owner of the property and all liens of whatever character that may attach to the property subsequently, not simply subsequently to the filing of the notice of claim in the office of the superior court clerk, but as well subsequently to the time when the work was commenced or the materials were furnished. Lookout Lumber Co. v. Mansion Hotel, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 658, 661, 14 S. E. 35.

And this is so, although the subsequent incumbrancer had no notice of the lien thus relating back. McNeal Pipe, etc., Co. v. Howland, etc., Co., 111 N. C. 615, 618, 16 S. E. 857.

Where the claim is filed within the time and in the manner prescribed the lien relates back to the time of the beginning of the work or furnishing of the materials, and is effective against any subsequent incumbrances or purchasers. Bankers' Trust Co. v. Gillespie Co., 181 Fed. 448.

Filing in Six Months after Moneys Are Due.—In Porter v. Case, 187 N. C. 629, 122 S. E. 483, it was held that the notice must be filed within six months from the time moneys are due the contractor, under the terms of the contract.

Question for Jury.—Whether the notice of claim of a lien was filed within the time prescribed by this section is a question for the jury where it appears from the evidence that later work was done under the original contract. Beaman v. Elizabeth City Hotel Corp., 202 N. C. 418, 163 S. E. 117.

Taking Note Not a Waiver.—One furnishing material used in the construction of a building does not waive his right of lien by accepting a note for the amount due him therefor, when the note matured before the expiration of the statutory time wherein he is required to file notice of his lien, and he has perfected his right as the statutes require. Raeford Lumber Co. v. Rockfish Trading Co., 163 N. C. 314, 79 N. C. 627.

Only Bona Fide Purchasers Protected.—The requirement that one furnishing materials for a building must file his lien in six months, applies only as to the rights of a purchaser for value without notice, and where this notice of lien has been filed after the six months' period and within twelve months, and the purchaser has acquired the property against which the lien was filed, with actual or constructive notice thereof, he takes subject to the rights of the lienor, Raeford Lumber Company v. Rockfish Trading Co., 163 N. C. 314, 79 S. E. 627. This was held under this section when its terms were somewhat different; but it is believed that the principle applies under the section as it now reads. Ed. Note.

The "shorter time" herein referred to evidently refers to the notice required to be given by section 2444, and it was intended to provide for a longer time within which to give notice, that is, six months, where the transaction has been completed by the "final furnishing" of the materials. Atlas Powder Co. v. Denton, 176 N. C. 426, 431, 97 S. E. 372.

Filing of Claim against Railroad Company.—Under this section a contractor or subcontractor who does work on or furnishes material for the construction of a railroad, is entitled to file a lien on the property of the company within one year, (now six months) from the time of doing such work or furnishing such material and, when filed, the lien has precedence over a mortgage registered after the work has been commenced. Dunavant v. Caldwell, etc., R. Co., 122 N. C. 999, 29 S. E. 837.

Validity of Section.—In McNeal Pipe, etc., Co. v. Howland, etc., Co., 111 N. C. 615, 623, 16 S. E. 857, this section was held to be valid.

Cited in White v. Riddle, 198 N. C. 511, 152 S. E. 501.

§ 2471. Date of filing fixes priority.—The liens created and established by this chapter shall be paid and settled according to the priority of the notice of the lien filed with the justice or the the clerk. (Rev., s. 2035; Code, s. 1792; 1868-9, c. 117, s. 11.)

In General.—Liens of materialmen and laborers are statutory, and by the clear provisions of this section and § 2473 the liens of parties furnishing labor and material under direct contract with the owner have priority in accordance with the time of filing notice of lien with the justice of the peace or clerk. The right of pro rata payment on liens of subcontractors is distinguished on the basis of the statutory provisions, § 2442, no notice of lien being required to be filed with the justice of the peace or clerk in the case of subcontractors, notice to the owner being sufficient under the statute. Boykin v. Logan, 203 N. C. 196, 165 S. E. 680.

Application of Section to Liens of Subcontractors, etc.—This section relates to the lien filed with the proper officers, and does not affect the provisions as to subcontractors who acquire a lien by notice to the owner. This is not only in accordance with law, but also with justice and equity, for when persons have put their money and labor in a building, and the balance due is insufficient to pay all, it is not right for one to have the whole fund, in the absence of negligence, because he gets to the clerk's office first. Morgantown Mfg., etc., Co. v. Andrews, 165 N. C. 285, 295, 81 S. E. 418. See also White v. Riddle, 198 N. C. 511, 514, 152 S. E. 501.

§ 2472. Laborer's crop lien dates from work begun.—The lien for work on crops given by this chapter shall be preferred to every other lien or encumbrance which attached to the crops subsequent to the time at which the work was commenced. (Rev., s. 2034; Code, s. 1782; 1869-70, c. 206, s. 2.)

As to landlord's liens on crops for rates, advances, etc., see section 2355, et seq.; as to agricultural liens, see sec. 2480, et seq.

Lien Prior to Other Subsequent Lien.—The lien created by this section is preferred to every other lien or encumbrance, which attaches upon the property subsequent to the time at which the work was commenced, or the materials were furnished. Lookout Lumber Co. v. Mansion Hotel, etc., R. Co., 109 N. C. 658, 660, 14 S. E. 35.

Breach of Contract—Lien for Claim.—The liens provided for by this section arise out of the simple relation of debtor and creditor for labor done or materials furnished, and where there is no other security than the personal obligation of the debtor. Therefore, where the plaintiff, having abandoned a contract made with the defendant to cultivate a crop upon shares, upon the ground that the defendant had failed to furnish the necessary stock, etc., as agreed, and attempted to assert a lien for the labor he had bestowed upon the crop, it was held that the statute did not embrace his case. Grissom v. Pickett, 98 N. C. 54, 3 S. E. 921.

Cited in White v. Riddle, 198 N. C. 511, 152 S. E. 501.

§ 2473. Duly filed claims of prior creditors not affected.—Nothing in this chapter shall be construed to affect the rights of any person to whom any debt may be due for any work done for which priority of claim is filed with the proper officer. (Rev., s. 2036; Code, s. 1786; 1869-70, c. 206, s. 6.)

Cross Reference.—As to priority between corporate mortgages and claims for labor, see sec. 1140.

§ 2474. Action to enforce lien.—Action to enforce the lien created must be commenced in the court of a justice of the peace, and in the superior court, according to the jurisdiction thereof, within six months from the date of filing the notice of the lien. But if the debt is not due within six months, but becomes due within twelve months, suit may be brought or other proceedings instituted to enforce the lien in thirty days after it is due. (Rev., s. 2027; Code, ss. 1785, 1790; 1868-9, c. 117, s. 7; 1869-70, c. 206, s. 5; 1876-7, c. 250; 1876-7, c. 251.)

When Section Not Applicable.—This section cannot have been intended for a case in which a resort to any court is necessary, and a complete and efficient measure of relief is committed to and may be obtained by the parties' own act. McDougall v. Crapon, 95 N. C. 292, 293, 295.

Jurisdiction of Circuit Court of U. S.—While this section gives a right of action at law, for the enforcement of a mechanic's lien, a circuit court of the United States sitting in equity has jurisdiction to entertain a bill for that purpose, especially where there are conflicting liens to be adjusted. Healey Ice Mach. Co. v. Green, 181 Fed. 890.

Jurisdiction of Justice—Jurisdictional Amounts.—A proceeding under this section to establish a claim against a feme covert, and to have a lien declared for materials furnished, and work and labor done, in erecting a house on her land, must be brought before a justice of the peace, if the amount claimed is under two hundred dollars. Smaw v. Cohen, 95 N. C. 85.

Same—Against Married Woman.—An action against a married woman for less than $200 for materials used in building a house must be brought before a justice of the peace. Finger v. Hunter, 130 N. C. 529, 41 S. E. 890.

Jurisdiction of Superior Court, though Amount Less than $200.—Where the proceeding against a married woman is not to have a lien declared for materials furnished, and work and labor done in erecting a house on her land, but a civil action to coerce payment out of the separate estate of a feme covert for his contracts, the superior court alone has jurisdiction, although the amount be less than two hundred dollars. Smaw v. Cohen, 95 N. C. 85.

Loss of Lien by Delay to Enforce—Personal Action under Section 2439.—If the plaintiff does not begin his action within the time prescribed by this section after giving the statement of his claim to the owner, he loses his lien; but having acquired and lost the lien he can maintain an action against the owner, personally, under sec. 2439, which makes it the "duty of the owner to retain from the money then due the contractor a sum not exceeding the price contracted for," to be paid to the laborer, mechanic, or materialman whenever an itemized statement of the amount due him is furnished by either of such parties or the contractor. Hildebrand v. Vanderbilt, 147 N. C. 639, 641, 61 S. E. 620; Charlotte Pipe, etc., Co. v. Southern Aluminum Co., 172 N. C. 704, 707, 90 S. E. 923.

Owners Liability Pro Rata to the Extent of Sum Due.—The laborer or materialman can only recover of the owner his pro rata part of that sum which the owner is required to "retain from the contractor then due." This pro rata to be determined after consideration by the court below of all the claims of laborers, etc., against the contractor—their priorities, validity, etc., and a judgment fixing the owner with a liability greater than that demanded for the satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim, without making the other like claimants parties, must be remanded and reformed. Hildebrand v. Vanderbilt, 147 N. C. 639, 61 S. E. 620.

Possession by Justice of the Notice of Lien.—It is not necessary that the justice before whom application is made to enforce the lien should be in possession of the original notice of the lien; a copy from the magistrate with whom it was filed must be sufficient. There can be no reason why a copy of a notice properly filed with the clerk will not also suffice. The only reason why the justice who is to enforce the lien must have a copy of the notice is because he is required to state in his judgment the date of the lien and also what property it binds. Boyle v. Robbins, 71 N. C. 130, 133.

Limitation of Actions Pleaded by Owner for Contractor.—When the owner is sued by a laborer or materialman in time, and subsequently, after the statute had run in favor of the contractor, he was made a party and filed no answer, the owner cannot plead the statute of limitation for the contractor in his own behalf, the plea being personal to the contractor. Hildebrand v. Vanderbilt, 147 N. C. 639, 61 S. E. 620.

Waiver of Lien by Failure to Enforce.—Failure to enforce the lien under this section within the time prescribed constitutes a waiver of the lien. Norfleet v. Tarbaro Cotton Factory, 172 N. C. 833, 89 S. E. 785.

Defects in Claim Filed Not Cured by Pleading.—It is not sufficient to allege in the pleadings the time of the labor, and that it was done on a particular crop which the plaintiff seeks to charge with a lien. This must appear substantially in some way in the claim filed. Cook v. Cobb, 101 N. C. 68, 71, 7 S. E. 700.

Cited in Atlas Supply Co. v. McCurry, 199 N. C. 799, 800, 156 S. E. 91.

§ 2475. When attachment available to plaintiff.—In all cases where the owner or employer attempts to remove the crop, house or appurtenances from the premises, without the permission, or with the intent to defraud the lienee of his lien, the claimant may have a remedy by attachment. (Rev., s. 2031; Code, s. 1795; 1868-9, c. 117, s. 14.)

Sufficiency of Affidavit for Attachment.—Under this section, giving a remedy by attachment to enforce a laborer's lien, an affidavit that the defendant has removed and is removing and disposing of the cotton crop without regard to the lien, is insufficient to justify the issuing of the warrant, in the absence or allegation that the removal is with the intent to defraud the laborer. Brogden v. Privett, 67 N. C. 45. To this effect Mr. Justice Reade in the opinion of that case says: "The affidavit for the attachment in this case sets forth that the defendant 'has removed and is removing and disposing of the cotton crop,' etc., 'without regard to the lien,' etc. There is no allegation that the removal is 'with the intent to defraud the laborer,' and, therefore, in view of the fact that the usual way for a farmer to raise money to pay for laborers is by selling his crop, it ought not to be presumed, but must be averred, that the removal is with a fraudulent intent. It is insisted, however, that the words of the statute are in the alternative, 'without his permission, or, with intent to defraud.' That is true, but still it is not necessary for us to decide whether 'or' ought not to be construed 'and,' because the affidavit does not use either alternative in the language of the statute, but substitutes his own language, 'without regard to the lien,' etc. We are not informed why the plaintiff evaded the language of the statute; and we are of opinion that to favor his experiment would be an inconvenient and dangerous construction of the statute."

Note that the syllabus of the cases expresses a rule just the opposite of that established by the opinion of the case. Ed. Note. Brogden v. Privett, 67 N. C. 45.

§ 2476. Defendant entitled to counterclaim. — The defendant in any suit to enforce the lien is entitled to any set off arising between the contractors during the performance of the contract, or counterclaim allowed by law. (Rev., s. 2032; Code, s. 1788; 1869-70, c. 206, s. 8.)

§ 2477. Execution.—Upon judgment rendered in favor of the claimant, an execution for the collection and enforcement thereof shall issue in the same manner as upon other judgments in actions arising on contract for the recovery of money only, except that the execution shall direct the officer to sell the right, title and interest which the owner had in the premises or the crops thereon, at the time of filing notice of the lien, before such execution shall extend to the general property of the defendant. (Rev., s. 2029; Code, s. 1791; 1868-9, c. 117, s. 9.)

Descriptions in the Judgment.—In Boyle v. Robbins, 71 N. C. 130, 133, this section was construed to require, at least by implication, that the justice of the peace should set forth in the judgment the date of the lien, and that it should also embody a general description of the property which the plaintiff seeks to subject to primary liability under it. If only personal property be bound by the lien, the justice must insert in his execution a requirement that the specific property, subject to the lien, shall be first sold before seizing other goods or chattels, while, if the property described in the notice be land, the justice's judgment must be docketed in the superior court, and the clerk must incorporate in the execution similar direction as to the order of selling. So that the judgment cannot be enforced in strict compliance with the law unless the officer, whose duty it is to issue execution, has gotten such information from the record in his court as will satisfy him that some property, described with reasonable certainty, is subject to the lien and consequently to a primary liability for the debt. The most convenient method of recording the date of the lien and the description of the property bound by it, is to embody it in the judgment, which will constitute a part of the record in either court, no matter which officer may find it necessary to insert the date and description in the execution. McMillan v. Williams, 109 N. C. 252, 255, 13 S. E. 764.

A judgment to enforce a mechanic's lien upon specific property for its satisfaction, must contain a general description of such property, and an execution thereon must direct that such property shall first be sold to satisfy the judgment. McMillan v. Williams, 109 N. C. 252, 13 S. E. 764.

§ 2479. Discharge of liens.—All liens created by this chapter may be discharged as follows:

1. By filing with the justice or clerk a receipt or acknowledgment, signed by the claimant, that the lien has been paid or discharged.

2. By depositing with the justice or clerk money equal to the amount of the claim, which money shall be held by said officer for the benefit of the claimant.

3. By an entry in the lien docket that the action on the part of the claimant to enforce the lien has been dismissed, or a judgment rendered against the claimant in such action.

4. By a failure of the claimant to commence an action for the enforcement of the lien within six months from the notice of lien filed. (Rev., s. 2033; Code, s. 1793; 1868-9, c. 117, s. 12.)

Failure to Enforce as Discharge.—Failure of claimant to enforce his lien within six months as prescribed by section 2474 operates as a discharge of the lien. Norfleet v. Tarboro Cotton Factory, 172 N. C. 833, 89 S. E. 785.

Art. 8A. Liens upon Recoveries for Personal Injuries in Favor of Sums Due for Medical Attention, etc.

§ 2479(1). Lien created; applicable to persons non sui juris.—From and after the ratification of this article there is hereby created a lien upon any sums recovered as damages for personal injury in any civil action in this State, the said lien in favor of any person or corporation to whom the person so recovering, or the person in whose behalf the recovery has been made, may be indebted for drugs, medical supplies, and medical services rendered by any physician, dentist, trained nurse, or hospitalization, or hospital attention and/or services rendered in connection with the injury in compensation for which the said damages have been recovered. Where damages are recovered for and in behalf of minors or persons non compos mentis, such liens shall attach to the sum recovered as fully and effectively as if the said person were sui juris. (1935, c. 121, s. 1.)

§ 2479(2). Receiving person charged with duty of retaining funds for purpose stated; evidence; attorney's fees; charges.—A like lien shall attach to all funds paid to any person in compensation for settlement of the said injuries, whether in litigation or otherwise; and shall be the duty of any person receiving the same before disbursement thereof to retain out of any recovery or any compensation so received a sufficient amount to pay the just and bona fide claims for such drugs, medical supplies, and medical attention and/or hospital service, after having received and accepted notice thereof: Provided, that evidence as to the amount of such charges shall be competent in the trial of any such action: Provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed so as to interfere with any amount due for attorney's services; Provided further that the lien hereinbefore provided for shall in no case, exclusive of attorneys' fees, exceed fifty per cent of the amount of damages recovered. (1935, c. 121, s. 2.)

§ 2479(3). Disputed claims to be settled before payments.—Whenever the sum or amount or amounts demanded for medical services or hospital fees shall be in dispute, nothing in this article shall have any effect of compelling payment thereof until the claim is fully established and determined, in the manner provided by law: Provided, however, that when such sums are in dispute the amount of the judgment against which the lien shall lie shall in no case exceed the amount of the bills in dispute. (1935, c. 121, s. 3.)

Art. 9. Agricultural Liens for Advances

§ 2480. Lien on crops for advances. — If any person makes any advance either in money or supplies to any person who is engaged in or about to engage in the cultivation of the soil, the person making the advances is entitled to a lien on the crops made within one year from the date of the agreement in writing herein required upon the land in the cultivation of which the advance has been expended, in preference to all other liens, except the laborer's and landlord's liens, to the extent of such advances. Before any advance is made an agreement in writing for the advance shall be entered into, specifying the amount to be advanced, or fixing a limit beyond which the advance, if made from time to time during the year, shall not go; and this agreement shall be registered in the office of the register of the county or counties where the land is situated on which the crops of the person advanced are to be grown: Provided, that where a county line divides a farm the crop lien may be recorded in the county where the owner of said farm resides; Provided, he resides on said farm; Provided further, that the lien shall continue to be good and effective as to any crop or crops which may be harvested after the end of the said year. (Rev., s. 2052; Code, 1799; 1893, c. 9; 1866-7, c. 1, s. 1; 1872-3, c. 133, s. 1; 1925, c. 302, s. 1; 1927, c. 22; 1935, c. 205.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—This section was amended in 1925, whereby the phrase "within one year from the date of the agreement in writing herein required" was substituted for the phrase "during the year," and the proviso appearing at the end of the section was added. Prior to the amendment the registration of the writing was required to be effected within thirty days after date.

As to the effect of the amendment of 1925 upon this section, and upon the various aspects of its doctrine as interpreted by adjudicated cases, see 4 N. C. Law Rev. 4.

In lieu of the clause "where the person advanced resides" the amendment of 1935 inserts the clause "or counties where the land is situated on which the crops of the person advanced are to be grown" and the two provisos which immediately follow this clause.

Prerequisites of the Lien Enumerated.—From this section it is clear, (1) that the advances must be in money or supplies; (2) to the person engaged or about to engage in the cultivation of the soil; (3) after the agreement is made; (4) to be expended in the cultivation of the crop made during that year; (5) and the lien must be on the crop of that year, made by reason of the advances so made. Clark v. Farrar, 74 N. C. 686, 690.

Conditions to Render the Lien Effectual—Registration Unnecessary between Parties.—The prescribed conditions upon which the lien of this section becomes effectual are the previous reduction of the contract for it to writing, setting out its terms, and registration; these provisions are manifestly for the security of creditors and others who may have dealings with the debtor and otherwise might not know of the encumbrances upon the crop. And so it has been held that registration is not essential to the validity of the instrument as between the parties to it. Gay v. Nash, 78 N. C. 100; Reese & Co. v. Cole, 93 N. C. 87, 89.

Compliance with Requirements Prerequisite. — The lien can only be by force of the statute and by a compliance with its requirements. Where the section has not been followed, to sustain the agreement as an agricultural lien would utterly defeat the letter and the public policy embraced by the statute. The agreement, as an agricultural lien, contains a falsehood and a fraud upon its face. Not a dollar was advanced or intended to be, though it was promised in the agreement. The real purpose was to secure an antecedent debt due to the defendant, which was created the year previous. Clark v. Farrar, 74 N. C. 686, 690.

Strict Construction—Lienee Not Bound to See Materials Are Used on the Land.—This section was not intended simply to permit a person to give a lien upon his crop for advances; but also to give such a lien a preference to all other liens existing or otherwise to the extent of such advance. Therefore, it should be strictly construed when the rights of other creditors intervene. Even where such claims do exist, it has been held that the lienor must determine his own needs in conducting his farm, and that his acceptance must be deemed conclusive between the parties, and not less so upon the claim of a subsequently derived title, and that the lienee was not bound to see that the property was used on the farm, his duty is discharged by furnishing it. Womble v. Leach, 83 N. C. 84; Nichols & Bros. v. Speller, 120 N. C. 75, 78, 26 S. E. 632; Collins v. Bass, 198 N. C. 99, 102, 150 S. E. 706.

An instrument which gives a lien on a crop for supplies to be furnished in making a crop and also conveys personal property as additional security, with the ordinary powers of sale, is valid both as a chattel mortgage and an agricultural lien, and, as between the parties, in the absence of fraud and compulsion, the lien attaches for dry goods, shoes, tobacco, powders, snuff and candy, without a showing that such articles were actually used in making the crop. Nichols & Bros. v. Speller, 120 N. C. 75, 26 S. E. 632.

Not Retroactive.—This section has no retroactive effect so as to impair laborers' liens under section 2472. Warren v. Woodard, 70 N. C. 382.

Estopped to Deny Articles Received as "Supplies."—One who gives a lien on a crop to obtain supplies, under the provisions of this section, is estopped from asserting that articles which he receives as a compliance with the contract are not "supplies" within the meaning of the statute; and a second mortgagee, who acquires an interest in the crop after such advances are made, stands in no better plight, and is likewise bound by such admission. Womble v. Leach, 83 N. C. 84.

Crops Covered by Lien.—The operations of a mortgage or agricultural lien in respect to crops are confined to crops then or about to be planted, and will not be extended further than those planted next after the execution of the instrument. Wooten v. Hill, 98 N. C. 48, 3 S. E. 846.

Power of Sale in Instrument Does Not Invalidate It. — A power of sale upon default in paying advances, inserted in an instrument giving a lien upon crops, does not invalidate the instrument, though prescribing a different remedy from that allowed by the statute. Crinkley v. Egerton, 113 N. C. 142, 18 S. E. 341.

Mortgage on Crops as Agricultural Lien.—A mortgagee, under a mortgage on a crop not expressed to be for advances to be made and not recorded after its execution, has no rights as an agricultural lienee by virtue of this section. Cooper v. Kimball, 123 N. C. 120, 31 S. E. 346.

Cited in Brooks v. Garrett, 195 N. C. 452, 142 S. E. 486. White v. Riddle, 198 N. C. 511, 152 S. E. 501.

II. PRIORITY OF LIENS.

Lien Preferred to All Others Save the Executions Specified.—An agricultural lien, given by this section, for the purpose of enabling the cultivation of the soil to raise a crop, is preferred by this section to all others, the only exception being that in favor of the landlord or laborer contained in section 2488, when it is in proper form and duly registered; and it is preferred to liens of other kinds existing by mortgage or deed of trust on the same crop, to the extent of the amount advanced thereunder. Williams v. Davis, 183 N. C. 90, 110 S. E. 577.

Same—Not Subordinate to Marketing Agreement.—In view of the policy of the State as manifested in the statutes to favor agricultural liens, such a lien for advances will not be held subordinate to a marketing agreement. Tobacco Growers' Co-Op. Ass'n v. Harvey & Son Co., 189 N. C. 494, 127 S. E. 545.

Precedence Over a Prior Mortgage Lien.—An agricultural lien duly executed and registered takes precedence over a mortgage of prior date and registration upon the "crops" therein subjected to the extent of the advances made. Wooten v. Hill, 98 N. C. 48, 3 S. E. 846. Killebrew v. Hines, 104 N. C. 182, 193, 10 S. E. 159, 251.

But see Brewer v. Chappell, 101 N. C. 251, 7 S. E. 670, where it was held that an agricultural lien, created to secure advances made to one who is in possession of the land as mortgagor, in the absence of any agreement to the contrary with the mortgagee, is subject to the mortgage, and the mortgagor may take the crops to the exclusion of the holder of the lien. Brewer v. Chappell, 101 N. C. 251, 7 S. E. 670.

A statutory agricultural lien for supplies and advancements during the current crop year, conforming to the requirements of this section both as to context and registration, is superior to a prior registered chattel mortgage given to secure an antecedent debt, the chattel mortgage not being in the required form to constitute a crop lien for supplies as contemplated by the section. Eastern Cotton Oil Co. v. Powell, 201 N. C. 351, 160 S. E. 292.

Priority of the Lien of Landlord.—The lien of the landlord for rents and advancements in the lien first preferred above all others. Brewer v. Chappell, 101 N. C. 251, 254, 7 S. E. 670.

Where a mortgagor has surrendered his land to the mortgagee, but continues thereon as tenant of the mortgagee in making the crop, and a third person makes advancements, holding a lien therefor, under this section, and the lienor knows of the surrender at the time he had made the advancements, his lien is secondary to that of the landlord's for rent, and a paper-writing of the agreement of surrender between the landlord and tenant was not necessary. Section 2481 is not applicable to such case. Montague v. Thorpe, 196 N. C. 163, 144 S. E. 691. See note under § 2355.

Same—Extent of Priority. — Although under this section the lien of a landlord for rent and advances is superior to that of a third party making advances to the tenant, yet such priority exists only for rent accruing or advances made during the year in which the crops are grown, and not for a balance due for an antecedent year. Ballard & Co. v. Johnson, 114 N. C. 141, 19 S. E. 98.

III. THE WRITTEN AGREEMENT.

A. Form and Execution.

No Particular Form of Agreement Required.—To create an agricultural lien under this section no particular form of agreement is required. If the requisite prescribed by the statutes are embodied in the agreement, and the intent of the parties to create the lien is apparent, the agreement will be upheld as a valid agricultural lien though it be in the form of a chattel mortgage. Meekins v. Walker, 119 N. C. 46, 25 S. E. 706.

Furnishing Supplies and Executing the Instruments Contemporaneously.—When furnishing the supplies and making the securing instruments are contemporaneous, constituting one transaction of which these acts are parts, it is not material which precedes in actual time, for in contemplation of law both are done at one and the same time. This view is suggested in the opinion in Womble v. Leach, 83 N. C. 84, as a reasonable construction which accomplishes the substantial purposes intended. Reese & Co. v. Cole, 93 N. C. 87, 91.

Same—It is Immaterial Which Act is Done First.—The agreement is a single transaction between the parties, executed by one in making the advances, and by the other in providing the statutory security for their payment. In such a case it is indifferent which act is first done, if both are done at the same time and in execution of their contract and understanding. The purpose is to enable the former to obtain the means of making his crop by creating a lien upon it when made, and the requirement for writing and registration is for the protection of others who may deal with him. Reese & Co. v. Cole, 93 N. C. 87, 90.

B. Registration.

Registration Not Necessary Inter Partes.—A crop lien to secure agricultural advances executed under this section is valid inter partes, although not registered within thirty days, as required by the section. Gay v. Nash, 78 N. C. 100.

Time of Registration Subsequent to Amendment—Effect.—In 4 N. C. Law Rev. 5, it is said: "The statute as amended fails to require registration within any specified time before the harvesting of the crop. What would be the effect of two persons making advances on the same crop, when the latter advance, in point of time, was the first registered? It has been held that a mortgage on a crop, not expressed to be for advances, and not registered within 30 days after execution, has no rights as an agricultural lien under sec. 2480. Cooper v. Kimball, 123 N. C. 120, 31 S. E. 346. This would hardly give a basis for a decision in the case put above, as the thirty day provision is omitted by the present law, but the first lien registered should prevail. It would be a race for the register's office."

IV. DESCRIPTION OF LAND.

Identification of the Land by Sufficient Description.—The land on which the crops are to be grown must be sufficiently identified at the time the lien is executed. Within this ruling land is sufficiently identified when described as "a field or farm in possession of the mortgagor or seller." Weil v. Flowers, 109 N. C. 212, 13 S. E. 761; Gwathney v. Etheridge, 99 N. C. 571, 6 S. E. 411.

An instrument giving a lien upon crops raised "upon Opossum Quarter tract of land in Warren County, known as the tract M. W. is buying from Egerton, or any other lands he may cultivate during the present year," sufficiently described the lands upon which the crops were to be raised, and was effective as to the crops raised on the land described, but void as to those raised on "any other lands." Crinkley v. Egerton, 113 N. C. 142, 18 S. E. 341.

V. EVIDENCE.

Extraneous Evidence to Show Time of Furnishing Materials.—Where an instrument intended to operate as an agricultural lien contains, on its face, the statutory requisites, except that it does not show that the money or supplies were furnished after the agreement, it is competent to show, dehors such instrument, that the supplies were furnished after the making of the agreement. Meekins v. Walker, 119 N. C. 46, 25 S. E. 706. Such evidence would not contradict the written instrument. Id.

§ 2481. Contract for advances by mortgagor in possession. — The preceding section shall apply to all contracts made for the advancement of money and supplies, or either, for the purposes herein specified by mortgagors or trustors, their tenants, lessees or croppers, who may be in possession of the lands mortgaged or conveyed in trust at the time of the making of the contract for such advancement of money or supplies, either in case the debts secured in said mortgage or deed of trust be due or not. (Rev., s. 2053; 1889, c. 476; 1931, c. 173, ss. 2, 3.)

See annotations to the preceding section.

Editor's Note.—This section, which gives a lien for advances by mortgagors or trustors was amended by Acts 1931, to give the same protection to "their tenants, lessees or croppers." The amendment, which excepted pending litigation, became effective March 23, 1931. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 383.

Cited in Slade Rhodes & Co. v. James, 194 N. C. 240, 139 S. E. 240.

§ 2482. Price to be charged for articles advanced limited. — In order to be entitled to the benefits of the lien on crops in favor of landlords and other persons advancing supplies under the article, Agricultural Tenancies, of the chapter, Landlord and Tenant, and under the present article, or on a chattel mortgage on crops, such landlord or person shall charge for such supplies a price or prices of not more than ten per cent over the retail cash price or prices of the article or articles advanced, and the said ten per cent shall be in lieu of interest on the debt for such advances: Provided, however, that coupon books and trade checks commonly used by time merchants shall be considered as supplies advanced, when sold by merchants to customers, and charged for in the same manner. If more than ten per cent over the retail cash price is charged on any advances made under the lien or mortgage given on the crop, then the lien or mortgage shall be null and void as to the article or articles upon which such overcharge is made. At the time of each sale there shall be delivered to the purchaser a memorandum showing the cash prices of the articles advanced. (1917, c. 134, s. 1; 1921, c. 89.)

Editor's Note.—The proviso to the first sentence of this section was added by the amendment of 1921.

Public Laws 1929, cc. 20 and 262, repealed this section as to Robeson and Lenoir Counties, and Public Laws 1931, c. 95, repealed it as to Scotland and Columbus Counties.

Evidence Insufficient to Sustain Finding as to Price Charged.—In an action to recover the balance due a cropper for advancements made for the cultivation of the crop and to establish the lien provided by § 2480, the referee found as a fact, that the advancements were in money, merchandise and fertilizer, that the plaintiffs had charged more than 10 per cent above the retail cash price for fertilizer of the same kind, and declared the statutory lien void under the provisions of this section: Held, the action of the trial judge in confirming the report of the referee was erroneous, in view of § 2483, in the absence of evidence that such advance price had been charged for the fertilizer, or that if otherwise the lien would necessarily be void as to the other merchandise sold. Slade Rhodes & Co. v. James, 194 N. C. 240, 139 S. E. 240.

§ 2483. "Cash prices" defined and determined. —In the case of retail merchants, the retail cash price or prices shall be the regular cash price or prices charged by the same merchant to cash customers for the same article or articles in like quantities at the same time. In the case of advances of supplies by landlords or other persons not engaged in business as retail merchants, or by retail merchants who have no regular cash prices, if the prices charged are called into question by the purchaser the retail cash price or prices of the supplies advanced may be determined by taking the average between the cash price or prices for the same class or classes of goods of two neighboring merchants, one selected by the landlord or other person making the advance and the other by the one to whom the advance is made. (1917, c. 134, s. 2.)

See note under § 2482.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1929, cc. 20 and 262, repealed this section as to Robeson and Lenoir Counties, and Public Laws 1931, c. 95, repealed it as to Scotland and Columbus Counties.

§ 2484. Person advanced not estopped by agreement. — No agreement or understanding between the parties as to the price or prices to be charged shall work an estoppel against the person to whom supplies have been advanced from showing that the price or prices charged were in fact more than ten per cent over the average retail cash price or prices in that locality at the time the advance or advances were made. If the price or prices charged by the merchants or landlord were in fact more than ten per cent, then the lien shall be null and void as to the article or articles upon which such overcharge is made. (1917, c. 134, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1929, cc. 20 and 262, repealed this section as to Robeson and Lenoir Counties, and Public Laws 1931, c. 95, repealed it as to Scotland and Columbus Counties.

§ 2485. Commission in lieu of interest, where advance in money. — Any person, firm, or corporation, including any bank or credit union, making any advancement in money to any person for the purpose of enabling such person to cultivate a crop, and taking as sole security for the advance so made a lien or mortgage on the crops to be cultivated and the personal property of the person to whom the advances are made, may charge, in lieu of interest, a commission of not more than ten per cent of the amount of money actually advanced: Provided, that money advanced under the provisions of this section shall be advanced in installments agreed upon at the time of the contract, and the ten per cent commission herein allowed shall not be deducted, but shall be added to the amount of money agreed to be advanced. (1917, c. 134, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1929, cc. 20, 262, repealed this and the two following sections as to Robeson and Lenoir Counties.

Applied in Ransom v. Eastern Cotton Oil Co., 203 N. C. 193, 165 S. E. 350.

§ 2486. Disposition of commission, where advanced by credit union. — In case the money is advanced by a credit union, the funds derived from the ten per cent commission allowed in the preceding section shall be used to pay such interest as the union may pay for the money borrowed by it for the benefit of its members, and to cover losses sustained by the union on account of loans made to members, and to further cover any reasonable expenses incurred by the union in connection with the loans made to members, and the balance of said fund shall be returned to the borrowers at the end of each year. (1917, c. 134, s. 4.)

See note under § 2485.

§ 2487. Purchasers for value protected. — All liens or mortgages made under the provisions of this article shall be valid for their face value in the hands of purchasers for value and before maturity, even though the charges made are in excess of those allowed herein; but in such cases the party to whom the advances are made has the right to recover from the party making the advances any sum he may be compelled to pay a third party in excess of the charges allowed by this article. (1917, c. 134, ss. 5, 6.)

See note under § 2485.

§ 2488. Crop seized and sold to preserve lien. —If the person making such advances makes an affidavit before the clerk of the superior court of the county in which such crops are, that the amount secured by said lien for such advances, or any part thereof, is due and unpaid, that the person to whom such advances have been made, or any other person having the said crop in his possession, is about to sell or in any other way is about to defeat the lien hereinbefore provided for, accompanied with a statement of the amount then due, it is lawful for him to issue his warrant, directed to any of the sheriffs of this state, requiring them to seize the said crop, and, after due notice, sell the same for cash and pay over the net proceeds thereof, or so much thereof as may be necessary in the extinguishment of the amount then due. This proceeding shall not affect the rights of landlords or laborers. (Rev., s. 2054; Code, s. 1800; 1893, c. 9; 1866-7, c. 1, s. 2; 1872-3, c. 133, s. 2; 1883, c. 88.)

Purpose of Section—Remedy of Cultivator.—The purpose of the section is to give a summary remedy, where there is reason to believe that the cultivator is attempting to commit a fraud upon the lien of the party who has made the advances. It is clear from a perusal of the statute that in order to prevent an attempted fraud it was the intent of the law-making power to dispense with a summons to the next term of the superior court, and to allow the crop or so much thereof as was necessary to satisfy the debt, which is required to be set out in the affidavit, to be seized and sold by summary process, leaving the cultivator to his remedy by civil action in case he was not in default, and also by indictment against the party who makes the affidavit in case it be false in regard to the fraud charged or in regard to the amount alleged to be due. Thomas v. Campbell, 74 N. C. 787, 789.

Procedure in General.—The remedy given under this section is summary and prompt, and as a special proceeding has for its object the appropriation of the encumbered crops to the satisfaction of the debt created in making them. When this appropriation has been made the proceeding is exhausted and comes to an end. If the debt is disputed, and notice thereof given to the officer, accompanied with the defendant's affidavit denying the indebtedness claimed, he is required to hold the proceeds of sale until the issue of the controverted indebtedness can be tried in the superior court. If the warrant is revoked, the goods or the proceeds of sale must be returned, as must be the excess when they are more than sufficient to meet the plaintiff's demand and costs, as stated by himself, or as reduced by the verdict of the jury. The statute in direct terms makes no other provision for the intervention of the debtor to stop the progress of the proceeding. Gay v. Nash, 84 N. C. 334; Cottingham & Bros. v. McKay, 86 N. C. 241, 243.

No Summons to Defendant Is Necessary.—It is not necessary to the regularity of a summary proceeding for the enforcement of an agricultural lien under this section that a summons should be issued to the defendant. Thomas v. Campbell, 74 N. C. 787.

Effect of Verdict Failing to Assess Damages.—Where in a proceeding to enforce an agricultural lien under this section the crop was sold by the sheriff, and on trial before a jury the defendant admitted the execution of the lien, but denied that anything was due for advances thereunder, there was a general verdict for the plaintiff, and the court refused judgment because the jury failed to assess the damages. It was held error; the verdict established the "lien debt" in excess of the proceeds of sale, entitling the plaintiff to judgment. Gay v. Nash, 84 N. C. 334.

Return of Moneys in Court's Custody to Defendant.—Where in a proceeding under this section, the money arising from the sale of the crop has been paid into court and the proceeding dismissed, the court has the power to order a return of the money to the defendant, although the plaintiff has instituted another action and files an affidavit that the defendant is insolvent. Cottingham & Bro. v. McKay, 86 N. C. 241.

Revocation of Warrant by Clerk.—There can be no question of the reserved power in the clerk to revoke and supersede a warrant which he may have improvidently issued under this section. Cottingham & Bro. v. McKay, 86 N. C. 241, 243.

Cited in White v. Riddle, 198 N. C. 511, 152 S. E. 501.

§ 2489. Lienor's claim disputed; proceeds of sale held; issue made for trial. — If the person to whom the advances have been made, or who claims an interest in the crops, within thirty days after such sale has been made, gives notice in writing to the sheriff, accompanied with an affidavit, to the effect that the amount claimed is not justly due, it is the duty of the sheriff to hold the proceeds of such sale subject to the decision of the court upon an issue which shall be made up and set for trial at the next succeeding term of the superior court for the county in which the person to whom such advances have been made resides. (Rev., s. 2054; Code, s. 1800; 1866-7, c. 1, s. 2; 1872-3, c. 133, s. 2; 1883, c. 88; 1893, c. 9.)

§ 2490. Local: Short form of liens.—For the purpose of creating a valid agricultural lien under the preceding sections for supplies to be advanced, and also to constitute a valid chattel mortgage as additional security thereto, and to secure a pre-existing debt, the following or a substantially similar form shall be deemed sufficient, and for those purposes legally effective, in the counties of Alamance, Alleghany, Anson, Ashe, Bladen, Brunswick, Buncombe, Burke, Cabarrus, Carteret, Caswell, Catawba, Chowan, Columbus, Craven, Cumberland, Davie, Davidson, Duplin, Durham, Edgecombe, Forsyth, Franklin, Gaston, Gates, Granville, Halifax, Harnett, Hertford, Hyde, Iredell, Johnston, Jones, Lenoir, Lincoln, Martin, McDowell, Mecklenburg, Moore, Nash, New Hanover, Northampton, Onslow, Pender, Pamlico, Person, Pitt, Polk, Randolph, Richmond, Robeson, Rockingham, Rowan, Rutherford, Sampson, Scotland, Transylvania, Tyrell, Union, Vance, Wake, Watauga, Washington, Wayne and Wilson: North Carolina, ... Editor's Note.—By the amendments of 1925 and 1931 Randolph and Franklin Counties were brought within the scope of this section.

Public Laws 1933, c. 101, struck out Beaufort from the list of counties, and provided a standard form of agricultural lien and title note in that county, fixing fees for recording same.

No Particular Form Required.—This section requires no particular form for the written instrument creating a valid agricultural lien but that it be substantially according to that therein prescribed, and the courts in construing it will look to the substance rather than the form and regard the entire writing with the view of ascertaining and effectuating the intention of the parties; and an instrument expressing itself to be an agricultural lien, and given in consideration of money or goods to be advanced for the purpose of making crops on certain land for the current year, with certain other property pledged as additional security, is sufficient without further designation, it appearing that the parties intended it to be one. Jones-Phillips Co. v. McCormick, 174 N. C. 82, 93 S. E. 449.

§ 2491. Local: Rights on lienee's failure to cultivate. — If any person in the counties mentioned in the preceding section, after executing a lien as aforesaid for advances, fails to cultivate the lands described therein, or does any other act calculated to impair the security therein given, then the person to whom the lien was executed is relieved from any further obligation to furnish supplies, and the debts and advances theretofore made become due and collectible at once, and the person to whom the instrument was executed may proceed to take possession of, cultivate and harvest said crops, and to sell the other property described therein. It is not necessary to incorporate such power in the instrument, but this section is sufficient authority for the same. The sale of any property described in any instrument executed under the provisions of this chapter may be made at any place in the county where such property is situated after ten days notice published at the courthouse door and three other public places in said county. (Rev., s. 2056; 1899, c. 17, s. 3; 1901, c. 329, s. 3.)

§ 2492. Local: Commissioners to furnish blank records.—The board of commissioners of the said counties shall have record books made with the aforesaid forms printed therein, and the cost of said books and of the printing of said forms, and of such other said books as may be hereafter required, shall be paid by the respective counties, and furnished to the register of deeds. (Rev., s. 2057; 1899, c. 17, s. 4; 1901, c. 329, s. 4.)

Art. 10. Liens for Internal Revenue

§ 2492(a). Filing notice of lien.—Notices of liens for internal revenue taxes payable to the United States of America and certificates discharging such liens may be filed in the office of the register of deeds of the county or counties within which the property subject to such lien is situated. (1924, c. 44, s. 1.)

§ 2492(b). Duty of register of deeds.—When a notice of such tax lien is filed, the register of deeds shall forthwith enter the same in alphabetical Federal lien tax index to be provided by the board of county commissioners, showing on one line the name and residence of the taxpayer named in such notice, the collector's serial number of such notice, the date and hour of filing, and the amount of tax and penalty assessed. He shall file and keep all original notices so filed in numerical order in a file or files to be provided by the board of county commissioners and designated Federal tax lien notices. This service shall be performed without fee. (1924, c. 44, s. 2.)

§ 2492(c). Certificate of discharge.—When a certificate of discharge of any tax lien, issued by the collector of internal revenue or other proper officer, is filed in the office of the register of deeds where the original notice of lien is filed, said register of deeds shall enter the same with date of filing in said Federal tax lien index on the line where the notice of the lien so discharged is entered, and permanently attach the original certificate of discharge to the original notice of lien. This service shall be performed without fee. (1924, c. 44, s. 3.)

§ 2492(d). Purpose of article.—This article is passed for the purpose of authorizing the filing of notices of liens in accordance with the provisions of section three thousand one hundred eighty-six of the Revised Statutes of the United States, as amended by the act of March fourth, one thousand nine hundred thirteen, thirty-seven Statutes at Large, page one thousand sixteen. (1924, c. 44, s. 4.)

CHAPTER 49 (A)

LOCAL DEVELOPMENT

§ 2492(e). Purposes of chapter.—The mayor and board of aldermen, or other governing body of any city, or the governing body of any incorporated town, or the county commissioners of any county, may annually set apart and appropriate from the funds derived annually from the general taxes levied and collected in such city, incorporated town, or county, an amount not less than one-fortieth of one per cent, nor more than one-tenth of one per cent, upon the assessed valuation of all real and personal property taxable in any such city, incorporated town, or county, which funds shall be used and expended under the direction and control of the mayor and board of aldermen, or other governing body of such city, or the governing body of any incorporated town, or the county commissioners of any county, under such rules and regulations or through such agencies as they shall prescribe, for the purpose of aiding and encouraging the location of manufacturing enterprises, making industrial surveys and locating industrial and commercial plants in or near such city, or incorporated town or in such county; encouraging the building of railroads thereto, and for such other purposes as will, in the discretion of the mayor and board of aldermen, or other governing body of any city, or the governing body of any incorporated town, or the county commissioners of any county, increase the population, taxable property, agricultural industries and business prospects of any city, incorporated town, or any county. (1925, c. 33, s. 1.)

§ 2492(f). Ratification or petition of voters required.—No city, incorporated town, or county, shall raise or appropriate money under this chapter unless and until this act shall have been approved by a majority of the qualified voters of such city, incorporated town, or county, at an election as provided in this chapter; or by a petition of the registered voters in any town of less than three thousand inhabitants, as provided in this chapter. (1925, c. 33, s. 2.)

§ 2492(g). Election to adopt chapter.—The mayor and board of aldermen, or other governing body of any city, or the governing body of any incorporated town, or the county commissioners of any county, may at any time by ordinance call a special election for the purpose of submitting the question of the approval of this chapter to the voters of such city, incorporated town, or county. In said ordinance said board of aldermen, or other governing body of any city, or town, or said county commissioners, shall specify the time of holding the election and determine and set forth whether or not there shall be a new registration of the voters for such election. Notice of the registration of the voters and of the election shall be given, the voters shall be registered, the election shall be held, the returns shall be canvassed, and the results shall be determined, declared and published under and pursuant to the provisions of section two thousand nine hundred and forty-eight of chapter one hundred and six, extra session, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one, known as the Municipal Finance Act, and as therein provided for an election upon a bond ordinance providing for the issuance of bonds for a purpose other than the payment of necessary expenses of a municipality. A ballot or ballots shall be furnished to each qualified voter at said election. The ballots for those who vote in favor of this chapter shall contain the words "for the act to aid in the development of any city, incorporated town, or county," and the ballots for those who vote against this chapter shall contain the words "against the act to aid in the development of any city, incorporated town, or county." Except as otherwise provided in said section two thousand nine hundred and forty-eight, chapter one hundred and six, Public Laws, extra session, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one, the registration and election shall be conducted in accordance with the laws then governing elections for municipal or county officers in such municipality or county, and governing the registration of the electors for such election of officers. (1925, c. 33, s. 3.)

§ 2492(h). Action to invalidate election; limitation.—No right of action or defense founded upon the invalidity of the election shall be asserted, nor shall the validity of the election be open to question in any court upon any ground whatever, except in an action or proceeding commenced within thirty days after the publication of the statement showing the result of the election. (1925, c. 33, s. 4.)

§ 2492(i). Petition to adopt chapter in certain towns.—In any incorporated town of less than three thousand inhabitants, in lieu of an election as herein provided, the will of the voters may be determined by a petition in writing giving approval of this chapter, which petition shall be signed by at least three-fourths of all the registered voters of said municipality whose names appeared upon the registration books of the municipality for the election of municipal officers next preceding the time of the filing of said petition: Provided, that such three-fourths of the voters shall be the owners of at least seventy-five per cent of the total taxable property of said town, as shown by the assessed valuation, and the tax lists of such town as last fixed for municipal taxation. The residence address of each signer shall be written after his signature; each signature to the petition shall be verified by a statement (which may relate to a number of signatures) made by some adult resident freeholder of the municipality, under oath before an officer competent to administer oaths to the effect that the signature was made in his presence, and is the genuine signature of the person whose name it purports to be. The petition need not be all on one sheet, and if on more than one sheet, it shall be verified as to each sheet. The board of aldermen or other governing body of said town shall canvass said petition and shall include in their canvass the voters signing the petition, and the number of voters upon the registration books and qualified to sign the petition, and the assessed valuation at last fixed for municipal taxation of the property owned by the voters signing the petition, and the entire assessed valuation of property within the town, and shall judiciously determine and declare the result of the canvass of said petition, and shall prepare and publish a statement of the result, and publish the same as required in the case of an election by ballot under this chapter. The same limitation upon the right of action or defense founded upon the invalidity of the petition shall apply in the case of an election by ballot under this chapter. (1925, c. 33, s. 5.)

§ 2492(j). Effect of adoption of chapter.—If and when this chapter shall have been approved by the voters of any city, incorporated town, or county, at an election or by petition as provided by this chapter, then and thereafter the governing body of such city, or incorporated town, or the county commissioners of such county, may raise by taxation and appropriate money within the limits and for the purposes specified in this chapter. (1925, c. 33, s. 6.)

§ 2492(k). Constitutionality; application. — If any clause, sentence, paragraph or part of this chapter shall for any reason be adjudged by any court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, such judgment shall not affect, impair or invalidate the remainder of this chapter, but shall be confined in its operation to the clause, sentence, paragraph or part thereof directly involved in the controversy in which said judgment shall have been rendered: Provided, that Pamlico County be exempted from the provisions of this chapter. (1925, c. 33, s. 7.)

CHAPTER 49(B).

LOCAL GOVERNMENT ACT — VALIDATION OF INDEBTEDNESS OF UNIT.

Art. 1. Local Government Commission and Director of Local Government.

§ 2492 (1). Official title. — This act shall be known and may be cited as the Local Government Act. (1931, c. 60, s. 1.)

§ 2492(2). Definitions.—The word commission will herein be used to refer to the Local Government Commission created by this act; the word Director will refer to the Director of Local Government; the word unit will be used to refer to a county, city, town, incorporated village, township, school district, school taxing district or other district or political sub-division of government of the State; and where bonds or notes are mentioned reference shall be deemed made to any obligations to pay money issued by or in behalf of any unit unless otherwise indicated or specified. (1931, c. 60, s. 2.)

§ 2492(3). County Government Advisory Commission abolished; surrender of books, etc.; functions, etc., transferred to Director of Local Government. — The County Government Advisory Commission, created under the provisions of chapter ninety-one, Public Laws of nineteen hundred and twenty-seven, is hereby abolished and all books, records, documents and files of said Commission shall forthwith be turned over to the Commission created by this act by the Executive Secretary thereof and by any member or officer having in his possession or custody any of such books, records, documents and files. All the functions, powers and duties of said County Government Advisory Commission under said chapter ninety-one and other laws, including acts of the present session of the General Assembly, are hereby transferred to and shall be the functions, powers and duties of the Director whose office is created by this act. (1931, c. 60, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1927, c. 91, s. 16, provided: "The duties of the commission shall be to take under consideration the whole subject of county administration; to advise with the county commissioners as to the best methods of administering the county business; to prepare and recommend to the governing authorities of the various counties simple and efficient methods of accounting, together with blanks, books, and other necessary improvements; to suggest such changes in the organization of the departments of the county government as will best promote the public interests, and to render assistance in carrying the same into operation. They may make such recommendations to the Governor from time to time as they may deem advisable as to changes in the general laws controlling county government, and such recommendations may be submitted by the Governor, upon his approval, to the next meeting of the General Assembly."

As to other duties of the director of local government, see §§ 1302(14)-1302(16).

§ 2492(4). Surrender to new Commission of books and records of State Sinking Fund Commission.—The State Auditor and the State Sinking Fund Commission are hereby directed to turn over to the Commission created by this act all books, records, documents and files of said State Auditor or said State Sinking Fund Commission made or filed with either thereof under the provisions of Public Laws 1927, c. 214, or Public Laws 1929, c. 277, or, in the discretion of the Commission created by this act, to retain the same or any part thereof for the inspection and use of the last mentioned Commission. (1931, c. 60, s. 6.)

§ 2492(5). Creation of local government commission.—There is hereby created a commission to be known as the local government commission, consisting of nine members of whom the state auditor and the state treasurer and the secretary of state and the commissioner of revenue shall be members ex-officio and of whom six members shall be appointed by the governor to hold office during his pleasure. One of such appointees shall have had experience as the chief executive officer or a member of the governing body of a city or town and one thereof shall have had experience as a member of the governing body of a county at the time of their appointment. The members of the commission, both ex-officio members and appointed members, shall be required to give such bond, if any, as the governor may require. The state treasurer shall be ex-officio director of local government and shall also be the treasurer and chairman of the commission. The board shall elect a vice-chairman from its members who shall hold office at the will of the commission. The appointed members of the commission shall be entitled to ten dollars for each day actually spent in the service of the commission, but shall receive no salary or other compensation, and all members shall be entitled to their necessary traveling and other expenses. The director shall appoint some competent person as secretary of the commission and assistant to the director and may appoint such assistants as may be necessary, who shall be responsible to the director, and may fix their compensation subject to the approval of the governor. The commission shall have power to adopt such rules and regulations as may be necessary for carrying out its duties under this act. The commission shall hold quarterly regular meetings in the city of Raleigh at such place and times as may be designated by the commission, and may hold special meetings at any time upon notice to each member personally given or sent by mail or telegraph not later than the fifth day before the meeting, which notice need not state the purpose of the meeting. It shall have the right to call upon the attorney general or any assistant thereof or upon the executive counsel for legal advice in relation to its powers and duties. The functions of the local government commission and of the director of local government shall be maintained and operated as a separate and distinct division of the department of the state treasurer. (1931, c. 60, s. 7; c. 296, s. 8; 1933, c. 31, s. 1.)

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 251, for comment on this section as amended in 1933.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1933, c. 31, made the secretary of state an ex officio member of the commission, made the treasurer ex officio director, and provided for the appointment by the director of the secretary of the commission and assistant to the director; deleted a provision which excepted the director from the $10 remuneration, and added the last sentence as to maintenance and operation as separate and distinct division. Section 3 of c. 31 of the Amendatory Act of 1933 provides for the transfer of the records to the state treasurer.

§ 2492(6). Executive committee; powers; quorum.—The state auditor and state treasurer, the commissioner of revenue and secretary of state shall constitute the executive committee of the commission and shall be vested with all the powers of the commission except when the commission is in session and except as otherwise provided in this act. Action of the commission as a whole and of the executive committee shall be taken by resolution which shall be in effect upon passage by a majority of the members of the commission or the committee present at the meeting at which such resolution is passed. A majority of the commission shall be a quorum. (1931, c. 60, s. 8; 1933, c. 31, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1933, c. 31, substituted secretary of state for the director as a member of the committee.

§ 2492(7). Executive Committee may act for Commission; bond for expenses for attending special meetings.—All action herein required or permitted to be taken by the Commission may be taken by the Executive Committee and shall be regarded as action by the Commission unless otherwise herein expressly provided, but the Committee shall not overrule or reverse any action of the Commission as a whole.

The Commission shall not be required to meet as a whole except at the times fixed for quarterly sessions, and may demand that any application for a special meeting may be accompanied by a bond or other security for the costs and expenses of such special meeting to be given by the unit or person at whose request the special meeting is called. (1931, c. 60, s. 9.)

§ 2492(8). Review by Commission of actions of Executive Committee. — Action of the Commission taken by the Executive Committee, except approval of notes maturing not more than six months from their date, shall be subject to review by the Commission as a whole upon the application of any aggrieved party, including any tax-payer or citizen, and including any member of the Executive Committee, if the aggrieved party shall within five days after such action by the Executive Committee file with the Commission a request for such review. (1931, c. 60, s. 10.)

§ 2492(9). Application to Commission for issuance of bonds or notes.—Before any bonds or notes are issued by or in behalf of any unit and before the question of such issuance shall be submitted at an election, except bonds or notes whose issuance has heretofore been approved by the State Sinking Fund Commission under the provisions of Public Laws 1929, c. 277, the board authorized by law to issue the same or an officer thereof shall make application to the Commission (either before or after such authorization) for its approval of the proposed bonds or notes and shall state such facts in such application or by exhibits annexed thereto in regard to such bonds or notes and such unit and its financial condition as may be required by the Commission. The Commission shall consider such application and shall determine whether the issuance of such bonds or notes is necessary or expedient. (1931, c. 60, s. 11.)

§ 2492(10). Determining advisability of proposed issues.—In determining whether a proposed issue of bonds or notes shall be approved, the Commission may consider the necessity for any improvement to be made from the proceeds of any of such bonds or notes, the amount of indebtedness of the unit then outstanding, the fact that sinking funds for existing debts have been adequately maintained or have not been adequately maintained, the percentage of collections of taxes for the preceding fiscal year, the fact of compliance or non-compliance with the law in the matter of budgetary control, the question of whether the unit is in default in the payment of any of its indebtedness or interest thereon, the existing tax rates, the increase of tax rate, if any, necessary to maintain such sinking funds adequately, the assessed value of taxable property, and the reasonable ability of the unit to sustain the additional tax levy, if any, necessary, to pay the interest and principal of the proposed obligations, as the same become payable. If the proposed issue is for a public improvement in the nature of establishing or enlarging a revenue producing enterprise, the Commission shall take into consideration the probable earnings of the improvement and the extent to which such earnings will be sufficient to pay the interest and principal when due of the proposed obligations or that part thereof to be devoted to such improvement. The Commission shall also consider the adequacy or inadequacy of the amount of the proposed issue for the accomplishment of the purpose for which the obligations are to be issued, and whether such amount is excessive. The Commission shall have authority to inquire into and to give consideration to any other matters which it may believe to have a bearing on the question presented. (1931, c. 60, s. 12.)

§ 2492(11). Commission to order issue if satisfied of certain points enumerated; public hearing on refusal. — If, upon the information and evidence received the Commission is of the opinion (a) that issuance of the proposed obligations is necessary or expedient and (b) that the amount proposed is adequate and not excessive and, except as to funding and refunding bonds, (c) either that adequate sinking funds have been maintained or that reasonable assurance has been given that thenceforth they will be maintained to the extent required by or under the authority of law, and (d) that the increase in tax rate, if any, that will be necessitated for the proper maintenance of sinking funds as so required will not be unduly burdensome and (e) that the unit is not in default in the payment of the principal or interest of any of its indebtedness and (f) that the requirements of law for budgetary control have been substantially complied with and (g) that at least eighty (80%) per cent of the general taxes of the unit for the preceding fiscal year have been collected, then and in such event the Commission shall make its order approving such issuance. If upon the information presented the Commission is not of such opinion or is in doubt as to any facts or as to any conclusions to be drawn therefrom, it shall so notify the officer or board making the application, and if such officer or board so request, shall give notice that the Commission will hold a public hearing on the application at a time and place to be specified in such notice, at which public hearing the officers and citizens and tax-payers of the unit may be heard. The Commission may designate its Secretary or any other suitable person to conduct any such hearing and to prepare a digest of testimony and submit the same and his recommendations for the consideration of the Commission. (1931, c. 60, s. 13.)

§ 2492(12). Order of refusal after hearing; vote of unit to veto action of Commission. — If after any such hearing the Commission should not be of such opinion, it shall enter an order giving its reasons for not holding such opinion and in that event the proposed obligations shall not be issued except in such amount and in such manner, if any, as the Commission may approve, or unless, and until, the proposed indebtedness shall have been submitted to and approved by a vote of the voters of the local unit for which such indebtedness is proposed, such election to be held in the manner, if any, provided by law for the holding of elections on the question of issuing such bonds, and otherwise in such manner as may be required by the Commission (1931, c. 60, s. 14.)

§ 2492(13). Review by Commission of approval or refusal of Executive Committee. — An order of the Commission made by the Executive Committee approving such issuance shall not be reviewable by the Commission as a whole unless request for such review shall be filed with the Commission within five days, Sundays excepted, after such order shall be given (except an order passed by unanimous vote of members present approving notes running not more than six months, which shall not be reviewable) but orders of the Commission by the Executive Committee declining to approve issuance may be reviewed by the Commission as a whole if application therefor shall be filed with the Commission within thirty days after such order. New evidence and information may be considered upon any such review, and the Commission as a whole shall not be bound by the evidence or information considered by the Executive Committee. (1931, c. 60, s. 15.)

§ 2492(14). Legality of bonds and notes not involved. — The approval by the Commission of bonds or notes shall not extend to or be regarded as an approval of the legality of the bonds or notes in any respect. (1931, c. 60, s. 16.)

§ 2492(15). Sale of bonds and notes. — All bonds and notes of a unit, unless sold pursuant to a call for bids heretofore legally given, shall be sold by the commission at its office in the city of Raleigh, but the commission shall not be required to make any such sale or to call for bids for any bonds or notes until it shall have approved the issuance thereof as hereinabove provided nor until it shall have received such transcripts, certificates and documents as it may in its discretion require as a condition precedent to the sale or advertisement. Before any such sale is conducted the commission shall cause a notice of the proposed sale to be published at least once at least ten days before the date fixed for the receipt of bids (a) in a newspaper published in the unit having the largest or next largest circulation in the unit or if no newspaper is there published, then in a newspaper published in the county in which the unit is located, if any, and if there be no such newspaper such notice shall be posted at the door of the court house, and (b) such notice, in the discretion of the commission, may be published also in some other newspaper of greater general circulation published in the state. The commission may in its discretion cause such notice to be published in a journal approved by the commission and published in New York City, devoted primarily to the subject of state, county and municipal bonds; provided, however, that notes maturing not more than six months from their date may be disposed of either by private or public negotiation, after five days notice has been given in the manner specified in clause (a) of this section; and provided, further, that upon request of the board or body authorizing any of such bonds or notes for the purpose of refunding, funding, or renewing indebtedness, and with the consent of the holder of any such indebtedness so to be refunded, funded or renewed, the commission through the state treasurer may exchange any such bonds or notes for a like or greater amount of such indebtedness, and make such adjustment of accrued interest as may be requested by said board or body, in which event the publication of notice as hereinabove provided shall not be required. The notice published shall state that the bonds or notes are to be sold upon sealed bids and that there will be no auction, and shall give the amount of the bonds or notes, the place of sale, the time of sale or the time limit for the receipt of proposals and that bidders must present with their bids a certified check upon an incorporated bank or trust company payable unconditionally to the order of the state treasurer for two per cent of the face value of the bonds and one-half of one per cent on notes bid for, drawn on some bank or trust company, the purpose of such check being to secure the unit against any loss resulting from the failure of the bidder to comply with the terms of his bid. The commission shall keep a record of the names and addresses of all who request information as to the time for receipt of bids for such bonds or notes, and shall mail or send a copy of such notice of sale and a descriptive circular in relation thereto to all such names and addresses, but failure so to do shall not affect the legality of the bonds or notes. (1931, c. 60, s. 17, c. 296, s. 1; 1933, c. 258, s. 1.)

Cross References.—See 12 N. C. Law Rev., 325, where it is suggested that this agency would hold in check bond issues for erecting and extending electric systems.

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 215, for comment on this section as amended in 1933.

Editor's Note. — This section formerly provided that the bonds or notes might be exchanged for a like or greater face amount and interest on the exchanged notes collected. The section now provides for exchange of a like or greater "amount of such indebtedness and make such adjustment of accrued interest as may be requested by the said board or body." The change was effected by Public Laws 1933, c. 258.

§ 2492(16). Proposals opened in public; award; rejection of bids.—All proposals shall be opened in public and the bonds or notes shall be awarded to the highest legal bidder, if a fixed rate of interest is named in the notice, or shall be awarded to the highest bidder for the lowest interest rate upon which a legal offer is made if the notice states that bidders may specify the rate of interest, or, if a notice of sale of bonds states that bidders may name one rate for part of the bonds of an issue and another rate or rates for the balance, to the bidder offering to purchase the bonds at the lowest interest cost to the unit, such cost to be determined by deducting the total amount of the premium bid from the aggregate amount of interest upon all of the bonds until their respective maturities. No legal bids may be rejected unless all bids are rejected. If the bids rejected contain any legal bid which is legally acceptable under the advertisement, the bonds or notes shall not be sold until after further advertisement and under the conditions herein prescribed for the first advertisement. (1931, c. 60, s. 18; 1935, c. 356, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 adds the latter part of the first sentence relating to cases in which the bidders may name different rates for different parts of an issue.

§ 2492(17). Minimum price; private sale in event of no bids. — No bonds or notes shall be sold at less than par and accrued interest, nor except as herein otherwise provided or permitted shall any bonds or notes be sold except upon sealed proposals, after publication of notice as hereinabove provided, unless no bid is received upon such notice which is a legal bid and legally acceptable under such notice, in which event the bonds or notes may be sold at private sale at any time within thirty days after the date for receiving bids given in such notice. (1931, c. 60, s. 19.)

§ 2492(18). Rejection in event of objection by unit. — If after the receipt of bids and before an award of the bonds or notes an authorized representative of the unit shall object to any award which the Commission may be about to make pursuant to the foregoing provisions and shall not withdraw such objection, the Commission shall reject all bids and shall make no award until after further advertisement as herein provided. (1931, c. 60, s. 20.)

§ 2492(19). Make-up of bonds or notes. — No such bond or note shall be engraved, lithographed, printed, typewritten or written upon more than one sheet of paper (but a separate sheet or sheets may be used for interest coupons), and the Commission may in its discretion require the use of a protectograph or other means to prevent the raising of the amount thereof or limitation of such bonds or notes. (1931, c. 60, s. 21.)

§ 2492(20). Obligations of units must be certified by Commission.—No bonds or notes or other obligations of any unit hereafter issued shall be valid unless on the face or reverse thereof there be a certificate signed by the Secretary of the Commission or an assistant designated by him either (a) that the issuance of the same has been approved, under the provisions of the Local Government Act, or (b) that the bond or note is not required by law to be approved by the Commission. Such certificate shall be conclusive evidence that the requirements of this act as to approval by the Commission, advertisement and sale have been observed, and shall also be conclusive evidence that the requirements of sections 2492(21) and 2492(22) have been complied with. (1931, c. 60, s. 22, c. 296, s. 2.)

§ 2492(21). Detailed record of all issues to be kept by Commission.—Prior to the execution of such certificate the Commission shall cause to be entered of record in its office a description of such bonds or notes, giving their amount, date, the times fixed for payment of principal and interest, the rate of interest, the place or places at which the principal and interest will be payable, the denomination or denominations and the purpose of issuance, together with the name of the board in which is vested the authority and power to levy taxes for the payment of the principal and interest of such bonds or notes and a reference to the law under which it is claimed such bonds or notes are issued, and shall require to be filed with the Commission a statement of the recording officer of the unit that all proceedings of the board in authorizing the bonds or notes have theretofore been and remain correctly recorded in a bound book of the minutes and proceedings of the board, giving in such statement the designation of the book and the pages or other identification of the exact portion of the book in which such record was made. (1931, c. 60, s. 23.)

§ 2492(22). Contract for services must be approved by Commission.—All contracts and agreements made by any unit with any person, firm or corporation for services to be rendered in the drafting of forms of proceedings for a proposed bond or note issue, except contracts and agreements with attorneys at law licensed to practice before the courts of the State within which they have their residence or regular place of business, which involve no agreement, express or implied, except for legal services, shall be void unless approved by the Commission, whose duty it shall be before causing the certificate of its approval to be endorsed or placed on any such bonds or notes to satisfy itself, by such evidence as it may deem sufficient, that no such contract not so approved by the Commission is in effect in relation to such bonds or notes. Provided, this shall not apply to contracts existing at the time of the ratification of this Act. (1931, c. 60, s. 24.)

Editor's Note.—The Act was ratified on March 3, 1931.

§ 2492(23). State Treasurer to deliver bonds or notes to purchaser; application of proceeds. — When the bonds or notes are executed by the proper officers they shall be turned over to the State Treasurer and after the certificate of the Commission hereinabove required shall be placed thereon, he shall deliver them to the purchaser or order, collect the purchase price or proceeds and before the close of the following day remit the same to the lawful custodian of funds of the unit or, in his discretion, to the properly designated depositary or depositaries of the unit, after assurance that the safe-guarding of such proceeds has been provided as required by law and after deducting all necessary expense including the expense of advertising, selling, shipping and delivering the bonds or notes; nevertheless in the case of bonds or notes sold for refunding or funding purposes the Treasurer may provide that such proceeds shall be deposited at the place of payment of the indebtedness to be refunded or funded for use solely in the payment of such indebtedness or under the conditions hereinabove provided he may provide for the exchange of such bonds or notes for the evidences of indebtedness to be refunded or funded thereby, or, if such indebtedness is not evidenced by bonds, notes, coupons or similar instruments, he may provide for the delivery of said new bonds or notes against a receipt or release from the creditor to whom or to which the indebtedness to be funded or refunded is owing. Coupons or notes issued in exchange for outstanding coupons shall be deemed to be notes issued for refunding or funding purposes, within the meaning of this section. (1931, c. 60, s. 25; 1935, c. 356, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 adds the latter part of the first sentence beginning with the phraseology "or, if such indebtedness is not evidence by bonds, notes, coupons, etc." It also adds the last sentence.

§ 2492(24). Suit on behalf of unit for fulfillment of contracts of sale. — The Commission shall have power to enforce by action or suit in Superior Court of the county or unit affected or in the Federal Court of the District, for and in behalf of the State or the unit affected, any contract or agreement made by the Commission for the sale of any bonds or notes of a unit. (1931, c. 60, s. 26.)

§ 2492(25). Unit must remit interest and principal as they fall due; cancellation of obligations paid. — It shall be the duty of every officer of a unit upon whom is imposed by law the duty of remitting funds for the payment of bonds, notes and interest coupons of the unit to remit to the place at which the same are payable sufficient funds for the payment of such bonds, notes and coupons in sufficient time for the payment thereof as the same fall due, and at the same time to remit to such place of payment the necessary fiscal agency fees of the disbursing bank or trust company at which such bonds, notes or coupons are payable. Upon surrender of the bonds, notes or coupons so paid the same shall be cancelled. It shall be the duties of the officers remitting said funds to report to the Director, simultaneously with making the remittance, upon forms to be provided by the Director. (1931, c. 60, s. 27.)

§ 2492(26). Records of unit sinking funds. — It shall be the duty of the Director to ascertain by reports which he is hereby authorized to require made to him by any financial officer of any unit and by such other means as he may determine upon, the amounts of sinking funds collected for the payment of bonds of each unit not maturing in annual series and the investments of such sinking funds and the rate of taxation levied to provide for such sinking funds. It shall be his further duty to determine from such information whether the provisions of law for the raising and maintenance and preservation of such sinking funds have been observed and if he shall find that in any respect such provisions of law have not been observed he shall issue an order to the officers and/or board members of such unit in charge of such matters who have failed to observe such provisions, requiring them to comply therewith and stating the amount or amounts to be raised annually by taxation for such purpose, and in other respects requiring such officers and/or board members fully to comply with such laws. Within five days after the issuance of any such order, unless the Commission in its discretion shall extend such time, any officer or board member receiving the same shall be entitled to apply to the Commission for a modification of such order, and unless modified by the Commission, and if so modified, to the extent of the order as so modified, it shall be the duty of all officers and board members to whom such order is directed to comply with the same. (1931, c. 60, s. 28.)

§ 2492(27). Investment of unit sinking funds. —It shall be the duty of all officers having charge of the investment of sinking funds of each unit either to deposit such funds under security therefor as provided by this act, or to invest the same (or deposit in part and invest in part) in bonds or notes of the United States or of the state of North Carolina, or in bonds or notes of such unit, or in such bonds or notes of North Carolina municipalities, counties and school districts as are eligible for investment of the sinking funds of the state under any law in force at the time of investment of such local sinking funds, provided, however, that no investment shall be made in any bonds or notes of any city, county or school district except with the approval of the commission, which is hereby directed to scrutinize with great care any applications for any such investment and to refrain from approving the same unless such investment is prudent and is safe in the opinion of the commission and unless the legality thereof has been approved by an attorney believed by the commission to be competent as an authority upon the law of public securities. No such securities shall be purchased at more than the market price thereof, nor sold at less than the market price thereof. The interest and revenues received upon securities held for any sinking fund and any profit made on the resale thereof shall become and be a part of such sinking fund. (1931, c. 60, s. 29; 1933, cc. 143, 436.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1933, cc. 143, 436, deleted two clauses from this section, one qualifying the deposit in bonds of a unit by the words "if such sinking funds are applicable to the payment of such bonds or notes" and the other limiting the approval to cases where the unit is not in duplicate of any payment of principal or interest.

The 1933 Amendment amends this section by striking out the limitation that in the investment in securities of a governmental unit, such unit should not be in default in the payment of principal or interest of its indebtedness. See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 216.

§ 2492(28). Notification to unit officers of unfavorable state of sinking funds; sale of unsafe investments. — If it shall appear to the Director at any time that the sinking funds of any unit are not deposited under security or invested in securities as required by this act, it shall be his duty to notify the officer or officers in charge of such sinking funds of such failure to comply with law, and thereupon it shall be the duty of such officer or officers to comply therewith within thirty days, except as to the sale of investments held by any such sinking fund which are not eligible for the investment thereof, and as to such investments it shall be the duty of such officer or officers to sell the same within nine months after such notification of the Director is received, at a price approved by the Director, provided, however, that the Commission in its discretion may extend from time to time the time for sale of any such investments, but no one extension shall be made to cover a period of more than one year from the time the extension is made: Provided further, that the Director in his discretion may extend for a period not exceeding ninety days the time for securing funds deposited in banks prior to March eighteenth, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one, and the Commission may, in its discretion, further extend said time, but no such extension or extensions of the time for securing such funds shall be made for a period ending later than October first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one, without the approval of the Commissioner of Banks. (1931, c. 60, s. 30, c. 296, s. 6.)

§ 2492(29). Reports to Director of present sinking funds.—It shall be the duty of all officers in charge of the sinking funds of units to report on forms to be furnished by the Director to the Director on the first day of July, one thousand nine hundred thirty-one, and on the first day of each January and July thereafter, a statement of the amounts of the sinking funds of such unit, and whether the same are on deposit, and if so, how the same are secured, or whether the same are invested, and if so, a description of the investments with the respective amounts thereof, in order that the Commission and the Director may be kept informed in regard to such sinking funds; but the Commission or the Director may at any other times require such reports to be made and it shall be the duty of the officers in charge of the sinking funds of any unit to make such reports as herein provided. (1931, c. 60, s. 31.)

§ 2492(30). Sinking funds on deposit must be secured by corporate surety bonds.—It shall be the duty of each officer having charge or custody of funds of a unit, of whatever kind or nature or for whatever purpose the same has been raised or shall be held, to keep them safely and to deposit the same in the depository or depositories designated in the manner provided by law, but before making such deposit he shall require of said depository or depositories that such deposit shall be secured by a surety bond or bonds, issued by a surety company or companies authorized to transact business in the State of North Carolina, the form of such surety bonds to be approved by the Commission in an amount sufficient to protect such deposits, but the Commission may, at any time, in its discretion require an additional bond; Provided, however, that in lieu of a surety bond both as to all or any part of such deposits it shall be lawful to secure the same by lodging with the proper custodian hereinafter provided for such securities as are by this act made eligible for investment of sinking funds of local units, such securities to be selected under the terms and conditions of investments of such sinking funds, including approval of certain classes of securities by the Commission. Any bank or trust company furnishing United States Government bonds, North Carolina State bonds, county or municipal bonds as security for such deposits shall deposit said bonds with another bank which has been approved by the commission as a depository bank for such purposes, the State Treasurer or the Federal Reserve Bank and said bonds when so deposited shall be held for the benefit of the unit and subject to the order of the governing body or board of such unit and subject to inspection at any time by a representative of the governing body or board of such unit and by a representative of the Commission. Provided further, that the director or commission may in his or its discretion permit the current funds of a unit to be secured by notes or bonds of said unit.

Each such officer having charge or custody of the funds of a unit and the surety or sureties on his official bond, after a deposit of said funds has been secured by him in the manner hereinabove required, shall not be liable for any losses sustained by the unit by reason of the default or the insolvency of the said depository or depositories. No security shall be required for the protection of funds of a unit remitted to and received by any bank or trust company within or without the State of North Carolina for the sole and exclusive purpose of paying the maturing principal of or interest on bonds or notes of the unit, when such bank or trust company is the agreed place of payment of such principal or interest and when such funds are remitted within sixty days prior to the maturity of such principal or interest. (1931, c. 60, s. 32, c. 296, s. 7; 1935, c. 375, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 transposed the word "designated" which preceded "depository" and placed it after the word "depository." It also omitted the clause that the bonds should be "in no event less than the average daily bank balance of the unit for the preceding year." It omitted another provision that units may buy bonds for their own benefit and deposit same as directed, and it added the last paragraph of the section as it now reads.

Section 2 of the amendatory act provides: "that nothing in this act shall be construed as to repeal any Public-Local Law of Ashe, Rockingham, and Alleghany counties relative to depositing public funds."

§ 2492(31). Semi-annual reports to Director on status of unit funds.—It shall be the duty of all officers having the charge or custody of any funds of any unit to report to the Director on the first days of January and July of each year (or such other semi-annual dates as may be fixed by the Director) and at other times upon direction of the Commission or the Director the amounts of funds of the unit then in their charge or custody, and the amounts of deposits of such funds in any depositary or depositaries, and a description of the surety bonds or collateral securities deposited to secure the same. It shall be the duty of the Director to require such reports to be made and to see that the provisions of this section are complied with. (1931, c. 60, s. 33.)

§ 2492(32). Officers of local units relieved of personal liability when bank deposits are insured.—If it shall be impossible or impracticable to safeguard any funds of the unit in the manner required by this article, if deposited in any depository within the unit, the officer having charge or custody of such funds may deposit the same without personal responsibility in any bank or trust company organized under the laws of the United States of America, or of any state within said country, either within or without the boundaries of said unit in which deposits are insured by the federal deposit insurance corporation, in accordance with the acts of Congress: Provided, that without the approval of the local government commission, the sum on deposit in any such bank, at any time, shall not exceed the amount insured by the said federal deposit insurance corporation. (1931, c. 60, s. 34; 1935, c. 424.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 added the phrase "without personal responsibility" and also added the phrase "either within or without the boundaries of said unit," etc. It also added the proviso at the end of the section.

Section 2 of the amendatory act provides: "nothing in this act shall be construed to repeal any Public-Local Law of Ashe County, relative to deposits of public funds."

§ 2492(33). Appointment of unit administrator of finance in event of default.—If funds sufficient for the payment of the principal and interest due at any time upon any valid indebtedness of any unit shall not be remitted for the payment thereof in sufficient time to pay the same when due the director may appoint a qualified person of good repute and ability as administrator of finance of such unit, at such compensation as may be determined by the director, but not in excess of three hundred dollars monthly nor for a period of more than one year except with the approval of the governor. It shall be the duty of such administrator of finance to take full charge of the collection of taxes in such unit and the charge and custody of all funds of the unit and the safeguarding thereof, and of the disbursement of moneys for all purposes, or to take charge of such part of any or all such duties as the director may determine. The administrator may retain under his supervision and control any city or county officers or employees for the performance of any part of such duties falling within the lines of their customary office or employment or may remove any tax collector or accountant or other officer having connection with the collection and disbursement of funds of the unit in his discretion. The administrator shall comply, on behalf of such units, with all the requirements of law applicable to such unit, officers and employees. Any questions or disputes arising out of the appointment of such administrator or his assumption of duties hereunder or as to his powers, may be presented to the commission on the application of any officer, taxpayer or citizen of the unit or on the application of the director, and the commission shall be empowered to determine the same. The compensation and expenses of the administrator, and the expenses of the director and the commission, arising out of the provisions of this section, shall be a charge against the unit and shall be paid by it and shall be deemed a special purpose for the payment of which this special provision of law is made, and the amount thereof shall be included in the budget of the unit for the following fiscal year.

One year after any unit shall have failed to remit the principal and/or interest due upon any valid indebtedness then outstanding, upon petition of the holders of fifty-one per centum of the indebtedness of the unit, the director shall appoint an administrator of finance, by and with the consent of the resident judge of the district in which the unit is located, who, upon his appointment, shall have the authority hereinbefore in this section conferred upon the administrator of finance.

The petition shall disclose all facts and circumstances available in connection with the issue in default, including the names and addresses of all known holders of such issue, and, insofar as the petitioning holders, shall contain a consent to the filing of the petition.

The order shall be in such form as the director and judge may determine, to include, however, such facts as may appear from the petition to be the facts with respect to the issue in default. It shall show the consent of the resident judge to the appointment of the administrator of finance named in the order.

Immediately upon the filing of the petition and the entry of the order, which shall be done within ten days after the date the petition is filed with the director, the director shall certify, over his hand and the seal of the treasurer, the petition and order to the superior court of the county where the unit is located, if it be a unit other than the county, and to the superior court of the county, if the unit be a county. Upon receipt of the certified petition and order, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the superior court to which certified to issue such notice as may be prescribed by the director, and cause the same to be published in a newspaper of general circulation published in the state and in a journal approved by the commission for "notice of sale" of evidences of indebtedness, once a week for four weeks, and issue a copy of such notice to all holders of the issue in default named in the petition. Such notice shall contain a provision requiring all holders of such issue to appear in person or through attorney, and disclose their name, address and amount of the issue held.

Upon the expiration of the period of publication hereinbefore prescribed, the cause shall be transferred by the clerk of the superior court to the civil issue docket of the court, and the same shall thereafter stand upon such docket to be proceeded with as in other civil actions, but shall be placed upon the trial calendar at each term of the court thereafter for the trial of civil actions until final action is entered by the court at term.

Any action taken in the cause shall be after notice issued and published as hereinbefore provided, but from any order entered, unless the holders of all of the issue in default shall have responded, shall remain open for a period of thirty days after the publication of the order as hereinbefore prescribed for publication of notice. If the holder of any amount of such issue in default shall, during said thirty-day period, file a petition for a modification or revocation of the order, said order shall not become effective until the petitioning holder or holders shall have been heard by the court. If the order shall be, on such petition, modified or revoked, the order modifying or revoking the order shall become the order of the court in the cause.

Upon the notice hereinbefore prescribed and in the manner herein provided, the court shall have authority to enter any order which shall be for the interest of the unit and the holders of the issue in default, but no order entered shall become finally operative until the expiration of the time hereinbefore provided for the filing of petitions for modification or revocation. Any order which is agreed to by the unit and the holders of the issue in default may be entered at any time, but such order shall be likewise published, and unless agreed to by the holders of the entire issue in default, shall become operative only after the expiration of the period hereinbefore provided for the filing of petitions for modification or revocation, and the court shall have authority, upon the filing of such a petition, to modify or revoke the order entered by agreement, which order then entered, shall thereupon become effective and operative.

The costs of all publications and of the issuance of all notices shall be paid by the administrator of finance: Provided, however, that the holders of the issue in default filing the original petition shall advance the necessary cost, but shall be reimbursed by the administrator of finance upon the docketing of the cause upon the civil issue docket of the superior court to which certified.

The court, with the consent of the director, for good cause shown, shall have the right to remove the administrator of finance appointed, and, with the consent of the director, appoint another administrator of finance in his place. The administrator of finance appointed upon the institution of the cause or thereafter by the court shall give such bond as shall be prescribed by the director and the resident judge of the district. The compensation shall be fixed for the administrator of finance by the director and the resident judge of the district and all costs shall be paid as provided in the first paragraph of this section. Until the final determination of the cause and the entry of an order finally discharging an administrator of finance, the administrator of finance shall have such powers and perform such duties as prescribed in the first paragraph of this section. (1931, c. 60, s. 36; 1933, c. 374.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 374, added all the paragraphs of this section except the first paragraph. The first paragraph formerly comprised the whole section.

This section was amended, 1933, by providing an additional method for the adjustment of the indebtedness of local government units, and the proceeding so authorized seems to be in the nature of a creditors' bill, with a very general power in the court to make orders. The duties and powers of the Administrator of Finance are not defined, but they would probably be similar to those of a receiver in a creditors' suit. See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 215.

§ 2492(34). Director to inform unit of amount of taxes to be levied.—At least thirty days before the time for the levy of taxes in each unit of the State for the payment of the principal or interest of its obligations, if the Director shall have sufficient information available therefor, it shall be his duty to mail to the recording officer of each board having power to levy such taxes, a statement of the amount to be provided by taxation or otherwise for the payment of the interest and sinking fund requirements upon such obligations within the fiscal year and for the payment of the obligations maturing in such year. (1931, c. 60, s. 36.)

§ 2492(35). Director to notify due dates of obligation.—At least thirty days before the date upon which the principal or interest of any obligation of any unit shall be payable, if the Director shall have sufficient information available therefor, it shall be his duty to mail to the recording officer of such unit a statement of the amount of principal and interest so payable and a statement of the requirement of this act that such amount shall be remitted to the place at which the same are payable. (1931, c. 60, s. 37.)

§ 2492(36). Unit must levy sufficient taxes to provide for maturing obligations.—Any board whose duty it shall be to provide for the payment by taxation or otherwise of the principal or interest of any valid obligations of the unit shall make provision for such payment by the levy of such taxes as are authorized to be levied therefor at or before the time provided for such tax levy, or to make other legal provision for such payment, and every member thereof who shall be present at the time for such levy or provision shall vote in favor thereof and shall cause his request that such tax levy or provision be made to be recorded in the minutes of the meeting: Provided, in making such levy any such board may determine and make allowance for moneys due to it and receipt of which may be reasonably anticipated by such unit. (1931, c. 60, s. 36; 1933, c. 332.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 332, added the proviso appearing at the end of this section.

§ 2492(37). Failure to meet obligations when due if funds are in hand a misdemeanor.—If the officer of any unit whose duty it shall be to pay any of the principal or interest of valid obligations of the unit or to remit the same to the place of payment as provided in this act, shall have funds for such payment at his disposal but shall fail or refuse so to do within the time required hereby and in sufficient amount for such payment, whether or not such payment or remission for payment shall have been ordered or forbidden by any board or officer of the unit, the officer so failing or refusing shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined and/or imprisoned in the discretion of the court, and shall be liable in a civil action for all damages on the suit of any one aggrieved thereby. (1931, c. 60, s. 39.)

§ 2492(38). Voting for appropriation for other purposes than obligations or application of funds otherwise a misdemeanor. — Every member of any board of a local unit who shall knowingly vote for any appropriation to any purpose other than the payment of the interest or principal or sinking fund of any bonds or notes of the unit any money raised by taxation or otherwise for such purpose, until all of such principal and interest shall have been paid, and any disbursing officer who shall knowingly pay out any of such money for any other purpose than the payment of such interest or principal or sinking fund until all of such principal and interest shall have been paid, whether or not such payment shall have been ordered or forbidden by any board or officer of the unit, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined and/or imprisoned in the discretion of the court, and shall be liable in a civil action for all damages on the suit of any one aggrieved thereby. (1931, c. 60, s. 40.)

§ 2492(39). False statement a misdemeanor.— If any officer or any member of any board upon whom duties are imposed by this act shall knowingly make or certify any false statement in any certificate or statement required or permitted by this act, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined and/or imprisoned in the discretion of the court, and shall be liable in a civil action for all damages on the suit of any one aggrieved thereby. (1931, c. 60, s. 41.)

§ 2492(40.) Wilful failure to perform duty a misdemeanor.—If any officer or any member of any board of any local unit upon whom duties are imposed by this act or of whom duties are required pursuant to the provisions of this act shall knowingly and wilfully fail or refuse to perform any such duty, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined and/or imprisoned in the discretion of the court, and shall be liable in a civil action for all damages on the suit of any aggrieved person. (1931, c. 60, s. 42.)

§ 2492(41). Other violations misdemeanor. — Notwithstanding the declarations of this act that certain specific offenses shall constitute misdemeanors and be punishable, the wilful violation by the Director or by any member of the Commission or any officer or member of a board of a unit of any duty whatsoever imposed upon him by or under the provisions of this act, or his wilful failure, neglect or refusal to perform any such duty, shall be, and is hereby declared to be a misdemeanor, and shall be punishable by fine and/or imprisonment in the discretion of the court, and shall render the offender liable for damages at the suit of any aggrieved party. (1931, c. 60, s. 43.)

§ 2492(42). Prosecution by Attorney General; investigation of charges. — In case of the violation of any criminal provisions of this act, the Attorney General of the State of North Carolina upon complaint of the Director, whose duty it shall be to make such complaint in case of any such violation, shall investigate the charges preferred and if in his judgment the law has been violated he shall direct the solicitor of the district in which the offense was committed to institute a criminal action against the offending person or persons. Upon request of the Governor, the Attorney General shall take charge of such prosecution and, at the request of the Governor, special counsel may be employed to assist the Attorney General or the Solicitor. (1931, c. 60, s. 44.)

§ 2492(43.) Removal by Governor of offending persons.—Without abating any of the provisions of this act for criminal and civil actions, and for penalties and damages, it shall be the duty of the Director in the case of any breach of the provisions of this act or any failure or refusal to comply with any requirement made herein or permitted to be imposed hereby, by any member of the Commission or by any officer or member of a board of any unit (but in case of any such non-compliance, failure or refusal by the Director himself, it shall be the duty of the Attorney General through the Solicitor of the proper district) to bring the offense to the attention of the Governor, who shall consider the same and may in his judgment remove from office the offending officer or member and appoint a successor, subject to other provisions of law as to the appointment or election of successors of officers or members so removed. Such order of removal, however, shall not be effective until after a hearing before the Commission, which shall set a time therefor and shall give due notice thereof to the offending officer or member, and the order of the Commission after such hearing, whether such order shall confirm or refuse to confirm the removal, shall be final. In the event the Commission shall refuse to confirm the order of removal such officer or member shall continue his duties as such officer or member, but otherwise shall be removed from office pursuant to the order of removal issued by the Governor. (1931, c. 60, s. 45.)

§ 2492(44). Accountant for each city and town required.—It shall be the duty of the governing body of every city and town in this State on or before the first day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-one, and biennially thereafter before the first day of June in each odd year, to appoint some person of honesty and ability whose experience, training and qualifications have been approved by the Commission, as accountant for the municipality (or city accountant or town accountant or municipality accountant), to hold such office, or position at the will of the governing body or until such approval has been revoked by the Commission or until the appointment of his successor. The governing body in lieu of appointing an accountant as hereinabove required may impose and confer upon any municipal officer all the powers and duties herein imposed and conferred upon the municipal accountant and may revise and adjust the salary or compensation of any such officer upon whom such duties and powers are imposed or conferred: Provided, however, that if such officer upon whom such duties and powers are imposed or conferred should be a tax collecting officer of the unit, it shall be the duty of the governing body to require all his books and accounts to be audited semi-annually by a certified public accountant or a public accountant, registered under sections 7024(a)-7024(n): Provided further, that in towns of less than one thousand inhabitants, according to the census of one thousand nine hundred thirty, such books and accounts shall not be required to be audited more often than once each year. (1931, c. 60, s. 70, c. 269, c. 296, s. 9.)

§ 2492(45). Bond of accountant.—The municipal accountant may be required to furnish bond in some surety company authorized to do business in North Carolina, the amount to be fixed by the governing body, which bond shall be approved by the governing body and by the Commission and shall be conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties under this act. (1931, c. 60, s. 71.)

§ 2492(46.) Appropriations to former Commissions allotted to new Commission. — All moneys heretofore appropriated or set aside for the use of the County Government Advisory Commission and for the use of the Sinking Fund Commission in the performance of duties imposed upon the last two mentioned Commissions or either of them which are imposed by this act upon the Director or the Local Government Commission are hereby appropriated to the use of the Director in the performance of the duties imposed upon him by this act. (1931, c. 60, s. 73.)

§ 2492(47). Law applicable to all counties, cities and towns.—The provisions of this chapter shall apply to all counties, cities and towns in this State regardless of any provisions to the contrary in any special or local act enacted before the adjournment of the regular session of the general assembly in one thousand nine hundred thirty-five. (1931, c. 60, s. 74; 1935, c. 356, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 adds the clause at the end of the section reading "before the adjournment of the regular session," etc.

§ 2492(48). Temporary loans and notes for. — In the issuance of notes for temporary loans as provided by the County Finance Act [§§ 1334(1) et seq.], the Municipal Finance Act [§§ 2918 et seq.] and this act, the governing body may delegate to any officer of the unit the power to fix the face amount, the rate of interest, the time of maturity and the place of payment of principal and interest within and under the limitations, if any, established by the resolution authorizing the issue of such notes and the limitations fixed by this act and other laws. (1931, c. 60, s. 75, c. 296, s. 4.)

§ 2492(49). Notes and bonds of units redeemable before maturity.—Any notes or bonds of a unit may (but need not) be made subject to call for redemption before maturity at the option of the unit issuing them, but no such bond or note shall be redeemed before maturity without the consent of the holder thereof, unless such bond or note states on its face that the unit reserves the right to redeem the same before maturity. There may also be incorporated in or endorsed upon notes, bonds or coupons of a unit provisions reserving to the unit the right to extend the time for payment thereof to a fixed or determinable future time, specified in such provisions. The word "determinable" is here used in the same sense that it is used in the Negotiable Instruments Law of North Carolina (chapter fifty-eight of the Consolidated Statutes). The negotiability of bonds, notes and coupons of a unit shall not be affected by the reservation therein of a right of redemption or extension pursuant to this section. (1931, c. 60, c. 296, s. 3; 1931, c. 258, s. 2; 1935, c. 356, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1933, c. 258, made this section applicable to all units instead of the bonds issued "pursuant to the county or municipal finance act." The quoted words were omitted by the amendment.

The amendment of 1935 added the last three sentences of this section.

§ 2492(50). Special levies to supplant money tied up in defunct banks.—In order to provide for the present emergency caused by recent failures of banks having deposits of unit funds, special approval and authority are hereby given for the levy of property taxes by any unit for the special purpose of replacing funds of the unit deposited in a bank, which the unit has lost or is unable to withdraw by reason of failure or closing of such bank before March first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-one. Such taxes shall be applied solely to the payment of valid or enforceable indebtedness now outstanding which the unit could have lawfully paid from said deposited funds or which the General Assembly could have authorized the unit to pay from said funds, and which was incurred for necessary expenses of the unit. Special approval and authority are also given for the levy of property taxes by such unit at such rate as may be necessary for the special purpose of paying interest on said outstanding indebtedness, as such interest becomes due, including interest on any bonds or notes hereafter issued to pay or extend the time of payment of said indebtedness. The taxes hereby authorized may be levied in excess of any constitutional or statutory limit on tax rates notwithstanding that the said indebtedness was or may have been incurred for current or general expenses. The powers conferred by this section are conferred in addition to and not in substitution for the powers now possessed by units. (1931, c. 296, s. 3.)

§ 2492(50)a. Plans or agreements for funding or refunding; exchange for outstanding coupons or interest notes.—The board or body authorized to issue funding and refunding bonds of a unit is hereby invested with all powers necessary for the execution and fulfillment of any plan or agreement for the settlement, adjustment, funding, or refunding of the indebtedness of the unit, not inconsistent with general laws relating to the issuance of funding and refunding bonds. Such plan or agreement may provide among other things for the issuance of funding bonds and refunding bonds; for the issuance of new coupons or notes in exchange for outstanding coupons, for the purpose of enabling the unit to reserve the right to extend the time for payment of the whole or a part of the interest represented by such outstanding coupons; for the endorsement or stamping of bonds, notes or coupons, for the purpose of extending the time for payment of the principal thereof or interest thereon or for the purpose of reserving the right to extend said time; and for the doing of any other thing authorized by law with respect to outstanding indebtedness of the unit. All such plans or agreements heretofore made or entered into and approved by the local government commission are hereby ratified and validated. New coupons or interest notes issued in exchange for outstanding coupons as aforesaid shall be executed in such manner as may be determined by said board or body, and approval thereof by the local government commission need not be noted thereon. A certificate signed by the secretary of the local government commission or by an assistant designated by him, stating that such new coupons or interest notes have been approved by the local government commission or under the provisions of the local government Act, shall be conclusive evidence that the requirements of this law with respect to approval by said commission have been complied with. All provisions of law relating to the means of payment of coupons surrendered in exchange for new coupons or interest notes as aforesaid shall apply to the payment of such new coupons or interest notes. The powers conferred by this section with respect to the issuance of new coupons or interest notes in exchange for outstanding coupons, and with respect to the endorsement or stamping of bonds, notes or coupons, may be exercised by resolution of the board or body authorized by law to issue funding bonds or refunding bonds of a unit, and any such resolution shall be in force and effect from and after its passage, and need not be submitted to the voters of the unit.

The State of North Carolina hereby gives its assent to the act of Congress approved May twenty-fourth, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-four, entitled "An Act to amend an act entitled 'an act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States,' approved July first, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-eight, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemented thereto," and hereby authorizes all units, after approval has been given thereto by the local government commission, to proceed under the provisions of said act for the readjustment of their debts. (1933, c. 258, s. 4; 1935, c. 356, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 added all but the first sentence of this section.

§ 2492(50)b. Provisions in bond resolutions set out.—In any ordinance, order or resolution authorizing or providing for the issuance of bonds or notes of a unit for the purpose of refunding, funding or renewing indebtedness incurred before July 1, 1933, it shall be lawful to incorporate any or all of the following provisions, which shall have the force of contract between the unit and the holders of said bonds or notes, and every board or body authorized to issue such bonds or notes or to levy taxes for their payment shall have power to do all things necessary or convenient for the purpose of carrying out such provisions, viz.:

(a) Provisions for the creation of a special fund or funds to be used for the purchase of said bonds or notes at market prices less than par and accrued interest, or for the payment of the bonds or notes at par and accrued interest at or before maturity. All bonds or notes so purchased or paid shall be cancelled and shall not be reissued.

(b) Provisions for levying a tax annually or otherwise for the payment of the principal of the bonds or notes or for the said retirement fund.

(c) Provisions pledging any taxes, special assessments, or other revenues or moneys of the unit to the payment of said bonds or notes or to said retirement fund.

(d) Provisions whereby, so long as any of said bonds or notes are outstanding, the unit will not pledge any particular revenues or moneys, except special property taxes, without securing such bonds or notes equally and ratably with the other obligations to be secured by such pledge.

(e) Provisions whereby any special fund aforesaid may be a revolving fund, and used temporarily for other purposes, and thereafter replenished, upon such terms and conditions as may be set forth in said ordinance, resolution or order.

(f) Provisions for the custody of any such special fund by a bank or trust company in this or any other state or by the state treasurer.

(g) Provisions for the allocation and payment daily or periodically of moneys payable to any of said special funds.

(h) Provisions for the determination by arbitration of any question arising under any of the foregoing provisions.

(i) Provisions whereby the holders of said bonds or notes, whether such bonds or notes shall have been delivered in exchange for the indebtedness refunded or funded thereby or shall have been sold and the proceeds thereof applied to the retirement of such indebtedness, shall be subrogated to all the rights and powers of the holders of such indebtedness.

(j) Provisions whereby bonds and notes, together with the matured and unmatured interest thereon, may be deposited with the state treasurer as trustee, or some bank or trust company designated as trustee by the governing body of the unit with the approval of the local government commission, and bonds issued from time to time or at specified intervals of time for the funding or refunding of all or any part of the indebtedness so deposited; the indebtedness of any depositor to be cancelled and extinguished at such time or times as the plan or agreement for the settlement, adjustment, funding or refunding of the indebtedness of the unit may specify, and need not be cancelled and extinguished simultaneously with the issuance of bonds for funding or refunding a part of such indebtedness: Provided, that the ordinance, order, or resolution authorizing the issuance of funding or refunding bonds referred to in this clause may be adopted, or passed at such times as the plan or agreement may designate.

No such provisions shall become effective without the approval of the local government commission, or under the provision of an act passed at this session of the general assembly to provide a method for the readjustment of the indebtedness of counties and municipalities with creditors and holders of securities. (1933, c. 258, s. 4; 1935, c. 356, s. 6.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 inserts subsection (i) and (j) of this section.

§ 2492(51). State not liable for debts of units nor units for obligation of each other.—Nothing herein contained shall be construed to bind the State of North Carolina to pay any part of any debt due by any county, municipality or other unit of government, nor shall it be construed that any county or other unit shall be liable for the debts of any other county or unit. (1931, c. 60, s. 77.)

Art. 2. Validation of Bonds, Notes and Indebtedness of Unit

§ 2492(52). "Unit" defined.—In this article the word "unit" means a county, city, town, township, school district, school taxing district, or other district or political subdivision of government of the State. (1931, c. 186, s. 1.)

§ 2492(53). Validation of bond and note issues by units. — In all cases where a unit has heretofore issued its bonds or notes, and has received for the bonds or notes an amount of money not less than the face amount of the bonds or notes, and has expended said money for public purposes, said bonds or notes are hereby validated, and all bonds or notes subsequently issued to pay or renew said bonds or notes are also hereby validated, notwithstanding any lack of statutory authority or failure to observe any statutory provision concerning the issuance of such bonds or notes. This section shall not be construed as validating any bonds or notes, the proceeds of which have been lost by reason of the failure of any bank. (1931, c. 186, s. 2.)

§ 2492(54). Cities authorized to issue bonds already ordered; anticipation notes validated. — In all cases where a city has by ordinance adopted on or before July first, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine, authorized the issuance of bonds for local improvements as defined in The Municipal Finance Act, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one, as amended [§§ 2918 et seq.], and the bonds have heretofore been approved by the State Sinking Fund Commission, it shall be lawful for such city to issue said bonds pursuant to said ordinance and pursuant to The Municipal Finance Act, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one, and the Local Government Act [§§ 2492(1) et seq.], without regard to the requirements of section 2941 concerning the making of petitions for local improvements before the issuance of bonds or bond anticipation notes; and all notes heretofore issued in anticipation of the issuance of said bonds are hereby validated, notwithstanding any failure to observe the requirements of said section 2941. (1931, c. 186, s. 3.)

§ 2492(55). Test cases testing validity of funding bonds.—At any time after the adoption of an ordinance, resolution, or order for the issuance of refunding or funding bonds of a unit by the board authorized by law to issue the same, and following the approval of the issuance of such bonds by the local government commission, and prior to the issuance of any such bonds, such board may cause to be instituted in the name of the unit an action in the superior court of any county in which all or any part of the unit lies, to determine the validity of such bonds and the validity of the means of payment provided therefor. Such action shall be in the nature of a proceeding in rem, and shall be against each and all the owners of taxable property within the unit and each and all the citizens residing in the unit, but without any requirement that the name of any such owner or citizen be stated in the complaint or in the summons. Jurisdiction of all parties defendant may be had by publication of a summons once a week for three successive weeks in some newspaper of general circulation published in each county in which any part of the unit lies, and jurisdiction shall be complete within twenty days after the full publication of such summons in the manner herein provided. Any interested person may become a party to such action, and the defendants and all others interested may at any time before the expiration of such twenty days appear and by proper proceedings contest the validity of the indebtedness to be refunded or funded or the validity of such refunding or funding bonds or the validity of the means of payment provided therefor. The complaint shall set forth briefly by allegations, references, or exhibits the proceedings taken by such board in relation to such bonds and the means of payment provided therefor, and, if an election was held to authorize such issuance, a statement of that fact, together with a copy of the election notice and of the official canvass of votes and declaration of the result. There shall similarly be set forth in the complaint a statement of the amount, purpose, and character of the indebtedness to be refunded or funded, and such other allegations as may be relevant. The prayer of the complaint shall be that the court find and determine as against the defendants the validity of such bonds and the validity of the means of payment so provided. (1931, c. 186, s. 4; 1935, c. 290, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—This section was so changed by the amendment of 1935 that a comparison is necessary to determine its full extent.

§ 2492(56). Rules of pleading and practice. — The trial of such action shall be in accordance with the Constitution and laws of the State; and the rules of pleading and practice provided by the Consolidated Statutes and court rules for civil actions, including the procedure for appeals, which are not inconsistent with the provisions of this act, are hereby declared applicable to all actions herein provided for: Provided, however, that an appeal from a decree in such action must be taken within thirty days from the date of rendition of such decree. The court shall render a decree either validating such bonds and the means of payment provided therefor, or adjudging that such bonds and the means of payment provided therefor are, in whole or in part, invalid and illegal. (1931, c. 186, s. 5; 1935, c. 290, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 inserts the proviso at the end of the first sentence of the section. It also substitutes the words "a decree" for the word "judgment" near the beginning of the second sentence.

§ 2492(57). Judgment establishing validity of issue.—If (a) the superior court shall render a decree validating such bonds and the means of payment provided therefor and no appeal shall be taken within the time prescribed herein, or (b) if taken, the decree validating such bonds and the means of payment provided therefor shall be affirmed by the supreme court, or (c) if the superior court shall render a decree adjudging that such bonds and the means of payment provided therefor are, in whole or in part, invalid and illegal, and on appeal the supreme court shall reverse such decree and sustain the validity of such bonds and the means of payment provided therefor (in which case the supreme court shall issue its mandate to the superior court requiring it to render a decree validating such bonds and the means of payment provided therefor), the decree of the superior court validating such bonds and the means of payment provided therefor shall be forever conclusive as to the validity of such bonds and the validity of the means of payment provided therefor as against the unit and as against all taxpayers and citizens thereof, to the extent of matters and things pleaded or which might have been pleaded, and to such extent the validity of said bonds and means of payment thereof shall never be called in question in any court in this State. (1931, c. 186, s. 6; 1935, c. 290, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—This section is so changed by the amendment of 1935 that a comparison is necessary in order to determine its full extent.

§ 2492(58). Taxing costs. — The costs in any action brought under this article may be allowed and apportioned between the parties or taxed to the losing party, in the discretion of the court. (1931, c. 186, s. 7.)

§ 2492(59). Levying special tax for proposed issues.—If the complaint in any action brought under this article, or an exhibit attached to such complaint shows that an ordinance or resolution has been adopted by the unit providing that a tax sufficient to pay the principal and interest of the bonds or notes involved in such action is to be levied and collected, such ordinance or resolution shall be construed as meaning that such tax is to be levied without regard to any constitutional or statutory limitation of the rate or amount of taxes, unless such ordinance or resolution declares that such limitation is to be observed in levying of such tax. (1931, c. 186, s. 8.)

§ 2492(60). Notice of proposed issue to be published by unit.—Any unit may by resolution of the official board of such unit, authorized by law to issue bonds or notes, cause to be published a notice of the intention of said board to issue bonds or notes of the unit for the purpose of funding, refunding or renewing outstanding obligations or alleged obligations issued prior to passage of such resolution. Such notice shall describe said obligations or alleged obligations in a manner sufficient to identify them. It shall also state, either in general or specific terms, the purpose or purposes for which said outstanding obligations were incurred or issued, as determined by said official board of said unit prior to the publication of said notice. Said notice shall further state that a tax is to be levied on all taxable property in the unit sufficient to pay the bonds or notes proposed to be issued, or any bonds or notes that may be subsequently issued for the purpose of refunding, funding, renewing or paying said bonds or notes. Said notice shall be published once in each of three successive weeks in a newspaper published in the unit having the largest or next largest circulation in the unit, or if no newspaper is there published, then in a newspaper published in the county in which the unit is located, if any, and if there be no such newspaper such notice shall be posted at the door of the court house or building where said official board usually holds its meetings, and published in some newspaper published in the State of North Carolina and circulating in said unit. Such notice shall contain a statement that it is being published under the provisions of this section. After the issuance of any bonds or notes in accordance with the intention expressed in said notice, the validity of said bonds or notes and/or of any subsequently issued instruments evidencing the same indebtedness, shall not be open to question in any court upon the ground that any of the obligations or alleged obligations for the funding or renewal of which such bonds or notes were issued, were or are invalid, nor shall the power of the unit to levy a sufficient tax on all taxable property in the unit for the payment of the principal and interest of said bonds or notes, or of any subsequently issued instruments evidencing the same indebtedness, be open to question in any court upon the ground that the obligations or alleged obligations for the funding or renewal of which said bonds or notes were issued were invalid, or upon the ground that said original obligations or alleged obligations were not issued for a purpose for which such tax can be levied, except in an action or proceeding commenced within thirty days after the first publication of said notice of intention. The date of such first publication shall be stated in said notice. (1931, c. 186, s. 9; 1935, c. 290, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1935 this section applied only until July, 1932, and the outstanding obligations were those issued since March 1, 1929. The amendment makes the section general and permanent in its application. Prior to the amendment, it was required that a copy of the section be posted with the notice. Now a statement that notice is being published according to the section is all that is required. Prior to the amendment the purposes of levy could be attacked by an action "commenced at least two days prior to the issuance of said bonds or notes." The quoted passage was omitted by the amendment.

§ 2492(61). Invalid issues and pending litigation unaffected.—This article shall not apply to any bonds or notes that have been held invalid by any court of competent jurisdiction, nor shall it affect any litigation now pending. (1931, c. 186, s. 11.)

§ 2492(62). Validation of certain funding and refunding bonds. — Funding or refunding bonds authorized by a bond ordinance adopted under the municipal finance act, or by a bond order adopted under the county finance act, when such ordinance or order was adopted before the eleventh day of April, nineteen hundred and thirty-three, may be delivered notwithstanding such ordinance or order may not contain a description of the indebtedness to be funded or refunded: Provided, all funding, refunding or readjustment bonds authorized to be issued after the eleventh day of April, nineteen hundred and thirty-three, must conform to the requirements of all laws enacted for the purpose of funding, refunding and readjusting such indebtedness. (1933, c. 500, s. 1.)

Public Laws of 1933, c. 288, exempts Forsyth county from the operation of this and the following sections of the prior Act of 1933.

Art. 3. Readjustment of Indebtedness of Counties and Municipalities.

§ 2492(63). County readjustment commission created. — There is hereby created a commission to be known as the county readjustment commission, which shall consist of three (3) freeholders and taxpayers resident in the state of North Carolina, to be appointed by the governor immediately following the ratification of this article, no two of which shall be of the same business or profession, in the appointment of which the governor shall name the chairman and fix the compensation of such commissioners, which shall be paid as hereinafter provided, and said commission shall proceed to organization by electing a secretary and providing such other expert legal and clerical assistance as may be necessary for the purposes hereinafter enumerated. (1933, c. 205, s. 1.)

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 214.

§ 2492(64). Assistance to local units in readjustment plan; notice of hearing; findings as to ability to pay; negotiations with bondholders. — Upon call, and at the request of any county or municipality of the state which may desire to have the services of the aforesaid readjustment commission in ascertaining and assisting such county, governmental unit, or municipality in working out a plan of readjustment, the aforesaid commission, with such aid and assistance as it may require, and after said county, governmental unit, or municipality has advertised in a local newspaper in said county once a week for four successive weeks of the time, place and hearing of said readjustment commission in order that the bondholders may have notice thereof, shall forthwith proceed to investigate the resources and available revenue of such county or municipality, its tax burdens and its valid obligations and securities outstanding and permit and allow any bondholder, county, governmental unit, or municipality to offer evidence or information in order that it may make such study of an analysis of the debts and obligations of such county, governmental unit, or municipality and its resources to meet the same and to fix the valuation of said county, governmental unit, or municipality and find the ability of said county, governmental unit or municipality to pay, and recommend and report to the authorities their suggestions and methods of such readjustment and the ability of such county, governmental unit, or municipality to meet the same. Findings by said readjustment commission as to the value of the securities and the ability of the county, governmental unit, or municipality to pay, if supported by competent evidence shall be prima facie and presumptive evidence of the valuation of the securities and of the ability of the county, governmental unit, or municipality to meet the same. And the said authorities of all such counties, municipalities, and governmental units shall be further authorized and empowered in their discretion to request the services of the aforesaid county readjustment commission to enter into negotiations with the holder or holders of all such securities for the purpose of readjusting the same upon such basis as the said commission and the holders of such obligations may agree upon, and shall report their recommendations as to the readjustment of such indebtedness to the authorities of such counties, municipalities, or other governmental units for their final decision. (1933, c. 205, s. 2.)

§ 2492(65). Conference with creditors to agree upon readjustment; consent of two-thirds of creditors. — Upon the coming in of the aforesaid report, the authorities of such county, municipality, or governmental unit shall be authorized to call the holders of its securities or obligations in conference for discussion of a basis of such readjustment and may make such adjustment of its obligations with the holders of its securities as may be mutually acceptable and agreeable, and whenever the holders of at least two-thirds of the total obligations of such county, governmental unit, or municipality shall agree upon a basis of readjustment, then such county, governmental unit, or municipality shall be authorized to proceed therewith and to issue new securities or refunding securities to the amount of the readjustment basis of its obligations for such extended period of time and at such rate of interest as may be mutually acceptable unless an election shall be called as hereinafter provided. (1933, c. 205, s. 3.)

§ 2492(66). Tender of agreed adjustment to minority third of creditors; minority may seek redress in courts; investigation by courts into affairs of local unit. — Whenever two-thirds in amount of the holders of the securities of such county or municipality have agreed with such county, municipality, or governmental unit upon the readjustment of its obligations, the same adjustment shall be tendered to all holders of the securities on the same basis proposed and agreed to, and upon the failure of such minority holders to accept such settlement and readjustment upon the basis assented to by two-thirds in amount of the holders of the total obligations of such county, governmental unit, or municipality, then thereafter the holders of such securities declining to accept the adjustment aforesaid may proceed to seek redress for relief by an action in the superior court in said county, but no mandamus shall lie until eighteen months after final judgment establishing the claims of such minority holder or holders and upon application for said mandamus. The court shall have power and authority to investigate and determine the ability of the county, governmental unit, or municipality to pay out of its present and probable income its accrued and accruing indebtedness and when the money which may reasonably be expected to be raised by the levy of and collection of taxes in the said county, governmental unit, or municipality within its current fiscal year, together with such other sources of income of the county, governmental unit, or municipal corporation as may exist, shall be insufficient to pay the reasonable, necessary and economical operating expenses of such municipal corporation, its probable requirements for welfare relief and the service of its debts, the court may upon the facts so found by it issue said mandamus upon such terms and conditions as in the judgment of the court may seem just and equitable. (1933, c. 205, s. 4.)

§ 2492(67). Expense of investigation borne by units affected.—All of the costs of investigation, salaries of the commission, and its expenses in making the report herein provided for shall be borne by and paid by the county, municipality, or governmental unit calling upon such commission for its assistance and report, and the salaries of the aforesaid commissioners and the general expense thereof shall be apportioned by the commission in a just and equitable manner and paid by the county, municipality, or governmental unit calling for this service. (1933, c. 205, s. 5.)

§ 2492(68). Findings of commission and readjustments filed with secretary of state; debt service levies reducible in proportion to terms of readjustment.—The commission herein appointed, after making the investigation and report as herein provided for, shall make a copy of its findings and recommendations in condensed form and file the same in the office of the secretary of state at Raleigh, which shall be by him recorded in a book to be provided for that purpose, and the county, governmental unit, or municipality shall make and file with the secretary of state, to be likewise recorded in his office, a copy of any adjustment or settlement which may be or may have been reached with the holders of such securities and obligations as herein provided, and thereafter the aforesaid county, municipality, or governmental unit shall not make or levy any tax or assessment concerning the aforesaid bonds and obligations or provide any debt service or sinking fund beyond the amount of such settlement and adjustment agreed upon and adopted by such readjustment as herein provided. (1933, c. 205, s. 6.)

§ 2492(69). Local units may borrow money to purchase their own bonds at discounts; R. F. C. loans authorized.—Said county readjustment commission is hereby authorized and empowered, subject to the approval of the governing body of any political sub-division of the state, and at its request, to negotiate for a loan to be made to any county, city, town or other political sub-division, if such loan, or the money derived therefrom, can be used to purchase the outstanding bonds or notes, or other evidences of indebtedness of such political subdivision at a discount of 40 per cent or more. If congress shall provide that the reconstruction finance corporation may make such loans to counties, cities, towns or other political sub-divisions of North Carolina, then the governing bodies of such counties, cities, towns or other political subdivisions of North Carolina, are hereby authorized and empowered to borrow money from such reconstruction finance corporation for such purpose, and such governing bodies are hereby authorized and empowered to issue bonds or other evidence of indebtedness to the reconstruction finance corporation, or any other lender, under like circumstances, in such amounts and in such denominations, at such rate of interest and for such term of years, and otherwise, as may be agreed upon between the governing body of any such county, city, town or other political sub-division of North Carolina, and the reconstruction finance corporation. Said obligations to the reconstruction finance corporation or other lender are hereby declared to be obligations issued for a necessary purpose and to be binding upon the county, city, town or other political sub-division, and a sufficient special tax shall be levied and collected each year by the governing body of such county, city, town or other political sub-division as may be necessary to pay the interest and retire the principal of such bonds, according to the terms and provisions contained in the issue. It is further provided that any portion of the total of the outstanding indebtedness of any county, town, city or other political subdivision may be discounted as herein provided. (1933, c. 205, s. 7.)

§ 2492(70). Agreement as to readjustment tentative; publication of proposed plan; if no election petition filed, then agreement may be put into effect.—In any case where any county, city, town or other political sub-division shall have reached an agreement with its creditors upon a debt settlement plan, as provided in this article, such agreement shall be tentative to the following extent: That is, the proposed debt settlement plan shall first be published in some newspaper in the county affected by the debt settlement plan, or within which the county, city or town is situated, once a week for four successive weeks, or for thirty days. If, at the end of said thirty days, no petition as hereinafter provided shall have been presented to the governing body of any such political sub-division requesting an election upon the proposed debt settlement plan, then the governing body thereof is hereby authorized and empowered to enter into a contract with its creditors for a readjustment of its indebtedness, and to issue bonds of any nature, and in any denominations, maturing within such period of time and at such rates of interest, as may be proposed in the debt settlement plan; and it is further authorized and empowered to do everything necessary in order to fully carry out the terms and conditions embodied in the proposed or tentative debt settlement plan. Such bonds, issued for a total refunding of the indebtedness of such political sub-division, or issued as partial refunding of indebtedness of such political sub-division, are hereby declared to be issued for necessary purposes within the contemplation of the constitution; and such political sub-division, through its proper governing body, is hereby directed to levy sufficient taxes annually to pay such obligations in accordance with the tenor and terms as same may be provided in such debt settlement plan. However, if within such period of thirty days publication, a petition shall be filed with the governing body of any such political sub-division signed by a number of qualified voters equal to 10 per cent of the votes cast for governor of North Carolina at the last preceding election in such political unit, then it shall be the duty of such governing body to call an election to be held within sixty days after the expiration of the said thirty day period at which time the election shall be conducted in accordance with the general law of North Carolina as now provided for voting for propositions. A ballot shall be provided having thereon the phrase "for debt settlement plan," and also the phrase "against debt settlement plan." Those desiring to vote for the debt settlement plan shall make a cross mark in the square at the left of the following: "for debt settlement plan," and those desiring to vote against proposed debt settlement plan shall make a cross mark in the square at the left of the following: "against debt settlement plan." If the majority of the votes cast at such an election shall be in favor of the proposed debt settlement plan, then the governing body of such county, city, town or other political sub-division shall proceed to sign the debt settlement contract with the creditors, and to issue such bonds as may be provided in said debt settlement plan, at such rate of interest and in such denominations and for such length of time as may be provided for in the debt settlement contract; and the said governing body is hereby fully authorized and empowered to do everything necessary to carry out the provisions of any such proposed debt settlement. If, at such election, a majority of the votes cast are against the proposed debt settlement plan, then the tentative agreement shall become null and void; however, such failure of a majority of the people to ratify any tentative debt settlement plan shall not be deemed to prohibit the governing body of any county, city or town from proceeding to negotiate any other plan of debt settlement with its creditors, and, after the expiration of one year from the date of such an election, a second election may be held upon any other or different debt settlement plan. (1933, c. 205, s. 8, c. 348.)

§ 2492(71). Supplemental to existing laws.—This section shall be deemed to provide an additional and alternative method for the doing of the things authorized hereby and shall be regarded as supplemental and additional to powers conferred by other laws, and shall not be regarded as in derogation of or as a limitation on or as affecting any powers for the issuance of bonds or notes under the provisions of other laws, or as affecting the proceedings or as requiring any additional proceedings for the issuance of bonds or notes under such other laws. Before any of the provisions of this act shall be applicable to any county, city, town or political subdivision the governing body thereof shall pass a resolution requesting the services of said readjustment commission and shall file with its secretary a certified copy of such resolution. (1933, c. 312, s. 1.)

Art. 4. Funding and Refunding of Debts of Local Units Other than Counties, Cities and Towns.

§ 2492(72). Local units, other than counties, cities and towns, authorized to fund outstanding debts.—Any unit other than a county, city or town may issue bonds as provided in this article for the purpose of funding or refunding any or all of its matured or unmatured notes or bonds, or the interest accrued thereon, provided the indebtedness evidenced by said notes or bonds was incurred before July 1, 1933. The word unit as here used means a township, school district, school taxing district, road district, drainage district, sanitary district, water district, or other district, political sub-division or local governmental agency. The notes and bonds hereby authorized to be funded or refunded include notes and bonds issued in the name of a county, but payable from taxes levied in a township, school district or other unit embracing only a part of the territory of the county. (1933, c. 257, s. 1.)

§ 2492(73). General law applicable. — Bonds issued pursuant to this article shall be issued in accordance with the provisions of the county finance act, as amended, relating to the issuance of funding and refunding bonds under that act, except in the following respects, viz.:

(a) They shall be issued in the name of the obligor named in the obligations to be funded or refunded, or in the name of the successor to the obligor named in the obligation to be refunded or funded.

(b) They shall be issued by or on behalf of the unit by the same board or body which issued the obligations to be funded or refunded, or its successor, or, if said board or body is no longer in existence, by the board of county commissioners or other governing body of the county in which the unit, or the major portion of the unit, is situated;

(c) It shall not be necessary to include in the order or resolution authorizing the bonds, or in the notice required to be published prior to final passage of the order or resolution, any statement concerning the filing of a debt statement, or the contents thereof; and, as applied to said bonds, sections 9, 13, 14, 15, 16, and 17, of the county finance act, as amended [§§ 1334(9), 1334(13)-1334(17) of this code], shall be read and understood as if they contained no requirements in respect to such matters;

(d) The bonds shall mature at such time or times, not later than forty years after their date, as may be fixed or provided for in the resolutions under which they are issued;

(e) The bonds shall be issued in exchange for the obligations to be funded or refunded thereby, and the aggregate principal amount of the bonds shall not exceed the aggregate amount of unpaid principal and accrued interest of the obligations for which they are exchanged. (1933, c. 257, s. 2; 1935, c. 484.)

Editor's Note.—The clause at the end of subsection (a) reading: "or the name of the successor to the obligor" was added by the amendment of 1935.

§ 2492(74). Taxes to pay new obligations authorized.—Taxes for the payment of the principal and interest of bonds issued pursuant to this act shall be levied by the board or body authorized by existing law to levy taxes for the payment of the obligations funded or refunded by said bonds, and shall be levied only in the territory subject to taxation for the payment of the obligations so funded or refunded. (1933, c. 257, s. 3.)

§ 2492(75). County finance act applicable.— Except where they are inconsistent with the provisions of this article; all of the provisions of the county finance act, as amended, applicable to bonds issued under that article for the funding or refunding of indebtedness incurred before July 1, 1933, shall be applicable to bonds issued under this article. For the purpose of applying the provisions of said act to bonds issued under this article, the following words and phrases in said act shall be deemed to have the following meanings when applied to said bonds, viz.: "Governing body" means the board or body authorized by this article to issue bonds, except the words "governing body" in section 41 of the county finance act, where said words mean the board or body authorized by this act to levy taxes; "county" means the unit by or on behalf of which the bonds are to be issued under this article; "published" means published in a newspaper published in a county in which such unit is situated, if there be such a newspaper, but otherwise means posted at the courthouse door of said county and at least three other public places; "clerk of board of commissioners" means the clerk or secretary of the board or body authorized by this act to issue bonds; "this act" means this article. (1933, c. 257, s. 4.)

Art. 5. Assistance for Defaulting Local Government Units in the Preparation of Workable Refinancing Plans.

§ 2492(76). Aid of director of local government to defaulting local units.—Whenever it shall appear that any county, city, town, or other local government unit of this State has defaulted for a period of six months in the payment of the principal or interest of any of its outstanding notes or bonds, the director of local government is hereby given the authority to prepare and certify to the governing body of such local government unit a plan for refinancing, readjustment, or compromising said debt in order to remove the default and prevent its recurrence. (1935, c. 124, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—Section 6 of chapter 124, Public Laws of 1935, from whence the above section was derived, reads as follows: "All laws and clauses of laws in conflict with this act are hereby repealed: Provided, however, nothing in this act shall be construed to repeal any Public-Local or Private Act passed by the General Assembly of one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five, relative to the readjustment or refunding of the bonded indebtedness of any local governmental unit in North Carolina, except and until an agreement has been reached between the bondholders and the governing body of said unit, and when said agreement has been reached and certified to the Director of the Local Government Commission by both contracting parties, then and in that event the provisions of said act shall apply to such defaulting local governmental units."

§ 2492(77). Investigating fiscal affairs of units; negotiations with creditors; plans for refinancing or readjustment.—For the purpose of determining the financial position, the director of local government may make or cause to be made an investigation of the fiscal affairs of such units which are in default in the payment of principal or interest for a period of six months, and advise with the governing body of such unit regarding the refinancing and/or readjustment of its debts, and is authorized to negotiate with the creditors of such units for the purpose of reaching an agreement with them. Whenever a plan of refinancing and/or readjustment, whether prepared by the director, by a private refunding agency, or by the officials of the unit, appears to the director of local government as being fair and equitable and reasonably within the ability of such unit to meet, it shall be submitted by him to the local government commission for its approval, and upon such approval, the governing body of such local government unit shall adopt same and pass the necessary orders or ordinances for the purpose of carrying said plan into effect. (1935, c. 124, s. 2.)

§ 2492(78). Power of director to accept or reject budget of local units.—In order to conserve the financial resources of any local government unit of this State and to provide a means of constant advisory services, the director of local government is hereby given authority to approve or disapprove the budget of any unit which has accepted the plan and put same into effect, and the governing body of such unit shall first obtain the approval of the said director before passing any order or ordinance adopting said budget. (1935, c. 124, s. 3.)

§ 2492(79). Annual statements from units.—The director of local government shall have authority to require of the local units in which he functions under this article annual statements showing the collection of revenues and the disbursements for expenses, both divided as between general operating fund, debt service fund, and special funds, if any, and it shall be his duty to require the proper allocation of all collected revenues to the funds for which said revenues were levied, in accordance with the budget, and to require that disbursements shall be made only from appropriations duly made. (1935, c. 124, s. 4.)

§ 2492(80). Extent and time limit of director's authority.—The authority hereby granted to the director of local government shall continue in force in such local government units until, in the discretion of the director of local government, said local government unit has performed the duties required of it or has satisfied the director that it will do so, until the agreements made with the creditors have been discharged in accordance with the plan of refinancing and/or readjustment of its debt. (1935, c. 124, s. 5.)

MARRIAGE

Art. 1. General Provisions

§ 2493. Requisites of marriage; solemnization.—The consent of a male and female person who may lawfully marry, presently to take each other as husband and wife, freely, seriously and plainly expressed by each in the presence of the other, and in the presence of an ordained minister of any religious denomination, minister authorized by his church, or of a justice of the peace, and the consequent declaration by such minister or officer that such persons are man and wife, shall be a valid and sufficient marriage: Provided, that the rite of marriage among the Society of Friends, according to a form and custom peculiar to themselves, shall not be interfered with by the provisions of this chapter: Provided further, marriages solemnized before March 9, 1909, by ministers of the gospel licensed, but not ordained, are validated from their consummation. (Rev., s. 2081; Code, s. 1812; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 3; 1908, c. 47; 1909, c. 704, s. 2; 1909, c. 897.)

Cross References.—For a full treatment of marriage, see 8 N. C. Enc. Dig. 1016-1040; 14 N. C. Enc. Dig. 742-746; as to divorce and alimony, see section 1655 et seq.

History of Marriage Laws in the State.—In State v. Bray, 35 N. C. 290, Ruffin C. J., in an interesting discussion tracing our marriage law shows that, originally in this colony, valid marriages could only be solemnized by ministers of the Church of England (with the result, as we now know from the "Colonial Records," that a large part of the population were not legally married, owing to the scarcity of such ministers. See State v. Wilson, 121 N. C. 650, 656, 28 S. E. 416.

In 1715, ch. 1 of the Colonial Records, reciting the inconvenience from scarcity of ministers of the established Church, authorized the Governor of the colony to solemnize marriages, then in 1741, Chapter 1, empowered justices of the peace to perform the ceremony. In 1766 by ch. 9, the privilege was extended to ministers of the Presbyterian Church, and at last, in 1778, ch. 7, to ministers of all other denominations and marriages according to the custom of the Society of Friends were also made valid. This list, made a little broader, is now in this section. See State v. Parker, 106 N. C. 711, 11 S. E. 517; State v. Wilson, 121 N. C. 650, 656, 28 S. E. 416.

Common Law Marriage Invalid.—"There is no such thing as marriage simply by consent in this State," said Ruffin, C. J., in State v. Samuel, 19 N. C. 177, and State v. Bray, 35 N. C. 290; Gaston, J., in State v. Patterson, 24 N. C. 346; Pearson, C. J., in Cooke v. Cook, 61 N. C. 583. And the same is recognized as the law in the more recent cases of State v. Parker, 106 N. C. 711, 11 S. E. 517; and State v. Melton, 120 N. C. 591, 26 S. E. 933; State v. Wilson, 121 N. C. 650, 656, 28 S. E. 416.

Celebration Essential.—No celebration was required by the Cannon Law prior to the Council of Trent, nor by the Civil Law, nor by the law in Scotland, nor in many states in this Union. In some states the question has never been decided. In other states celebration before some person authorized by law is held essential, as (after some hesitation) has been held to be the common law in England. Stewart Marriage and Div., section 90; 14 Am. & Eng. Enc. 515. In the latter class is North Carolina. State v. Wilson, 121 N. C. 650, 656, 28 S. E. 416.

Same—Section Must Be Followed.—While consent is essential to marriage in this State, it is not the only essential, but it must be acknowledged in the manner and before some person prescribed by this section. State v. Wilson, 121 N. C. 650, 28 S. E. 416.

When Marriage Complete.—Marriage is in law complete, when parties able to contract and willing to contract have actually contracted to be man and wife, in the forms and with the solemnities required by law. Consummation by carnal knowledge is not necessary to its validity. State v. Patterson, 24 N. C. 346.

Elder in Colored Church Can Celebrate.—An elder in the colored Methodist Church is "an ordained minister" of the Gospel within the meaning of the statute, and, as such, can celebrate the rites of matrimony. State v. Parker, 106 N. C. 711, 11 S. E. 517.

Indian Custom Not Valid Marriage.—There is but one law of marriage for all the residents of this State. Hence cohabitation between an Indian man and woman according to the customs of their tribe, by which the parties are at liberty to dissolve the connection at pleasure, does not constitute a marriage. State v. Ta-cha-na-tah, 64 N. C. 614, cited in notes in L. R. A. 1915E, 67; 57 L. R. A. 160.

"'A marriage procured by force or fraud is void ab initio, and may be treated as null by every court in which its validity may be incidently drawn in question.' 2 Kent Com., 66." Scroggins v. Scroggins, 14 N. C. 535, 538.

Marriage during Seduction Proceedings Valid.—A marriage contracted while one is under arrest for seduction is not contracted under duress. State v. Davis, 79 N. C. 603, cited in note in 43 L. R. A. 816.

Sham Marriage a Nullity.—A marriage pretendedly celebrated before an unauthorized person is a nullity and not capable of being legalized by consent. State v. Wilson, 121 N. C. 650, 28 S. E. 416.

Personating a Minister Not Criminal.—A private citizen who personates an ordained minister, and with the consent of the parties, solemnizes a marriage between a man and woman is not guilty of any criminal offense known to the common or statute law. State v. Brown, 119 N. C. 825, 25 S. E. 820.

Evidence of Marriage.—It is sufficient evidence of a marriage that it was solemnized by one in the known enjoyment of the office of justice of the peace, and acting as such. His commission need not be produced. State v. Robbins, 28 N. C. 23, 44 Am. Dec. 64, cited in note in 14 L. R. A. 541.

Retroactive Legislation.—It is competent for the Legislature by retrospective legislation to give validity to a marriage which is invalid by reason of the non-observance of some solemnity required by statute, aliter, where such marriage is a nullity. Cook v. Cook, 61 N. C. 583, cited in note in L. R. A. 1915E, 18.

§ 2494. Capacity to marry.—All unmarried male persons of sixteen years, or upwards, of age, and all unmarried females of sixteen years, or upwards, of age, may lawfully marry, except as hereinafter forbidden: Provided, that females over fourteen years of age and under sixteen years of age may marry under a special license to be issued by the register of deeds, which said special license shall only be issued after there have been filed with the register of deeds a written consent to such marriage, signed by one of the parents of the female or signed by that person standing in loco parentis to such female, and the fact of the filing of such written consent shall be set out in said special license: Provided, that all couples resident of the state of North Carolina who marry in another state must file a copy of their marriage certificate in the office of the register of deeds of the home county of the groom within thirty days from the date of their return to the state, as residents, which certificate shall be indexed on the marriage license record of the office of the register of deeds and filed with marriage license in his office; that the fee for the filing and indexing said certificate shall be fifty cents: Provided, the failure to file said certificate shall not invalidate the marriage. (Rev., s. 2082; Code, s. 1809; R. C., c. 68, s. 14; 1871-2, c. 193; 1923, c. 75; 1933, c. 269, s. 1.)

As to penalty for marrying female under fourteen, see section 4444.

Editor's Note.—Formerly, the legal age of marriage for males are placed at sixteen and for females at fourteen. This is amended by c. 75 Public Laws, 1923, which changes the legal age of marriage for females to sixteen, thus making it lawful for a female at sixteen to marry, but making it unlawful for a female under sixteen and over fourteen to marry, unless a special license shall be issued upon filing with the register of deeds a written consent to such marriage by one of the parents of the female or by one standing in loco parentis. Since the amendment provides for the marriage of female minors over fourteen and under sixteen, it looks as if the Legislature did not intend to change the age of consent to sixteen in section 2495, which provides that the marriage of a female under fourteen and any male shall be void. See 1 N. C. L. R. 295.

Public Laws of 1933, c. 269, added the proviso, at the end of this section, relating to filing certificates by those marrying in another state.

Effect of Lack of Special License.—The marriage of a female between the ages of fourteen and sixteen without the written consent of her parent and without the special license required by this section is not void but voidable. Sawyer v. Slack, 196 N. C. 697, 146 S. E. 864.

Male of Marriageable Age Indictable for Seduction.—A male at the marriageable age of eighteen years is indictable for seduction. State v. Creed, 171 N. C. 837, 88 S. E. 511.

§ 2495. Want of capacity; void and voidable marriages.—All marriages between a white person and a negro or indian, or between a white person and person of negro or indian descent to the third generation, inclusive, or between a Cherokee indian of Robeson county and a negro, or between a Cherokee indian of Robeson county and a person of negro descent to the third generation, inclusive, or between any two persons nearer of kin than first cousins, or between a male person under sixteen years of age and any female, or between a female person under fourteen years of age and any male, or between persons either of whom has a husband or wife living at the time of such marriage, or between persons either of whom is at the time physically impotent, or is incapable of contracting from want of will or understanding, shall be void: Provided, double first cousins may not marry; and Provided further, that no marriage followed by cohabitation and the birth of issue shall be declared void after the death of either of the parties for any of the causes stated in this section, except for that one of the parties was a white person and the other a negro or indian, or of negro or indian descent to the third generation, inclusive, and for bigamy. (Rev., s. 2083; Code, s. 1810; R. C., c. 68, ss. 7, 8, 9; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 2; 1887, c. 245; 1911, c. 215, s. 2; 1913, c. 123; 1917, c. 135.)

Cross References.—As to suits to nullify marriages which were entered into contrary to the provisions of this section, see sec. 1658 and annotations; as to Cherokee Indians of Robeson County, see section 6257; as to penal provisions for miscegenation, see secs. 4340, 4341; as to penal provision for bigamy, see sec. 4342; as to penal provision for incest, see §§ 4337, 4338.

Editor's Note.—Chapter 215, Laws 1911, amended this section by striking out the words "Croatan Indians" wherever those words occurred in the section, and inserting in lieu thereof the words "Indians of Robeson County." Chapter 223, Laws 1913, amended the last named act by striking out the words "Indians of Robeson County" and inserting in lieu thereof the words "Cherokee Indians of Robeson County." See Goins v. Trustees, 169 N. C. 736, 738, 86 S. E. 629.

Power of Legislature.—The competency of the General Assembly to impose, implies the right to remove, the restraints and conditions incident to the formation of the marriage relation and the contract which creates it. Baity v. Cranfill, 91 N. C. 293, 297.

Section Expresses Public Policy.—During the existence of slavery, no marriage was recognized as binding when had between slaves, and marriage was prohibited by positive law when had between whites and free persons of color, who are within the specified degrees, and between the latter and slaves, and this in pursuance of a general public policy growing out of the slavery of a part of the population owned by masters. This policy still prevails in this section and inhibits the intermarriage of white and free persons of color into which the slave population had been immerged. Woodard v. Blue, 103 N. C. 109, 113, 9 S. E. 492.

Section Not Repugnant to U. S. Constitution. — This interdict is held not to be repugnant to the Constitution of the United States, or legislation under it. State v. Hairston, 63 N. C. 451.

Foreign Marriages Valid Here.—The relation, if legally created elsewhere, is recognized as a valid subsisting relation, when the parties come into this State from that of their former residence. State v. Rose, 76 N. C. 242; Woodard v. Blue, 103 N. C. 109, 114, 9 S. E. 492.

Attempt to Evade Provisions of Section.—The validity of a foreign marriage is not recognized here when parties having their domicile here, to evade our laws, go to a State which allows such marriage, with intent to return and keep up their domicile. State v. Kennedy, 76 N. C. 251. Woodard v. Blue, 103 N. C. 109, 114, 9 S. E. 492.

What Marriages Void Ab Initio.—Construing this section and section 1658 together, it is held that the only marriages that are void ab initio are those within the last proviso of this section i. e., where one of the parties was a white person and the other a negro or an Indian or of negro or Indian descent to the third generation, inclusive, or bigamous marriages. And any other marriage need to be "declared void." Watters v. Watters, 168 N. C. 411, 84 S. E. 703.

Effect of Attempted Marriage between White and Negro.—A white person and a person of color cannot intermarry in North Carolina, and if an invalid marriage is contracted between persons of the two races and the parties cohabit together they are guilty of fornication. State v. Reinhardt, 63 N. C. 547; State v. Hairston, 63 N. C. 451.

What "Negro Descent" Includes.—In order to have a marriage annulled on the ground that it is "between a white person and a person of negro descent to the third generation inclusive," etc., it must be shown the ancestor of the generation stated must have been of pure negro blood. Ferrall v. Ferrall, 153 N. C. 174, 69 S. E. 60.

Bigamous Marriages Always Void.—The fact that a presumption which had arisen at the death of a woman's husband shields her from prosecution for bigamy upon marrying another, does not render the last marriage any the less bigamous or void if the first husband be, in fact, alive. Ward v. Bailey, 118 N. C. 55, 23 S. E. 926. For full treatment of bigamy, see sec. 4342 and notes thereto.

Where a wife attempts to marry again when no valid divorce a vinculo has been obtained from her living husband, such second attempted marriage is absolutely void and may be annulled by the husband of the second attempted marriage in an action instituted for that purpose. Pridgen v. Pridgen, 203 N. C. 533, 166 S. E. 591.

Impotency Renders Marriage Voidable.—Impotency in a husband does not render a marriage by him void ab initio, but only voidable by sentence of separation, and until such sentence, it is deemed valid and subsisting. Smith v. Morehead, 59 N. C. 360.

Marriage of Female under Fourteen Voidable.—This section provides that a marriage by a female under fourteen years of age, or a male person under sixteen, is void, but the proviso speaks of its being "declared void," and the construction of the statute by the courts has always been that the meaning is that such marriages are voidable. State v. Parker, 106 N. C. 711, 712, 11 S. E. 517.

Same—Ratification.—"If the parties, after arriving at the specified age of consent, continue to cohabit and live together as man and wife, this is a ratification." Coke on Littleton, 79; 1 Black. Com., 436; 1 Bish. Marriages and Divorce, 150 (4th Ed.), and Pearson, C. J., in Koonce v. Wallace, 52 N. C. 194; State v. Parker, 106 N. C. 711, 713, 11 S. E. 517.

The Proviso as to Death of Party.—The last proviso is broad and comprehensive in its declaration. Baity v. Cranfill, 91 N. C. 293, 300. It applies to marriages contracted before its enactment as well as those contracted thereafter. Baity v. Cranfill, 91 N. C. 293, 49 Am. Rep. 641. It has been applied to an incestuous marriage between an uncle and a niece. Baity v. Cranfill, 91 N. C. 293.

Same—Purpose.—The intention of the Legislature was to confine the power conferred upon the court in section 1658, to declare void, or in a judicial proceeding to treat as void, except where the intermarriage is between the specified races or involves the offense of bigamy, to cases, whenever the power is exercised, during the lifetime of the parties, or after death, only when there has been no issue born to them. That is, after the death of one of the parties, a marriage must then stand with all its legal consequences, and its validity no longer open to controversy. Baity v. Cranfill, 91 N. C. 293, 300.

Same—Effect of Proviso.—The effect of the proviso is in the nature of a statute of limitation upon the delegated or recognized judicial power, confining its exercise with a single exception to the lifetime of the parties, and, if cohabitation and offspring followed, withholding it afterwards, so as not to operate as a posthumous bastardizing of children born to them. Baity v. Cranfill, 91 N. C. 293, 297.

Same—What Must Be Proven.—To bring a case of unlawful marriage within the last proviso to this section, it must be shown not only that one of the parties is dead but that cohabitation and the birth of issue followed the unlawful marriage. Ward v. Bailey, 118 N. C. 55, 23 S. E. 926.

§ 2496. Prohibited degrees of kinship.—When the degree of kinship is estimated with a view to ascertain the right of kinspeople to marry, the half-blood shall be counted as the whole-blood: Provided, that nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to invalidate any marriage heretofore contracted in case where by counting the half-blood as the whole-blood the persons contracting such marriage would be nearer of kin than first cousins; but in every such case the kinship shall be ascertained by counting relations of the half-blood as being only half so near kin as those of the same degree of the whole-blood. (Rev., s. 2084; Code, s. 1811; 1879, c. 78.)

§ 2497. Marriages between slaves validated.—Persons, both or one of whom were formerly slaves, who have complied with the provisions of section five, chapter forty, of the acts of the general assembly, ratified March tenth, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six, shall be deemed to have been lawfully married. (Rev., s. 2085; Code, s. 1842; 1866, c. 40, s. 5.)

As to the children of certain colored persons inheriting, see section 1654, Rule 13.

Section Is Valid.—The validity of this section in creating retroactively a legal marriage relation between slaves is upheld in Cooke v. Cooke, 61 N. C. 583; State v. Harris, 63 N. C. 1; State v. Adams, 65 N. C. 537; State v. Whitford, 86 N. C. 636; Long v. Barnes, 87 N. C. 329; Baity v. Cranfill, 91 N. C. 293, 298.

Provisions of the Act of 1866.—Sections 5, c. 40, 1866, reads: "That in all cases where man and woman, both or one of whom were lately slaves and are now emancipated, now cohabit together in the relation of husband and wife, the parties shall be deemed to have been lawfully married, as man and wife, at the time of the commencement of such cohabitation, although they may not have been married in due form of law." State v. Whitford, 86 N. C. 636, 637.

Power of Legislature.—The substance of marriage, the consent of the parties, existing, it was as clearly within the power of the Legislature to dispense with any particular formality as it was to prescribe such. State v. Whitford, 86 N. C. 636, 639; citing State v. Harris, 63 N. C. 1.

Relation Made Legal from Beginning.—This section legalized a cohabitation among those who were lately slaves, when still continued, and validates the relation as a marriage from its commencement; and, to give the act full force, directs the parties to go before the clerk or justice in acknowledgment of assent, and to state the time when it began. Woodard v. Blue, 103 N. C. 109, 114, 9 S. E. 492.

Continuing Cohabitation Supplies Consent.—The necessary consent to marriage thereto is supplied under this section by continuing cohabitation. Battis v. Avery, 140 N. C. 184, 186, 52 S. E. 584; State v. Whitford, 86 N. C. 636, 639.

By force of the original consent of the parties while they were slaves, renewed after they became free, and by the performance of what was required by the statute, they became to all intents and purposes man and wife. State v. Harris, 63 N. C. 1, 5.

Same—Old Rule Adopted.—Our statute of 1866, owing to the peculiar status of slave marriages, adopted as to such marriages the rule which has long prevailed in Scotland, New York and several other states (and which was the rule of the civil law and of the Canon law till the Council of Trent), that consent, followed by cohabitation, constitutes a legal marriage. State v. Melton, 120 N. C. 591, 595, 26 S. E. 933.

Provision for Recordation.—Section 6 made the failure to have the acknowledgment recorded, in a specified time, a misdemeanor punishable at the discretion of the court. State v. Whitford, 86 N. C. 636, 638.

Same—Directory Only.—The provision as to acknowledgment was considered to be directory, so that a failure to comply with it, though a misdemeanor, did not affect the validity of the marriage. Bettis v. Avery, 140 N. C. 184, 186, 52 S. E. 584.

Same—Noncompliance Does Not Effect Marriage. — It has been held that an entry of the acknowledgment is not essential to the consummation of the marriage, and that a marriage constituted by operation of the act can not be avoided by a failure to have the acknowledgment entered of record. State v. Adams, 65 N. C. 537, 539; State v. Whitford, 86 N. C. 636, 639.

Art. 2. Marriage License

§ 2498. Solemnization without license unlawful.—No minister or officer shall perform a ceremony of marriage between any two persons, or shall declare them to be man and wife, until there is delivered to him a license for the marriage of the said persons, signed by the register of deeds of the county in which the marriage is intended to take place, or by his lawful deputy. (Rev., s. 2086; Code, s. 1813; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 4.)

Actual Delivery Required.—This section requires an actual delivery, and constructive delivery will not suffice. So performance of the ceremony by a justice after a telephone communication informing him that the license has been mailed subjects him to the penalty prescribed by the next section. Wooley v. Bruton, 184 N. C. 438, 114 S. E. 628.

Marriage without License Valid.—The failure to procure a license to marry will not invalidate a marriage otherwise good. State v. Parker, 106 N. C. 711, 11 S. E. 517; Maggett v. Roberts, 112 N. C. 71, 16 S. E. 919; Wooley v. Bruton, 184 N. C. 438, 114 S. E. 628.

Effect of Illegal License.—A marriage is not invalid because solemnized under an illegal license. Maggett v. Roberts, 112 N. C. 71, 16 S. E. 919; Wooley v. Bruton, 184 N. C. 438, 114 S. E. 628.

Same—Officer Penalized.—The only effect of marrying a couple without a legal license is to subject the officer or minister to the penalty of $200 prescribed by the next section. State v. Parker, 106 N. C. 711, 11 S. E. 517; State v. Robbins, 28 N. C. 23; Maggett v. Roberts, 112 N. C. 71, 74, 16 S. E. 919.
